U.S. FORCES GET BAPTISM OF FIRE IN KOREA

MULTI-MILLION-DOLLAR POWER

This giant $75,000,000 Ontario hydro project, located on the Upper Ottawa River site at Des Joachims, has been opened to produce initially 120,000 horsepower, later to be stepped up to 480,000. Second only to the Queenston plant in the Ontario hydro network, its opening has meant the release of Ontario from troublesome power restrictions. — (CP Photo.)

Daylight Pounding By Air Forces Rebs To Slow Down

U.S. Planes Spray Bombs, Rockets, Machine Gun Fire

Tokyo, July 4 (Tuesday) —(AP)— Communist invaders of South Korea slowed down their powerful armored advance Monday to lie low in the face of fierce daylight pounding by Australian and United States fighters and bombers.

First United States infantry units digging in at the front were greeted by a savage 25-minute attack of five to seven unidentified strafing planes.

American bombers and fighters in large numbers sprayed bombs, rockets and machine gun fire at the communists, four of whose tank columns were across the Han River. Another Red tank column had taken Wonju, 50 miles east of Seoul, captured South Korea capital.

American and Australian fighter planes wrecked seven North Korean tanks and 22 trucks and shot down two hostile planes Monday. The communists were building up their anti-aircraft positions in the Seoul area and carrying out heavy bombing attacks on Suwon but they failed to dislodge the South Koreans still hanging on to the town and its airfield, 23 miles south of the fallen capital.

Two Red tank columns were reported 25 miles below the Han in a menacing break through outflanking Suwon and its airfield, abandoned by the Americans as an advance supply base.

CALL OF DUTY

Swift Current, Sask., (CP)—The Salvation Army believes in giving its members experience in varied places. Second Lieut. Janet Russel has been appointed to Swift Current from somewhat warmer climate in Southampton, Bermuda.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 3 (CP)—Synopsis: A disturbance moved eastward across Ontario on Sunday giving rain to northern and central regions, and showers and scattered thunderstorms to southern regions. Rainfalls were mostly less than a quarter of an inch but a few localities received over one half inch in thunderstorms. Drier air has now moved in from the northwest.

Today will be sunny in most regions, but a disturbance moving eastward from Manitoba will bring light rain to northern regions this evening and tonight and scattered thunderstorms to southern regions early Tuesday.

U.K. Gets Ready For Industrial Use of A-Energy

London, July 3 (AP)—Supply Minister George Strauss said today Britain is getting ready to build its first experimental plants to produce atomic energy for industrial use.

The research is being carried on at the government laboratory at Harwell.

Strauss told the Commons in reply to a question:

"A program for the construction of the first experimental power reactors now is being prepared. Until some experience has been gained it would be premature to estimate their prospects."

Do You Breathe Yourself Sick? If So, Stop Habit of Sighing, Yawning

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

New York, July 3—(AP)—Are you one of the many people who breathe themselves sick?

You can do it easily enough, through bad habits of breathing, sighing, yawning and swallowing. You over-breathe, get too much air into your lungs or stomach.

That can cause dizziness, chest pains, tingling or numbness in hands, feet or face, buzzing in the head, bloating, muscular aches, blurring of vision, dryness of mouth, even fainting.

The over-breathing — doctors call it hyperventilation—seems to be pretty common, Dr. Raymond L. Rice of Mt. Sinai Hospital and Marquette University School of Medicine, Milwaukee, Wis., writes in the American Journal of Medicine.

Perhaps one in every 10 persons who go to see doctors suffers from over-breathing. Dr. Rice says. Most people aren't aware of it even some physicians and medical students say they never heard of hyperventilation.

Some people take deep gaps of air, and then suffer. The gasp with no reason to justify it causes a sensation of smothering. Often people gasp when they are sleeping, or just waking. It is an explosive gasp, and often is an expression of anxiety or tension.

A second kind of over-breathing is a deep breath or sigh, taken to relieve emotional tension.

In a tense or unhappy situation, some people reach for a cigaret or chocolate. Others sigh or gasp, some yawn or sniff, or indulge in other over-breathing habits, Dr. Rice said. Some swallow too much, and with each swallow they swallow air. Swallowing isn't a harmless habit.

The treatment is to break up the habit of gasping, sighing, yawning or sniffing, Dr. Rice said. Just recognizing that you're guilt of it, and that it is causing trouble, isn't enough. The gaspers and sighers have to work at it to break the habit, learning to suppress the urge for a deep breath, and to breathe normally.

NON-RUNNING R.R. TRADES TO STRIKE IF NECESSARY

35,000 Rail and Express Members are Involved

Montreal, July 3 (CP)—A vote to strike "if necessary" to back up wage-hour demands was announced here Saturday by one of Canada's two major railroad unions.

The announcement came from the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and other transport workers (C.C.L.) and the Brotherhood of Express Employees (C.C.L.) which called for the strike vote among its $35,000 members after union leaders rejected a conciliation board compromise nearly three months ago.

The other union group consisst of 17 International Brotherhoods affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and numbering more than 90,000 members. This group has also sent out strike ballots which are returnable July 25.

Both unions asked Canadian railways for a 40-hour week to replace the current 48-hour week with no reduction in take-home pay, plus general wage increases.

In addition the C.B.R.E. asked a 10-cent hourly increase and union dues checkoff. The A. F. of L. Brotherhoods asked a seven-cent hourly raise.

Say Cost $84,000,000

The railways, The Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Ontario Northland and Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo, estimated the union demands would cost $84,000,000 yearly. The dispute involves only non-running trades employees such as express workers and telegraph operators.

Conciliation boards heard the dispute through the winter months. The boards recommended a 44-hour week and an increase in hourly pay, but not enough to give the same take-home pay as present in all cases.

The railways accepted the report but labor spokesmen rejected it and called for the strike ballot.

T. McGregor, chairman, and W. J. Smith, secretary, of the C.B.R.E. union negotiating committee, said any strike action would not be taken independently of the other unions.

When and if Advisable

They said the strike vote authorized them to take a strike if and when it was considered advisable.

The statement did not give the actual vote but said "results show an overwhelmingly majority of our members favor strike action."

Frank H. Hall, A.F.L. negotiator said he expected "a strong vote for strike aotion," when results come in at the end of the month.

Several Points of Attack Could Embarrass W. Powers If Reds Decide to Force Issue

Fred Hampson, AP Bureau Chief in China and Hong Kong now in the United States on home leave, discussed in the following article possible developments in the Far East as a result of the Korean war.

By FRED HAMPSON

Los Angeles, July 3. (AP)—If Moscow decides to go all out in forcing the issue in the Far East there are several possible points of attack which could greatly embarrass the western powers.

But it will all depend on how willing Russia's Far Eastern stooges are to pull Kremlin chestnuts out of the fire.

With the Western Powers gradually concentrating their limited Far Eastern forces on the Korean front, the time will soon be ripe for the Reds to strike elsewhere.

But the Kremlin can't do it. Stalin can only ask the Far East satellites to do it. In some spots he might be able to give them some help, but not much for awhile.

The Chinese Reds could make a jab at Formosa. They would be risking a major disaster if they tried it. But as a diversion to keep the United States Seventh fleet away from Korea, a Formosa feint would be useful to the Soviets.

They could attack Hong Kong. Hong Kong, a narrow peninsula and an island, is ideal for defence and Britain—unlike 1941—now is well prepared. Its success would be doubtful but such an attack probably would force Britain to withdraw naval units she has placed at the disposal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur for the Korean war.

Then the Kremlin undoubtedly would be happy if pro-Red Ho-Chi-Minh would speed up his war in Indo-China against the western-supported Bao Dai government. There would be immediately a hue and cry from Bao and France for men, ships, planes and arms needed in Korea.

Or Moscow might suggest that the Chinese Reds send their big forces across the Indo-China border, across the Burma border, into Siam and ultimately toward Malaya and Singapore. That would inevitably pull British strength back to Singapore and Hong Kong.

The Communist Huks in the Phillipines could speed up their war against the Republican government which would bring new pressure on the United States for more military help in Luzon.

The bandit forces in Malaya, which Britain never has quite been able to eliminate, might rise anew.

That Britain and other commonwealth countries are aware of these possibilities is shown by the transfer of Australian ships and troops to Singapore. If the other fronts stay quiet these forces may become available for Korea. But in the meantime a lot of other forces have to be watched.

57 MEET DEATH IN ACCIDENTS OVER HOLIDAY

(By The Canadian Press)

In a weekend marked by celebrations by Canadians at home and abroad, and marred by at least 57 violent deaths within her borders, the Dominion celebrated the 83rd anniversary of its birth.

Thousands took advantage of generally fine weather to jam the highways in weekend outings. And the highways took their toll.

A Canadian Press survey reported 27 deaths resulting from traffic accidents. There were 16 drownings and 14 persons died violently in other mishaps.

A 21-gun salute fired on Capital Hill in Ottawa and a parade and memorial service at Cornwall, Ont., in which members of the Massena, N. Y., Branch of the American Legion participated, highlighted the actual ceremonies that marked commemoration of Canada's Confederation on July 1, 1867.

But Canadians found time to enjoy sports events and beauty contests, or just relaxed in the open air at holiday resorts, summer cottages or the nearest park.

They had plenty of company. United States visitors, starting their long July 4 weekend, thronged past border points in motorcars, buses and trains.

Glamis Castle Open to Public Twice Weekly

Glamis, Scotland, July 3. (AP)—Tourists paying an admission fee can enter and poke around storied Glamis Castle, birthplace of Princess Margaret and ancestral home of Queen Elizabeth.

The public is being admitted twice a week for a price, said the owner, the Earl of Strathmore, because he has to do something to meet costs of upkeep and taxes.

Glamis is reputed to be one of the gloomiest castles of Scotland. It is the countryside in which Shakespeare laid his sombre tragedy, MacBeth. Castle records go back to 1033, when King Malcolm II was murdered there.

CANADIANS ENJOY CELEBRATIONS ON 83RD BIRTHDAY

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadians everywhere celebrated the Dominion's 83rd birthday Saturday

Special celebrations were held in the United States, Great Britain, and the 10 provinces. But for most, the holiday was just an occasion for packing up and getting away from home for the weekend.

Sunny weather prevailed over most of the country, and Canadians by the thousands hustled by car, bus, and train to beaches, river, and holiday resorts. Highways were jammed.

More than a score died in accidents over the weekend.

Several Ontario centres combined the holiday with the opening of Old Home Week.

In Ottawa, a 21-gun salute was fired from Parliament Hill, and the Governor-General entertained some 2,000 citizens of all ranks at a garden party in the grounds of Rideau Hall.

Messages from foreign countries flooded in to the capital, extending birthday wishes to the Dominion. Included were messages from Nationalist China, Italy, Mexico and Pakistan.

The west coast, under sunny, blue skies, celebrated with horse races, a golf tournament, and a Pacific Coast Regatta at Vancouver.

Alberta experienced short, but heavy thundershowers in the southern regions, but the rains didn't deter the flow of city-dwellers to lake resorts. The streets of Edmonton were nearly deserted.

Mayor and Councillors Released After Month

Nicosia, Cyprus, July 3 (Reuters) —The Mayor of Limassol and five of his councillors today were released from jail after a month in prison for defying a Supreme Court order to rename two streets of the town.

They had said the order "offended Cypriot national pride" because one of the streets was to be named for Sir Richard Palmer, governor of Cyprus after the anti-British disorders of 1931.

QUEUILLE'S NEW CABINET AROUSES SOCIALIST IRE

May Receive Crucial Test on Tuesday

Paris, July 3 — (AP)—Premier Henri Queuille has formed a new cabinet whose right-wing tinge already has aroused Socialist ire. The government may receive its first crucial test in the National Assembly tomorrow. The new cabinet formed today, eight days after George Bidault's government toppled, could be defeated tomorrow, if the Assembly votes against Queuille on some technical issue.

The crisis which brought in the new government has had little to do with France's foreign policy. Foreign Minister Robert Schuman has been kept in his post, indicating that his plan to pool Western Europe's coal and steel has full government backing.

The meeting of six countries discussing the plan was recessed when the French crisis came. Delegates went home to get their government's opinions on the French proposal for an over-all International Authority to control the pool. They meet here again today.

10-Year-Old Boy, Madoc, Kills Self With Revolver

Ten-year-old Clifford Casselman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Casselman, Madoc village, shot and killed himself Friday afternoon, when in an attempt to frighten his sister he placed a revolver against his head and pulled the trigger.

The lad was rushed to the office of Dr. Geo. L. Mullin but died 45 minutes after the accident.

In the absence of the mother, who was away from the house picking berries and of the father who was in the nearby barn, Clifford had found the revolver, while searching through his brother's trunk. His sister Madeline had told him to put the gun away but the boy put the gun to his head and said "look I am going to shoot myself" and pulled the trigger.

The gun was brought back from overseas by an older brother Carl, who was keeping the revolver as a keepsake. Coroner Dr. D. Eagleson of Madoc, said there would be no inquest.

The incident was investigated by Cpl. Jack Hatch of the Provincial Police.

No Serious Progress Made by Invaders During the Day

American Bombers Dump 800 Bombs on North Capital

Tokyo, July 3. (AP)—United States ground forces reached the Korean war front, dug advanced positions and got a baptism of fire from strafing planes today. But by nightfall they had not seen the North Korean ground enemy.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's advanced headquarters in South Korea said the northern invaders had made no serious progress during the day, marked only by sporadic fighting between Korean forces.

A spokesman indicated the break through the Han river line at Youngdungpo by two tank columns might have been less serious than first anticipated.

American pilots reported that most communist convoys apparently were lying low during daylight.

The strafing and rocket attack on the Americans lasted 25 minutes. One foot soldier was wounded.

Advance Bogs Down

Advance headquarters in South Korea said the North Korean spearheads had failed to make any serious progress in a series of breaks through South Korean lines. The drive on Suwon, abandoned American forward base appeared to have bogged down or collapsed. A spokesman said some of the tanks appeared to have pulled back.

American bombers today raided the North Korean capital twice and dropped more than 800 bombs, radio Pyongyang said tonight. The broadcast, minitored in Toyko, said North Korean fighter planes intercepted the bombers and knocked two down.

The bombers also carried out strafing attacks on villages on the outskirts of Pyongyang, the broadcast added.

10 Cents Extra For Every 10 Feet Painters Go Up

Toronto, July 3 — (CP) — The longer the ladder, the higher the pay.

That's the sense of a clause in an agreement between Wilcox Sign Company and the Sign and Pictorial Painters' Union (A.F.L.)

At 40 feet, the wage scale is $1.50 an hour. For every 10 feet higher they go, the painters get an extra 10 cents.

What's World's Most Boring Book? Pilgrim's Progress Says Recent Poll

New York, July 3 — (AP) — What are the 10 most boring books in the world . . . that is, among the classics?

The dignified Columbia University Press, tired of taking votes for "the 10 best books," decided to pin down the 10 most boring.

Through its magazine, "The Pleasures of Publishing," it polled hundreds of editors, writers, booksellers, librarians, literary critics and amateurs.

The results were printed yesterday.

They will bring fiendish joy to high school and college students—and little but pain to their teachers. Taken all in all, the "uninteresting 10" might be the required reading list of any well-conducted school.

A few votes went for the Old Testament. Some went for the Kinsey Report. Shakespeare was well represented—17 of his plays got the Bronx cheer.

But none of these was the winner.

That palm, if you can call it a palm, went to that sturdy old standby — John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress."

Then, in descending order, came the following literary monuments:

Melville's "Moby Dick," Milton's "Paradise Lost," Spenser's "Faerie Queen," Boswell's "Life of Samuel Johnson," Richardson's "Pamela," Eliot's "Silas Marner," Scott's Ivanhoe," Cervantes' "Don Quixote," and Goeth's "Faust."

Shakespeare couldn't get near these. His most boring play — according to the poll — was "As You Like It," and it was only No. 41 on the list.

But George Eliot, who wished "Silas Marner" on generations of high school sophomores, managed to get three other novels inside the top 30.

"In fact," said Fon W. Boardman, the magazine editor, "every book that was ever on a high school reading list was mentioned at least once."

Most of the winners, he said, were longer than usual, tended toward moralizing and created a "gloomy" atmosphere.

"Don't ask us what it proves," he said — and ducked.

Pierce Appointed To Forge Link With W. Europe

Ottawa, July 3 (CP) — Canada today named the man to forge the first link in her new informal economic tie-up with Western Europe.

He is Sydney D. Pierce, associate Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce and a key man in Canada's arms mobilization and production planning.

The External Affairs Department said he will represent Canada at the next meeting of the council of the Organization for Economic Co-operation at Paris July 6.

He will report back on the methods by which he feels Canada could best fulfill her agreement to work informally with O.E.E.C. to bring about greater economic co-operation between Europe and North America and to solve economic problems generally.

O.E.E.C. is the international organization that grew up out of Marshall Aid. Both Canada and the U.S. recently agreed to share in its deliberations on an informal basis.

The announcement does not mean Mr. Pierce will be Canada's permanent representative on O.E.E.C. His advice will have a large bearing on what form that representation will take.

The fact that he is the trade department's arms chief raises the possibility that he will carry forward in Paris Canada's hopes to become an arms-producing country under the Atlantic Pact.

Russia Charges U.S. Preparing Bacterial War

London, July 3. (AP)—Russia has followed up accusations that the United States is bombing East Germany with potato bugs by charging that "American militarists are actively preparing bacterial war."

Moscow radio carried the charge last night.

"At the beginning of 1946," the broadcast said, "18 Japanese specialists were sent to the United States—bacteriologists who zealously handed over to their new masters all their material on the production of the bacterial weapon."

It said secret laboratories in Maryland and army units in Utah and Massachusetts are working on the weapon.

Late last week Russia sent a note to the United States accusing American planes of dropping potato bugs on East Germany.

R. GREGORY BUTLER GRADUATES IN LAW

R. G. Butler, son of the late Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., and Mrs. Butler, was one of the 153 students of Osgoode Hall called to the bar and awarded the degree of barrister-at-law at convocation exercises held in Toronto last Thursday.

LARGE SMALL-MOUTHED BLACK BASS HOOKED IN SALMON LAKE

"The complete angler" is usually a chap who goes out to his favorite haunt on opening day with the purest of intentions and a whopping assortment of lures and comes back empty handed. In reality, of course, the complete angler should be the lad who eats fish following a fishing trip.

Ross Watson ate fish following his expedition to Salmon Lake on Sunday. Just half an hour after dropping his lure over the side he hooked what proved to be a five-pound five ounce small-mouthed black bass. The fish measured 19 3-4 inches in length and 15 1-2 inches in girth. Fifteen minutes after it was hooked it came over the side and approximately five hours later it went over the side of the Watson frying pan.

Oh yes. The irresistible piscatorial attraction attached to the Watson line was, gentlemen, a worm.

Truck Wrecked, Driver Escapes Death by Inches

Swerving his truck onto the track in order to avoid striking a stopped car when his brakes failed at Gibson's Crossing east of the city, Frank Sunderland, Earl St., escaped death by inches Saturday midnight when he jumped out of the vehicle seconds before it was struck by a passing freight.

Sunderland was driving west toward the city when as he neared the crossing he saw the wig-wag operating indicating the approach of a train. Attempting to bring his truck to a stop Sunderland was dismayed to find his brakes would not hold and he swung right to avoid striking the car ahead which had stopped for the crossing.

The truck continued on to the railway tracks where it stalled and Sunderland was just able to escape from the cab when the locomotive of an eastbound freight crashed into the vehicle. The truck was completely wrecked by the impact.

Quinte Golfers Bring Back Branscombe Cup

The Branscombe Golf Trophy once again rests in the trophy room of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club.

It returned on Sunday after a more or less length sojourn in the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club when T. A. Carruthers and Harry Ridley wrested the bauble from the Cataraqui aces Col. Manuel and Duncan Thompson. The score was one up.

The Quinte pair carded a score of 69 as against a 71 of the Kingston players.

Carruthers and Ridley scoring six birdies on the outgoing nine finished four up with a 32. Manuel and Thompson carded a 37.

The Kingston players settled down to business in the incoming nine. They whittled down the Belleville lead to win the nine holes by a hole, but Carruthers and Ridley in a downpour of rain tied the last hole to win the round by one. Par for the course is 70.

Still Lots of 'Old Kids' Around As Circus Unloads at Station

As one man said this morning, there are still lots of "old kids" around—and most of them were at the CNR station to see the circus unload. Word last week was that the first of four circus trains would arrive about 6 a.m., and the early birds were there to see it.

Actually, the first train didn't arrive until between eight and nine o'clock. The second one pulled in around 10:30 a.m., and at that time, no one seemed to know just when the last two would arrive. One circus worker just smiled and said "All I know is, they are somewhere on the tracks between here and Montreal." Bleary-eyed workers themselves didn't know arrival time of the first trainload, and spectator guesses ranged from 6.30 until 9.30.

Accompanied by shouts of "Here it comes," the second train rolled in with trucks, wagons, elephants and company Pullmans. Total time to unload the first train was about an hour, a worker said. The job was done by one of the two crews used for unloading operations. The second crew arrived with the second train.

When this reporter expressed concern that they might not get everything up and going by show time this afternoon, a bull-chested chap laughed "Don't worry, fellow, we'll be there."

Cars Crowd Station

Hundreds of cars crowded Station St. as curious residents filed up to see the show. Traffic control was provided by city police. The show is being set up in the industrial area in the north-east end of the city.

Some of the early birds must have been at the station while it was still dark, for one man said he was there at 5:30 a.m., and there were lots of people ahead of him. His mathematical mind counted 53 wagons that came off the first train, and there must have been that many more on the second.

Unloading is a highly organized process. By the time the train is shunted into position, men have all the trucks ready to go, and the air is filled with blue exhaust. A tractor with a line and hook pulls out the heavy ramos almost before the load is stopped, and the caravan begins to roll off the steel cars. The flat cars are impressive in silver paint, and many a person was seen with a faraway look in his eyes reading, "Sarasota, Fla." on the side of them. All the Pullman cars are named after states in the Union—Florida, Nevada, Connecticut, and so on.

Children were having a gay time running and playing tag on top of the huge flat cars, while the grownups tried to look grown-up.

Up on the hill, hundreds stood on the vantage point and watched the parade of vehicles. Oldtimers lifted their noses to the air to catch the wind, and twinkling, they said "the circus is sure here."

Doors open at 1 and 7 p.m. with performances at 2.15 and 8.15 p.m.

Fifty Boys and Staff Bedded Down at Moira Lake 'Y' Camp For 10 Days of Outdoor Life

Fifty boys and staff were bedded down over the weekend at Moira Lake YMCA Camp to commence a season of outdoor life which will continue to Aug. 19th. The next influx of campers will take place on Saturday July 8th. Last minute preparations made life in the city on the holiday morning a busy one in the homes of campers, while at the camp the staff of counsellors and instructors were putting in last minute efforts to have all in readiness to receive the first camp family. Several meetings of the camp staff had been held during the week and organized work parties went about their duties of cleaning, scrubbing, assembling and repairing, as well as spending much time in the detail program planning, scheduling and putting in readiness games equipment and program material.

Activity on Waterfront

Much activity was in evidence on the waterfront. At an early hour on Saturday morning Gilbert B. Scott, chairman of the Rotary camp committee, and a group of Rotarians were at work slavishly finishing the assembling of the swimming pool and diving tower. This was no task for softies. However, such staunch Rotarians as President Ken Griffiths, Fred Yealland, Doug Whillans, Dr. Jack Marshall, Dr. Alf Wilkes and Al Davis, YMCA Secretary accomplished the task of moving the heavy dock into place in water, well over their depth. Diving and lifting and finally bolting was accomplished according to schedule. Past-president, Fred Deacon, was on hand to lend his support in final details.

Two Diving Boards

Two diving boards were put in place in the sturdy new diving tower, one at the two foot level and one at the twelve foot level. The tower is erected in ten feet of water, one hundred feet from shore. The boards are placed such that a commanding view of any demonstration can be seen from the shore. Dr. Wilkes gave a demonstration of his ability christening the tower by two beautiful dives off the high board. He was followed by chairman Scott's son Malcolm.

While all this work was in progress Doug Eaton, who returns from the High School at Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, where he is director of physical education, to take charge of aquatics and athletics at the camp, was busy assembling a fleet of canoes and rowboats and erecting the boat dock and canoe racks.

Great interest was in evidence around the kitchen where Arthur Mitchell and his wife had made every effort to take care of healthy appetites with tempting, tasty wholesome food. Included in their equipment this year is a fine new refrigerator, giving double the capacity of the previous units. With eighteen years of experience behind him as a cook for one of the large provincial hospitals, Mr. Mitchell is quite at home in this environment. He was beaming happiness all over as he whistled while he worked in eager anticipation of the arrival of his first charges. When not too busy in the kitchen he stole a few minutes to join with the boys around the piano with his accordion. A fine orchestra was quickly organized with a variety of instruments and talents located amongst the leaders and campers.

Greeted by Director

The first arrivals in camp were geeted by director Kenneth Hansel, school principal from Welland and his wife, who looks after the business details of the camp. Quickly the boys were hurried over to the infirmary where the nurse, Miss Frances Nidd, Reg. N., was ready in white uniform to receive their medical certificates and give attention to the first inspection. The infirmary, another new addition to the camp equipment this year, was in spotless condition, with their snow white beds ready to receive any who might be so unfortunate as to need a rest away from their cabins. The fully equipped receiving room has had the personal attention of Dr. Jack Marshall and Court Miller. Camp life is not new to Miss Nidd who hails from North Bay. She has had several positions as Camp Nurse including a year with the provincial department of education camps.

William MacKenzie, High School teacher from Toronto, had all in readiness for the evening program which will be one of his responsibilities. He is a specialist in dramatics and crafts. Ken Mara, a Toronto college student had the musical program organized and the first rehearsal for the Sunday worship service.

Counsellors Ready

Those appointed for counsellors, counsellors-in-training and special instructors for the first period included, Jack Matthews, Bill Rose, Jack Doig, Barry Kells Bill Deacon, Phil Aston, Bob Brearley and Peter Hart.

As a final program feature for the day and as instruction in precaution in the woods, an excellent film on Forest Devastation by Fire was shown. It was a tired group of boys that climbed into comfortable beds on their first night to dream of expectation of a happy, healthy time, of explorations, new experiences and genuine fun in the weeks ahead.

Eight Supervised Playgrounds Opened in City Areas Today

Eight playgrounds opened their gates this morning for an organized program of recreation during the summer months. These playgrounds are being operated by the Belleville Recreation Committee and supervised by the Y.M.C.A. Officers of the Belleville Recreation Committee are as follows:

Chairman, Enos David; Vice-Chairman, Dr. R. T. Potter; Treasurer, Drury Denyes; Secretary, Al. J. Davis; Finance Committee, Henry F. Becker, Drury Denyes, Ross Bailey and Harry Drury; Ways and Means Committee, Chairman, R. L. Cowan; Publicity Committee, R. L. Cowan, Mrs. F. Harback, William Stovin and Stuart Robb. A staff of 20 has been employed by the Y.M.C.A. for the operation.

While all the eight playgrounds will be operated for younger children under eight years of age, with a child supervisor in charge from 9 a.m. till noon and 1.30 p.m. to 5.00 p.m. daily except Sundays, three playgrounds known as the East Hill, West Hill and King George, will also have supervisors for the older girls and boys and will operate until dark.

Several thousand dollars have been spent on grading and equipment in order to make the grounds suitable for a variety of activities which should catch the imagination of every child.

Many Facilities

Much fun will be enjoyed by the children on the swings, slides, teeters and sand boxes, but in addition organized play of softball, volleyball and football, as well as track and field, will be part of the program. Treasure hunts, and the children's popular games will not be overlooked by the versatile supervisors who will also assist in directing story-telling, craft programs and exploration nature trips. The Y.M.C.A. is providing hours for swimming each week in the Campbell Street building for the older children.

As this is a community project it is hoped that parents will feel a part of the enterprise and will participate as they can, giving assistance in important committee work and leadership that is needed. Special talents of parents and others in each community can greatly aid in the accomplishments at each playground. Already a chairman and small committee has been active at each playground preparing grounds and equipment for the opening.

Experienced Supervisors

Supervisors have been selected because of special training or experience in recreational leadership. Some of them are senior high school students, others are teachers or university students. Several have come from out of town for the summer for these positions. The program of supervision has been developed by the General Secretary of the YMCA Al J. Davis, and a committee of which A. B. Hunt has been the chairman. Other members are Norman E. Edwards, J. H. Legate, John W. Deacon, G. A. Freeman and Dr. E. G. Kennedy.

Parents should ascertain the playground closest to them and those in charge.

East Hill: Bleecker and Bridge Street East. Chairman, Dr. R. W. Potter; junior playground supervisor, Eleanor Sprague; senior girl supervisor, Helen Clarke; male supervisor, Bob Wesley.

West Hill. Queen Mary School. Chairman Fred Symons; junior play-ground supervisor, Betty Woodley; senior girl supervisor, Shirley Cade; male supervisor, Dick Martin.

King George School. North Front Street. Chairman, Mrs. J. Gander; junior playground supervisor, Carol Weston; senior girl supervisor, Loretta Lapensee; male supervisor, Arthur Jackson.

Madeline Poole will be special supervisor at the East and West Hills and Hilda Burley will do special work at King George playgrounds.

At Foster Playground, Church and St. Paul Streets, Art Keegan is the chairman and Joan Harback the supervisor.

At Charles Street playground, located north of Victoria Avenue, Dr. R. T. Potter is chairman and Alberta Fox is the supervisor.

The new playground in Churchill Heights has Max Matthews as chairman and Helen Weston and Francis Finkle as supervisors.

Chairman of the C. N. R. playground at the North Station, Cannifton Road and Station St., is Clem Bowler. Verna Fox has been appointed supervisor. James Musgrove is head supervisor.

Opening Ceremonies

Marking the extensive program of playground operation being undertaken this year, opening events are scheduled to take place at the East Hill grounds, West Hill grounds and King George School, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, respectively, at 7:30 p.m. Bands will be in attendance and refreshments have been donated for the occasion. Winding up the week's opening ceremonies will be the mammoth celebration at the Exhibition Grounds on Friday night, where top flight bands in the country will give a performance and one of the finest fireworks displays ever presented outside of the Canadian National Exhibition has been arranged. Proceeds from this occasion are for the purpose of financing the playgrounds.

The general financing of the operation of these playgrounds has been made possible by contributions from public and private bodies, service clubs, organizations, industries, merchants and the general public. More funds are needed to meet the budget of $7,800. The generous support of citizens is invited to make this undertaking a success. H. F. Becker at the Bank of Montreal, R. L. Cowan at the Ontario Inaelligencer, or any member of the committee will be glad to receive donations.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 3 (CP)— Lack of buying interest allowed market leaders to sag slowly as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Activity slowed to a standstill and market leaders sagged. Industrial and gold stocks showed the widest losses.

Volume for the first three hours was 684,000 shares.

Traders sat out on the sidelines today, waiting until after the Independence Day holiday, tomorrow in the United States, before making any commitments.

Papers, utilities, steels, foods and refining oils showed wide lists of fractional declines in the industrial groupings. Caution was the market watchword following sharp breaks last week on news from the fighting in Korea.

Senior and junior gold producers dipped over a wide front. Declines ranged up to 15 cents in juniors and seniors were down fractions.

Base metals opened higher but began to lose ground in mid-session. Anacon Lead and Ascot Corp., were traded briskly on the downside and Consolidated Smelters and Quemont lost fractions. Waite Amulet was a firm spot.

Western oils also slipped from early firmness. Declines ranged up to 25 cents in key stocks.

Fire Damages Hillcrest Home

Believed to have started near a clothes closet, fire Saturday evening caused considerable damage at the Hillcrest home of Mr. Roy Clarke. The back part of the five-roomed bungalow was badly damaged by the flames before they were brought under control by the Belleville Fire Department.

Mr. Clarke was at home at the time the fire broke out, while other members of the family were downtown attending a show, it was reported.

Four alarms were answered by the department over the holiday. Friday shortly before midnight firemen were called to Thurlow township to extinguish a car fire, and also were called outside the city on North Front Street for overheated pipes.

Shortly after midnight Sunday they were called to the residence of Mrs. J. Diamond, 160 Victoria where a radio transformer burned out and smoked up the house.

Veterans' Homes In East End Now Completed

Members of the city council housing committee and other municipal officials put their stamp of approval on the 100 veterans' houses now completed by the Zellers Construction Company when Friday afternoon they inspected the dwellings.

Of the 100 houses built by Zellers 70 are now occupied by veterans and their families, while it is expected the remaining 30 will have been allocated to veterans within the next few weeks.

Started Last Summer

Since sod was first broken on the housing project site last summer, the builders have made rapid progress in erecting the 100 housing units. The houses are of two types—two bedroom bungalows and three bedroom one and a half storey dwellings.

Members of the council housing committee were particularly pleased with the quality and finish of the veterans' housing units with Chairman Harold Armstrong and his committee, along with a few other members of council expressing surprise at the quality of the finish. Allan Vanderwater, Central Mortgage and Housing administrator, said the finish of the houses was 50 per cent better than in the houses in Churchill Heights General construction, however, is the same.

Have Full Basements

All of the houses have full seven foot basements with hot air furnaces; electric heating for water and non-rust copper tubing for water leads.

Kitchens are modern with built-in cupboards and tile floor. Other floors with the exception of the bath are of hardwood. A time saving feature of bathroom construction was that all baths were installed as a complete unit with plumbers having only to connect their leads.

Another feature of the houses are the aluminum window frames with storm windows and screens complete in a single unit. Window sash are readily removable for cleaning. Ample closet spaces has been provided in both the bungalow and semi-bungalow types of houses.

Roads Surfaced

Streets in the housing development have been surfaced with crushed rock in readiness for rolling and oiling while preparations are also being made for laying of sidewalks.

Individual building lots have been graded to their respective levels. By separate contract top soil will be applied, lawns seeded and trees planted.

Central Mortgage and Housing administrator Vanderwater said there were more than sufficient applications from veterans to fill the remaining 30 units in the housing development.

ATTEMPT TO RAM

Toronto, July 3 — (CP)—James O. Leitch, 23, of suburban Mimico was arrested Sunday after a chase in which police allege he twice tried to ram a police cruiser with a stolen truck. Chaged with theft of the truck, Leitch was released on $1,000 bail.

Freedom of the Press

What precisely is meant by that familiar phrase, "freedom of the press"?

Fundamentally it is not a special privilege reserved for newspaper publishers. It is rather a phase of a much larger freedom—the freedom of all men to speak their minds openly and without fear. The press claims no right which should not belong to every citizen in a democracy. But freedom of the press is an all-important part of this larger freedom because, under modern conditions, the press is the principal agency by which the ordinary man receives the information he needs to judge the actions of his rulers and make up his mind on public affairs. Without newspapers, or with only gagged and blindfolded ones, he is in the dark and helpless. An unfettered press is therefore one of the essential bulwarks of a democratic nation.

If any proof be needed, it is supplied by the record of the totalitarian dictatorships which have darkened the twentieth century. Rigid control of all sources of public information, and especially of newspapers, was the cornerstone on which all these regimes—Nazi, Fascist and Communist alike—were founded. Without it, they could hardly have lasted for more than a few months. With it, they could keep their peoples in blinkers and drive them on any course they chose. The calamities of our age, its fear and insecurity, stem in no small measure from the simple fact that, at critical periods, great sections of the earth's population have been prevented by their rulers from learning the real news of the world.

These examples should provide a warning against any attempt, by governments or by private interests, to restrict the essential freedom of the press. A free people must stand on guard not only against direct censorship, but also against more insidious encroachments. Nominal freedom is not enough. The only truly free press is one which can record the news faithfully and comment on it frankly, without fear of direct or indirect punishment. Neither the press nor the public is safe with anything less than this.

All liberty, of course, involves obligations. That of a free newspaper is to be truly free. It must strive to be thorough, accurate and unbiassed in its reporting, sincere and thoughtful in its editorials, and resistant to all outside pressure. It must be both cautious and bold—cautious until it knows all the facts, bold when it is sure of its ground. It must, above all, be inspired by devotion to the public welfare as its staff understand it.

Such a newspaper is worthy of the privileges which the free peoples of the world have traditionally granted to their press. Such a newspaper is also the best guardian of the liberties of the people.

VACATION DAYS ARE HERE

Long looked forward to, summer vacation has arrived and in city, town and resort life has taken on a different stride for many persons. It is the beginning of the holidays and the glamor of the time has moulded the thoughts of the people for weeks in advance, just as the impressions and results of the holidays will linger with them when they return to their home and accustomed labor.

Holidays as Canadians have learned to take and enjoy them, are that time when, with change of scene and activity, nature is expected to work changes of the greatest moment in those who take advantage of the conditions which prevail at this season. That is to revive their flagging spirits and tired bodies by coming into contact with nature in all the freshness of a rural scene or a lakeside vacation or the inspiration of a long journey across this continent or a voyage across the seas into settings hallowed with the ages.

There was a time when the wild and the rural scene did not mean so much as today, or when travel did not appeal to the mass of the people as today. For those who do not care for distant travel, the motorcar has brought any number of good journeys, those motor travels across the Province or Dominion or into the United States, a change of scene which inspires mind and invigorates body.

So more and more the great numbers of people change their ways for the time being. They have learned the value of the lesson taught in the old adage, a change is as good as a rest. For the mind and the body cannot forever labor and the new scene works miracles.

Among those who do not need to prepare much for the summertime's changes are the school children. To them the change is as normal as shedding a heavy coat. In spirit they are the ideal holidayers for they of all vacationists know how to enjoy all the charms of nature to the full without distraction. Wisely educational authorities have marked for the children the nine weeks or so of this balmy time of the year. Then after the holidays the boys and girls will show in no unmistakable manner that they have grown in body and mind with all the interests in the great outdoors. Nature is a good teacher as boys and girls come to know. And they are better students of nature than some adults are.

QUEEN MARY'S CARPET FOR CANADA

Canadians are proud that the carpet that was worked by Queen Mary and which has been on a tour of North America to raise funds as a contribution towards solving the dollar situation of Great Britain has been purchased by the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire for the people of Canada.

The I.O.D.E.'s offer of $100,000 for the precious handiwork has been accepted and the money will be raised by popular subscription. The carpet will be handed over to the Canadian Government for display in the National Gallery.

The Victorian Order of the Daughters of the Empire has just been celebrating its fiftieth anniversary and its patriotic labor is known to every citizen of the Dominion.

The handiwork of Queen Mary is a work of the finest art and took nine years to complete. The Queen's devotion to the cause of the Commonwealth in giving nine years of work to this carpet has been an inspiration to the Commonwealth and Canadians will be glad that this work of art will not be leaving but will have its home in the Dominion.

FOR THE PET DOG'S SAKE

A writer in Hamilton Spectator has made an appeal to motorists who are owners of dogs to make certain that their pets are either safe at home or riding in the family car instead of pursuing the masters' automobiles these hot days when over-exertion of racing along the highways or streets may bring them to collapse, or into grave danger in a season when the roads are crowded with passing vehicles. The writer says, "many dogs are sensitive and temperamental, particularly when they are very far from their home environment. They become ridden with the fear that they are being abandoned or parted from those they love most. That is why dogs so often disappear from automobiles when touring strange country. "Give Rover or Butch a break these hot days by making sure that he is either safe at home or riding in the family car — not chasing it in grievous frustration."

ABOUT DOGS

"Dogs are so much trouble!"
Mothers say.
"Make the housework double
Night and day.
Dogs are often catching
Some disease,
And they're always scratching
At their fleas.

"Dogs are always whining
To get out,
And when you are dining
Sit about,
Hoping you will heed them,
As they wait,
And a few bits feed them
From your plate.

"Dogs will choose for napping
Rugs you prize,
And they're always snapping
At the flies!"
Little boy, I couldn't Catalogue
Reasons why you shouldn't Want a dog.

Want one? Little fellow
Go to dad.
Once a mongrel yellow
Father had.
He won't reckon up things
Dogs destroy.
Dad knows all a pup brings
To a boy.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

There is one thing that somebody has got to say about these little English cars sooner or later; and it might as well be now and me. The following remarks cannot be contsrued as un-British or even unsympathetic, because one of these little bugs is the darling of my own family.

But on the busy weekend highways these days, who is it that every five miles, creates a traffic-drag? Is it one of those old rattle trap jitneys, with a family of kids hanging out the windows? Is it a decrepit truck? Is it a load of hay?

No: it is one of these little English cars, beetling serenely along at about 28 to 32 miles per hour on a fifty m.p.h. highway.

You can be almost sure of it now. As you snore along at fifty and see ahead of you a long line of thirty cars slacked down behind somebody leading, you cannot see, as formerly you could, the cause of the hold-up in the frowsy person of some ancient jalopy or a truck with a load of ailing horses. You can't see anything until, after sweating along five miles or so, while one by one and two by two, those ahead of you dart out and pass the obstruction, you come at last to the guilty party — a little narrow-shoulder, twirpy car toddling smugly, like a dachshund, at barely thirty.

I do know that in these little cars you imagine you are going faster than you really are. I also know that some of the sport models from England can beat our American cars all hollow for speed and nimbleness in traffic. And also it is probable that many of these English cars are new, and the drivers are breaking them in carefully.

But one thing is certain: at the present stage of their accommodation into the Canadian system, they are becoming a little profanely conspicuous on Saturdays and Sundays on the holiday highways.

British Ships In First Fight Of Korean War

London, July 3 — (AP) — The admiralty disclosed today that Royal Navy warships came through unscathed in their first fight with North Korean vessels.

Supplementing Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique—which said a combined United States and British fleet sank five of six motor torpedo boats engaged off the Korean east coast yesterday—the admiralty released a message from Admiral Sir Patrick Brind, Chief in the far east.

The message said one torpedo boat got away. "Shore targets were also bombarded," Sir Patrick reported. "No damage or casualties were suffered by the British or U.S. ships."

It was the first British official statement on action in the Korean war.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ESSAY FOR A DAY

Every day of our lives we see far too little of the good and beauty of this earth—its fabulous revealings, its intricate secrets, its colorful displays, and its silent inspirations. It was Stevenson who wrote that there were not enough words in Shakespeare to fully and adequately describe the sight of the eye and the movement of thought that a single hour of personal experience might reveal.

We could enrich our lives greatly by forming the daily habit of writing down, in a brief essay, the outstanding experience and mental adventure of each day. Not for publication, but for intellectual and spiritual growth. What do we see in the people that we meet, talk to, or merely pass on street? What does a tree, a flower, or the glorious song of a bird mean to us? There is an interesting essay to be written upon a single blade of grass!

We store so little in this mind of ours as we journey through life. Reading and conversation are not enough. We must intelligently observe—and do a deal of wondering. I have some etchings by an artist who specialized in the depicting of shadows. How full of meaning they are! There are other artists who simply play with color. There is so much all about us, no matter where we live, or move. By writing down our impressions we increase our wonder.

The white pond lily, springing to life from the black mud, and smiling back at the sun in the blue sky, is a thing of wonder. Beautiful souls have often emerged from sordid and unhappy environments. Write about such instances in your essay of the day. Write down what you see in one, or more, of the faces that you meet. We are influenced by every movement and happening in nature and in life.

Words are teachers that help us to remember and appreciate. Learn to use them so that they will tell the most, and mean the most. You can make your daily essay a hobby, adding pleasure and profit to your day. Try it!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MAGIC OR MIRACLE

Some people regard religion as they would a rabbit's foot. It is something to resort to if one is desperately in need of happiness, a larger income, or the healing of some infirmity. It is something to put aside and forget when the sun starts to shine brightly and all the gadgets of modern amusements beckon one to live easily and have a good time.

Religion is certainly not intended to be a rabbit's foot. That it is an ever-present help in time of trouble, lifting the heaviest loads from one's mind and making a tremendous contribution to personal efficiency and happiness, no one can deny. But these things are not so much ends to be sought after as results which come about automatically if we cultivate in our hearts the right kind of religion.

Put God at the center of your life, and things of a miraculous nature begin to happen. This does not mean that you will be relieved of all trouble, pain, and inconvenience. You may have such still, but you will have strength to carry whatever load you have to bear and courage to walk in whatever pathway lies before your feet.

Religion is not magic; religion is miracle. It is the magician and the faker who work magic; it is the sovereign God who works miracle.

Nehru Switches From Neutrality To Support of UN

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

India's switch from neutrality to support of the United Nations' policy for stopping the Korean conflict with Allied armed force may presage a development of immeasurable international importance.

This likely represents a striking change in the views of Prime Minister Nehru, who has been pursuing a neutral line in the cold war. This thought is strengthened by the fact that only a few days ago Nehru, en plagued Indonesia, paused in route home from a tour of Red-Burma to make a speech in which he charged that Indian communists were attempting to "destroy our country and our younger generation."

That calls for consideration, coming as it does from the man who may become the dominant leader of Asia's non-communist countries. It seemed to indicate at least a change in his method of dealing with communism.

In days not long past Nehru has found some virtue in communism, and has appeared to be pursuing a rather non-committal attitude in his public utterances.

The Prime Minister declared in Indonesia that "communist methods in India lead not to building up anything but disrupting things and creating chaotic conditions." He cautioned the Indonesians to bolster their freedom, lest outside forces "come to sweep them away like a broom." He added that the communists, after finding it impossible to make progress through normal Parliamentary processes, adopt terroristic activities.

This was the first time during his round of speeches in Indonesia that Nehru had used the term "communism." A few days later in Burma he again warned against Red tactics.

At the same time the Prime Minister advocated joint India-Burma action for economic consolidation of the two neighboring countries. Back of this undoubtedly lies the fact that Indian needs foodstuff from the great Burmese rice-bowl and that India's industries can supply Burma with many necessities. Moreover, in unity lies strength.

We shouldn't jump to sweeping conclusions in trying to read Nehru's mind. He is a positive individual who will make known his position in due course.

We are entitled, however, to speculate whether this great personality is in process of moving into the leadership of non-communist Asia on a platform which condemns the manner in which the Red forces are carrying out their ideological revolution. There is no other platform on which we could stand successfully, for neutrality wouldn't turn the trick. There is no middle course in this cold war.

Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

WHY SOME POOR GEEKS HAVE PILES

Some readers seem to think the term geek synonymous with Yankee wiseacre. It is not. You can feel sorry for a geek and have a lot of patience with him, because he is just a credulous or shamefully misinformed individual. You can't be very patient with a Yankee wiseacre, in fact you feel more like giving him a swift k i. t. p., because he has a little knowledge of the subject and perhaps has learned to use a technical term or two in a whom-is-speaking fashion and hence feels he knows as much about it as an "ordinary" doctor does.

Yankee wiseacres are as subject to piles as geeks are, the suffering in both cases being just plain stupid. If you are childish enough to resent this, you had better send a stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for the pamphlet It Is Stupid to Suffer from Piles — and please, don't strain yourself, but try to remember I say it is stupid to suffer from piles.

All right, all right. Even if your husband is a nineteenth century surgeon and doesn't go for this newfangled ambulant treatment certain newspaper quacks or one such quack advocates there's no sense in getting your blood pressure up about it. There are still enough geeks and Yankee wiseacres with piles, who do not go for the teachings in this column either, to keep the nineteenth century operators in practice.

These little lessons are for the geeks. Being just an ordinary doctor, not a "specialist", I shall not try to tell the Yankee wiseacres anything.

The fundamental cause of piles (hemorrhoids) is man's upright posture, which places greater pressure upon the walls of veins not equipped with valves, from the weight of the column of blood in the veins. The moment the pile sufferer assumes a horizontal position or, better, a position such that hips are on a higher level than shoulders, this internal pressure upon the walls of the veins around the rectum is reduced and the symptoms are more or less relieved.

Prolonged standing or idle strolling or listless meandering aggravates the trouble; but brief standing, say for half an hour or less waiting for your turn to cheat the government or buy a ticket and brisk walking for the fun of it, when you can afford to walk counteracts the ill effects of sedentary occupation, prolonged sitting, prolonged standing because the tone or elesticity or firmness of all the muscles used in brisk walking aids the circulation by squeezing or pumping blood in the veins onward toward the heart.

Still more effective than brisk walking or standing or lying with hips higher than shoulders is the habit, which I recommend to any one whose occupation entails prolonged standing or prolonged sitting, or lying on the back, raising the legs and if possible the hips to vertical and ride an imaginary bicycle upside down. Even one minute or less of this, several times in the day, may prevent not only varicose veins in the legs but internal piles and so-called "middle-age spread."

White collar workers, office workers, window clerks, retail salesmen and saleswomen, barbers, dentists and others who have to stand or sit for hours on end, so to speak, are more susceptible to piles and varicose veins than mail carriers, delivery men, meter readers and others whose occupation does not entail prolonged standing, sitting or idle, listless strolling.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Nocturnal Leg Cramps

My husband has severe leg cramps at night. (Mrs. O. V. A.)

Answer—A common cause of the complaint is tetany, nutritional deficiency — specifically insufficient calcium and vitamin D in the diet. Send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet Adult Tetany and Growing pains.

Sugar

Does sugar cause or aggravate sinus trouble? Is the effect the same with raw sugar, natural sugar, brown sugar, white sugar? What is a substitute for sugar other than honey? (G. L. J.)

Answer—No. Honey, of course is sugar—cane sugar and fruit sugar. I know of no substitute for sugar. For sweetening one-quarter grain tablet of saccharin will give sweetening effect of a teaspoonful of sugar.

On the Contrary

Have Been Told that if I continue taking calcium my bones will become porous. (Mrs. P).

Answer—Ben has it wrong too. Taking calcium to supplement our modern calcium-poor diet tends to prevent premature osteoporosis—the steady loss of calcium from the bones that characterizes old age. Send 25 cents and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet The Calcium Shortage.

STURDY OX TAILS

Capetown—(CP)—South Africans are wondering what to do about "thick, muscular and knobby" ox tails. The reason: millions of flies torment South African cattle making them switch their tails constantly, thus adding muscle and sinew to an appendage that should be lean and succulent.

Dundas Street East Widening Gets Council OK, Road Problem Discussed With Murray Council

Trenton (Special)—This is an improvement we need very badly," said Mayor Ken Couch, Thursday evening as council approved a by-law authorizing the issue of $8,900 in debentures to widen Dundas Street East from the railroad tracks to the sharp curve at the junction of Dundas Street, Marmora Street and No. 2 Highway.

The plan submitted by town engineer R. E. Davey and approved by council provides for increasing the width of Dundas Street East by eight to ten feet and also includes "relocation" of the curve at Marmora Street "for the purpose of improving traffic conditions" on the town's main east west traffic artery.

A delegation of Murray township council headed by Reeve Bruce Jandrew, Warden of the United Counties, and Deputy Reeve Arthur Hayes, discussed with council the question of responsibility for repairing and maintaining the Stirling Highway from the subway to the town limits.

At present, this one and one half mile stretch of highway belongs to the town of Trenton. The land through which the road passes is also within the town limits but is not built up and the amount of money recovered by the town in taxes does not begin to meet the costs of keeping the highway in repair.

"People Getting Fed up"

Both councils agreed with Mayor Couch that the condition of the road has got to the point where something has to be done and it will have to be done quickly because people are getting fed up."

The two councils were also unanimous in their opinion that this stretch of highway should be turned over to the Department of Highways as quickly as possible."

The discussion centred around how the transfer of this mile and a half of highway could best be effected.

"We are willing to co-operate with Trenton and Sidney to put pressure on the highways department to take over the road and we are willing to go to Toronto and discuss the matter with the Ontario Government but as far as our township is concerned we are definitely against taking it over," said Warden Jandrew.

Mayor Couch replied that Trenton appreciated the position of Murray and was not trying to saddle the township with this strip of highway but was only suggesting that Murray take over the strip and in turn have the Ontario Government take it over as a provincial highway.

Route of Four Lane Highway

Warden Jandrew said that "the last survey puts the new four lane highway right across the hill below the power house." Mr. Jandrew said that the reason Murray was reluctant to assume responsibility for the road was because "when the province makes a new road, nearby roads are turned back to the county which in turns hands them over to the township."

Mr. Jandrew expressed the opinion that "it would be best to get the Ontario Government to pass a special act incorporating the piece of road into the provincial road system, because at present, no road or street in an incorporated town can be a provincial highway.

The department can do anything they wish as far as passing roads back to the townships but unfortunately, the Department of Highways has no authority to take over that piece of road directly from the town to the province."

Meet Highways Minister

It was finally decided that Councillor C. V. Graham should arrange for an appointment with Hon. George Doucett, Minister of Highways, to discuss the matter. Mayor Couch suggested and Warden Jandrew agreed that it would be a good idea to invite Frankford, Sidney and Batawa to each send a two-man delegation along with Trenton and Murray to interview the minister.

Hospital By-law Discussed

W. C. Saylor, chairman of finance, told council that inquiries had been received from a bond corporation about the proposed hospital debentures, and council passed a resolution instructing clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry to draw up a suitable by-law authorizing the issue of the debentures for presentation to council. Councillors Allore and Bradshaw were unanimously appointed as council members of the Hospital Board.

The dog catcher's duties were further defined and he was instructed to pick up all dogs running loose "with or without tags."

A committee of the I.O.O.F. asked council to reimburse the lodge for money the lodge had spent on the bus terminal which is now the property of the Parks Board. The delegation was told that "it was distinctly understood the town was under no further responsibility and that the $250 yearly rental to be turned on the normal repairs of the property was to relieve the town of any expense in connection with the terminal property."

Declared Councillor W. H. Bradshaw, "we made an agreement with the Oddfellows and we honored it to the letter on the understanding that Mr. Norman Rickett (who operates the terminal) represented the lodge."

Improvement By-law

A local improvement by-law was approved for the construction of a sanitary sewer on Campbell Street from Princess Street to a point 515 feet north of Princess.

Council decided to ask the Public Utilities Commission to move the newly installed transformers behind Loblaws to a "suitable position," as at present the transformers are on the right of way. It was also decided to purchase the stoplight presently installed at Dundas Street and Front which is on loan from the Northern Electric Company.

The first Monday in August will be proclaimed Civic Holiday. "It's getting so in Trenton we can't even decide on a holiday," commented Mayor Couch, "but since Civic Holiday is always held on that date, there should be no objection to holding it then."

John V. Finkle, Trenton, Killed, Car Overturns

Turning his truck over when he failed to make a curve on the Crofton Road, 10 miles south of Belleville, John V. Finkle, 20, of Trenton, was almost instantly killed Saturday afternoon.

Finkle, a spare driver for the Weston Bread Company, was making deliveries in the Prince Edward district when he apparently attempted to make a curve at too high a speed, his vehicle leaving the road and overturning in a steep ditch before crashing through a fence. The truck was almost completely wrecked. No other vehicle was involved.

The accident occurred about one mile off No. 14 Highway south of Ameliasburg, south of Mountain View. Coroner Dr. D. S. Lighthall of Picton stated there may be an inquest. Provincial Constables Hurrie and Fullerton investigated.

Variety Show Opens CJBQ's Trenton Studio

Trenton —(Special)— The new Trenton facilities of CJBQ were opened officially Sunday night with a variety show broadcast direct from the stage of the Trent Theatre.

In declaring the new studio and offices officially open, Mayor Couch praised the achievements of CJBQ in the station's four years on the air and said that the opening of the branch station in Trenton was "another step forward in the progress of our town."

"Approximately four years ago CJBQ started broadcasting in Belleville," said Mr. Couch, "and during that time many excellent programs of music, drama and news of the highest order have been produced."

"I wish to commend the men whose vision and courage have brought station CJBQ to the Bay of Quinte which I regard as the Garden of Eden of Ontario," Mr. Couch told the theatre and air audience.

The hour-long program started off with a sing-song led by Mr. Clayton Maxwell with Bill Navin at the piano. Later in the program, Mr. Navin who is currently booked at the Club Norman, Toronto, entertained with several comedy numbers and impersonations of Jimmy Durante and Jerry Colona.

The show was made up exclusively of Trenton and district talent and consisted of vocal, instrumental and comedy selections. Mr. and Mrs. George Nichols played a piano duet; Miss Doris Sills sang two vocal numbers, and Miss Gertrude Scott, lyric soprano, also sang two solo selections.

Bill MacMillan of the Trenton Lion's Club Band entertained with trombone solos and Mark Shenfield accompanied by his father Squadron Leader Shenfield at the piano was greeted with waves of applause as he finished his trap drum routine.

Mrs. L. Finney of Campbellford also favored with a soprano solo and Frank Wilson had the audience laughing heartily at his comedy routine.

The show was emceed by Phil Flagler who is in charge of the new Trenton studio and well known to the listeners of CJBQ as the announcer on Rural Route 12.30, the CJBQ farm broadcast.

B-29'S BOMB RED CAPITAL, SOUTHERN FORCES RE-ENTER SEOUL

American B-29 bombers, like the ones shown above, ordered by General MacArthur to attack North Korean installations, have directed hard blows as South Korean troops are reported to have re-entered suburbs of Seoul on the heels of fleeing communist troops. Tass news agency reported that B-29's have dropped 300 bombs on the Northern capital. Council Will Pass Debenture By-Law as Quickly as Possible Mayor Assures Hospital Board

Trenton (Special) — Sparked by the assurance of Mayor Couch that council will approve the hospital debenture by-law "as quickly as possible", the hospital board will speed the completion of Trenton and District Memorial Hospital as fast as available funds permit.

At a meeting of the hospital board held in the hospital Friday evening, it was revealed that the board expects to have Trenton's new hospital completed and in operation by early fall.

"All council is in favor of going ahead as quickly as possible, now that we have the go ahead signal from the people," Mayor Couch told the board. "We already have a letter of inquiry from a bond corporation and the only thing that is holding us up is for the clerk-treasurer to draw up the by-law after he returns from holidays Tuesday."

Representation Welcomed

"We wish to welcome the council representative, Mr. Bradshaw and we are sorry the other representative Mr. Allore was not able to be present," said hospital board chairman W. H. Ireland. "We welcome your co-operation and invite your friendly criticism," added Mr. Ireland.

Dr. E. A. McQuade, M. O. H., who has been chosen by Trenton doctors to represent them on the board with the doctors "were anxious to see things stepped up as much as possible" so they could get to work in the new hospital "as soon as possible."

Several expense accounts were passed and the purchase of some items of equipment was also approved in keeping with the board's strict adherence to their policy of paying-as-they-go.

Self-operating Elevator

A motion was passed for the placing of an order for a $10,500 automatic self-operating elevator with a "micro levelling" device.

RON

The elevator alone would cost $8,500 but both the hospital architect and Mr. Chester Woods and Dr. McQuade stressed the importance of having the levelling device which spots the elevator on a perfect level with the floor without an "inching button." The board finally agreed that since the elevator "is the heart of the service" and as the device has to be installed with the elevator or not at all, the extra $2,000 would be money "well spent."

Cost of Construction

Mr. Woods told the board that compared with the present cost of hospital construction, the Trenton structure was erected considerably cheaper. "The cost of this building is 85 cents per cubic foot," said Mr. Woods. "A good residence today costs 75 cents per cubic foot to build and hospitals being constructed now are costing from $1.25 to $1.45 per cubic foot," he said.

Mr. Ireland said that Stirling IODE visited the hospital on Thursday evening and "left very pleased and determined to raise balance of the money required to furnish their room."

From those fishing on other waters it was reported there was good bass fishing.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

REVELSTOKE, B. C. — Six high school boys drove out from the town to have a look at our trailer and we got to talking about one thing and another, and this is a story about them.

They came in an old Chevvy minus an engine hood. There was lettering all over the car. There was a sign on the back that said, "Don't laugh, mister—your daughter may be inside." Another read, "All ye who enter here leave all hope behind." The lettering over the headlights said, "Sealed Sunshine."

They were a boisterous gang. Each had a crew hair cut. Each was a little self-conscious. But when we'd talked for awhile (the boys draped loosely over their jallopy) I found I was getting a picture of the outlook of the teen-ager in a small town..

Two of the boys, Fred Williamson, whose father is a C.P.R. engineer, and Jack McMahon, whose father tends the boiler at the town's brewery, are 18. They're about to launch themselves in the cold, cruel world. On this they all agreed that the small town has some pretty severe limitations.

Williamson, whose hobby is photography, is going to Vancouver. He has ambitions of getting on a newspaper. McMahon has taken a correspondence course in auto engineering, but he's undecided about a career. "The main thing is to make money," he said.

Bob Berkenshaw, 16, and the youngest of the group, seemed to speak for them all when he said, "None of us really want to go away. We like it here fine. But there's not much opportunity. Most of us plan to go away and make money and then come back."

To the Right

Politically, the boys are on the extreme right. Berkenshaw and Fuzz Stringer, who is 17, and the son of the high school principal, are undecided politically. The other four said they are for "free enterprise."

Berkenshaw said he wasn't sure. He works for the Co-op store part time and hopes to stay here and make his career in the organization. "The store is sort of socialist, I guess," he said, "but I think it's a great thing because it keeps prices down."

"Well, that's all right," said Don Waby, 17, whose father is manager of Eaton's order office, "so long as they don't ram it down your throat."

I asked them how they felt about unions. Wally Harvey, 17, and son of a C.P.R. conductor, said, "They're getting too strong. They'll bust themselves."

"That coal union in the States is getting 'way out of hand'," Waby remarked.

When we talked about international affairs I found myself thinking of how young men after World War One were so often militant pacifists. There's none of that with these boys.

'Sure, there's going to be another war," Williamson said. 'We'll all join up when it comes. We want to keep Communism out of here."

"The battleground will be right here in British Columbia," Harvey said, "but I don't figure it for a few years yet."

How did the boys keep informed?

"Oh," Waby said, "we read the newspapers, Life, the Saturday Evening Post, Star Weekly and listen to the radio."

"It's hard to know what to think sometimes," Stringer said. "There seems to be a lot of propaganda. But we're all satisfied with the way things are. We don't want too radical changes."

And Church

None of these six smoked or drank. There's no "jive" talk or fancy clothes. Only one had a steady girl friend.

"There aren't enough girls here," Williamson said. "Anyway, we spend most of our time and money playing around with old cars. One thing about a town like this. There's none of the juvenile delinquency we read about in the big cities. Oh, there are some guys who drink, all right, but no zoot suiters like you have."

"It must be terrible in the cities," Waby said. "A girl who lives near me just came back from a visit to Vancouver. Said kids were fighting with knives down there."

I asked about church-going. Only two of the six boys said their parents attended regularly. None of the boys went.

"It's not that we don't believe in Christianity," one of the boys said, "but most of us work part time. Sunday is the only day we have to ourselves."

"Not only that," another put in, "but the churches don't seem to make much sense out of religion. At school they teach us to learn facts and to prove everything. Do a problem in mathematics and you have to prove your answer. But at church nobody proves anything. "It all seems to be for older people."

Curiously, none of the boys want to work for the railway, although two of the fathers are C.P.R. employees.

"The trouble with working for the railway," said Jack McMahon, "is that you can never get to own it."

WEDDINGS

HAY—MCCULLOUGH

In the Foxboro United Church on Wednesday, June 28, at 3 p.m., Rhea Alberta McCullough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. McCullough, became the bride of Adam MacIntosh Hay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Worrington Hay, of Campbellford.

Standards of white orange blossoms, white peonies and green ferns with tall lighted candelabra made a beautiful setting for the double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. F. A. Gilbert, B.A., pastor of the church.

Mr. Kenneth Peacock provided the wedding music preceding and during the ceremony. Mr. S. C. Gay, Foxboro, was soloist, and sang "The Lord's Prayer", by Albert Hay Malotte, before the ceremony and during the signing of the register a hymn entitled "Happy the Bride when God is There".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown designed with a deep yoke, featuring tiers of ruffled lace, fitted bodice, long tight-fitting sleeves ending in points over the hands, soft full skirt with circular train with tiny ivory satin buttons to match bodice. She wore an embroidered illusion full-length veil, caught with a seed pearl coronet and carried a cascade of stephanotis and Johanna Hill roses.

The bride was attended by her sister, Ann Marie McCullough, as maid of honor, wearing peach flowered Bemberg marquisette, over peach rayon taffeta; a white silk net open crown, halo type hat and long white mitten. She carried a basket corsage of Talisman roses and deep blue cornflowers.

Mary Ellen Gilbert, Foxboro, acted as junior bridesmaid, in pastel blue net over pale blue taffeta, with braided matching headdress and long mittens. She also carried a basket corsage of Talisman roses and deep blue cornflowers.

Mr. Walter Morrow of Peterborough, was groomsman. Mr. Laurison Ketcheson, of Holloway, Mr. Herbert Hendy, Mr. Arthur Smith, and Mr. Reginald Hay, all of Campbellford, were ushers.

Following the reception, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. George Ketcheson, entertained the many guests with lovely organ music in the garden.

The bride's mother wore dove grey faille with corsage of deep pink roses. The groom's mother was in pastel blue crepe with corsage of Rapture roses.

The happy couple left after the reception for their honeymoon at Lake Placid, N.Y., the bride travelling in a light blue dress and coat with navy hat and navy accessories. They will reside in Blenheim, Ont., after Sept. 1st.

Out-of-town guests were present from Kingston, Peterborough, Belleville, Port Credit, Kitchener, Lake St. Peter, Toronto, Campbellford, Queensboro, Moira, Frankford, Halifax and Florida.

HAY—ACKERS

Stirling.—St. John's Anglican church was the scene of a double ring ceremony at 11 a.m., last Saturday when Agnes Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ackers, became the bride of Lyle Bernard Hay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hay, of Campbellford. Rev. A. J. Anderson officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin and lace. Her long veil of tulle illusion was held by an ivory halo. She carried a cascade of red roses and orange blossoms.

Miss Eileen Ackers, Oakland, California, was her sister's only attendant, and wore white net over pale green taffeta with a pale green picture hat. She carried a nosegay of pink roses sweet peas and orange blossoms.

Mr. Glenn Hay, of Campbellford, brother of the groom, was best man.

After a reception in the Parish hall, the happy couple left amid showers of confetti for a trip to Niagara Falls, the States, and Wasaga Beach.

Upon returning home, the young couple will reside near Campbellford.

One quilt was completed for Mrs. Herb David, Stirling, and two were for relief work. Mrs. Thomas Andrews donated a lovely print top, while Mrs. James Menzies donated cretonne, lining and full makings for one quilt. The three quilts were completed that day, ready for binding.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

It's often much easier to put meat on the fire than to take it off.

Large cuts like standing ribs of beef require practically no preparation before going into the oven. But the exact moment at which the roast should be removed causes housewives to tremble, since the meat may be rare, medium, well done or overdone.

The most helpful gadget to determine when meat is done is the meat thermometer. It works perfectly for roast meat. For other cuts like steaks, or chops, or for roast poultry the meat thermometer is not practical.

Latest prediction of gadgets to come is a paper foil which would be wrapped around a piece of meat and evaporate when the meat reached the required stage of doneness. Different foils would be used for rare, medium, or well done. The idea, unfortunately, is still in the paper stage.

The one meat which must always be well done is pork, fresh or smoked. When you boil or roast a smoked boneless pork butt —sometimes mistakenly called pork tenderloin —you should be able to insert a large meat fork and withdraw it without any tugging when the meat is finished cooking.

Smoked pork butts are easy to handle; they usually weigh from 1 1-2 to 2 pounds and are ideal for small families. They have little waste, are boneless and require from 1 1-2 to 2 hours cooking time.

Maple Glazed Pork Butt
Serves 4-5.

Wipe with a damp cloth 1 boneless smoked pork butt. Place in unsalted boiling water to cover. Add 1 bay leaf, 6 whole black peppers and 4 whole cloves. Simmer slowly, don't boil for 1 hour.

Remove meat from liquid. Strain liquid to use as a base for soup or gravy.

Brush meat with soy sauce. Place meat in a small baking pan. Combine 1-4 cup maple syrup and 1-4 cup pineapple or apple juice. Pour over meat.

Bake at 350 degrees, spooning liquid over meat frequently, for 1 hour, or until meat is tender when pierced with large meat fork.

To make gravy, remove meat from pan. Add 1 cup of liquid in which meat was simmered. Mix 1 tablespoon cornstarch with 2 tablespoons cold water to a smooth paste. Bring liquid to a boil over top flame. Add cornstarch mixture slowly, stirring well. Simmer 3 minutes. Add 1 bouillon cube and gravy color if desired.

Liberals to Hold Joint Picnic At Presqu'ile

Centering their attention on a joint picnic, the Liberal Association of South Hastings invited the picnic committee of the Northumberland Liberal Association to meet with them in their club rooms in Belleville on Wednesday evening June 28th.

Following a short business discussion President McCaughey, of Trenton turned the chair over to President J. Gordon, Northumberland.

A committee from South Hastings consisting of Dr. McVickers of Deseronto, Mrs. H. McCabe of Belleville, Mr. C. Bezeau of Trenton, Mr. H. Wilkinson of Sidney, were appointed to make arrangements with the Northumberland committee for this event.

Extensive plans were entered into for a monster basket picnic to be held at Presqu'Ile Point on Wednesday, July 19th.

It was voted to open with a baseball game at one o'clock, followed by sports events and contests for young and old with excellent prizes. There will be lucky number draws, and bingo.

Guest speakers will be present who will include the two members from these two ridings and a cabinet minister.

A band will be in attendance throughout the afternoon, and any who wish may stay in the evening to enjoy the dancing in the pavilion.

To keep the picnickers informed of the progress of the very extensive program, a public address system will be set up.

Upon arrival at the grounds children will be given tickets which will entitle them to free ice cream, pop, or hot dogs.

The committee plan ot make this a very outstanding event and are preparing for a very large crowd.

The committee plan to make eleven o'clock to meet again on July 5th in the Belleville club rooms.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LETTERS AND ANSWERS

What Kind of a Girl Is This Anyhow?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Please advise me on the great wrong I did to two people. One is the fellow I am in love with, and the other is the girl with whom he was going steady. Several of my friends beat this girl up so that she had to have hospital treatment. As a consequence, we have hurt the boy's reputation.

I love him and I know he loves me, as he shows it in many ways. I want to marry him, as we would make a good match regardless of the fact that we are of different faiths. I am afraid, though, that somehow he will find out my part in injuring the other girl. My aunt tells me he will find out sooner or later, and I will lose him, even if we were to get married.

I am sorry for the wrong I did, and hate the thought of losing him. H.

Dear H.:

I haven't the faintest idea what this is all about. Do you mean that you had some of your friends beat this girl so that she would be afraid to have anything to do with the boy you like, or just what was your idea? What kind of a girl are you, anyway?

There undoubtedly is a great deal you haven't told me to account for this very strange and quite horrifying behavior of yours, but on the basis of what you have said, I think you and your friends should be arrested. I also think you are very badly in need of some kind of psychological overhauling to find out what is wrong with you that you would do such a thing. Obviously, too, you're sorry for what you did only because you think it may hurt your chances with this boy.

I quite agree with your aunt that the boy will sooner or later find out how cruel and heartless you have been, and what man wants that kind of wife? He would probably be afraid he might be beaten himself some time, if you didn't happen to like what he did.

I don't know what your faith may be, but I strongly urge you to go to your clergyman and tell him exactly what you have done and ask his advice. You are in serious need of more personal help than I can give you.

A Reader With Two Problems

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I read your column every day, and I think you are doing a wonderful job in answering people's problems.

I have two problems, one of which you can answer, but the second, because I am a man, I would like to discuss with a member of my own sex.

Can you give me advice on whom I might see or write to about it? J. J.

Dear J. J.:

I will be very glad to try and help you with one of your problems if you would like to write and tell me about it.

As for the second problem, unless you could give me some idea of the nature of it, I would not know just the right person to whom to refer you. Naturally, I would not suggest that you tell me anything you do not care to, but if you could simply indicate whether it is a physical, psychological or emotional matter, I would be in a better position to advise you.

How about writing me again and enclosing a stamped addressed envelope so that I can send you a personal reply?

GOOD MANNERS

Mother, as Hostess, Writes Visit-Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have never had a house in the country in the Summer before, but this Summer, fortunately, we have one. We have two daughters and one son, all in their teens, and all away at school in the Winter month. This Summer we would very much like to give the children a chance to invite their friends to visit them, and we would like to begin these visits soon. They seem to think that it is not necessary for me to personally invite their friends —but we were brought up to think it was absolutely necessary for our mother to write a note of invitation to any of our friends we had invited by word of mouth. Is this "old-fashioned," as the children are trying to persuade me, or, is it still proper?

It is still the proper thing to do..and, even though they probably won't admit it, if you write charming notes of invitation to their friends, your children will be (secretly) very proud of you and your delightfully-apparent courtesy. And so will their friends, and their friends' families). As the hostess of your home you should write to each guest to be invited — and it is particularly important that you personally write to a girl whom your son may wish to have visit in your home. As a matter of fact, mothers who, like you, care about the proper expression of courtesy, always write also to the mother of the young visitor, girl or boy, repeating the invitation. and outlining the plans for the visit. (Incidentally you should, in your notes, make all plans absolutely definite .. time of expected arrival, plans for entertainment, sports, and so forth, for clothes-information, and, yes, even time for departure..

Friend to the Maidless Hostess— A Rolling Cart

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have recently been married, and our home is a 4-room apartment, all small rooms, dining room smallest of all. But we're very grateful to have a dining room, for we both love to entertain, and we are planning many informal parties, some dinners for six and some buffet parties. I have no service, nor am I planning to have any, for .. thank Heaven! .. my mother taught me to cook well, and I really like housework. However, I have a very special problem, and since I know from reading your column that you are interested in table service and in "serviceless-service", I feel sure that you will have just the right suggestion. For a wedding present my godmother gave me a check to buy some article for supplementing service, a table, for example, or something like that. Would you have a suggestion as to what would be the most useful article of this kind? (The check is for $50.)

— Althea M.

I enthusiastically recommend that you shop for a rolling cart with several shelves, one or two deep shelves and one or two narrow ones. This is marvellously useful, and in so many ways. With one of these a hostess can skillfully plan not to get up at all to serve a luncheon or dinner. The top shelf can always be used for placing on it the dessert service, serving-dish and dessert plates. The lower shelves can be used for the service equipment of the other courses, and for the used plates. And you will find it a friend indeed for your buffet service. (There are light weight rolling carts, with either small or medium-sized wheels— very good looking, very functional).

Take Your Pick of Coiffures

By HELEN FOLLETT

In past times the hairdo was standardized. When grandma was a beauteous young thing her head was weighted down with demountable hair no matter how thick and long her own tresses might be. She wore an inside pompadour to form a wide halo around her head. Atop that was a thirty-six-inch coronation braid, above was mounted a group of rolls that would fill a biscuit tin. As grannie looked, so did every other woman.

When the short crop was announced, some time ago, as the proper hirsute caper, not all women became shorn lambs. The cap-close bob is not becoming to all types and figures. And what is not becoming just isn't worn any more.

Shoulder-Length Style

Many movie stars are still wearing the shoulder length style. So are sub-debs who love flowing locks, feel that they impart a romantic element. While the high hairdo seems out of it, some women of numerous birthdays still effect it because it has dignity and charm, lends itself to soft effects that are easy on facial furrows, if they are present.

If the neck is long and thin, the extremely short cut is a mistake. If the forehead is high, wide and not handsome, a bang is a beauty help.

The tall, queenly type of woman requires a hairdo that is arranged fairly close to her head; a fluffy, childish bob throws her out of character. If the hair is short it should be arranged to resemble a long-hair coiffure.

A woman with a low forehead, beautiful, regular features, a well shaped head, and pretty ears may wear the extremely short-cut brushed straight back from brow and temples. But even such lovelies should sport a few wide wave lines.

The cherub curl — short hair all over the head done in ringlets —is the right beauty ticket for the tiny woman no matter what her age may be. It suits the petite figure.

Fashion Flashes

TRAVEL-LIGHT outfits are plentiful this Summer, and at sensible price ranges, too. Black linen, pin dotted in white, makes a good ensemble that includes short shorts, halter, slacks, drawstring blouse and wrap-around skirt.

• • •

EVERYWHERE we go, it's the black velvet hat just now. A neat little number, the brim curled up to the crown, fore and aft, is edged with braid. The crown band is a twisted braid rope finished with long tasseled ends. Nice with tailored Summer suits.

• • •

COOLISH DAYS bring out neat little suits in very lightweight flannel of tissue worsted or wool jersey, usually in medium gray with bolero or bellhop type jackets — some braid bound —and all with knife-pleated skirts. Red or yellow accessories are liked with this type of suit.

• • •

ATTRACTIVE beach accessories are plentiful this year, [illegible] of them using terry [illegible]. A broad beach stole of terry, printed in a red and blue or black harlequin design on white has thick cotton fringe ends.

• • •

PRETTY TOUCHES mark gloves being readied for early Autumn. Fine glace kid in pale pink for a charming glove that has tiny kid flowers appliqued in sprays to the base of the thumb and back of the hand.

• • •

INTERESTING how much style, charm and novelty can get packed into a handbag. Fine natural woven straw for a little jelly roll bag with black or navy velvet-covered frame and handles that start at the base of the bag.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, June 29 (CP)— The business girl, the bachelor and the June bride all have one problem in common—how to cook for one or two without leaving a collection of leftovers in the refrigerator.

Actually recipes do exist for the individual dish. Here are a few calculated to turn that "two-some" dinner into a special treat.

Baked onion casserole—Ingredients: Four medium onions; three tablespoons tomato ketchup; three tablespoons water; one tablespoon butter; salt and pepper to taste.

Cook onions in boiling water 20 minutes. Place onions in casserole and add remaining ingredients which have been combined. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Serves two.

Special salad — Ingredients: One cup cooked, cubed veal, pork or beef; one-third cup sliced carrots; one-third cup chopped celery; two tablespoons mayonnaise two tablespoons chili sauce. Salt to taste.

Combine all ingredients and chill. Serve on lettuce cups. Serves two.

Sandwich Suggestions

Chicken and egg sandwich — ingredients: One half cup cooked chicken (diced); one hard-cooked egg (chopped); three tablespoons mayonnaise; one teaspoon prepared yellow mustard.

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Yields three quarters of a cup.

Egg. and bacon sandwich filling—ingredients: three hard-cooked eggs (chopped); three slices bacon, fried and broken into pieces; two teaspoons finely chopped parsley; two tablespoons mayonnaise; one-half teaspoon prepared yellow mustard.

Combine all ingredients: Yields three-quarters of a cup.

Wiener filling — ingredients: One-half cup grated Canadian cheese; two tablespoons milk; four wieners minced; one teaspoon prepared yellow mustard.

Combine cheese and milk. Heat over hot water until cheese is melted. Blend. Add wieners and mustard. Mix well. Yields one cup.

Hints

After chopping onions rinse hands in vinegar to take away that "oniony smell."

Remove rust from cotton or linen by squeezing a little lemon juice over the spot and holding it over steam. Launder as usual.

BEAUTY

LEG SHOW

How do you feel about your good looks duties? Do you regard them as tiresome chores and find yourself impatient to be through with them, or do you take pleasure in prettying yourself, playing up good points, camouflaging those not quite so good? Never mind! You have to face them if you are going to live happily with yourself. No girl or woman can afford to be a slacker when it comes to keeping herself in form.

In addition to worries about your complexion, hair, hands, fingernails, teeth and the svelte shape, you have to consider how your legs look, especially if you like to swim.

It's fun to play with leg make-up, and it really does something. Be fussy about the color you choose. If you're going in for a high class tan, you may want it fairly dark — that is when your skin is golden. Sounds silly, maybe, but the color of your legs should match the color of your complexion to a certain extent.

Goose flesh is common trouble, and it is hateful. It thrives on the legs of bobby soxers who scorn stockings in cold weather. There are ways of getting rid of it.

Scrub your legs with soap suds and a heavy brush. Use plenty of friction to help the skin to send off dead scales and encourage the growth of a new and finer surface. Friction will also hustle up the blood streams, and that is effective for normalizing the functions of the skin. Dry with a coarse towel.

Apply a hand lotion, one of those semi-liquid milky preparations that are soothing, softening and refining. It will dry immediately. When you cream your complexion at night, leave some of the cosmetic on your hands and give your legs a five-minute massage.

Stroke the top of your foot. Make bracelets of fingers and thumbs, encircle the ankle and work upward to the knee. This is an excellent treatment if you are afflicted with fatted calves. Pick up the flesh at the back of the leg; pinch and roll it to crush the fat cells. Finish with up-and-down strokes. Unlovely legs can be put in form, if you have time and patience.

Little fuzzers can be removed with a depilatory. These preparations are safe to use, are used by thousands of women; occasionally one will be allergic to them. For that reason it is wise to make a test on a small area. Follow the directions when using toiletries. It is a mistake. The correct method of treatment is half the battle.

Brilliants Popular In New Hair Styles

Rome, June 28 (AP) — Almost anything can get in a lady's hair these days — and be ultra fashionable.

The International College of Hairdressers proved it at their annual convention here. Using 20 models, they put on a demonstration of evening hair styles, utilizing everything from dye to daisies.

About the only things that weren't popular were long hair —and dark brunettes.

The hairdressers from seven countries seemed unanimous on the short hair style — with ears right out in the open — and on their preference for blondes, red-haired and silver-gray models.

The pastel tints used "took" better on these. Few of the coiffure artists seemed content to just leave things their original color.

Some of the artists used long enough hair to build individual architectural masterpieces with flying buttress effect and minarets and even a ship under sail. But most of the models appeared smoothed down enough to manage walking and a few pirouettes without undue peril of collapse.

Almost everything that came to hand went into the masterpieces. There was hair with great feathers; hair with lace; hair with orchids. Artificial butterflies were used, and feathers, and metallic leaves.

Strings of pearls were worked in some creations. So were chains of daisies. One thing they had in common; in almost every evening style the hair was either dressed with jewels or sparkling with tiny brilliants.

Economic Picture is Bright In Canada as Trade Expands, Exports Continue to be Worry

By FORBES RHUDE

(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Business in Canada continued at a hot pace in the first half of the year, cheered on by a virtual boom in the United States and signs of recovery in Europe.

Exports continued a worry, but even there increased sales to the United States largely overcame losses in overseas markets.

And a brighter economic picture and generally more hopeful and aggressive attitude in Britain and Europe, gave indication that the worst of the currency difficulties that have handicapped trade may be drawing to a close.

All around the western world there were signs that the emergency measures of the last few years, the stop-gap here and the stop-gap there, were fulfilling their purpose, and that the shaky structure of the post-war era was being welded into something solid.

Pool Resources

Perhaps the most hopeful word to business anywhere are the current plans by a half-dozen European countries, including France and Germany, to pool their resources to form one great productive area which may become not only an assurance of European recovery but of European peace.

The plan will bring competition, but it is the best recent hope for the re-establishment of a healthy trading world.

As the first six months drew to a close, the world faced perhaps the greatest threat to its peace since the close of the war. The cold war of the last few years flared into fighting in Korea, with unforseeable consequences. Whatever it means, it means no slackening in the pace of business and is almost certain to mean the opposite.

If war should come, either soon or later, it would, of course, bring even greater demands on business and industry, though probably under a system of controls which would make those of the last war look pale.

Sensitive Markets

Apprehension over controls and curtailment of profits is one explanation for the stock market break which greeted the fighting in Korea. Stock markets are necessarily sensitive and their reaction is not surprising.

Actual business itself is somewhat different. It, in effect, must go on about its "business," which is taking care of demand, whatever the cause. No one knows what would develop in case of war, and scarcely any business man tries to guess; but he knows he will be busy.

The United States boom was perhaps the greatest influence towards recovery in the last six months. For one thing it sent her buying raw materials and paying out dollars which are helping the currency situation in the sterling area. It has boosted her purchases from Canada; it has taken the British Columbia lumber industry out of a slump.

Greatest Expansion

In the meantime, Canada's own internal expansion continues at about the same pace as during the last two years; in fact her capital expansion this year in the building and maintenance of plants, machinery, houses and other things may be the greatest yet.

Western oil developments continue to shoot a flow of money into industry across the country. Iron ore developments are hardly more than under way. Though vast projects have been completed across the country, other great ventures are or may soon be on the drawing boards.

It is this great internal activity including the increased demands of larger population, which has enabled Canada to take care of the shocks of overseas export losses and other post-war jars.

The Bank of Montreal noted recently that Canadians are consuming half again as much in goods and services as they did before the war, and at the same time are saving at a greater rate.

Farm Worker Dollars Roll Through Shops

Bridgetown, N.J., July 3 — (AP) — Seabrook Farms, a vegetable-packing and frosted - food firm here, hands out $150,000 of its payroll in silver dollars.

The company wants to show how agriculture helps the local economy. Citizens and businessmen will recognize the cartwheels as farm workers' dollars as they roll through shops.

Canadian Averages 127 Pounds Meat

London, July 3 — (Reuters)— People in meat-producing countries are generally eating more of their own meat than they did before the war, though world production is still below prewar level, the commonwealth economic committee reported today.

Only in Australia and New Zealand, among major producers is the population eating less meat than in 1938, the committee said.

In a summary of world meat production and trade, the committee said that in 1948—when the latest complete figures were available—the average person in Canada ate 127 pounds of meat, compared with 111 pounds before the war, and in the United States 146 pounds compared with 127 pounds, despite vastly increased prices.

Britain was still by far the largest meat importer in the world.

Odd Performances of Today—Why They Do These Things

Major Red Hill, of the over-Niagara-Falls-in-a barrel Hills, has announced that he is going over Niagara soon in a new steel barrel. During the last few seasons he has contented himself with being whisked down river through the rapids. This time it is over the falls.

All this seems pretty inevitable in the case of Major Hill who has to preserve family tradition if nothing else. But it makes one wonder, nevertheless, at the odd things done by human beings, and leads to speculation on why they do them.

Of course, in pointing out that someone is doing something out of the ordinary it is necessary to point out what is normal. In this case going over the falls, flagpole sitting, prolonged fasting, and being shot from guns like a certain breakfast food, is construed as being out of the ordinary.

Weird Events

What possesses men to do such incredibly weird things? It can't be money, as more than 100,000 witnesses to Hill's ride last year barely contributed enough to pay funeral expenses had the major needed one.

Surely in this great land of opportunity (we get phrases like that from government bulletins to wheat and apple growers) these chaps are not out of work and are trying to merit their relief checks by presenting a public spectacle. After all, riding the rapids in the Niagara gorge is just about as jolly for the spectators and as safe for the participants, as the old Roman orgies in the Coliseum when full-grown men, who should have known better, went about trying to cave in one another's heads.

It has always been a bit of a puzzler why some sane chap like a druggist would want to sit on a flagpole for 72 days because Cleveland was languishing in the American League. The Indians would probably have preferred him to pay his way into the park fifty times where his support would be tangible at least. On the other hand it may have been a good idea to keep people's minds on the flagpole which was up, than on the Indians which were not.

Firing From a Cannon

Another chap who must get a charge out of life is the lad who loads himself into the business end of a cannon, and then with a jolly wave of his hand to the insurance agents and his next of kin, is discharged with a loud report, into the near distance some three or four hundred feet away. Of course in this case it is purely a business proposition. The human projectile is undoubtedly a lad who likes to work a few minutes at a time in the great outdoors and then spend the rest of the day lying around while his bones mend.

However, of all the wild practices indulged in by man, probably the wildest is the voluntary withdrawal from food and water for long periods of time, like two months for instance.

In all other forms of mania there is at least a little excitement. But how can you get worked up over someone who is lying on a cot and slowly starving to death. Fasting is good for the soul and in the case of Fakir Burmah, a 40-year-old part Indian, part English faster, that is about all that was left of him when he completed his 53-day one-hour fast last Tuesday.

Fasting in Glass Coffin

Burmah was reported to have been fasting in a glass coffin along with two pythons and several other snakes, all but one of which was less hardy than he was and succumbed long ago. This added attraction of course would help to overcome the otherwise poor drawing power of starvation.

Why did the Fakir do it? Your guess is as good as anyone's, but the report of his exploits also contained the added information that following his strenuous fast, he announced his engagement, and probably here lies the answer. Anyone who can survive 53 days and one hour with no food at all is almost a sure thing to come through his wife's experiments in cooking. Furthermore, you could hardly intimidate a man with his restraint with the threat to send him to bed without his supper.

Anyone for a walk to Argentina?

Top Weatherman Says Russia Gives Help

By PHILIP CLARKE

Paris — (AP) — Russia is co-operating wholeheartedly with the rest of the world in the exchange of weather information, says Dr. Charles F. Brooks, director of Harvard University's observatory and one of the top weathermen in the United States.

"Hundreds of Russian weather stations furnish daily reports," he said in an interview. "These reports are telegraphed to central collecting stations which broadcast them in international code at agreed-upon hours."

Brooks said other Eastern European countries and communist China also broadcast weather reports. These are collected in Washington, London, Paris and other principal cities where meteorologists draft daily weather maps showing general weather conditions in all parts of the world.

"Russia co-operates in this work because she realizes it is to her advantage to do so," Brooks added. "Only by getting reports from all over the world can weathermen plot the course of cold waves, high and low pressure areas and other phenomena."

Brooks has been attending a conference of meteorologists from six countries, representing the 55-country International Meteorolgical Organization. The conference has revised a world "cloud code," redefining in more precise terms the 10 general cloud types and their species.

Brooks, a weatherman for the last 38 years, said the Russians have gone along in all international decisions standardizing weather observations. They agreed also at a Washington conference in 1947 to establish a new world meteorological organization to take the place of the 53-year-old I.M.O.

Canada is Swinging Doors Open Wider to New Settlers; Change of Policy Announced

Ottawa, July 3—(CP) — Canada is swinging her doors open wider to new settlers.

Aimed at the immigration decline of the last few years, measures announced last night by immigration minister Harris will admit new groups to Canada and provide stimulus for those in classes already admissible.

Starting tomorrow, several classes of settlers, now admitted only by order-in-council, may enter freely after passing the normal health, character and passport requirements.

For practically all other categories, the minister will have power of admission, doing away with the cumbersome procedure of going through cabinet.

The program announced removes the order-in-council restrictions on the entry of immigrants brought in by employees where the number is not more than 25, of domestics and nurses' aides, of those recommended by the immigration department's settlement service, and of relatives sponsored by legal residents of Canada where satisfactory prospects are shown. Previously, the only persons admitted on this basis were first-degree relatives.

Restrictions against the entry of Asiatics will remain in force.

The immigration minister is given power to admit all other classes, and he said this would expedite the entry of such immigrants as those bringing in capital to establish businesses; Artisians or small business men wanting to establish themselves in rural areas; professional men, and other suitable immigrants.

There is no change in the free entry of British subjects, citizens of Ireland and the United States; citizen-natives of France; persons coming to Canada to be married and farmers with enough means to establish themselves.

BOILING WATER BURNS LIKE FIRE
Boiling water serves us in many useful ways. In fact, much of our day to day living depends on it. But remember, water on the boil is just as dangerous as fire. One moment of carelessness may cause weeks of agonized suffering—or in the case of extreme burns, possible death. Always take added precautions when you use it. Bobby Feller's 200th Pitching Victory and Shift of DiMaggio To First Top Ball Happenings

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Bobby Feller racks up his 200th major league triumph. Joe DiMaggio becomes a first baseman. Philadelphia drops defending champion Brooklyn Dodgers into fourth place. Cleveland rookie Al Rosen ties Ted Williams for the home-run lead. Chicago Cubs thrash Cincinnati 16-0.

These are a few of the baseball headlines today following an action-packed Sunday on the diamond.

The Phils retained first place in the National League, whipping the Dodgers 6-4 in the first game of a doubleheader. The second game ended in a 10-inning, 8-8 tie, halted by Pennsylvania's curfew law. Held hitless through six innings by Curt Simmons, the Dodgers rallied to overcome an 8-0 deficit. The game will be replayed at a later date.

St. Louis Cardinals remained three percentage points behind the Phillies, edging out Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1.

Boston Braves climbed into third place, two games off the pace, sweeping a doubleheader from New York Giants 11-5 and 6-3.

Andy Pafko cracked a double, triple and homer and batted in five runs for the Cubs as righthander Walt Dubiel held the Reds to only four hits. It was Cincinnati's most humiliating defeat in years.

Detroit and Cleveland divided an American League doubleheader and New York Yankees outslugged Boston Red Sox 15-9. Philadelphia Athletics defeated Washington Senators 7-4 and Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns divided a twin bill—5-2 and 4-3.

Fine Relief Job

A fine relief performance by Hal Newhouser enabled the Tigers to salvage one game of the four-game series from the red-hot Indians. Newhouser stopped a Cleveland uprising in the eighth inning and Detroit rallied for 3 runs in the ninth to win the opener 8-5. A five-run, sixth inning gave the Tribe a 5-3 victory in the second game.

Feller received credit for the second game with needed help from Al Benton after the Tigers had put the tying runs on base in the ninth. Benton put out the fire. The 31-year-old Feller, with a season's record of 8-6, is the 42nd pitcher to win 200 or more games.

One of Cleveland's runs came on Rosen's 24th hom run of the season. This tied him with Ted Williams for the major league leadership.

Home runs by Joe DiMaggio, Yogi Berra and Johnny Mize proved the difference in the Yankee-Red Sox slugfest. Berra got two other hits to drive in five runs. Allie Reynolds got credit for his seventh victory which pushed the Yanks back in second place, 3½ games behind the Tigers. The Indians trail by four and the Red Sox by six.

Before the game Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees announced that he would attempt to solve his aggravated first base problem by moving DiMaggio from centrefield to first base. Joe was slated to take over his first base berth today against the Senators in Washington. He has never played anywhere but the outfield in 16 years of professional ball except for three games at shortstop with San Francisco in 1932.

OUTFIELDER FINED

Ogdensburg, N.Y., July 3 (AP)—Pete Khousegan, Geneva, N.Y., outfielder, has been fined $25 for his language to umpires and $50 for damage to the Auburn clubhouse, the Border Baseball League announced Sunday.

He was ejected from the game Thursday night in Auburn.

"We could just hear our friends saying 'THEY'RE GETTING OLD!'

"Perhaps many couples at our time of life have had the same experience. We seemed to lose all our old pep, and joy in life. I often woke up with those sluggish 'liverish' feelings—felt listless, worn-out, bad-tempered all day long. My wife, too, seemed always out of sorts and suffered from poor digestion. When friends began sympathising behind our backs, we felt we were really 'getting old'. Then we started with Kruschen Salts and soon nature did the rest, to bring the relief we needed! We found just a little dissolved in our breakfast tea and coffee helped start the day right. NOW we actually feel years 'younger'!"

If you often feel dragged-out, "old before your time" . . . if you suffer "liverish" misery from bad digestion and common constipation... Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 3 — (AP) — A sports writer is not supposed to let personalities affect his calculations....Here comes July 4 when all good "experts" are expected to survey the pennant races.... We'd like to root for the Tigers and Phillies (because there's no nicer guy in baseball than Red Rolfe and we like the way the whole Phil crew operates).... But what are you going to do about a few other personal favorites like Steve O'Neill, Eddie Dyer and Billy Southworth?....

Originals Stand

Rolfe still hasn't the bench strength at Detroit and the Red Sockers, who figured to be the best team, have been playing like it since O'Neill took over........ With Brooklyn's pitching faltering, almost anybody could win the National League pennant, but the Phils seem to have trouble taking the tough games .... So we'll let the pre-season selections—Boston and Brooklyn — stand until further notice.

Easy on Umps

You've heard ball players described as "automatic outs" and now, by gosh, Onslow, Iowa, high school comes up with a real one ......Only eight of the 13 boys in the school are available for baseball and a request for permission to use a girl in centre field was denied by the state association.... So Onslow plays with only two outfielders and when eight players have taken their turns at bat, an automatic out is chalked up.. ..That really hurt in one game when there were two out and the bases full when Mr. Automatic's turn came up......

Monday Matinee

When Walt Dropo played at Scranton in 1947, one of his homers hit the home of William Jones beyond the left field fence. Recently Walt played an exhibition with the Red Sox in Scranton and hit one which busted a window in the same house......

Galt Terriers Win Twin Bill Over Holiday

(By The Canadian Press)

Galt Terriers, who started Dominion Day with an eight-game losing streak, may find their Intercounty Senior Baseball League future brighter than their past.

The Terriers were the only Intercounty outfit to come through with a double victory, edging St. Thomas Legion 4-3 in the afternoon, and then downing London Majors 7-5 under the arc-lights.

After those two performances, both on the road, Alex Martin should feel that he can lead his club home in safety. The playing manager pitched Terriers to victory in the opener and erstwhile major-leaguer Jim Bagby won the second game in relief after his pinch single had driven in two runs in the sixth inning to tie the score.

The league-leading Waterloo Tigers watched ace righthander lose his first game in 10 starts as he yielded three runs to Kitchener Legionnaires in an afternoon tussle. But young Mike Kvasnak pitched seven-hit ball and drove in three runs with a trio of safeties to lead the Tigers to an 11-2 victory over Guelph Maple Leafs.

Stratford Nationals and Brantford Red Sox split their twin bill, both losing home games. Seven Brantford runs in the first two innings proved disastrous for the Nats, who bowed 7-5 in in a game featured by 18 walks and 21 strikeouts. Bill Russ limited the Sox to seven hits to win the night game 5-3.

Oshawa Shades Petes

In a viaduct major league tussle, Oshawa Merchants shoved across a run in the bottom half of the 11th inning to shade Peterborough Marines 2-1 in a sizzling tussle. The Merchants outhit the Marines 12-5 but two Peterborough double plays and inability to produce with men on base prevented them from sewing up the game earlier.

St. Catharines Stags made a day of it in the Niagara District League, playing morning, afternoon and night games and dropping only the evening encounter.

Stags' ace moundsman, 19-year-old Ricky Kosko, tried an ironman stunt of his own, taming Tonawanda Dodgers 9-2 with a four hit performance in the morning game and trying his luck again against Niagara Falls Fords in the afternoon.

The Fords drove Kosko from the mound, but dropped the afternoon slugging bee 10-6. Then John Worrall took charge for the Fords in the final game to whip St. Catharines 5-1.

Blind Golfer Equals Par On First Hole

Augusta, Me., July 3 (AP)—The first time Dr. W. H. J. Oxenham of Toronto played golf he equalled par on the first hole—a remarkable feat, as any golfer will tell you.

But in Dr. Oxenham's case, it was almost incredible. He is blind.

The Maine Development Commission announced last night that Dr. Oxenham is one of 16 blind golfers from the United States and Canada who will compete here July 19-20 in the annual American Blind Golfers Tournament.

Dr. Oxenham, born in London in 1894, was blinded by a shell blast in the First World War.

While visiting a fellow physician he joined his friend on the golf course and said jestingly he would "like to take a crack at the ball."

"To my surprise and delight, I hit a very good drive and my friend suggested that I play the hole out. He gave me another club, lined up the ball, and it landed on the green.

"Both of us nearly fainted when I sank it in two puts for a par four!"

With persistence and coaching by friends, he soon had a handicap of 20—lower than that of many normal linksmen.

In 1936, he played against another blind man in the first such match ever held in England. Later, in Cleveland, the doctor played a par-three hole in four as Sam Snead gave a running commentary on a coast-to-coast radio network.

Toronto Celtics Defeat All-Stars By 4-1 Score

The starry Toronto Celtic of the Toronto Senior Soccer League beat the local Bay of Quinte All Stars by four goals to one in a very good soccer exhibition match played at the Fairgrounds in Belleville last Saturday evening. The Toronto outfit, who have only been beaten once this year in the Senior League, came down with two busloads of supporters, the majority of whom, of course, were Irish.

The visitors attacked strongly from the first with wind and sun advantage and had the ball in the All Stars net twice in the first ten minutes of play. The first was scored by Jim Brechin who was a member of the Toronto Senior League All Star team who visited Trenton on May 27th and the second was put in by McKane from a pass by Wallace. It took the local boys a little while to settle down but from then on they held their own and had their fair share of the play and with a little luck might have had a goal. Cliff Lane in the Celtic goal turned in a sterling display and frustrated all efforts of the Quinte forward line. No further goals were scored untile five minutes before the change-over when Tommy Kendall unfortunately put the goal in his own net in attempting to clear.

In the second period play was very even and both sides came very near to scoring on several occasions. After about 15 minutes of play in this half Hawryliw managed to get the ball past Cliff Lane for the All Stars only counter. This goal was scored after a scramble in front of the Celtic goal and most of the Quinte forwards had a hand in it. With about ten minutes of play remaining Roy Rankin got the fourth goal for the Celtic and what proved to be the last goal of the match.

Chalky Whyte Trenton Flyers veteran right back turned in an outstanding display for the All Star squad. Through injuries and holidays the All Stars were under strength, but they gave a good account of themselves and although on the play the best team won the local boys were by no means disgraced. A return game in Toronto is scheduled for Labor Day, September 3rd, and the Quinte team will be out to get their revenge.

Wes McCulla of last season's Belleville United team was a member of the visiting club.

After the match the visitors were entertained by the Bay of Quinte F.A. at a dance and get-together.

Teams:—

Bay of Quinte All Stars: Blaker (Belleville United), Whyte, Kendall, Hughes (Trenton Flyers), Mueller (Batawa), Jack Jones (Navy), Reid (Vets), Hawryliw (Batawa), Holroyd (Belleville United), Angus (6 R.D.), Fred Jones (Navy). Subs, Salisbury, E. Helyer (Trenton Merchants), Grignon (Trenton Flyers).

Toronto Celtic: Lane, Dunlop, Bell, Rankin, Collins, Bill Smith, Wallace, Wilson, McKane, Brechin, McCrum. Subs, McCulla, Rafferty, Black.

Referee: Bob Murphy; linesmen, Boyd Findlay, Bill Salter.

Canadian Racers Fare Well in First Regatta

Valleyfield, Que., July 3 (CP) — Canadian racers fared well in Canada's largest speedboat regatta held here during the weekend although they were outnumbered about 3 to 1 by United States entries.

More than 40,000 persons lined St. Francis Bay to see 15 Canadian drivers place in the top three of 14 class events.

The two-day regatta opened the Canadian circuit for speedboat enthusiasts.

Top speed for the meet was registered by Ken Dempsey of West Henrietta, N. Y. Driving in the largest class — 225 cubic inches, division I — his "Shamrock II" hit 67.5 miles an hour to take first place in that section.

In the second division of the 225-cubic-inch class John Haineault of Cornwall, Ont., braved Saturday's choppy water to win top honors. His best speed in 3 heats was 62.8 miles an hour.

The midget outboard class turned into a mother and daughter duel.

The mother, 39-year-old Mrs. C. Perkins of White Plains, N.Y., in competition for the first time, beat her daughter, Jean, 16, who came third. Mrs. Perkins placed second behind Maetson Grevatte of Mont Claire, N. J. Jean has been racing for two years.

Said Mrs. Perkins after the race: "I didn't know what I was missing until this race. Now I never want to quit."

Canadian top placers included David Belfie, Gananoque, Ont., and George Reynold, Brockville, Ont., who came second and 3rd., respectively, in the open class 135 cubic inch hydros.

BRAMPTON WINS 8TH START

Brampton, July 3 — (CP) — Brampton Excelsiors won their eighth game in nine Ontario Lacrosse Association starts Saturday night, shading St. Catharines Athletics 15-14 to break a second-place tie between the two clubs.

Gordie Steele's counter a minute before the final whistle sewed up the see-saw game, but Archie Browning's five goals paced the Excelsior attack. Lew Landess added three tallies and Whitey Severson scored twice.

For the Athletics, Jimmy McMahon and Harry Wipper got three markers apiece and Kenny Croft and Steve Oneschuk each sank two.

Latta Defeats Cannifton 9-2

Smashing out a total of 13 base hits and a home run by McCreary, Doc. Empson's Latta crew coasted to a 9-2 win over Johnny Lawrenson's league leading Cannifton crew at Cannifton Friday night.

In front of an almost perfect defence Joe Tracy allowed the league leaders only three hits all by Lawrenson, two being home runs.

Hazard led the Latta attack with 4 safeties, while McCreary and Empson had a pair each.

Lawrenson had three clouts for the losers.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Satturday walk with pop, and he stopped and looked in the window of the Hi Klass Habberdashery, saying, it's gone, and that just serves me rite. Faint pocketbook never won fair necktie. It was the most bewtiful tie in the werld, but I couldn't make up my mind to part with 3 dollers for a necktie, and now I'm full of self pity and vain regrets, he said.

Well G, pop, maybe there's one just like it inside, I said, and pop said, Fate is seldom that kind to weaklings, but we'll go in.

Which we did, and pop said to the man, You had a necktie in the window yesterday, but it's a case of gone today and here yesterday. I don't see another one like it, and it was so bewtiful I can't discribe it. By gollies I dont have to discribe it, you're wearing one just like it, he said.

Oh, this number, the man said. I took the one out of the window for a customer, and it's rapped up rite now in the back of the shop. He said he'd stop in for it this morning, but he didn't show up, so I guess you can have it, he said.

And he went and came back with a little flat packidge and opened it, and pop said, That's the honey, that's the tie.

And he bawt it and we went out again, and I said, Hay, pop, did you notice that man's neck when he came back with the tie? He had a silk muffler on so you couldn't see his own necktie any more, I said, and pop said, Yee gods the dubble deeler wen back and took his tie off and rapped it up. Well, a good sportsman never squawks when he's outwitted in a game, even a game of wits.

But we wont tell your mother the precise history of the purchase unless she happens to ask if I bawt it from a man with the same necktie around his own neck, he said.

Which she probably wont happen to.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HE'LL BE MISSED

One of Belleville's better athletes and popular sportsmen, Eddie Schreider is leaving town, permanently. The likeable Eddie has associated himself with the Canadian General Tower Company, of Galt, Ont., as assistant production manager. He assumes his new duties today.

Schreider's departure from the city deals a double blow to sports here for it means also that his son Garry, a promising young athlete will also be missed. However, it is understood that Garry will enter St. Michael's College, Toronto, next year, so he would not be available for sport here in any event.

Sport here will miss Ed. Cehreider, and miss him badly. Whenever and wherever athletics were discussed or played no matter what phase, the name of Schreider was evident. He loved, lived and breathed athletics, and carried his interest and activities in them far beyond the realm of personal benefit.

Ed fought hard for the recognition of minor sport in this city, and took an active interest in the younger generation. He gave freely of his time and effort especially in minor hockey last winter. A member of the Belleville Hockey Association, Ed associated himself with the minor division when that organization took over the midgets, bantams and juveniles. He coached the juvenile squad and through his efforts, a fine foundation has been laid in this classification for the coming season.

A native son of Belleville, Eddie took to athletics at an early age. He gave promise of the fine footballer he later became when he started heaving forward passes with his formula bottles. There is no record of how many were completed, but the loss of equipment was high.

Later, he starred in football and basketball at St. Michael's Academy and Belleville Collegiate Institute. In 1935-36 he was physical training director at St. Michael's. He captained the Belleville football team in the ORFU Intermediate group in this district, and when the game died a lingering death in this city, the one who fought hardest for its survival and later, revival, was Ed. Schreider.

He took a keen interest in ladies softball, and with the late Ken. Colling, former sports editor of this newspaper, formed and operated a city league here for a number of years.

His retirement from active sport did not mean that he was finished with athletics. He was president of the Belleville District Hockey League for two seasons, and administered that body with an impartial hand. Recently he was given the chairmanship of the "Turk Broda Committee" of the Kinsmen Club and his organizing ability was evidenced in the success of that club's venture in bringing Broda and his team here to play an exhibition game in aid of the Swimming Pool Building Fund.

A few years ago Ed turned to the realm of arbiting. He took special courses in basketball officiating and for the past season was recognized as one of the best referees in the district Intermediate "A" group.

Baseball arbiting attracted him and with his heart in his throat, after many months of study of the rules, the fine points, and the mannerisms of top-notch mask and padmen, Eddie essayed his first big game. That took place in Hull, Quebec, where the Belleville junior baseball team was playing in OBA playdowns with the Ottawa Wrightvilles.

Like all "first-gamers" he was nervous, but had the faculty of concealing it. He strode to his position behind the plate in Decosse Stadium, Hull, as if he were a Bill Klem. He came through with flying colors as was evidenced by a rabid Hull fan who commented: "Dat Hontario Humps, she is won dam good official, yes?"

He "graduated" to Intermediate and thence to senior baseball. For the past two seasons he has been in great demand in the Central Ontario Baseball League where he is known as a fair, impartial official. Last year he, with Don Thomas, "worked" the entire schedule of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Tournament held in Kingston. The duo has been retained for the 1950 tournament scheduled for early August. It is understood that Eddie will be available for the tourney.

We consider Eddie a personal friend of ours. We worked with him on the executive of the District Hockey League and we found him fair, friendly and unbiased. He stood for a square deal for all.

It is with sincere regret that we watch Ed. Schreider pass from the Belleville sports scene. Regret tinged with a splash of pride in the fact that he is making successful strides in his life vocation. Belleville's loss is Galt's gain — and city and district sportdom joins us in wishing the popular Ed., Garry and Mrs. Schreider the very best that life can offer, in their new environment.

City and district sportdom loses one of its most popular members with the departure today for Galt of Eddie Schreider. Eddie, one of the most popular athletes, and sportsmen this city has produced, regretfully said his farewells over the weekend. He will be missed in all phases of athletics here, especially in the minor branches. Baseball will miss him too, for Ed. is one of the best arbiters to don mask and pad in this area. Son Garry, a promising young athlete also will be missing this winter as he intends to go to St. Michael's College. Sportdom over a large area wishes the popular Ed. and Garry, and Mrs. Schreider the best of luck and success in their new future.

Villmer Hurt in Floor Crash But Whip Watson Refuses to Accept Main Bout Decision

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Whipper Billy Watson is not only a topflight wrestler but in the Sportsmanship league he sits at the top of the heap.

The popular Whip demonstrated his unwillingness to add another feather to his victory cap because of an opponent's injury here on Friday night.

It happened in the third fall of the main bout between the former British Empire champion and likeable Ray Villmer who also rates top billing in local popularity.

The pair split the first two falls and were battling hard for the victory nod in the third. Matters were about even with both wrestlers breaking clean and flashing terrific bursts of speed. Villmer was tossed on the ropes by the Whip, rolled over, landed on the ring apron, then suddenly crashed to the floor, landing heavily on his left shoulder.

A Fine Gesture

It was plainly evident that he was injured. He writhed in pain, while the crowd milled around him. Watson immediately leaped out of the ring and came to Villmer's aid.

Seeing that Villmer was definitely hors-de-combat, Watson turned to this writer and stated, "I will not acept any decision. It was plain an accident and should be declared 'no contest.' It will not go down in my records as a win."

Referee Bunny Dunlop was advised of Watson's request and officially declared the bout one of no decision. Watson and Dunlop aided the injured Villmer to the dressing room where it was revealed that his injuries were not of a serious nature.

The bout was a thriller from start to its sudden finish. It was clean scientific wrestling with both men showing no desire to go into the "villain's" role. It was speed and clever action all through, a definitely different departure from the beauty and the beast tactics that usually characterize main events. It was climaxed by Watson's fine sportsmanlike gesture in refusing to accept the laurel wreath. The master-minds can call for a return bout any time as far as we are concerned.

Villmer takes First

Villmer showed no fear of Watson's vaunted speed and matched hold for hold with the ex-champion in the first fall. They broke cleanly, when on the ropes and Referee Dunlop had one of the easiest evenings of his officiating career. For once he returned to the dressing room with his shirt in one piece.

Eleven minutes of furious milling had flitted before the first fall ended rather suddenly. Villmer seized a quick advantage and applied his favorite airplane spin. He whirled the Whipper aloft, spun him dizzy, and crashed him to the mat for the fall.

The Whipper went all out in the second fall in an effort to pin the elusive foeman. Villmer, as agile as the speedy Pride of East York ripped round and about the ring in one of the cleanest exhibitions of the season. Nine minutes had passed with the advantage going first to one then the other. Then the Whip resorted to his famous avalanche hold and the fall was over.

The third was a repetition of the first two falls with both men giving finished exhibitions of clean fast wrestling. Came the sudden crash to the floor of Villmer and the entertainment was over.

Electric Girls Trim Baltimore By 9-6 Score

Playing their last game under the direction of Coach Moe Fogarty, the Northern Electric girls softball team defeated Baltimore by a 9-6 score on Friday night to extend their lead at the top of the eastern section of the Lakeshore Ladies' Softball League.

At the conclusion of the game, Captain Ann McGrath of the Electrics presented Coach Fogarty with a travelling bag on behalf of the team. Fogarty leaves for Montreal today.

Ann McGrath restricted the Baltimore batters to five hits while her mates were rapping out ten safeties off Smith, the opposing hurler. She struck out three with Smith whiffing five and Slater two.

Electrics scored three runs in each of the third, fifth and sixth innings when they bunched their hits. Baltimore scored two in the second, one each in the fourth and fifth and two in the seventh.

B. Young, H. Reeves and C. Waite blasted out two hits each for the winners. Hircock hit double, the only extra base-hit of the game, for Baltimore and also a single. Hebert with two and Hogg with one accounted for the remaining Baltimore hits.

Sports Shorts From Britain

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 3 (CP) — Gene Sarazen, one of golfdom's all-time greats, has his sights trained on Scotland's famous testing ground at Troon where play for the British championship will start July 3.

At the age of 48, when most players are ready to call it quits on the tournament trail, Gene is far from dismayed by the formidable array of top-flight shotsmiths in the field of 265 seeking the coveted crown.

He has serious designs on the title which he last won in 1932, with a record-breaking 72-hole score of 283 at Sandwich. But he has a more personal reason for entering the lists this year.

In fact, he has a long-deferred account to settle with tough old Troon which he set out to massacre in the open championship of 27 years age. He will never forget the humiliation of what Troon did to him for he wound up on the sidelines in the parade of dejected non-qualifiers.

It has been a long wait for the stocky veteran of the big money circuit, but Troon also has had to wait since 1923 for its second open championship.

That year the title was won by a 25-year-old British professional, Arthur Havers, of Coombe Hill, whose popular triumph temporarily checked the succession of overseas challenges. Snapping at his heels came two Americans and an Australian — the redoubtable Walter Hagen, MacDonald Smith and Joe Kirkwood, the trick-shot artist.

Havers, now 52, will be joining Sarazen in an attempted comeback. And when they set off on the title chase next month they will find that Troon's layout is much the same as when they teed off 27 years ago. Its 6,600 while, while on the short side for a championship test, still presents an assortment of punishing hazards.

Defending his title, South Africa's wizard shot-maker Bobby Locke, has been installed as the favorite, with the bookmakers quoting the low odds of 4-1 on his chances to repeat. Locke has been playing superb golf in pre-tournament tune-ups and already has dipped heavily into the season's pool of prize money. But the punters haven't forgotten that Lady Luck nudged him rather coyly last year. They recall that he won in a play-off after the title slipped from Harry Bradshaw's grasp over the regulation route, when his ball landed, of all things, in a broken beer bottle.

This year Locke will have plenty of opposition, not only from a powerful home contingent, but also from abroad.

Australia is sending its ace money-winner Norman Von Nida and Ossie Pickworth who already has moved over to Troon "to get the feel of the course." In addition to Sarazen the United States will be represented by Frank "Muscles" Strahan, recent winner of the British amateur crown, his buddy Jimmy McHale and two smooth working professionals Johnny Bulla and Tony Penna.

But Britons are bemoaning the fact that their big drawing-card, Henry Cotton —three times winner of the Open—will be showing up at Troon, only as a spectator. Due to heavy business commitments he has been compelled to forego major tournament play this year.

Kingston Rink Wins Tournament At Local Greens

One of the most successful tournaments ever held in this city took place at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club on the holiday, when the mixed doubles tournament was held. Rinks from Brighton, Trenton, Stirling, Campbellford, Madoc, Toronto, Cornwall, Kingston and Belleville to the number of 64 took part, necessitating a double draw and the tourney was not completed till shortly after Sunday morning. The bowlers were welcomed by president A. E. Wonnacott, while the committee of Ray Grant, Gordon Edwards and Austin Watkin kept the tourney moving at a rapid rate. The greens were in excellent condition and the competition exceptionally keen in every game.

Mr. and Mrs. Morley Gault of Kingston were the winners of the New Queens Hotel trophy and suitable prizes for having the highest three-game high total. Gordon Watkin and his mother, who won this trophy last year, placed second, winning the Tip Top Tailor trophy. Other three-game high winners were Mr. and Mrs. Cyril McBride, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Price, "Davey" Davison and Mrs. Charles Mott all of the local club and Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Crozier of Toronto.

C. Pearson of Cornwall with Mrs. Irene Ward of Belleville as partner won the two-game high with Archie Meyers and Mrs. Bert Taylor of Campbellford being second. Mr. and Mrs. Austin Watkin were winners of the one-game high with Dr. E. A. Carleton and his daughter of Stirling being the no-winner low. Preparations are now being made for the Corbin Gold Cup tournament to be held on Civic Holiday and which is one of the largest one-day tournaments in this province. The entry list has been closed and a playoff will be necessary in the local club to decide the rinks that will compete. The Corbin Lock rink, which won the trophy last year will again be entered intact.

Bata Shoemen Edge Napanee, Lose to Picton in Holiday Fling-Featured Ball Games

Batawa Shoemen split their holiday weekend Central Ontario Baseball League dates, coming from behind on Friday night to defeat the Napanee Athletics 7-5 and dropping their Saturday night fixture with the Picton McFarlands by a 4-1 count.

The games leave both teams in their original schedule position with the Shoemen in fifth place and Picton holding down the cellar spot.

Pitching featured both games and each provided tight hurling duels. Ken Peacock, threw a five hitter against Napanee to win and Art Wright who tossed a six-smacker against Picton, was bested by Frank Dyer, who let the Shoemen down with five clouts.

Bata 7, Napanee 5

Picton 4, Batawa 1

Errors actually paved the way for all the runs in the Picton victory over the Shoemen with the exception of one in the Athletics' three-run splurge in the third, when Dyer's solid single drove in Hayden, who had singled ahead of him.

Wright booted the ball to allow Dyer to score the second run and Perry dashed home on the same play. Picton connected for three of their six hits off Wright in this frame. The winners' other run came in the eighth when Jackie Wardhaugh doubled for the only extra base-hit of the game and raced home when Bridgeman kicked MacDonald's grounder around the infield.

The lone Batawa tally came in the eighth when Wright, who had singled, galloped home after Fitzpatrick tossed a bad throw in an effort to nip Beckstead at third.

Wright and Dyer hooked up in a thrilling mound duel with the Batawa flinger whiffing six and walking two and Dyer claiming eight by strikeouts and walking one. Each team came up with a fast infield double play to stop potential rallies.

Picton was sparked by their new catcher Johnny Dean, a colored player who has all the earmarks of a fine ball player.

Dyer helped his own cause considerably and nullified some of the five errors committed by his infield when he drove out a pair of hits, one accounting for the only earned run of the game. Hayden, Dean, Fitzpatrick and Wardhaugh with a double provided the remaining hits off Wright.

Red Carson sapped out a single in the first for the Shoemen but Dyer held them hitless until the seventh when Rankin teed off with a bingle. Wright and Beckstead and Aquino got the other hits.

The Shoemen complained several times of decisions handed out by plate umpire Young of Picton.

Batawa 7, Napanee 5

Batawa Shoemen spotted the Napanee Athletics five runs on four hits and two errors in the fifth inning Friday night and then came back with a seven-run attack to snatch a 7-5 win for their third straight victory and their second of the week from the second place Athletics.

The skidding A's found Ken Peacock's five hit pitching just a trifle too slippery as they went down to their fourth straight loss. The veteran Batawa righthander, called on at the last moment by coach Dick Bridgeman, found the cool weather to his liking and proceeded to make the A's eat out of his hand. He was pitching no hit ball going into the fifth, when the lead off man Hooper banged out a double to left field. Hartin singled to advance Hooper and then McTaggart hit to the mound. Peacock bobbled the ball as Hooper raced in and Hartin took third. Vern Green hit to second base and "Mouse" Bush threw wide at first as Hartin and McTaggart scored. Markle walked and Hayes hit to left field to advance the runners. Burtt struck out and Jocko pounded a double into right field as Green and Markle scored. Bud Green grounded out pitcher to first and hooper went down short to first to end the inning.

Peacock settled down and from there in gave up but one hit, a single by Jocko in the seventh.

Three in Sixth

Batawa came up with a single run in the fifth, with Solmes who had singled with two away, taking second on a wild pitch by McTaggart, and coming home on Red Carson's third single of the night. The Shoemen came up with three runs in the sixth inning on four hits. Watson opened the inning with a double to right field, moving to third as Acquino went down short to first and coming home on Bush's long fly to the outfield. Rankin, Peacock, and Wright singled in order, and Solmes got a life on Jocko's error at third. Carson walked and was forced at second by Bridgeman's roller to the second baseman.

The Shoemen put the game away in the bottom of the eighth with a three run rally on two singles and two doubles.

Peacock went all the way for Batawa, walking five, striking out a dozen, and giving up five hits for five runs. McTaggart was the loser for Napanee walking one, striking out three, and serving up 14 hits for seven runs.

42-Day Harness Race Meet Opens At Thorncliffe

Toronto, July 3— (CP) — Thorncliffe Raceway opens its well-ballyhooed 42-day harness racing meet today and, weather conditions permitting, promoters look for a big crowd to witness the inaugural of what is billed as the biggest thing to hit Canada in the trot game. The "off" is scheduled for 4:15 p.m. EDT.

Feature of the inaugural eight-race card is the pacing stake, run in two divisions and worth $1,125 to the winning pacer in each division. Ora G. Herbert, record-holding Canadian pacer owned by W. Herbert and Son of London, Ont., entered in the pacing stake, is a prohibitive favorite to take his division.

Hon. Earl Rowe, former Ontario conservative leader and a leading Ontario breeder of trotters and pacers since 1918, will drive his own horse, Celia's Counsel, in a $500 stake event.

Horses from New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta and from the United States will compete here before the meeting ends Aug. 19.

Bakelite Scores 12-1 Victory Over Crawfords

A sixteen-hit assault on two Crawford hurlers was more than enough to wrap up a 12-1 win for Belleville Bakelite over Crawford Metals, Friday evening in a Commercial Softball League B. fixture at the Alemite Field.

Taylor started on the mound for Crawford's and was holding the Bakelite bludgeons to three hits and two runs going into the fifth inning, when he was greeted with a three-hit barrage that blew him to third base as Davis came in to relieve. Davis was met with a single by Arnott and a triple by Ed Littlejohn as the plastics crew poured in four runs. A single, a wild pitch and two passed balls netted Bakelite a single run in the sixth.

Powers led off the seventh with a home run for Bakelite, and after adding another run in the seventh on two singles and a fielder's choice, wound up their scoring in the ninth with Ed Littlejohn's home run to right field bringing in three runs.

Crawford's broke the shutout in the bottom of the eighth with a bases empty home run by Taylor.

Taylor started for the losers and in four and one third innings walked one, struck out six, and gave up six hits for five runs and the loss. Davis went the rest of the way walking none, striking out three, and being tagged for 10 hits and seven runs.

Burtch walked one, struck out three, and scattered seven hits for one run as he coasted to the win.

Littlejohn with a home run, a triple, and a single, and Powers with a home run and two singles, in five tries, led the attack for the winners.

Feller Thinks Ball More Lively Than in Past

Cleveland, July 3. (AP)—The only active major league pitcher with 200 wins to his credit thinks the ball is more lively than it used to be.

Bob Feller, a veteran at 31 years, says:

"Maybe I've lost my stuff, but the ball seems to be going farther for fellows who never hit before."

The former Iowa farmboy, who won his 200th against league-leading Detroit yesterday, 5-3, thinks the batters are just as dangerous as they ever were. But he does not believe the pitching stacks up with that of a few years back.

One things he notes is that many young hitters now are taking all the curves a pitcher will throw—and waiting for the fast ones.

"They all want that long ball," he says, and they let chuckers "throw all the curves they want past them."

Feller, who now has a few grey hairs around his temples, has taken up curve-ball throwing and has won eight and lost six this year.

"The curves are breaking pretty good for me," he said, admitting that the fireball which made him famous no longer whiffs past batters.

Bob holds three American League records, mostly because of the old fireball. During the 1946 season he struck out 348. He fanned 18 Detroit Tigers Oct. 2, 1938, for a one-game mark. And he has pitched 10 one-hitters.

Three Positions For Cardinals And Red Sox

(By The Canadian Press)

The major league's all star fireworks don't explode until July 11, but the rival American and National Leagues today had their big guns lined up and ready to boom in baseball's midsummer classic.

The Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Cardinals, each with three positions, dominated the nation-wide balloting for the 16 all-star starters—exclusive of pitchers— which ended last weekend.

A total of 3,167,328 fans participated in the poll for the 17th annual "dream game" at Comiskey Park. The 20-day balloting was conducted by 290 newspapers and radio stations.

Only three other clubs besides the fence-wrecking Red Sox figure in the lineup American loop Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees must start and play at least three innings. They were the Detroit Tigers and Yankees with two players each and the Cleveland Indians with one.

National League pilot Burt Shotton of Brooklyn has two of his own Dodgers and one each from the Philadelphia Phils, Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs, along with the Cardinal trio.

Boston Red Sox Sunday signed Phil Marchildon, former Philadelphia Athletics pitcher, as a relief pitcher.

Marchildon was released June 5 by Buffalo of the International League and became a free agent.

The veteran hurler, a native of Penetanguishene, appeared in five games for the Bisons and was charged with as many loses. Acquisition of Marchildon extended the Red Sox roster to the 25-player limit.

Johnny Pierson, Boston Bruins' right-wing hockey player, Sunday turned in a surprising performance, carding a 36-hole score of 147 to pace 13 other amateur golfers seeking berths on the Quebec Willingdon Cup team.

Bob Hall of Summerlea and Hamstead and Don Doe of Granby, Que., also won berths on the team.

Tied in fourth spot were Ken Ward of Summerlea and Joe Leblanc of Whitlock with 153s.

Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankee centre-fielder since 1936, will start playing first base today, Manager Casey Stengel said Sunday.

DiMaggio worked out at first before Sunday's game with Boston Red Sox. Stengel said the 35-year-old star will open there in today's game at Washington.

Donald Campbell skimmed over the glassy surface of Lake Coniston in Lancashire Sunday at 140 miles an hour in his 11-year-old Bluebird.

It was a trial run, and the top speed was not maintained over the full course.

But Campbell said he was pleased by the performance of the sleek old speedboat in which his father, the late Sir Malcolm Campbell, set a world record of 141.74 miles an hour in 1939.

Campbell said he will try to improve that record in about six weeks but first he will install a new propeller shaft and alter the design of a gear box. He will try to beat a record of 160.3255 miles an hour set by Stanley sayers in his Slo-Mo-Shun on Lake Washington in the United States.

Tom Park, 26, Hamilton, Ont., distance swimming star, Sunday won first place in the Matunuck Beach-to-Block Island swim.

Park was taken from the water about two miles from the finish line at Block Island, R.I., after officials called off the rest of the scheduled 13.7-mile swim. Bearings were taken of the next nine swimmers and they were awarded places according to their location when the race was stopped.

Numa Haineault of Cornwall, Ont., averaged 62.26 miles an hour in three heats Saturday to win the 225-cubic inch class race in Canada's largest speedboat regatta, hel don Bay St. Francis near Valleyfield, Que.

Roy Wouter hard-hitting Montreal middleweight, successfully defended his Canadian championship before 6,000 spectators at Glace Bay, N.S., Saturday by taking an easy 12-round decision from George (Rockabye) Ross from West Road, Cape Breton.

There were no knockdowns, but it was Wouter all the way. The 26-year-old Montrealer constantly stalked the former titleholder and gradually wore down his defences.

George Rasmussen of the University of Oregon broke the Canadian pole vault record at the police track and fied meet in Vancouver Saturday.

Rasmussen cleared the bar at 14 feet, two inches, one inch better than the previous mark, set in Montreal in 1947 by Richard Maroom of the University of New Hampshire.

Jackie Collum Top Relief Hurler For Red Wings

(By The Associated Press)

Little Jackie Collum, whose chief claim to fame is that he once struck out Joe Dimaggio with the bases loaded, is a mighty big man in Rochester's bid for the International League pennant.

Collum, only five feet 7 1-2 inches tall, is shaping up as manager Johnny Keane's top relief pitcher.

The lefthander yesterday received credit for his fifth victory of the year and his third of the week as the league-leading Wings split a double header with Syracuse Chiefs.

Syracuse took the opener 10-8 but the Wings grabbed the nightcap 7-5 with Collum turning in three scoreless innings of relief pitching.

Collum, only in his third season of professional ball, set the Western Association on fire while pitching for St. Joseph in 1948. He won 24 games and lost two and in addition batted .280.

The parent St. Louis Cardinals took Collum south with them in 1949 and it was during an exhibition game with New York Yankees that Collum fanned Dimaggio. Collum was at Omaha in 1949 and won only three games while losing nine. Last year he won three and lost two for the Red Wings.

Six Hurlers in Action

Collum was one of six Rochester pitchers that saw action in the opener, relieving George Copeland in the sixth with one out and retiring the side without damage. He bowed out for a pinch-hitter in the last of the sixth.

Rookie Ken Wild started the nightcap for the Wings and survived a five-run blast in the second but finally was lifted in favor of Collum in the fifth with the Wings in front 6-5. Larry Ciaffone was the Rochester batting star with a double and two singles.

The split enabled the Wings to retain their three-game lead over the second-place Jersey City Giants. The Giants divided with Montreal Royals, winning the opener 7-4.

Pinch-hitter Johnny Welaj socked a two-run single in the sixth of the opener to break a 4-4 tie and give Tom Lasorda his fifth victory.

Red Hardy blanked the Royals on five hits in the finale in outpitching George Thomas and Clyde King. S. Jok tripled home Pete Milne with the game's only run in the fourth inning.

Scheduled doubleheaders between Springfield and Buffalo and Baltimore and Toronto were rained out.

'Jacks' Held Upper Hand As Kiwanians and Firemen Try to Play Donkey Ball

The Kiwanis burro-busters and the Fire Department smoke-eaters may brag and bemoan respectively about the result of the donkey baseball game held in the Exhibition grounds on Saturday when the score read Kiwanis 3, Fire Eaters 2, but grins of wisdom smirked on jackass jaws after the physical jerks were over.

Actually those long-eared descendants of Balaams Pride won going-out, lying down or standing still. And approximately 900 rib-sore spectators will vouch for that.

The spectator-filled grandstand and bleachers were kept in a continuous uproar of merriment as the doughty clubmen and the red-jerseyed firemen pitted their wits, heels and homo sapiens brains against the cunning, and sagacity of the four-footed mountain climbers.

Actually, and this reporter can swear to it, more or less, some of those jacks bared their mulish molars in what appeared to be grins of fiendish delight, as the luckless riders toppled earthward between their ears, off the port or starboard side or took the short route over the rump ramp.

On one occasion (it was the little dark grey, who appeared to be the head of the Burro Brethern, Local 6543846,) one of the jacks was so overcome with mule merriment at the puny efforts of a husky 210 pound hunk of fire department masculinity which was trying to ride its poop deck, that it sank to the ground from sheer weakness.

Everything Own Way

Those dog-gone mules had everything their own way. They did not stand for being pushed around and being mules and males did what they wanted to do, and not as they were told or requested.

They walked, they ambled, and they rambled. Their riders, cajoled, appealed, coaxed, kicked, slapped and prayed, but the jacks were no yes-asses. They went about the job in an unconcerned manner, did whatever they liked and on occasions when slightly perturbed at some untoward incident, lashed out with hind feet that at one time caught an unsuspecting Kiwanian on the south side of the lap.

All-in-all it was good clean fun, an everybody with the exception of the mules got a kick out of the performance.

A pre-game highlight was the parade which ambled down the main street and to the Fair grounds. The Municipal Band in all kinds of funny get-up with false noses and glasses being the main feature of disguise, headed the mule-train as it clipped and clopped to the battle ground.

The mules reported no casualties, but it was learned today that several of the local Gene Autreys ate their Sunday dinners in perpendicular positions. — G.H.C.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 3 (AP)—After observing the opposite sex for most of his 73 years, Charles Coburn concludes that "a woman doesn't reach her peak until she's at least 40."

The famed actor with the monocle and the pouting lip delivered the opinion at his spacious and memento-filled Hollywood boulevard home.

"Put any woman past 40 in a room full of debutantees," he propsed. "In a few minutes, you will see that she has monopolized the attention and has the men in her control.

"She has learned to make the man seem the centre of importance. Younger girls feel that they must be the focus of attention."

Coburn warmed up to his subject and spoke in the soft tones of his native Georgia.

That Something

"A woman past 40 may have lost some fo her youthfulness, but she has gained an inner beauty which is more important.

A man, he added, doesn't reach maturity until 50.

"After all, women are always more advanced for their age than men.

"A girl of 12 or 14 is always more advanced than a boy of the same age. In fact, it starts earlier. A girl baby may be bored in a room full of women. But let a man enter the room and she will start preening her feathers."

Where Life Began

The actor admitted that life began at 60 for him.

"When my wife died," he recalled, "I was terribly depressed. I had an offer to come to Hollywood and I took it, even though I had no desire to do movies. But I found the work fascinating and I have never been happier."

Coburn gets a chance to display his romantic technique in "Louisa." He and Edmund Gwenn another Mature Lothario, battle for the hand of Spring Byington.

Firefighters Take Over at Smiths Falls

Smiths Falls, July 3 — (CP) — Eastern Ontario firefighters had themselves a time here Saturday —and so did most Smiths Falls residents. In fact, the whole town just about caught fire.

It was Firefighter's Day, as well as Dominion Day, in Smiths Falls, where the eastern Ontario Firefighters Association has been holding a three day convention. The day began early with the ringing of bells, the blowing of whistles and fire sirens—even a reveille by the Canadian Legion pipe band.

Everyone lined the streets early to watch the fireman's parade.

The Dexter high school band accompanying the Dexter Fire Department fom the northern New York State town, easily got everyone's vote as most colorful.

There were demonstrations by the firemen and demonstrations of new equipment and "fire-proof" paint.

The afternoon produced another parade headed by the Salvation Army Silver Band, of Peterborough.

23 PERSONS KILLED

Bourg - En - Bressee, France, July3 (AP)—Twenty-three excursionists were killed near here today when a train hit a bus at a crossing.

The town is 35 miles northeast of Lyon, in central France.

Three other perscons were severely hurt.

Agence France-Presse said the barrier gates at the crossing were not down.

The Kibitzer

The best for leads to you is first to learn what not to do. And this, unless you are bereft, must mean to lead from what is left.

When it is your opening lead, stop first to consider what suits you should not lead. There are two such don't to follow. One of the two don't is: Don't lead a suit bid by opponents.

What I mean is: If declarer or his partner has bid some suit, refrain from leading that suit. If either or both have bid two or more suits, do not lead either suit bid by them.

It makes no difference whether declarer is in a suit contract or a no-trump contract. Don't lead a suit that has been bid by the declarer or his partner or both.

You heard me right. To make this more binding let me repeat: Against any contract, don't lead an opponent bid suit; whether it was bid by one or the other or both.

Did I hear you say: "What if the dummy bid suit was not supported by the declarer?" Cut it out. You are killing me. Don't lead an opponent bid suit whether it was supported or not.

South bid a heart and north bid a spade. South bid three hearts and north bid four hearts. The spades in the four hands are as shown here:

NORTH
WEST ♠ 10 9 7 6
EAST ♠ K 8 5
SOUTH
♠ 4 3

Are you anxious to lead a spade from the west hand? If so, why? What do you expect to accomplish thereby. Give your partner a chance to make his king? You will. So what?

If partner has the king of their suit let him hang onto it as long as he can. The longer he has that king the better it is for your side. Soon as east gets a trick with his king you have set up a trick for the dummy spade jack. And not until then.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was looking at my new comic book and wishing my homewerk was done instead of not even started, and I said to pop, G, pop, here's a swell avvertizement for a book to teetch yourself ventrilloquism with. All you have to send them is 10 cents for the book and 20 cents for the stamps and the trubble of mailing it to you. Gosh, pop, I've got 5 cents, so all I need is 25 more, I said.

Not actually asking him for it, and pop said, A small investment often leads to untold riches. The elder Rockerfeller bawt an oil can with his ferst dime, and then to have something to put in it, he bawt a half grown oil well with his ferst 10 thousand dollars. Do you think a ventrilloquism book would be a good investment? he said.

Sure, pop, jimminies, I'd learn to make an imitation voice come out of closits or anywhere I wanted it to, and I'd be so populer I'd get invited to parties even by people that didn't hardly know me, I said, and pop said, It's true that social contacts frequently leed to bizzness contacts and that's why some of the werst golfers are the best bizzness men. And between parties it would help you with your lessons. You could make an imitation voice ask questions from the closit concerning your homewerk, and then you could study the ansers. You'd find you were devoting hours and hours to your homewerk instead of minutes and minutes. I'll be glad to prepare a list of questions for the imitation voice every evening. How does the idea strike you? he said.

Well, I'd have to think it over, I said.

Tourists Invade Ontario

Ontario was generally clear, and an invasion of tourists from the United States added to the general highway melee. A crowd of 6,000 jammed Toronto's Centre Island to watch an all-day regatta featuring swimming, rowing, and paddling events.

Members of the Massena, N.Y., Post of the American Legion paid a good-will visit to Cornwall and joined the local branch of the Canadian Legion in a parade and memorial service. A group of 2,500 from Tecumseh, Mich., visited Tecumseh, Ont., for that town's mid-century festival.

Quebec had sunny weather most of the weekend.

Heavy rain hampered proceeding in Halifax, but elsewhere in the Maritimes the holiday went on as planned.

Across the Atlantic, the BBC broadcast two Dominion Day programs designed for Canadians in Britain. In one, an all-Canadian cast was heard in a variety show "Canada Calling." The other was a program of symphonic music played by the CBC Montreal orchestra and the Toronto Symphony.

Saturday was Canada Day at the Chicago Fair of 1950. The Canadian minesweeper Portage visited the city and six RCAF jet fighters performed aerial acrobatics. A group of Canadian officials, headed by Transport Minister Chevrier, was feted at the fair.

NORTH KOREAN

American and North Korean reports described a steady communist push southwards on roads spanning a front 55 miles wide.

The American infantry men were being sped to new break-through area by truck and rail.

Tom Lambert, Associated Press correspondent in Taejon, advance U.S. headquarters 93 miles south of Seoul, said that if the Reds maintain the speed of their advance they may run up against the Americans today.

The latest break-out by two mechanized columns was launched from the Yongdungpo area on the southwestern edge of Seoul. Earlier, reports from Taejon said two other columns had pushed south from positions east of Seoul.

Moving southeastward, these columns outflanked Suwon, with its airfield 20 miles south of Seoul. A U.S. spokesman at Taejon called this development serious.

Brought Under Attack

Both columns were bought under attack by U.S. planes just before dark Sunday. One pilot said one column had 12 tanks and the other a number of trucks.

The tank-led columns on the west crossed the broad Han River over a repaired railroad bridge which had been blown by the South Korean defenders. A pontoon bridge also had been thrown across the Han.

Suwon and its important air field was no-man's land as late as Sunday night. Ten North Korean Yak fighters attacked Suwon's air field. Observers said four of the planes bore the red star of the Russian air force.

Russia has supplied the North Koreans with all their planes. It was possible that these were rushed into battle without painting over the Russian insignia.

A U.S. air force communique said two hostile planes were shot down, one with a red star marking. The communique was cautiously worded, however, and did not mention Russia.

U.S. B-29 superforts also were again in action, flying 135 miles into North Korea and plastering the airfield at Yonpo. Pilots said the field was covered by smoke when they left.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced that Maj.-Gen William F. Dean had been named commander of all American forces in Korea. Dean formerly commanded U. S. occupation forces in South Korea, was the last military governor of that area and since has commanded the 24th infantry division in Japan.

Four hostile columns are across the Han River just south of Seoul. The North Korean radio claimed that a fifth column, ramming southward far to the east, had seized Wonju, 50 miles east of Seoul.

Of immediate concern to United States forces were two tank-led columns which crossed the Han last night. They were reported as much as 25 miles south of the river in a new and menacing break-through.

Large numbers of U.S. bombers and fighters roared over the advancing communists, ripping their columns with rockets, bombs and machine gun fire. No column was reported stopped, however.

57 MEET DEATH

Ontario reported the heaviest accident toll, with 24 persons losing their lives. Nine were killed in highway accidents, eight were drowned, and other fatalities included the death of two RCAF pilots when their light plane crashed at Lindsay.

11 Die in Quebec Car Crashes

Eleven died in automobile accidents in Quebec, most of them in the Montreal area. A Montreal man died in a fall from a third-storey verandah and a body of an unidentified man was found floating in the St. Lawrence River.

Four persons were drowned in British Columbia and three died in traffic accidents. Two miners at Greenwood, B.C., were fatally overcome by fumes in the mine shaft where they were working.

Five persons died in New Brunswick and two each in Alberta, Manitoba and Nova Scotia.

A variety of sports events drew crowds in all parts of the dominion. International League baseball was watched by 10,000 fans in Montreal and 8,000 in Toronto. A disappointed crowd at Glace Bay, N.S., watched Nova Scotian George (Rockabye) Ross fail in his attempt to regain the Canadian middleweight boxing title from Roy Wouters of Vancouver.

Regattas were held at Vancouver Toronto and Valleyfield, Que., and harness racing meets were staged at a number of centres. Track and field events were run off at Hamilton and Charlottetown and Vancouver's Lansdowne Park race track had the biggest day in its history.

Smaller towns held old-home weeks and similar picnic-style celebrations which included such activities as horse-pulling contests bingoes and old-time dances.

Plane Will be Used To Dust Pea Crop

Brantford, June 30 — (CP) — A crop-dusting airplane was flown to the Troy district yesterday from Tillsonburg in an attempt to salvage more than 100 acres of canning crop peas extensively damaged by aphids.

Hundreds of pounds of rotenone were dumped on the fields where the aphids have spread because of lack of rain. Farmers said the hot, dry weather has resulted in some crops being damaged beyond any hope of salvage.

Only the pilot received any injuries. Dead-stick crash landing was made in bush 200 yards from water. Occupants were L. Bronson, left, and C. Perkins of North Bay, Cal Hull, the pilot and T. Heuson, North Bay. Engine cut out suddenly. — Central Press Canadian.

ALL EYES ARE ON THE U.N.

The momentous events of the past few days focus attention more than ever on the mammoth edifice dedicated to preserve peace for the world. This dramatic view of the United Nations headquarters building, along the East River, in New York, shows the structure, still in its incompleted stage, standing out against the Midtown skyscrapers. A calmly worded note to the U.S. from Russia denied responsibility for the hostilities, refused to intervene in halting the battle. Meanwhile, member nations of the U.N. sent offers of assistance, in increasing numbers, to help end the Korean war. Prime Minister St. Laurent has recommended that the Canadian navy send destroyers Cayuga, Athabaskan and Sioux to Korea if the need arises. — Central Press Canadian.

QUEUILLE'S NEW

Complaints about France's new government are expected to come from the left side of the Assembly. The Socialists, who refused to join, dislike two new ministers. They are former premier Paul Reynaud, who takes the new post of Minister of State for the Associated States and the Far East and Paul Giacobbi, Minister of State for civil service. The communists like them even less.

Both men are right wingers. Reynaud is an independent and Giacobbi a member of Queuille's radical Socialist group.

Queuille's new government, his second, is the seventh under the fourth republic and the 12th since the liberation.

Queuille himself led the longest one. It las 13 months.

The new government has eight radical Socialists and nine members of Bidault's Mouvement Republicain Populaire. Bidault becomes vice-premier. Queuille will continue as interior minister in charge of the police, as well as premier.

Says King Gave Truman Names Of 150 A-Spies

Washington, July 3. (AP)—Alfred Kohlberg, New York importer and publisher, said in a letter made public Sunday that in 1945 President Truman received the names of 150 "Soviet Atom Spies" in the United States from the then Prime Minister of Canada, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.

"Not one has been arrested", Kohlberg declared. He said the names were listed in a secret report which the prime minister "brought in person" to Truman.

Kohlberg said last April that he had been supplying data to Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) for use in connection with McCarthy's charges that the State Department Harbors Communists and fellow travellers. Kohlberg is an active supporter of the Chinese Nationalist government and a long-time foe of what he considers Communist activities.

Cost-of-Living Index Will be Out This Week

Ottawa, July 3. (CP)—Canadians will get a look sometime this week at the price road the cost-of-living index took during May.

The upward or downward route of that road is the big question for housewives, some of whom are paying the highest prices in Canadian history for food, rent, personal care and other items.

The monthly summary of living costs is due to be issued this week by the Bureau of Statistics, which reported the April index unchanged at an all-time high of 164.0.

Declines in prices of women's wear and anthracite coal off-set rises in beef and coffee prices during April to halt a four-month climb in living costs that sent the index up three points from the 161.0 level last December.

The index is calculated on the basis that 1935-39 prices equalled 100.

Rents may be a dominant factor in the May index figures.

The rent sub-index is at an all-time high of 132.7 after an unprecedented 7.7 advance in February which reflected increases in rental ceilings authorized by the government in December.

Storm Leaves Trail of Fires At London

London, Ont., July 3 (CP)—A sudden thunderstorm which hit London and most parts of western Ontario Sunday night left a trail of fires, disrupted hydro service, caused sewers to back up, flooding cellars and cut telephone service in some areas.

The storm followed by a heavy fog which slowed traffic to a snail's pace throughout the district.

Hardest hit was the Bell Telephone Company here which reported cables were knocked out to Sarnia, Petrolia, Detroit, Hensall, Zurich, Grand Bend, Thedford and Exeter.

The storm sent city firemen to six separate blazes, all of which were believed to have been caused by lightning. Damage was slight in each case.

More than 100 residents reported their cellars flooded and a crew of city workers were kept busy throughout the night working to restore services.

Members of Rural Hydro Commission said most of their difficulty was caused by blown transformer fuses. The London Public Utilities Commission reported only small interruptions.

AFL Switchmen Reject Request To Call Off Strike

Chicago, July 3 (AP)—The Switchmen's Union of North America yesterday refused a government request to call off its strike against five western and midwestern railroads.

At the same time, it served notice that the strike will end only if the United States becomes involved in war or President Truman should declare that some other national emergency exists. It offered, however, to help in movement over the five lines of any shipments the government should deem essential to the national economy.

The statement was in reply to the request made of the union Saturday by John Thad Scott, Jr., chairman of the National (Railway) Mediation Board.

In his request, Scott asked the switchmen to go back to their jobs "in the national interest" because of what he called "current critical developments" arising from the fighting in Korea.

The union reply questioned whether a national emergency now exists.

Five Roads Tied up

The walkout of 4,000 switchmen June 25 has left four of the five roads tied up since then. The fifth line, the Great Northern, has been forced to curtail operations. Thousands of shopcraft, office and other workers have been laid off.

In addition to the Great Northern, the affected railroads are the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, the Chicago Great Western, the Western Pacific and the Denver and Rio Grande Western.

The switchmen walked out in support of their demand for a 40-hour week at 48 hours' pay. They rejected a presidential fact-finding board's recommendation that they accept the 40-hour week with a pay boost of 18 cents an hour.

THURLOW TOWNSHIP GARBAGE COLLECTION

Due to the fact that a great number of families in the Suburban Sections of Thurlow Township have been receiving garbage collection service for some time, it was felt that the service should be made available to all the persons living in the districts surrounding the City of Belleville. Accordingly a Garbage Collection Area has been formed consisting of the following sections:

1. All the lots fronting on Herchimer Ave., also No. 2 Highway from the City boundary to and including the Smith Transport property; also East Bridge Street from the City boundary to Herchimer Ave.
2. The area bounded by the Moira River on the west, College St. on the south the C.N.R. track to Corbyville on the east and approximately the site of the proposed new Provincial No. 2 Highway on the north. This, of course, includes Hillcrest and Cannifton Road.
3. The Area known as College Hill, being bounded on the east by the Moira River, on the south by College St., on the west by Sidney St. and approximately the site of the proposed new Provincial No. 2 Highway on the north. This includes the areas known as the V.L.A., Gilbert St., Madoc Rd., Donald, North Park, North James streets, Orchard Drive, North Park Gdns., Valleyview Crescent, East Moira and the north side of College St.

Garbage Collection will be made once weekly on the following days:

MONDAY — Sections 1 and 2, including Herchimer, Hillcrest and Cannifton Rd.

TUESDAY — Section 3, including College Hill, V.L.A., etc.

Garbage should be placed in either metal or substantial wooden containers the total weight of which will not exceed 60 lbs. when filled, and should be placed on the roadside by 7.30 a.m. on the day collection is to be made in your area. This service is available to all owners and tenants of properties within the area as defined above and the cost of providing the service will be levied against the assessment of the area on a mill rate basis. Collections will begin under this arrangement on July 3rd, 1950.

Persons living outside the above Collection Area, including residents of CANNIFTON, who have been receiving the service may continue to do so. After July 3rd next, however, the monthly fee should be paid to Mr. Albert Bannister, Corbyville, Ont., Garbage Collector. All accounts owing for Garbage Collection up to June 30th, 1950, are to be paid directly to the Thurlow Township Office at Cannifton. Others living outside the Collection Area may also make arrangements to have their garbage collected either by contacting Mr. Bannister or the Township Office.

E. M. DAFOE,
Clerk.

60-Year-Old Bostonian Climbs Highest Mount

Cordova, Alaska, July 3 (AP)—A 60-year-old Bostonian, who was among those making the first ascent of the 19,580-foot Mount Logan 25 years ago, conquered the peak again June 17 — the second time it has been scaled.

He wanted to see if his legs could "still take it."

For Norman H. Read, it was six days short of 25 years since he and five others fought their way to the top of the forbidding mountain, highest in Canada and second by only 450 feet to Mount McKinley on the North American continent.

Read and Andre Roch, his companion from Davos, Switzerland, returned here Saturday with the story of their climb. They were 51 days on ice where there are no insects, animals or birds. They battled snowstorms that threatened to destroy them.

Then in the face of overwhelming odds, they climbed both of Logan's peaks.

The snow and ice capped mountain rises just inside the Yukon territory to the north of Yakutat, Alaska, between Cordova and Juneau.

On June 23, 1925, it was ascended for the first time by six members of a joint expedition of Canadian and American Alpine Clubs.

"Since it was a quarter of a century since I'd done it before, I wanted to see if I could do it again—if my legs would take it," said Read in an interview aboard a plane to Juneau. "I found I could, although the packs seemed a little heavier this time."

DE LUXE EXPRESSES

Stockholm — (CP) — Two new de luxe express trains will be operated this summer by the Swedish State Railways to accommodate the expected large influx of tourists. The trains will make it possible for travellers to reach Narvik, in northernmost Norway, in 24 hours.

NATIVE POLICE

Potchefstrom, South Africa — (CP) — A police station staffed entirely by natives under a native commander is to be established here. If the experiment succeeds other police stations will be similarly staffed.

STONE AGE MUSIC

Paris — (CP) — A lithophone, believed to be the oldest musical instrument in the world, is being shown in the Paris "Museum of Man." It is a kind of xylophone made of 10 stones varying in length from about 18 to three feet and was found in Indo-China.

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

Stephanie twisted her slender fingers in and out, making a little basket of her hands, "Oh, Hagar, I'll tell you about it, but not right now. But I will, believe me, I will. Only please, let's get it before someone else carries it away!"

Hagar couldn't resist the urge to pry a bit more. "You realize, don't you, my girl, that you're trying to talk me into spending my old age security money on this thing and then wait around for you to pay me back at about $5 per week? And for why?"

Stephanie pressed her hands to her face and began to sob. Hagar placed an awkward hand on Stephanie's shoulder.

Now, now," she said gruffly, net's not drown ourselves. If it means that much to you, we can probably figure out something. First things first, though. You go get a handkerchief and mop up."

As Stephanie stumbled toward the rear of the shop, Hagar started the closing up chores.

"I'd be a perdition liar if I didn't admit I'm enjoying the whole thing. Stolen jewels, a chase, everything but a murder. Well, if we can get away with it, I think I have a plan that will outfox everybody and put that Giovanni delle Corniole cameo right smack in the middle of my collection. Until you can buy it, of course. Are you through mopping up?" Hagar went to the back room.

In the small, makeshift sitting room behind the stock shelves, she found Stephanie curled up in one of three battered old armchairs, smoking a cigaret and looking surprisingly calm and poised once again. Hagar flopped into a chair opposite her.

"Well," she began, "the thing to do first is get a hold of Falter. I've an idea that Nell O'Neill can't prove her ownership of the cameo, nor can he. I definitely smell a large mouse. But, if Yakov's going to take a chance on buying it, I can at least make a couple of passes in that direction myself and see what happens.

"One thing I do know," she went on "the cameo has not been reported missing or stolen by anyone. I'd be bound to hear about anything like that. So, we'll have to assume that either Nell or Falter are the legal owners. Another thing, I'm convinced now that Falter didn't steal the thing from Nell—she'd have accused him. I think she gave it to him for reasons of her own. And I think she's probably planning to get around him some way to get it back. But if I know that old deadbeat, Falter, she's got a job cut out for her."

Hagar grinned at Stephanie. "Here's another angle: If Nell did give the cameo to Falter, how's she going to explain it to Tom, her husband, if Falter should start to stir up a stink?"

Stephanie looked dazed. "I can't quite understand what you're planning Hagar. All I can think of is, what will happen if Yakov gets the cameo before we do?"

Hagar mashed out her cigaret and stood up. "I'll tell you what I'm going to do right now: I'm going to put on my coat, hop in my car and hunt up Falter. He offered me the cameo for $12,000 and Im going to see what will happen if tell him 'yes' on the deal. Maybe I'm a senile old turkey to think of spending that much cash, but you can't take it with you, as the man said."

Hagar shrugged into an enormous topcoat and belted it snugly.

"Do you want to come along, Stephanie?"

Stephanie looked up at last. "No Hagar," she was saying. "I'll stay here and hope."

"Well I must say you don't look very hopeful right now—"

"It's probably too late."

Hagar stared, then, with impatient gestures, she began to pull on a pair of shabby pigskin gloves. "That's neurotic," she told Stephanie. "If you lie around mooning about somebody else getting hold of your cameo, they probably will."

All at once Stephanie's eye began to blaze again with the blue fire. She sprang out of her chair and stood before Hagar with her fists clenched.

"They won't. It can't happen! I've waited too long."

Hagar watched the girl's face admiringly. The tight beautiful muscles of her arched neck, the raised bosom, the straight-as-a-die shoulders.

"Now, now," Hagar soothed absentmindedly. "I'll go hunt out Falter and see what's up. Who knows, maybe this time tomorrow we'll have our little cameo. Meanwhile, let's be practical. While I'm gone, why don't you run up to the house and put that pot of stew on the stove? We've got to keep up strength if we're going to be pushing and hauling with Nell O'Neill and Falter, to say nothing about that Russian heavy." She waved her car key and moved toward the door, "I may be late getting back—depends on whether Falter's at home or abroad. If I'm not there in a couple of hours, you go ahead and eat. Adios!"

Hagar felt in excellent fettle as she slipped through the shop's front door, walked down the street and got in her toy-sized red car.

There, right where she might have sat upon it, was the silver box, the box belonging to the carnelian cameo. It was open. And empty.

The old iron-studded door of Bob's Place was a familiar and welcome sight to the bibulous of Dolorosa. Bob claimed he had stolen it from a Spanish monastery in the Pyrenees during his voluntary military service in Spain's civil war. The story of how he got it out of the Pyrenees and into California was a tale which became more astounding and dramatic with each retelling. He had lost his left arm in that adventure.

Bob was a writer of pseudo-scientific fiction during his leisure hours and though his volume of literary sales was small, his fantastic imagination was a source of amazement to friend and foe and editor.

Following Nell O'Neill's example, Andrey Yakov perched on a stool and leaned his elbows on a strip of illuminated plate glass. Tropical fish swam lazily underneath it among coral and aquatic plants.

The man who proved to be the fabulous Bob Knox bowed to Yakov and then turned his gold-glinted smile on Nell.

"You're just in time, lovely lady. I think Papa wants to go home." He gestured toward the farthest booth, "behold the weary reveler!"

Nell and Yakov turned and looked. Tom's crisp white hair showed up clearly against the table top. One arm hung at his side and the other rested on the board."

"Kicked by a Moscow mule," Bob observed cheerily. "That's what ginger beer and vodka will do."

Nell slid from her stool and walked over to the booth.

"Ginger beer and vodka?" asked Yakov. "At once? Together?"

He searched the amiable face in front of him. The man had sleepy-looking eyes of an indeterminate aquatic color, and there was a fan of creases, indicating their joviality or sun, raying from their corners. There was a round button of a nose, a surprisingly well-modeled mouth and a fleshy chin.

Bob was answering his question: "Sure. Put ginger beer and vodka in a chilled copper mug and you have a Moscow Mule. Try one?"

Yakov nodded. "It should be an experience."

Bob began his manipulations, "coming right up."

While he waited for his drink, Yakov watched Nell awaken Tom. The white thatch finally bobbed up and the pink face turned toward her.

"Well," Tom said. "Well, so it's you. Come running back to your poor old fool of a husband, huh? Old fool of a husband, that's what I am. That's what you think I am, isn't it?"

"Tom," Nell demanded, "where is Martin?"

"Where's Martin?" he mimicked. "How should I know where that blackguard is? Shall I tell you where he belongs?"

Andrey grinned at him and raised the cup Bob gave him in salute.

Tom slapped him on the back: "Good old Andreyvitch. Good old com[illegible]sky!"

Tom raised his newly filled cup for a toast. Yakov responded with "Long life!" and they both drank. Yakov placed an arm across Tom's shoulderrs and Tom grinned at him delightedly.

"Tom my friend," Yakov said casually "I am still most anxious to meet our fellow artist, Martin Falter."

O'Neill frowned. "He knows better than to stay in company. And if he didn't know before, he knows now. I told him just what I thought of him. And I told him just what he could expect from Tom O'Neill unless he keeps out of my sight."

Tom waved a hand toward Bob who was leaning on his one good elbow not far away, openly listening to the conversation.

"Didn't I, Bob? You heard me tell him off, didn't I?"

Bob gravely bowed endorsement. "Un mistakably and irrevocably. With clarity and dispatch."

Nell stood up and touched Andrey's arm. He made a slight gesture toward her and continued to give Tom his attention.

"I would like to hear more about this, my friend, but there is a small errand I must attend. Would you be so kind as to remain here, you and Nellya, for a short time, and wait for me?"

An hour later Nell still sat at the bar, but had moved down to the far end near the wall.

"Listen Bob, I'm going home. When Mr. Yakov comes back, ask him if he'll get Tom over to our place. You won't mind if I leave Tom here?"

Bob shook his head amiably. "Not at all lovely lady. He's not doing any harm over there. But if your Russian friend does not come back pretty soon, I'll trundle Tom into my little back room and let him sleep it off in there." He leaned against the bar and gazed up admiringly at Nell. "You know that's the nice thing about the old boy, he usually knows when he's had a drop too much and then he lets me suggest the back-room treatment. Most times, he just ambles in there on his own hook and takes a short nap. He did it once today."

Bob acknowledged her wave of farewell and watched her stride across the room and up the two steps to the old door. There was a brief surge of fresh, cold air as it opened and swung closed.

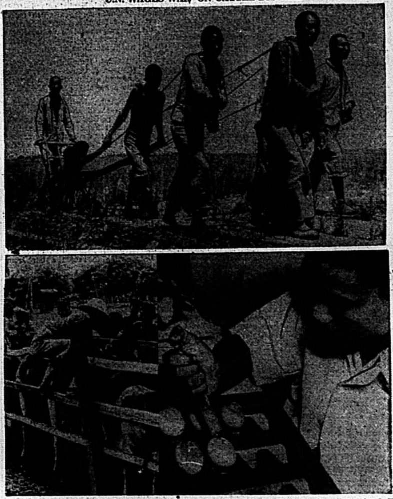
U.N. WAGES WAR ON CATTLE DISEASE



A vicious cattle disease, rinderpest, may kill nine out of ten animals when it strikes a herd. With an eye to the seriousness with which rinderpest affects the world food situation, the United Nations' Food and Agricultural Organization has launched a campaign to eradicate this highly contagious disease. In Thailand, as elsewhere, the loss of draught animals forces upon farmers a battle for survival in its most primitive form (see photo at top). By injecting rinderpest virus into eggs, this Siamese technician, above right, starts one of the vaccine manufacturing processes. F O A supervises training of technicians and vaccination of animals at Pak Chong, Thailand, where enough vaccine for the needs of several countries is produced. Above, left, farmers flock to Pak Chong to have their buffaloes vaccinated against rinderpest. — Central Press Canadian.

CARRY TORCH NO LONGER

Manchester, England, July — (Reuters) — Forty Manchester women have admitted that they once carried a torch for the big husky American male with shoulders like barn doors. But not any longer.

The women, members of the National Council for Women, heard a talk by cotton worker Mrs. MacCormick on her recent trip to the United States.

She said: "America's great big muscle men are a mystery because the little boys we saw were puny."

A spokesman at the U. S. Embassy in London said: "I guess our tailors must be a little more skillful than yours."

SOUTH KOREAN FORCES FACE ENCIRCLEMENT

India Makes Offer To Act as Mediator In Korean War

Proposal Conveyed to Russ And American Governments

London, July 4 — (AP) — India has told Russia and the United States she is ready to mediate in a bid to end the Korean war, official sources said today.

The Indian offer was conveyed to the Russian and American governments by the Indian ambassadors in Moscow and Washington.

These sources said this is how India views the situation.

If Korea had been left to work out its own future the present fighting and its ever-present threat to world peace would not have arisen.

India regards Korea as a single country and wants to see it reunited politically and economically.

Any attempt to end the fighting there would have to take into account that the Korean people want unity.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's government has never entered relations with the South Korean government. Equally it has not recognized North Korea.

No British Comment

There was no British official comment on the offer.

The informants recalled what Indian Foreign Secretary K. P. S. Menon said about Korea in the United Nations General Assembly two years ago.

Menon then declared: "Deep down in the heart of every Korean, whether in the north or the south, is the longing for unity—What has obstructed progress is the 38th parallel. If a government in South Korea cannot be national in geographical or political sense, it cannot also be national in a military sense, that is in the sense that it can normally defend itself against aggression without foreign assistance."

What Menon said in 1948 is held to be India's view today.

U.N. OFFICIALS WORKING ON PLAN TO END WAR

Lake Success, July 4 (AP) — Top United Nations officials worked today on a plan to coordinate U.N. action to end the Korean war.

The Security Council is expected to meet again Thursday to consider the co-ordination plan, on which details still have to be worked out.

The strong protest note from communist North Korea yesterday against what it called American aggression in Korea brought no reaction. The Soviet call for withdrawal of U.N.-endorsed American troops in South Korea came after U.N. offices closed last night.

Some officials said privately that the North Korean note was what they could expect and it changed nothing. The Russian statement made by the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, Andrei A. Gromyko, is certain to get serious study.

Canada Has No National Axes To Grind - - Dolan

Montreal, July 4 — (CP) — D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, said Monday night that despite Canada's general reserve, she did not enter the councils of the world with "any hat-in-hand approach."

Mr Dolan told the International Business that Canada "is esteemed out of all proportion to her population or military might because it has always been recognized we have no national axes to grind."

Neither Canada nor the United States has resorted to the "veto" or the "walk-out" in their relationships. Rather the technique of mutual trust and understanding had been held forth.

Business leaders had a duty to devote some of their time and talent to "making democracy work." The same devotion should be given democracy as the communist gave to communism.

JUNE COOL MONTH

Toronto, July 4. (CP)—It's official now that June was a cool month in Ontario. The public weather office said Monday that temperatures averaged below normal almost everywhere in the province, ranging from a degree below normal in Southern Ontario to three degrees in the north.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 4 (CP)—Synopsis. Intermittent light rain moved eastward across Northern Ontario Monday and last night, and has spread to central sections this morning. There were scattered showers and thundershowers in southern sections. Temperatures Monday afternoon were in the 70s in all regions, somewhat below normal for this season.

Today will be warm and humid in Southern Ontario, and with widely scattered thundershowers.

Drier air flowing southeastward across the north central states will bring sunnier and less humid weather to most regions on Wednesday.

Ask Farmers Watch for Borers

Toronto, July 4 (CP)—Heavy moisture content of the soil and approaching warm weather have resulted in the Department of Agriculture issuing a warning to Ontario farmers to guard against the European cornborer.

C. D. Graham, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, said today that field inspections had indicated that conditions were favorable to a spread of the borer.

Mr. Graham said it was still "too early" to determine whether the pest had taken a foothold in Ontario corn growing districts.

UP ADMITTANCE PRICE

Toronto, July 4 (CP)—Fifty cents for adults, 10 cents for children. Those are this year's admission rates at the Canadian exhibition, Aug. 25 to Sept. 9. The adult fee is up 10 cents from last year but children will pay five cents less.

Australian Family Keeps Daughter Whom Another Woman Claimed

Kyneton, Australia, July 4 — (Reuters) — The Jenkins family of this Victoria town learned today they can keep their five-year-old daughter Nola—claimed by another woman as her child.

Word was received in the now-famous "whose-baby?" case that the judicial committee of the Privy Council had found in favor of the Jenkins. But Mrs. Alberta Gwenn Morrison, the woman who has lost what appeared to be the last round in the case, said with tears.

"I will never give up my fight for my child. She has the blood of my husband and me. We are certain she is our baby."

The case goes back to June 22, 1945, when the girls were bone in Kyneton hospital within five minutes of each other—one to Mrs. Morrison and the other to Mrs. Jessie Jenkins.

Later Mrs. Morrison became convinced that the hospital had mixed the babies up and given them to the wrong mothers.

The case went to the courts in December, 1948. But Mrs. Jenkins held all along that the child the hospital gave her was her own daughter.

"We have no doubt Nola is our own child," she reaffirmed today.

Mrs. Morrison said she would give Johanne Lee, the girl given her by the hospital, all her love and everything she and her husband could give.

"But I will never be able to give her the love she would get from her own mother," she said.

Mrs. Morrison said she had received more than 1,000 letters of sympathy.

SPECULATE IN U.K. IF FUCHS MAY BE PUT ON A-WORK

British Have No Official News on Reports

London, July 4 (AP)— Speculation cropped up in some quarters today that Britain may soon put atom spy Klaus Fuchs to work again on atomic research.

There was no official confirmation or denial of the reports. The press department of the home office, which is responsible for Fuchs and other prisoners, said it was not given information about such matters.

Fuchs, one of the government's key atom scientists, was sentenced to 14 years in prison last March for tipping Anglo-American atomic secrets to Russia. In his confession, the former communist said he was repentant and wanted to make amends.

There was speculation at the time that ultimately he might be allowed to resume research behind prison walls.

George Marton-Smith, a reporter for the mass-circulation Daily Mirror, wrote today that the German-born physicist may be put to work again soon. He said he learned this "on the highest authority."

One of Britain's leading atom scientists was asked to comment on the story. The scientist, who asked not to be quoted directly, said he had no hard, independent information but it seemed to him to be reasonable speculation.

Marton - Smith said Fuchs would be subjected to the most rigid surveillance if he resumed work. He said scientists felt that with due safeguards his knowledge and ability were too valuable to be wasted. Fuchs' work in prison has been to make mail bags.

Will Carry Earring Over Horseshoe Falls

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 4 — (CP) — When Major Lloyd Hill enters his barrel in an attempt to challenge the Horseshoe Falls here July 15, he will carry an ear-ring with him owned by Eileen Masterman, niece of Winston Churchill.

Mrs. Masterman cabled Hill today that she is forwarding the ring to him, a mate to the ear-ring that Hill carried last year when he went through the rapids in a barrel.

The previous ear-ring was given to Hill by Mrs. Masterman when she met him in Niagara Falls a year ago.

WILL TRY CHANNEL

Toronto, July 4 — Cliff Lumsden, winner of last year's Canadian National Exhibition 15-mile swim, said today he would try to swim the English Channel in the summer of 1951.

The 19-year-old New Toronto youth said he would have liked to try the channel swim this year but he wanted to defend his championship at the C.N.E.

RCAF Para-Rescue School Completes Training of 13 Men To Save Lives in Wilderness

Jasper, Alta., July 4 (CP) — Thirteen men, toughened after 18 weeks on one of the toughest courses given by the armed forces, graduated today from the RCAF para-rescue school at Henry House Field, near here.

The men — 12 were from the RCAF and one from the Navy—were trained to parachute into the wilderness to save lives.

Among the graduates was Sqdn. Ldr. J. R. Jackson of Edmonton, First Air Force Medical Officer to qualify as a para-rescue jumper.

The course syllabus includes 150 hours of first-aid instruction, about 120 hours in physical training and instructions in bush lore. Most spectacular part of the training is the actual jumping.

Each graduate does 10 jumps before he wins the RCAF Para-rescue Badge. Six jumps are made into open country and four into heavily-timbered areas.

The graduates, who will be stationed at scattered points across Canada as members of jump rescue teams, included:

CPO Hugh Clarke of Dartmouth, N.S.; Cpl. P. Dyck, Edmonton; Cpl. A. Wall, Plum Coulee, Man.; LAC. E. S. Beix, Bonnyville, Alta.; LAC. R. E. Crawford, Calgary, Alta.; LAC. H. E. Tokyo, July 4 (AP)— The American Red Cross sent field directors into war-torn Korea today.

Frederick Bieri, an international Red Cross official, flew to Korea yesterday with Gen. MacArthur's approval. He said he will try to get both sides in the war to observe the Red Cross convention.

New York, July 4 (AP)—Paul Robeson, the left-wing Negro singer, told a Harlem street-corner rally last night that United States intervention in Korea was an "imperialistic action." "We want no war and there will be none," he told a crowd of about 400. "All over the world we will impose the peace."

Moose Shoves Car 30 Yards Then Disappears

Amherst, N. S., July 4 (CP)— W. M. MacDonald of nearby Port Howe thinks maybe engineers are overlooking one source of locomotion — moose power.

MacDonald was driving toward Amherst last weekend to take part in a rifle shoot when a moose stepped onto the highway in front of his car.

He jammed on the brakes. The antlered forest denizen snorted disdainfully, sniffed the car from bumper to bumper, then put a shoulder to the car's rear and pushed it 30 yards along the road. MacDonald reported later all he had to do was steer.

The moose disappeared into the woods after its display of strength.

REPORT DENIED

London, July 4 — (AP) — Royal circles denied reports today that Princess Elizabeth's next baby will be born in Scotland.

Plans are completed for the Princess to be confined in her London home, Clarence House, near Buckingham Palace, about August 20.

Rumors had been circulating that the child might be born at Balmoral Castle, the Royal Family's favorite Scottish home.

Three Destroyers Ready to Leave For Pearl Harbor

Victoria, B.C., July 4 (CP) — Three Canadian destroyers, posted to Pearl Harbor where they will stand by awaiting developments in Korea, are scheduled to leave port Wednesday.

Preparations for the sailing began in earnest at the naval dockyard at nearby Esquimalt Monday. The ships were loaded with supplies as huge cranes, trucks and seamen transferred stores to the vessels.

Visitors were not allowed at the dockyard during the weekend, but there was no general order closing the base to the public.

"So far as we were concerned, it was merely a working day for us here Saturday and Sunday," said a spokesman. "The loading of the destroyers during the holiday period was the only reason visitors were not permitted in the dockyard."

While at Pearl Harbor, the vessels—Cayuga, Sioux and Athabaskan—will join U.S. patrols in preliminary exercises in the South Pacific. Should word come through that Canada will participate, the ships will sail for Korea along with the U.S. vessels.

RUSSIA CHARGES US WITH OPEN WAR ON KOREAN PEOPLE

Demands Withdrawal Of American Troops

London, July 4 (AP)— Russia called on the United Nations Security Council today to get United States armed forces out of Korea.

In a lengthy statement bristling with accusations against the United States, the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, Andrei A. Gromyko, said:

"The United Nations will only fulfil its obligations to maintain peace if the Security Council demands the unconditional cessation of American military intervention and the immediate withdrawal of the American armed forces from Korea."

The statement, distributed by the Russian News Agency Tass, accused the United States of committing "armed aggression," "a hostile act against peace" and of waging "open war against the Korean people."

(In Washington the States Department said it would not comment immediately on Gromyko's statement.)

Reiterates Claims

Reiterating previous Russian claims that U.S.-backed Korean forces had started the fighting, Gromyko claimed that American "aggressive circles" sought to gain control over all of Korea to use it as a "military and strategic bridgehead in the Far East."

Exchange Offer Not Likely To be Accepted

Toronto, July 4 — (CP)— Members of the Bricklayers' Union (A. F. L.) voted Monday night on a wage offer by the Toronto Builders' Exchange, but officials said there was little likelihood the offer would be accepted.

Rejection of the offer of a 10-cent hourly wage increase would threaten the city with a strike that would paralyze all commercial construction. The building trades have agreed to respect each other's picket lines.

The union has asked a 20-cent increase to bring their rate to $2 an hour. A conciliation board recommended that they be given a five-cent boost, but the exchange agreed to offer 10 cents plus protection against further rises in the cost of living on a one-year basis.

The union Monday agreed to scale down its demands to a 15-cent increase this year and an additional five - cent increase next year.

Russian Women Getting Wider Selection of Summer Garments

Stockholm, July 4 — (Reuters) —Russian women, for the first time since the Revolution, are "choosey" this summer in buying their clothes.

Hitherto, they have been grateful for whatever they could get. But now, reports the Russian family magazine "Ogonyok," all that is changed.

"Today," Ogonyok says, "it is not at all unusual to hear questions like these in the shops:

"Have you any new summer shoes in yet?

"Please show me some other jackets.

"Have you no other colors?"

Flowered silk fabrics are the Russian woman's first choice this summer. One of her favorite patterns is lilies, roses and green leaves on a white-background.

But the wider range of patterns which the shops now are offering here still is narrow by Western standards.

Ogonyok says that only 12 patterns for summer dress materials have been passed by the ministry of arts. All of them have "natural, floral or popular motifs."

The "Red Rose" factories in Moscow and Leningrad are turning out "tens of thousands" of metres (yards) of these designs.

"By special request of women clients," the factories also are producing a new type of silk for trimmings.

Russian men and women also have a wider range of choice in coats, blouses, shirts, pyjamas and bathing costumes.

The Leningrad Knitted Wear factory has produced 150 new models of these garments. The bathing costumes are made of brightly - colored, shrink - proof knitted wool.

"These Leningrad models are so popular," Ogonyok reports, that the factory's name and address — Nevsky 12 — have become household words with citizens living miles from the city."

For summer footwear the Russian woman has about 50 models from which to choose. One of the most popular is made of imitation leather with silk and patent leather inlets.

Invaders Capture Suwon, Airfield South of Capital

Reds Send Patrols Toward Outpost of U.S. Troops

Tokyo, July 5 (Wednesday)—(AP) — General MacArthur's headquarters announced today that 25 more Red tanks had moved into the Korean fighting zone as invader columns pushed a wide flanking movement southeast of Suwon.

The Red movement threatened encirclement of the south Korean forces in the Suwon-Inchon-Seoul triangle.

The communique reported fighting at the port of Inchon, 20 miles west of Seoul. The southerners were still holding Inchon, MacArthur said.

South of Red-held Seoul and east of Suwon, the northerners continued to consolidate their forces.

The communique added that communist planes strafed a British ship off the east coast of Korea.

A spokesman at MacArthur headquarters in Korea earlier said Suwon and its important airfield fell to Red forces today.

He said the communist victory followed a day-long battle with all elements of four or five north Korean divisions.

The Reds quickly sent patrols farther southward, toward American outposts.

No U.S. Troops Involved

He added that no United States troops were involved and—despite an earlier announcement here that Americans had seen minor action—that no Americans yet had been in combat in Korea.

("There was no immediate explanation of these conflicting statements by headquarters spokesmen one in Korea, the other in Tokyo.)

The spokesman announcing Suwon's fall added these terse details:

Six Red tanks entered Suwon —only 20 miles south of Seoul, the fallen south Korean capital. But is was not certain whether the fighting had been in Suwon itself, or nearby.

The spokesman said he believed the latest Red thrust indicated that the communists are "pushing with all they have all along the line."

Red patrols have advanced about five miles south of Suwon, the spokesman went on, adding he "doubts the northerners will stop at Suwon as they did at Seoul."

600 Bombs Dropped

He said Red troops today made up "the most effective concentration and if not the largest very close to the largest concentration" the communist have used since they started their attack from North Korea 10 days ago.

ABBOTT WILL HAVE TO REVISE BUDGET IF WAR GOES ON

Ottawa, July 4 (CP)—Should Canada become directly involved in a "shooting war" in Korea Finance Minister Abbott probably will have to consider an upward revision of the country's 1950-51 financial budget.

The fiance minister, who returns this week from a brief post-session holiday, forecast in his budget speech March 28 a slim surplus of $20,000,000.

Any large-scale or lengthy participation by Canada in the Korean fighting would necessitate an upward revision of defence department estimates of expenditure and could turn the anticipated surplus into a deficit.

The dispatch of three Canadian destroyers to Pearl Harbor to be ready for Korean action, if needed, might not alone upset Mr. Abbott's calculations.; The destroyers were previously due to take part in a three-month exercise in European waters with the Royal Navy.

900 Children Safe On Train Which Kills 23 on Bus

Bourg-En-Bresse, France, July 4 — (AP) — An express train carrying 900 children of French coal miners crashed into an excursion bus near here today, killing 23 persons on the bus. None of the children was injured.

Only one of the 26 bus passengers escaped with slight injuries. He and the other two more seriously injured survivors were taken to hospital at nearby Lons-le-Saunier.

The crash occurred at a grade crossing near this town, 35 miles northeast of Lyon. Officials said the barrier, which should have been down across the road while the train passed through, was open. The speeding train caught the bus squarely in the centre strewing bodies and tangled metal for some 2,000 feet along the track.

All the bus pasengers were residents of Foissiat, many of them war veterans headed for an outing at Lake Saint-Pointe. The train was a special express carrying the children from northern France to a vacation colony in the French Alps.

MEGANSER DUCK BUILDS NEST IN CHIMNEY

When George Hubbel, Havelock hardware merchant went to repair the roof of his cabin at Belmont Lake he frightened a duck from the chimney of the building. George investigated the chimney to find a nest with 17 eggs. The duck was an American Meganser and had chosen the chimney as a suitable place to raise her family. The nest is about four feet down in the chimney and was a very secluded spot, provided a fire was not kindled in the stove However, George is watching development with interest. These ducks are quite common along the shores of the lake, especially in the mornings with their families.

HILCREST GIRL'S STAY WITH CIRCUS CUT SHORT BY POLICE

Attracted by the glamor of the circus, a sixteen-year-old Hillcrest girl made the trip to Toronto last night with Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Circus which played here yesterday and last evening.

But the girl's stay with the circus was short-lived and lasted only for the trip to the Queen City where she was turned over to the East York Police Department. Through the local police department the girl's father was contacted and arrangements made for the return of the girl to Belleville.

Child of Three Falls From Car Going 35 MPH

To escape without broken bones despite the fact he was thrown out of an auto travelling at 35 miles per hour was the experience Saturday of three-year-old Ronald Patterson of Woodstock.

The young lad was riding the back seat of his father's auto when just north of Northbrook on No. 41 highway the boy is believed to have opened the right rear door with result that the wind caught the door and threw him out of the vehicle.

The boy fell out onto the shoulder of the highway and then rolled along the ditch suffering lacerations to his head, arms and legs. The father, Frederick Patterson, said he believed he was travelling at about 35 m.p.h. when the mishap occurred.

BOY ACCUSES FATHER

New York, July 4 (CP)— An eight-year-old boy, found moaning on a sidewalk last night with a broken ankle, accused his father of hurling him from a third-floor window in a drunken rage.

The father, 39-year-old Martin Conway, denied the charge. He was booked on a charge of felonious assault.

Doctors said the boy, Donald Conway, may also have a fractured skull.

Donald said he hit a restaurant sign on the way down, breaking the force of the fall.

Many Fine Acts Presented By Biggest Show on Earth

The man stood on his forefinger, and you could have heard a pin drop The artist was Unus, featured performer for Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus, andthe along with a winsome lass from Spain who cavorted on a trapeze, was probably the star of the show.

The crosseyed public (there was so much going on in the three rings you couldn't watch it all) was visibly impressed with the 60 arial ballet girls, who provided more color for the trapeze antics of Miss Del Oro. The Spanish girl gave the kids in the audience plenty of ideas with her 'no hands' technique on the swinging bar.

Mixed in with all the acts were several zany efforts by the clowns. The craziest of all seemed to be the one in which Lou Jacobs, a six-footer if there ever was one, crammed his large body and bigger feet into a car about as long as a potato bag and about a foot across. More than that, the car had a motor and actually moved Jacobs' big frame around the centre of the ring.

And for the animal lovers, there were beautiful horses from Europe, the ever-attractive elephants and trick dogs.

Beautiful Spectacle

Feature attraction of the two-and-a-half hour show was the spectacle "When Dreams Come True." This pageant, which employed 2,000 performers, and was a riot of color that the movies might take a lesson from, glittered and swung its way through all the fantasies and fables of childhood. Advertised as a spectacle for children from "two to toothless", the array of sequins and beautiful girls, carriages and gaily-bedecked horses brought back just about every dream anyone ever had as a child. And after the pageant had been going on for a couple of minutes, the oldest felt like a child again.

But the circus isn't much without the clowns, and they were there in full force with more crazy pieces than ever.

Kinsmen Club Will Continue Régular Meetings

Due to the several club projects either underway at the present time or planned for the immediate future, members of the local Kinsmen Club will continue to hold regular meetings throughout the summer months. Ordinarily no club meetings are held during July and August.

Decision to hold meetings during the summer was agreed on at the club's regular dinner meeting held Monday evening at the Hotel Quinte when it was pointed out that interest of the members in the various projects would be better maintained if there was no summer recess.

Club projects underway at the present time include the campaign to raise funds for the proposed community swimming pool; the car raffle and a carnival scheduled for early in August on Firemen's Park off lower Front Street.

The club building committee was given authority to negotiate with a supplier of filtration equipment giving assurance that their equipment would be purchased by the club for installation in the swimming pool when such equipment was required. On receipt of blue prints for equipment outlets, the club expects to proceed with excavation and concrete work for the pool.

The Kinette Club turned over a cheque for $500 to the club, this being the proceeds of a recent tag day in support of the swimming pool fund.

Club President Ernie Colebourne will attend the Kinsmen national convention to be held in Winnipeg in August. Kin Frank Lang was named club representative on the local recreation committee.

One-Eyed Black Bass Newest Freak Recorded

Blind pigs, six-toed kittens, twin-headed calves, five-legged colts and other freaks had better push over and make room for another.

This time it is a one-eyed black bass claimed to have been caught by a city angler in the bay off Shannonville.

The angler in question, in company with another, was enjoying a spot of holiday bass fishing and nine beauties had been boated.

Glancing down at a three-pounder he noticed it had, what he thought, one eye closed.

"There", he soliloquised, "is evidence that the bass is one of the gamest fish extant. Not only game but it has a sense of humor. Any fish that can afford a wink at its captor, while kicking in its death throes deserves a better fate."

He drew friend angler's attention to the fact. They examined the bass and drew back in amazement when they discovered it possessed but one eye. The place where the other optic should be was as smooth as the proverbial kitten's wrist.

That's what the men said, and they swear by it.

Gum is Used To Raise Dollar From Grating

Moviegoers on Front St. last night got an added feature that didn't cost them anything. For over an hour, two men worked on a grating at Front and Campbell Sts. to retrieve a silver dollar one had dropped down the hole.

Yardsticks and just ordinary sticks proved of no avail and the grating itself wouldn't budge. Holes in the grating were so small that the proper leverage couldn't be applied to the silver piece to lift it out of the rubble. Bystanders had various suggestions to provide, but none worked until a young fellow suggested gum.

One of the two men engaged in the mining process nipped into the nearby restaurant, got some gum, chewed it, and the battle was half over. The gum was stuck to one end of a yardstick, lined up with the dollar, and pressure applied with the second stick. With a whoop, they lifted the money out of the hole, and one fellow, grinning, said "It's worth a dollar an hour to get that thing out of there."

Eight-Foot-Six Circus Man Was German Prisoner-of-War Taken by Canadians at Calais

If you saw the circus yesterday, you saw the big tall man who sat on a platform in the sideshow tent and doubled in one of the clown acts. He wore a tan cowboy outfit, and looked more like a Texan than a Texan does. And therein lies a story.

The big boy, who is 8' 6", weighs 294 lbs., and wears a size 21 shoe, comes from Germany. He has been on this side of the ocean for half a year, having come out on the sponsorship of his sister, who has lived in the United States for 25 years.

The ironic part of Jakob Nacken's story is that he served in the German army in the past war, and when he was asked where he fought, "all over.. You know who captured me?" Then, with a sheepish grin, and a quick look around to see who was listening, the big fellow lowered his voice and whispered "the Canadians. They got me just outside Calais."

"After that," he said, "he spent 14 months in a hospital in Scotland, then four months in a prison camp. When the war ended, he sailed on the first boat back to Germany and his home in Dusseldorf. "That city," he said, "was 82 per cent bombed out, and altogether a terrible mess from the pounding it took from Allied bombers.

Conditions in Germany since 1946 have been grim, Nacken said. At first, the people had money, and there was no food to buy. Now the food is available and the people have no money. "It's bad," he said, "very bad."

Only complaint the big German has with show life is that he travels all over the place "and I don't see anything."

He doesn't get to bed until 1 a.m. and is up and going at 8 a.m. His night life is thus limited, and when he was told that Montreal, where the show came from here, starts its fun after 1 a.m., he shrugged, said, "I have to get my sleep."

Hot weather is the giant's biggest problem. He is at present 20 lbs. underweight, because he can't eat when it's hot. "All I do is drink, drink, drink, when it's hot." He didn't say what it is he drinks.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 4 — (CP) — Selling pressure increased steadily pushing market leaders into minus territory for a second successive session on the Toronto stock exchange today. Most of the downward pressure was in mining and western oil issues. Volume for the first three hours was 1,180,00 shares.

Leading industrial stocks slipped on losses ranging from fractions to more than a full point as the market moved without direction from a holidaying New York market.

Hardest hit among the losers were leaders like International Paper, Ford A and Hiram Walker's.

In western oils losses ranged up to 50 cents in key stocks like Atlantic Oil, Federated Petroleum, Home Oil and Pacific Petroleum.

Junior and senior gold producers continued their recent declines to new low grounds for the year. Losses ranged up to 30 cents over a wide list of juniors.

Base metals bucked the downward trend at first but began to give ground in mid-session. Ascot Corp., and United Keno Hill were under heavy downward pressure.

YMCA Adopts Program For Summer Fun Club

Y.M.C.A. has adapted its program for the summer months to meet the needs and interests of school pupils on vacation. Once again the Summer Fun Club has been organized for boys and girls ten years and over. Softball leagues, hiking, group games, crafts and swimming in the Y.M.C.A. pool represent a program with loads of fun for every older boy and girl spending all or part of the summer in Belleville.

There will be exploratory tours, visits to places of interest as well as gymnasium and outdoor games and swimming in the Y.M.C.A. pool.

The schedule calls for boys' activities in the morning on Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays and for girls on Tuesdays and Thursdays. On certain days all day trips are planned for picnics, bicycle trips, hikes and cook outs.

The program has been organized by John Drysdale, boys' work and program secretary. Parents are requested to have their boys and girls register this week in order that the summer Y.M.C.A. program can get under way.

Adult members of the Y.M.C.A. will use the Y.M.C.A. facilities as usual without organized activities daily after 5 p.m. Wednesday evenings will continue to be exclusively for ladies.

U.S. Educational System Attracts More Canadians Each Year Rotarians Told

While a large number of Canadian students in the United States are doing graduate and post-graduate work, during the last few years there has been a marked increase in the number of Canadians taking undergraduate work there, Dr. H. C. Coppel, of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory here said yesterday.

In an address to the Rotary Club on "Education of Canadians in the United States", Dr. Coppel gave an interesting word picture of the American educational system, that is attracting more and more Canadians each year to institutions south of the border.

"While, he said, "the exact cause of this trend is unknown, he pointed out that athletics had a strong bearing on the situation, quoting the case of fleet-footed Don McEwen of Michigan, who originates from Ottawa, and received his high school education there."

Don't Hire Best Coaches

"Although Canadian universities attempt to duplicate this typically American procedure, they do not appear to attach enough significance to athletics, in this particular instance, to hire the best coaches," Dr. Coppel said.

"Admittedly" he went on, "universities are for learning. However, the strict academic outlook of most Canadian universities does not provide for natural outlets in student bodies through athletics, dramatics, etc. Canadians with bachelor degrees have much more background training than American students."

He pointed out that the U.S. student is allowed to take whatever courses he desires rather than having a predetermined curriculum. Most Canadian undergrads in the U.S.A. are enrolled in specialty courses.

Graduate students, he said, naturally look for the university which can give him the best training, while another factor is a job for the future.

More Openings

With a population ten times that of Canada, t is only natural there are more openings in any particular field in the United States. This is evidenced in the fact that while few Americans are doing graduate work in Canada, countless Canadians are doing similar work in the USA.

"This is a problem of considerable concern to Canada since we can ill afford to lose this type of citizen from our small population," Dr. Coppel said.

The speaker outlined in detail the "confusion" the Canadian student meets with in entering an American college. He also detailed the various activities after registration stressing the fine reception usually afforded "foreign" students.

In conclusion, Dr. Coppel said that although numbers of Canadians remaining in the United States is alarming, they are the best ambassadors of good will Canada has. The overall picture of friendliness between Canada and the USA is very noticeable. The interest in Canada by Americans is intense and one look at the guest book in the Dominion Parasite Laboratory here will indicate their inquisitiveness has brought them this far.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Doug Whillans and club appreciation was expressed by Rotarian Ernie Gurnett. President Ken Griffiths inaugurated his year of office in the chair.

INVADERS

North Korea's radio broadcast meantime that its capital, Pyongyang, was heavily hit for the fifth time by U.S. bombers. It said 30 planes dropped more than 600 bombs.

Later, the Red broadcast said: "The planes dropped rocket bombs and machine gunned buildings and people."

Before Suwon's fall was announced, a MacArthur spokesman here had said American troops had gone into combat and indicated that the engagement was near Suwon.

Unconfirmed reports at advanced American headquarters in Korea said the Americans had clashed with North Korean Red elements at Munmang, 45 miles east of Suwon.

Tom Lambert, Associated Press correspondent, reported that 10 comunist tanks rolled into Suwon this afternoon. An American military spokesman commented: "It is possible."

Location Not Specified

MacArthur's communique announced simply that U.S. Army forces went into action. It did not specify where, or give details.

The communique reported: "The situation is fluid north of Suwon with no front being established." Elsewhere there was little change.

This bulwarked other indications that the engagement might have occurred around Suwon, 20 miles south of the fallen South Korean capital, Seoul. Suwon is a key point on the highway used by two Red tank columns which the Americans were sent northward to intercept.

The Suwon airfield is a prime communist goal.

Authoritative military quarters here said the engagement was small and probably was a defensive action.

They expressed belief that this first encounter involved only communist reconnaissance forces.

There were no details on the reported entry of Red armor into Suwon. This town and is airport have been the apparent goal of at least three advancing Red columns for two days.

Six Vessels Sunk

MacArthur's headquarters yesterday announced another successful foray by an American light cruiser which sank six North Korean naval vessels while on patrol off the Korean coast.

The same cruiser previously had sunk five other North Korean torpedo boats.

Bad weather was hampering U.S. and Australian planes. But with rockets and machine-guns, they blasted tank-led communist invasion forces along the sprawling front Monday.

The communique gave no details of the fighting. Nor was there any hint whether the Americans in battle were small advance units or the main body.

More troops and supplies were pouring into South Korea by plane to meet the gathering threat of the communist north. Pusan, the major southeast Korean port, has been turned into an important beach-head.

Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean's "U.S. army forces in Korea" was established officially as a major command under MacArthur's Far East Command.

The forces in the Pacific are being augmented by B-29 Superforts from the west coast and by U.S. marine ground and air forces which have been ordered to Japan.

Little Change on Other Front

MacArthur's communique said there was a little change in the front lines in other sectors.

Unconfirmed reports to advance U.S. headquarters in Korea said, however, that a tank-led North Korean column was nearly 75 miles southeast of Seoul.

The reports said that near Chechon, in that area, South Korean troops had captured eight northern tanks and armored cars.

This would represent a red advance of about 20 miles since yesterday, if a North Korean headquarters claim is correct. They had claimed the capture of Wonju, 20 miles west of Chechon.

This particular force is separate from those facing the Americans on the front south of Seoul. This east-bound column has fought almost straight south from the border after seizing the railway city of Chunchon, 60 miles northeast of Seoul.

This advance broadens the area of communist operations to a broken front more than 100 miles wide stretching from the west coast near Seoul to a point about 65 miles from the east coast.

AMBASSADOR ATTACKED

Tehran, July 4 — (AP)—Indications of a new American - aid program for Iran has unleashed a bitter communist-led campaign against Henry F. Grady, the new United States Ambassador here. The Tudeh party has circulated pamphlets calling Grady "The butcher of Greece" and charging that he has come to Iran to impose "a puppet despotic government here.'" Grady directed the U. S. air program in Greece.

NEW TRIAL PREPARED

Berlin, July 4 — (AP)— The east zone government said today a new economic sabotage trial is being prepared against officials of the former I. G. Farben Chemical Trust in the Russian zone. Identity of the defendants was not disclosed.

PICTON

Carnival Week By Rotary Club Is Successful

Picton,—Picton Rotary Club's weekend carnival was climaxed by the drawing for prizes following the night show at the Fair Grounds.

A trip down the Saguenay for two, with $100 in cash additional, was won by Ennis Graves, of Picton.

An electric refrigerator went to Harold A. Cleave, Bloomfield.

A combination radio and record player went to Wayne Ellsworth, of Hillier.

The sellers' prizes went to Miss Betty Wattam, Picton, $50; H. A. Bowerman, Bloomfield, $30; and Miss Doris Lloyd, Picton, $20.

The tickets were drawn by little Miss Daphne Arnaud. Retiring Rotary President, John Arnaud, thanked the crowd for their support of the Club in its efforts to aid underprivileged children. President Russell Attersley announced a peanut day later in the summer. Mayor William Henley announced the winners, and J. Donald Baxter, M.P.P., paid tribute to the work done by the Club.

An outstanding program of vaudeville was presented by Garden Bros., of Toronto. Included were a dancing stallion; girl dancers, a musician who played a great variety of instruments and sang. A man who walked fifty feet up a rope and then slid to the grounds; a clever puppet novelty show slackwire artists and a clever magician.

Despite the cool night, a thousand people were in the stands and hundreds more gathered along fences and on the track.

On the previous night, the Rotarians sponsored a street dance and carnival on Main Street. Several thousand people attended but dancers were limited to a few hundreds as most preferred to watch the western garbed Toronto artists sing and play. Games were well patronized.

Quebec Zouave Is Century Old

Valleyfield, Que., July 4. (CP)—J. Octave Cossette, believed to be the last survivor of a band of Canadians who went to Italy 80 years ago to defend the papal territories, celebrated his 100th birthday here today.

The centenarian, first citizen of Valleyfield; has lived here for the last 67 years and until his retirement was a building contractor.

He was one of a band of 115 Canadian Roman Catholics who went to Rome in 1870 when Pope Pius IX was threatened by Garibaldi's legions. The defenders were called Papal Zouaves. Units of the Zouaves exist in Quebec today.

The Zouaves saw no fighting, but were feted on their return to Canada.

Cossette, as a boy of 12, left his native village of Champlain, near Three Rivers, and worked for $1 a month on small craft plying the St. Lawrence River.

After his trip to Rome he went to sea for a short time and then settled in Valleyfield, where he became prominent in civic activities.

He still is active, goes to church daily and likes a good cigar.

BAD ADVICE TO FOLLOW

Forest City, Ark., July 4 (AP) — Mrs. Owen Faulk landed in hospital following the advice of neighbors. They told her that her broken clock would run again if she boiled the parts in kerosene. But when she tried it, the oil flamed up and blistered her arms, legs, face and head. She is expected to recover.

Sisters, Brother Hold Reunion After 40 Years

Forty years ago two sisters and a brother parted company, and since that time the three have not been together until now. One brother and sister combination within the trio had not seen each other for 37 years, but this year they are all together again in a family reunion.

The two sisters, Mrs. A. N. Hillman of R.R. 7, Massassaga, and Mrs. W. T. Atkins, of Edmonton, Alberta, (whose maiden names were Fargey), have joined forces this week with Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Fargey and daughter, Jessie, of Basking Ridge, N.J. Mr. Atkins also came from Edmonton for the occasion.

Mrs. Atkins and Mr. Fargey had not seen each other since 1913, and the reunion in Massassaga is the first since 1910.

Governments Give Rimouski, Cabano $5,600,000 Aid

Quebec, July 4. (CP)—Rimouski and Cabano families who lost property in the early-May conflagrations which swept the two lower St. Lawrence towns will be re-paid half their losses from the federal and Quebec government grants totalling $5,600,000 ,it was announced today.

The 50-per-cent reimbursement of losses, decided upon by a Federal-Provincial Relief Commission which conducted inquiries in the two towns, will be calculated after settlement of claims on insured property.

Quebec government spokesmen said that in addition to government assistance, property-owners eligible for assistance will receive $500 in cash or relief materials from a provincial fire-relief fund, buitl up from private donations.

534 Lives Lost So Far in July 4 Celebration

Chicago, July 4 (AP)—Traffic and other accidents have killed at least 534 persons since the United States began a four-day July 4th celebration last Friday night.

Traffic fatalities seemed certain to exceed the 385 predicted by the National Safety Council for the period. Between 6 p.m. (local times) Friday and last midnight, 345 persons had died on the highways. Another 113 had drowned, and 75 were killed in other miscellaneous accidents.

The deaths were at the rate of more than one every 10 minutes.

The council estimated that by midnight tonight there will have been 36,000,000 vehicles on the highways during the four days and that the country will have experienced its worst traffic jam in history.

Fighter Planes Of Second World War to be Used

Washington, July 4 — (AP) — Some fighter planes used in the Second World War may be taken out of "mothballs" for duty in Korea because bad weather and mountains have hit jet fighters where it hurts — in the fuel tank.

Because of heavy overcast and mountainous terrain which would make descent over a target area dangerous, United States military men report, the Lockheed F-80 Shooting Stars have had to sneak in low. Although the distance from bases in Japan to South Korea targets is somewhat less than the F-80's announced combat radius of 500 miles, fuel consumption at low altitude is so high they have little time for manoeuvring against the enemy.

Air officers described this as one of the lessons learned in the first week of operations against North Korean invaders. It may mean that Republic F-47 Thunderbolts and F-51 Mustangs, now almost entirely assigned to air National Guard units in the United States, will be shipped to the Far East.

Propeller fighters have longer range than jets and are less sensitive to altitude. They can save fuel by flying slower, whereas a jet must have speed to get fuel economy.

Chinese Reds Seen Planning Purge

London, July 4 — (Reuters) — The Chinese communist party is to carry out a purge of its membership, a dispatch to the Soviet official news agency from Peiping received in London indicated Monday.

The purge will be conducted under a resolution which has been adopted by the central committee of the communist party of China, Tass reported.

The central committee resolution said the "majority of the party's new members show a lack of political stability and discipline and have not received adequate training.

"Among many old party members and even among its leadership symptoms of conceit and complaceny are much in evidence."

GENEROUS IN SPIRIT AND DEED

British generosity to those who suffered in flood and fire recently is one of the bright spots in the news of late. Britons knew of course from their experience in the Second World War how gifts encouraged their hearts. And they have not forgotten and it is not their nature to forget kindly acts. In fact the spirit of generosity is in the British makeup and is seen clearly in British history. If it were not so there would not have been so many things done in the name of charity, benevolence and democracy by the British nation. Not only has the British Government done nobly but the people as individuals and groups have assisted as well by their gifts to the victims of the floods in the Canadian West and of the fires in Rimouski and Cabano, Quebec.

It is a healthy sign in a people and individuals and it is an indication of the depth of feeling and interest they take in others.

Canadians have known all along that the British people are the soul of generosity and have been throughout their history for the magnanimous part they have played in the past is proof of the soundness of their emotions of generosity and kindness.

The people of the Island of Jersey have not been behind with their valuable token of sympathy for the people of Rimouski and Cabano, a token rich in gifts expressing the spirit of brotherly love in those beyond the seas.

The heart of the Old Country peoples beats true to their long tradition. History recounts what they have given for civilization and in the light of their sympathy and kindly thoughts the people of the Canadian West and of the Quebec cities which were the victims of fire find it not difficult to understand their contribution to the benefits of modern living as recorded by history. In these gifts and kindly remembrances it is possible to read history with a still clearer view of what Western Europe, especially Britain and France, have done for the New World and the Old.

In disasters like these hearts of peoples as hearts of individuals are brought more closely together through understanding of human needs.

The warmth of the feeling and the generosity of the people of Britain stands out in the noble gifts they have made towards the funds for the aid of flood and fire victims.

SUMMER AND SWIMMING

If ever a boy or girl should be tempted to learn to swim, it is in the summer season when ability to take care of oneself in the water brings rich dividends in play, exercise and health and at times the opportunity to rescue someone and prevent a tragedy darkening some home.

There seems a natural urge in the boy or girl to wish to acquire skill in the water so that he or she may enjoy swimming or bathing without the risk of a mishap.

He who is able to swim has possibly at some time an opportunity to save the lives of others—than which no greater achievement is possible.

It is to be noted, however, that a very large number of people grow up without having acquired the art. These people therefore miss the enjoyment which comes to the swimmer.

This is the season of summer and often it is marred by tragedy in the water, lives lost by inability to swim, or by swimming in unfamiliar places where there may be an undertow or a treacherous bottom.

In a country so blessed as Canada is with many rivers and countless resorts along the lakes it would be natural that there should grow up a population which should be able to "swim like a fish" as the adage goes. The lesson therefore is clear—many more people should learn to swim and take their instruction under qualified persons.

Belleville, through the Kiwanis Club, fortunately has seen to it to plan bathing facilities in the municipal pool where there will be instruction in swimming. It is to be hoped that there will be great numbers who will learn to swim under training.

NO MORE CUT-OFFS AND DIM-OUTS

A great day for Ontario came recently when Premier Frost set in motion the mighty power plant at Des Joachims (roll your own for pronunciation). For what this project means is the end of the dim-outs and their dreariness and loss, and more power for more industries and more lights for farms. The 50,000-horse-power service to a handful of municipalities which came 40 years ago is now a 3,500,000-horse-power for a thousand municipalities, with more industry, more work and wages, more amenities of life. This is progress.

And let none of us say that this Des Joachims' power is mostly for Toronto and other outside points, that for the Ottawa Valley it means little. This power is for any industry in the Ottawa Valley that may need it, for any industry which wants to come to the Ottawa Valley, and for the farms of the Ottawa Valley — for all Eastern Ontario.

Finally, completion of this great Des Joachims power plant is a fine tribute for Canadian engineers and workers, a fine tribute for the Government of Ontario which conceived it and carried it to completion, and a fine testimony to the ability of the provinces of Ontario and Quebec to cooperate together for common benefit. — Ottawa Journal.

THE CHALLENGE

Stand up and speak it out
And let there be no doubt.
Challenge the whispering tongue
That would deceive our young
And lead their feet astray
From freedom's upward way.

Our way of life defend
So it shall never end.
Under God only can
Freedom belong to man.
Wide-open church and school
Fall under tyrant rule.

Foes of our youth are they
Who would their hopes betray
And by some shrewd design
Follow "the party line."
Party lines only when Freedom belong to men.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

Do we need more Liberty?

Politically, we have plenty of liberty; spiritually, we have very little. There is a difference between religious liberty and spiritual liberty. Religous liberty is the right to worship as one chooses; spiritual liberty is the inner freedom one has when he is not bound by a moral weakness, by an unreasonable bias, or by conflicting impulses which keep him from his best self.

Here in America our capacity to create and cultivate spiritual liberty has not kept pace with our acquisition of political liberty. We have the freest political institutions in the world, but common, old-fashioned sin—the sin of selfishness, greed, lust for power, and love of comfort—keep us from making our free institutions work the way they should. If men, free under the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, live lives of moral freedom under the Ten Commandments, the Sermon on the Mount, and the Bible in general, our democracy would be humming along hitting on every cylinder.

"Now the Lord is that Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty." Political democracy grew out of spiritual freedom, and it can only be made to work among people who are waging a winning fight against an unworthy, self-centred type of existence.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The proud people of Ontario are suffering one of their wormy years It is humiliating. There is a creature called the caterpillar which comes in cycles to plague various arts of eastern Canada. The cycles are about every nine to twelve years. On those occasions, this worm, whose mother is a homely little buff brown moth who lays four hundred eggs in a kind of thick ring around a twig, gets to work with his three hundred and ninety-nine brothers and sisters and builds a sturdy silk tent in the fork of a wild cherry or other small tree. This whitish tent can be a foot long and half a foot wide. And during peak years, you can come upon areas, acres in which hundreds of these unsightly tents are festooned in the trees; and the trees are stripped naked of leaves.

In late June, the worms leave the shelter of their tents and go exploring for likely crevices in which to make their cocoons. A summer cottage offers all sorts of wonderful crevices. And this week countless summer cottagers have arrived at their hide-aways to find them occupied by hundreds or even thousands of the most unwelcome guests an expectant holidayer could imagine. Especially the ladies. There are instances of people simply packing up and coming back to town, rather than stay in a cottage usurped by the tent caterpillars.

The forestry experts do not look on the tent caterpillar as a destroyer of the forests: it is classed merely as a pest. Unlike the spruce bud worm, which kills the trees it attacks, leaving whole beautiful tracts of forest deader than if a fire had swept it, the tent dweller does not kill the tree it defoliates. Before July is out, the leafless trees will be in leaf as though nothing had occurred.

Another nine to twelve years will go by before Ontario is wormy again. Right now, a small stinging fly, which preys upon the tent caterpillar, is also at its peak. In the inscrutable ways of nature, it will almost — but not quite — exterminate the caterpillar.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

FOR GOATS ONLY

Lake Louise, Alta., — We left our first province behind early today, passing under the arch of the Great Divide, and I wouldn't make that drive again with a trailer behind me for one hundred dollars. And I am a citizen who will do most anything for a hundred.

What a bunch of saps we've been in this country! We've spent hundreds of thousands of dollars every year beguiling Americans into coming up here with their lovely old money and we give them roads a Kentucky mountaineer wouldn't let his mule walk over. (Some testimony in a moment from a disgruntled Yankee customer.)

The story of our drive today from Revelstoke across the Big Bend highway and through the Kicking Horse Pass is the story of some of the most spectacular scenery ever obscured by dust.

It is more than a dusty highway. It's a dangerous one. We came over the Kicking Horse Pass late this afternoon with our hearts in our mouths.

A few meaningless red flags marked places in the road where it was literally falling away into a canyon of awesome depth. No guard rails. No adequate room for passing approaching cars on that perilous ledge. Not a workman in sight although rocks were falling on the road from the slopes above.

It pains me to write this, but long sections of this Trans-Canada Highway (marked proudly with shields bearing the "No. 1") are a disgrace and a threat to life. We never saw anything as bad in more than 1,500 miles of the Alaska Highway.

I know, I know. This is a bad time for roads. But that stretch of highway should either be closed or some more determined effort should be made to make it less of a trail for mountain goat and more of a motor road. It is costing us the goodwill of nine out of ten Americans who traverse it. It could very easily cost lives.

Gloomy Yank

When we pulled in wearily tonight at Lake Louise, back once more on a hard surface, our car and our trailer were grey, inside and out, with dust. It simply seeped into everything. I don't think there's a car on the road that would be air-tight enough to resist it.

Now, lest I be accused of a lack of blind patriotism, let me assure you, first, that this mountain country is worth almost any hardship to view. It is breathtakingly beautiful, potentially the finest tourist attraction on this continent. Secondly, let me give you the reaction of a tolerant American.

We met him at Boat Encampment where we paused to scrape ourselves clean. This is at the top of the Big Bend which loops north from Revelstoke then south to Golden. His name was Charles Chaffrey. He was travelling in a new Pontiac with his wife, sister and her husband, all from Chicago.

"We've only ourselves to blame," he told us, "we were warned about your roads by our friends who'd been up here. But we'd never been to Canada. So we decided to take a chance on it. We're all thrilled by what we've seen. Great country. But we'll be warning anybody in Chicago who asks us, to stay away until you've done something about your roads.

"You people don't seem to realize what you've got. Hell, man, you don't want Americans who are big game hunters or mountain climbers. You want people like us who have two or three weeks and a pocket full of dough and want to see some new country from their car windows. Well, the others in my car can't see for dust. And I can't see because I'm too busy trying to stay on your roads.

"Best thing you people could do would be to keep our kind of tourists out of here until you've put some surface on this dirt and gravel. Otherwise, you're just making enemies. That goes for every American we've met on the road."

More Ahead

The only highway we've encountered in our travels eastward so far that could compare with even second class American roads was the 100-odd mile Hope-Princeton route.

That road provides a small preview of what the $300,000,000 Trans-Canada Highway can be in five years if the federal-provincial government deal goes as planned. Your eyes lift from the road when there's no pot-holes, washboard or lonely graders to look for. You think to yourself, wouldn't it be wonderful to see all of Canada this way.

But tonight, here at Lake Louise, we're reminded that there's precious little of that kind of surface ahead of us. Our fellow campers who have come through from the east almost beg us to cheat a bit and go down via the United States to Winnipeg. "Dust?" one Manitoban says, "You haven't seen anything until you get on those prairie roads."

Well, we'll go through with our deal. But I'm beginning to think a cross-Canada drive now is just about five years before its time.

Red Chinese May Participate In Korean Conflict

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Independent newspapers in Hong Kong report that Chinese communists are mobilizing their armies for participation in the invasion of South Korea.

While there is no confirmation of this report, it is such an obvious possibility that I for one don't like the sound of it. It's a development which could turn Northern Korea into a funnel through which Manchurian and Chinese fighting men would pour into Southern Korea in an endless stream.

In short, it is a contingency which would present the defenders of South Korea with a terrific manpower problem. As fast as they defeated one army from the north, they would find that another had sprung up in its place.

Red Russia, standing in the background, would guide this military stream through the funnel. Meantime, the Soviet Union would keep itself aloof from actual participation on the battlefield.

The Chinese Nationalists estimate that there are available on the Chinese mainland and in Manchuria between 4,500,000 and 5,000,000 trained and equipped troops. That's a vast reservoir from which to feed this fresh assault against democracy.

And don't forget this: Many of those troops are veterans of many years' fighting.

Not Pessimistic

Now, lest the reader jump to the conclusion that your columnist has suddenly become pessimistic over the situation, I hasten to correct any such idea. Despite the obvious dangers, the betting in well-informed quarters is that democracy will achieve its object without having to fight another world war.

Still it would be short-sighted if we didn't recognize the likelihood that we have a long, hard struggle ahead of us before we come to the end of this conflict which parades under the absurd misnomer of "cold war." It's "hot" enough so that the United States defence department has ordered Marines and Marine air units to report to Gen. MacArthur in Japan.

There certainly are signs of confidence among the high command in Washington. A similar air of confidence is to be seen in Britain. After receiving a report from Gen. MacArthur yesterday, government officials said London isn't likely to send troops or aircraft to Korea unless the U. S. asks for them. Britain wishes at the moment to limit her contribution to the naval support she already is giving. And of course, other members of the Commonwealth have given or have promised their support.

Only One Phase

In this connection we shouldn't forget that this Asiatic upheaval isn't a one-front show. The Korean fight, while tremendously important, is only one phase of the conflict in this theatre. France has a tough fight on her hands in Indo-China and Britain is battling communism on the Malayan front.

All these things taken together represent the Armageddon which this column has been talking about. The conflict with communism may well be won or lost by democracy in this Far Eastern theatre.

Postscript: Word that Australian and American planes are fighting side by side in Korea is a reminder that 32 years ago today the Yanks and Aussies captured Hamel, south of the Comme in France, in the first joint Anglo-American attack of history. That was on another American Independence Day — July 4, 1918

SCRATCH A DOCTOR AND FIND A SPECIALIST

There are 95,526 physicians in general practice in the United States. It would be fair to call them family doctors—except that 22,976 of them give particular attention to a specialty and most of these would probably like to cut out night calls and other onerous tasks of general practice and devote all their time to a specialty if they could get enough practice in the special field to make a living.

Can any one blame the 22,976 family doctors for yearning to be specialists? I served 18 years in the mines, so to speak, in general practice, and every one of the 6570 days I wished I were a specialist.

Besides the 95,526 doctors in general practice of course there are many others in salaried positions in various governmental departments or services, and nearly 25,000 interns, resident physicians or full time physicians in hospitals.

Not counted among these groups are 54,891 physicians who limit their practice to a specialty.

In other words there is at least one specialist for every two general practitioners seeking patronage. Every third medical practitioner in the country is a full fledged specialist, though not a real specialist, at least not in my lexicon.

It is safe to estimate that 90 per cent of the 54,891 specialists in the country today are what I call trick specialists.

A real specialist is a doctors' doctor—a man of woman who has gained the confidence and respect of his or her colleagues for his or her superior knowledge and skill in this or that field of practice, so that the doctors in general practice call upon the specialist for counsel or refer patients for special treatment when they think the specialist may be able to help. The real specialist is thus a doctors' doctor.

A trick specialist is a doctor who serves little or no time in general practice but sets up as a specialist upon his completion of medical school and a short course of post-graduate training—short as compared with the ten years of general practice the real specialist has before ventures to hold himself out as a specialist. The trick specialist competes with the general practitioners of the community for the patronage of the public. If he had to depend on the general practitioners seeking his counsel or referring patients he would starve.

And that's one trouble with the medical profession today. Over-specialism. It accounts largely for the high cost of medical care. It works hand in hand with the clinic racket (private clinic, so-called) to make your doctor bill outrageously high.

For all the American Medical Association and medical education in America cares, the family doctor is doomed to fade from the American scene.

What the Yankee Wiseacre public wants, and must have in order to keep up with the Joneses, is a specialist for every sneeze, bellyache or pain in the neck. The family doctors still in practice are beginning to recognize this and advise young men and women who contemplate the study of medicine accordingly.

Sour Milk By Any Other Name

Just how one may prepare Yogurt at home. (W. F. L.)

Answer—As you like. It is not a health question. Buttermilk or sour milk is a wholesome food or beverage if you like it, but there is no advantage in the fancy kinds, so far as I have been able to learn.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MEN OF THE SOIL

It is always inspiring for me to note the workers in a field. They are our benefactors. Were it not for them our whole economic life would be in chaos. As a boy I learned a great deal about these hard workers, for I worked with them.

Mostly these men of the soil are God-fearing men. They live clean, healthy lives, and are intelligent citizens. They keep well informed—now better than ever with our efficient distribution of news and reading matter, and through the radio. They keep abreast with the problems that are uppermost in the world. They do their own thinking, and have hours alone in the fields to digest what they have read and heard.

Every once and a while we put some of these tillers of the soil in our legislative halls, and they are always a credit to the state and nation. They are among the soundest thinkers that we have, and they are fearless.

A nation cannot give too much encouragement and help to its farmers, but it isn't handouts that they want. They just want to be treated fairly and justly, and a decent return for all that they produce through the sweat of their brow. Many of them go through great hardships because of tricks of fate, but they courageously face every emergency.

We in the city, drink our milk, eat our eggs and our bread, as well as enjoy the many other products of the soil, little thinking of the long hours and hard labor that is experienced, and often for too small a return.

I like to meet farmers and talk to them. They always have sound, worthwhile ideas, and there is always something to be learned from them. There are no short hours on the farm. It's from sun-up to sun-down, with most of these workers. They are friendly people too. They are really the backbone of the nation's prosperity and happiness. They can't be honored enough.

Letters to the Editor

ABBEY DAWN

Editor,
Ontario-Intelligencer.

This year is the five-hundred and sixtieth anniversary of the formation of the first League of Nations for Peace by Dekanaweda the great Mohawk leader born on the Bay of Quinte.

Benjamin Franklin knew about Dekanaweda, and probably the late President Woodrow Wilson knew about him although Wilson advanced the idea as his own.

The United Nations today in acting against communism (Russia) are following the example set by Dekanaweda and his Iroquois and other allies when they went far to the South and put the tyrant Delawares out of business and deprived them of war weapons.

That it has taken the white man 560 years to catch up to the Redman's vision of Peace is bad. That Dekanaweda is not credited and honored in worse, for it is a dishonorable thing. And worst of all is our relentless, soul torture of the Indian.

Record Crowds Cross at Border

Windsor, July 4 — (CP) — A holiday record for border crossing at the bridge and tunnel between Detroit and Windsor was set this weekend. Officials at the Ambassador Bridge said 13,022 cars were checked through Saturday and estimated another 13,000 crossed the bridge Sunday.

No figures were kept at the Detroit-Windsor tunnel because officials said the Dominion Day traffic was the heaviest they have ever handled.

Trenton Defeats Frankford 10-7, Tie Loop Lead

Trenton (Special) — The largest crowd of the season at Bayshore Park saw Trenton Weese Motors come from behind to defeat Frankford Merchants 10 to 7 in a floodlight fixture Monday night. These two teams are now tied for leadership of the Trent Valley Softball League.

Although the Chevrolets have been winning right along and jockeying with Frankford for top spot in the five team loop, the mechanics have been playing to a park full of empty bleachers all season. Last night it was different as both Frankford fans and a considerable number of local supporters turned out in force.

In the last of the fifth, Frankford were leading six to nothing as the local garagemen had only been able to touch Frankford's pitcher Don Boyle for one single. Don Forbes was the first Chevrolet to bat in Trenton's half of the fifth and he started off with a solid single. John Jordan followed with a triple scoring Forbes then Trenton went wild in a scoring way and so did Boyle in the pitching department.

Forbes walked, Martin Jordan who went in to hit for Doug Whitley and Chevrolet pitcher Ernie Curtis also walked. Ivan Istead stepped up to the plate and connected for a grandslam homer. Frankford decided to let Boyle put out his own fire but before he could stop the rally, Trenton had scored another run and it was a six to five ball game.

The visiting grocerymen were held scoreless in the sixth but the Weesemen picked up three more on another homer. This time, it was relief pitcher Curtis who slugged out the round tripper with two aboard. The locals picked up one in the seventh and another in the eight while holding Frankford to one fluke run in the seventh.

With two away in the seventh, Bernie Jackson hit a high fly near the foul line back of third base. John Jordan miscued on the catch but in trying to pull it down, knocked the ball foul. Jordan thought the ball was foul and took his time going after it and Jackson took advantage of his mistake to score.

Chevrolet manager Bud Swanson started out on the Trenton mound and held the Merchants to one hit in the 1st two innings Swanson started the third by walking Frankford second sacker Earl Darke, then Gib Gilmour tagged the Trenton pitcher for a double and Ernie Curtis took over the hurling duties for the locals.

In his turn on the mound, Swanson struck out one walked one and gave up two hits, Curtis finished the game allowing five hits, walked four and struck out five.

Don Boyle held on for the distance for Frankford, giving up 10 hits, striking out eight and allowing seven free trips to first.

Up until the fifth frame, Boyle pitched air tight ball allowing only one single but from then on he was in difficulty most of the way and fired 11 wild pitches that the catcher could not even get near.

WEDDINGS

THOMAS—FEENEY

Snapdragons and gladioli decorated the altar of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church in Toronto, recently when Dorothy, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Feeney, of Tweed, was united in marriage to William, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas, of Toronto. Rev. Father F. Hone officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in a ballerina length gown of white Chantilly lace over white slipper satin. She wore a fingertip veil of tulle illusion crested with a coronet of tiny white flowers. Her bridal bouquet was red roses and white gladioli.

Miss Molly Meraw, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a gown of mauve embroidered organdy with matching headdress and carried a nosegay of mauve sweetpeas and yellow daisies.

Mr. James Feeney, brother of the bride, acted as groomsman.

A reception was held at the bride's apartment, the bride's mother receiving in a navy and white sheer gown, matching accessories and corsage of Rapture roses. Assisting was the groom's mother wearing a navy gown and a corsage of pink carnations.

Following the reception, the happy couple left on an extended trip to points in New York State. The bride travelled in a navy ensemble with matching accessories and off the face white hat. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

On their return they will reside in Toronto. Out-of-town guests were present from Belleville, Tweed, Brantford and Madoc.

CARMAN—NOURSE

Picton.—Summer flowers were artistically arranged in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald E. Nourse, Johnson Street, for the marriage at three o'clock Saturday afternoon, July 1st., of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Benjamin Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Carman, Bloomfield Road. Rev. A. E. McCutcheon officiated at the double ring ceremony.

To the strains of the Wedding March, played by Miss Nancy Carman, sister of the bridegroom, the bride and her attendants descended the staircase which was entwined with sprays of syringea.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, made a pretty picture in a floor length gown of slipper satin, fashioned with lace bodice and short lace sleeves, and matching mitts. The long skirt had a full circular train. Her fingertip veil fell from a halo of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses, stephanotis and bouvardia. She wore a French rhinestone necklace, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Sharon Prettie, of Trenton, niece of the bride, was a pretty flower girl, wearing a dress of corded yellow taffeta, and carrying a nosegay of rust, yellow and white snapdragons with heather. Master Floyd Mann, of Brantford, nephew of the bridegroom, was train-bearer.

The bridesmaids were Miss Rosemary Carman and Miss Dorothy Nourse, with Mrs. Gerald Prettie, of Trenton, as her sister's matron of honor. All were gowned alike in corded taffeta made with round neckline, shirred bodice and umbrella skirts. Miss Carman and Miss Nourse were in pastel green and pastel yellow, and Mrs. Prettie in mauve. They wore matching mitts and matching picture crownless hats. Their bouquets of roses were tied with matching streamers.

Mr. Alex Carman was his brother's groomsman. The ushers were William Carman, of Orono, and Gerald Prettie, of Trenton.

During the signing of the register, Miss Shirley Pickering sang "Because".

The reception was held following the ceremony. Gladioli, delphinium, ferns and potted plants were arranged in the dining room where the bridal party received. The bride's mother chose a dress of old rose crepe with black accessories. The bridegroom's mother was in a dress of light blue lace over dark blue silk crepe with black picture hat.

A buffet luncheon was served on the lawn. Tea was poured by Miss P. McVicker and Miss Lois Anderson. Assistants were Misses Shirley Henry, Gladys Jarvis, Mary Bailey and Elizabeth Mallory.

For travelling to points in the United States, the bride donned a suit of yellow linen with white accessories. They will reside near Picton. The bride is a graduate of MacDonald Hall, and the bridegroom, a graduate of the O.A.C., Guelph.

Out-of-town guests included Misses Dorothy and Betty Ann Platt and Mrs. G. A. Platt, Kingston; Miss Lois Anderson, Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Philp, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Allan Duff, Mimico; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Mann and sons, of Brantford, Miss Carol MacDonald, Cleveland and many others.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Salt is more than just salty.

The pinch of salt in the sweet angel cake or the spray of salt on the honeydew melon are both illustrations of the value of salt in flavoring all foods.

Certain Mongolian tribes use salt in their tea. Orange or pineapple juice, when used for cooking, seems less sharp when a pinch of salt is added to a quart of juice.

A pinch of salt, in order to avoid arguments, is less than an eighth of a teaspoon.

A dessert like apricot chiffon pie (recipe today) is flat unless salt is used as one of the ingredients.

While a chiffon pie usually requires a lot of steps in preparation, you can shorten the process by the following quick steps: Use a pie crust mix or make a graham cracker crust. Buy a prepared gelatin dessert which requires merely the addition of hot liquid. In place of mashed fresh fruit pulp, use canned fruit.

Keep a chiffon pie in the refrigerator until ready to serve. In hot weather the gelatin mixture may melt.

Apricot Chiffon Pie

Bake a 9-inch pie shell using pie mix or any standard recipe calling for 1 cup flour, or use a graham cracker crust.

Drain a 2 1-2 can of apricots. Chop or force through a food mill enough apricots to make 1 cup of pulp. Measure 1 1-2 cups syrup from can. If can doesn't contain this much syrup, add water to make 1 1-2 cups liquid.

Bring liquid to a boil. Remove from flame. Add contents of a package of prepared orange gelatin. Set mixtures in refrigerator. When gelatin begins to thicken, remove from refrigerator and beat with a rotary beater until light.

Beat 1-2 cup heavy cream until thick. Fold whipped cream into gelatin. Add apricot pulp, folding in carefully. Turn mixture into baked pie shell. Place in refrigerator.

When pie filling is stiff, beat 1-2 cup heavy cream until thick. Add 1-2 teaspoon vanilla extract and 1 tablespoon sugar. Spread whipped cream over gelatin mixture, or use a pastry tube to decorate top of pie with whipped cream. Keep in refrigerator until served.

RUSSIA CHARGES

(Both American and United Nations observers previously had charged the communist-led North Koreans with opening the fighting with an invasion across the 38th parallel that separates Russian-dominated North Korea and U.S. backed South Korea.)

The Security Council June 27 adopted a U.S. resolution calling for military support of the South Koreans. Gromyko termed the council an "obedient instrument of the policy of the American ruling circles who acted as violators of the peace. . . An instrument employed by the United States ruling circles with the object of unleashing war."

Lie Under Fire

The statement accused U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie of "obligingly" assisting in a "gross violation of the (U.N.) charter by the government of the United States and by other members of the Security Council."

Gromyko repeated previous Russian charges that the Security Council call for military aid was illegal because Nationalist China cast the seventh and deciding vote on the U.S. resolution and because Russia was absent from the meeting.

The statement attacked President Truman's orders to the U.S. Navy to neutralize the island of Formosa, held by the Chinese Nationalists, as well as president's order for stepped-up military supplies to the Philippines and Indo-China.

Called Direct Aggression

The American action on Formosa, Gromyko said, meant American troops had occupied "that part of the territory of China" in what he termed a "direct aggression" against China.

Aid to the Philippines was designed to interfere "in the internal affairs of the state" and to foment internal strife.

American promises to Indo-China showed that the U.S. is "fomenting war against the Vietnam people" and "has assumed the role of gendarme over the people of Asia."

Gromyko said Russia's position on Korea was outlined last week in a note replying to an American appeal for aid in halting the Korean fighting. In her June 29 note Russia said she did not believe in interfering in the internal affairs of other countries.

U.N. OFFICIALS

The U.N. begins today a news bulletin service for Korea to be broadcast over BBC and the Voice of America. The program opens and closes with a statement that representatives of governments with more than 1,000,000,000 population are backing the U.N. effort to end the Korean war.

Sir Benegal N. Rau, India delegate who was June president of the Security Council, said in a radio interview last night that he may reopen the question of Chinese representation in the Security Council.

His statement came after one made by Sir Ramaswami Mundaliar, India's delegate to the economic and social council meeting in Geneva.

Sir Ramaswami said that India regards the Chinese government in power on the mainland—the communist regime—as the rightful government of China.

ABBOTT WILL HAVE

Even the entry of only the three destroyers into Korean operations might be the signal for a preparedness drive at home. This would mean an increase in the anticipated $425,000,000 defence expenditure.

Two Alternatives

If, as a result of defence expenditures, Mr. Abbott ends the year with a deficit, two alternatives appear open to him:

1. Leave taxes at their present rates with the hope that over a few years they will yield enough to eliminate the deficit;

2. Increase taxes to wipe out the deficit, balance the budget and provide some surplus to apply against the huge debt built up during the Second World War.

In the Second World War, the government followed a policy of paying half of the war costs out of taxes and half out of borrowings. That policy probably would be considered again in the event of another war.

As war expenditures skyrocketted between 1939 and 1945, so did taxes. For instance, personal income tax yielding a mere $120,000,000 in 1938, but by 1944 the yield was $1,036,757,035.

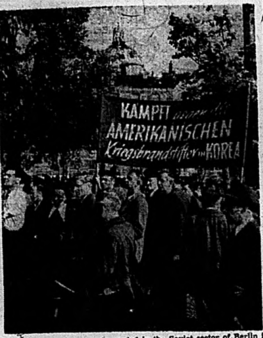
THIS CALLS FOR A DEMONSTRATION



Typical of the placards carried in the Soviet sector of Berlin in protest to U.S. intervention in Korea, was this banner reading "Americans go home" and "Fight against the American war-mongers in Korea." Between 30,000 and 50,000 communists paraded in the Lustgarten of the east sector of the city under the watchful eye of east zone police and Soviet occupation authorities. — Central Press Canadian.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

"THEM WERE THE DAYS"

It happened away back when a cocktail was the southernmost part of a rooster; nine p. m. was the deadline for woo-pitching; the family jalopy never ran out of fuel unless Dobbin threw a shoe or broke a leg, and baseball players occasionally found a ten-spot tucked in that part of the sock where the big and second toes nestle.

They took their baseball seriously in those days. There were no snooty youngsters with Babe Ruth ideas who demanded a $25 glove before he deigned to play with a team; everybody supplied his own equipment, and they travelled by charabanc, democrat and in some cases by horse and buggy.

Wellington, Bloomfield, Picton, Demorestville, Frankford, Deloro and other smaller centres of the district thought more of their teams, or as much as do the Flatbush Fusiliers from the banks of the Gowanus in this day and age.

Imports? Egad, man, there were times when the local boys were represented by a lone player. They brought batteries from as far off as Newark, New Jersey. Toronto, Buffalo and Rochester baseball faces were as familiar as tomatoes, peas and corn.

Let the rest of Canada observe the statutory holidays. The pint-sized communities with the large economy size baseball stars declared a surcease from labor whenever the home team played on the local diamond. Canning factories closed. Merchants locked shop doors. Farmers let the crops go hang for the day and flipped a copper with the hired help to decide who extracted the milk from un-baseball conscious cows. Playing fields were crowded with an excited cross-section of the district.

Among the Belleville players of that lush era whose services were in demand were Walter Gerow, Ernie Hagerman and Herbie Mitchell, who later became a well-known hockey star. These stars of the horse era travelled from one centre to another and experienced many exciting adventures.

On one particular occasion they received an SOS from Bancroft. It seems the boys from the north Hastings village had been taking it on the baseball chin from a nearby team for two or more seasons, and the time had come when it was necessary to call in the shock troops from the south.

Bobby Collier, a well-known pitcher of the early days whose name is still linked in Wellington, Ont. baseball archives with that of the late Billy Wilder (There was a battery, lads, that could have made the major leagues at any time), sent out the call for help, Bobby was a medico back there in the north country, and was getting tired of having the daylights blasted out of his Aurora Borealis nine by the cocky timberjacks from the district. There would be $100 for the boys if they could come back and play for him.

Imagine being offered a hundred iron men back in the days when eggs were a dime a dozen; steaks 12 cents a pound, liver was gratis; blue serge suits cost from $15 to $18 and three bucks would feed a family for a week.

The boys secured the services of the only taxi in town and headed for the north country as Old Sol was peeking over the eastern horizon.

They chugged their way over hill and dale until they came to a spot some three or four miles north of Madoc. Then disaster struck. With a whirring clash of gears, four explosions, reasonable facsimile of a boiler factory working at capacity, the rear-end mechanism of the car decided to give up the ghost. The boys were bogged down.

And they were faced with a problem. How to get to Bancroft? Time was wastin' and no solution in sight.

They walked back to the village and by dint of much persuasion and offers of coin of the realm, induced an elderly farmer who owned the grandpappy of the first automobile to come to Canada, to produce his antiquated wreck and drive them to their destination.

Over rut and hole they chugged their way north. They bumped and bounced, and rolled and careened until they came to a piece of road called the "Hole in the Wall." That was too much even for a car that was eligible in those days for an old-age pension. It too, like its counterpart, emitted a rataplan of raucous noises, wheezed like a heaves-stricken Dobbin four or five times, and settled down on all fours to call it a day.

Visions of that 100 iron men started to fade. The boys, faced with another transportation problem, again went into a huddle. They discovered they were but a few miles from Bancroft, but the sun was settling in the west, and time was going by.

They coaxed and cajoled another rural resident, until he finally consented to take them the rest of the way via Dobbin and democrat.

They arrived at the Bancroft baseball park. The crowd was milling in the field but there seemed to be no action on the diamond. And no wonder, the game had just been concluded.

But Bobby Collier, like the fine sportsman he was, after learning the boys' predicament presented them with the bonus. They took the train for home the next day.

But their troubles were not over. A week or so later they learned the farmer with the decrepit car had entered suit against them for damages to his jalopy.

But some astute legal minds got them out of that dilemma, and the boys wrote down another experience in their diaries.

There might be more international trouble after next Friday's main bout of the Arena wrestling card. For won't the Laddybuck from County Leitrim, Timmy Geohagen himself, billed as the strongest man Ireland ever sent across the Atlantic tangle with the hardrock from down under, Fred Atkins of Australia. The tough Aussie will be making his first 1950 appearance in Belleville where he rates Number Six on the hate list. He has been going around belting the bejabers out of all and sundry and is still on the prowl for the British Empire title. He'll meet a worthy opponent in the handsome Timmy, who will need all his strength and agility if he is to tame the rough toughie from the land of the kangaroo and the billybongs. Dynamic Ray Villmer fully recovered from the injury he received here last Friday will meet the tough Jack Moore in the semi-final while "Toar" Morgan will tangle with the agile Pat Flanagan in the curtain raiser.

Don't Sell Billy Southworth's Braves Short; That's New Cry Around National Loop Camps

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Don't sell Billy Southworth and his Boston Braves short.

Other National League pilots will remember those driving finishes made famous by Billy's St. Louis Cardinal Clubs in the early '40s. And they haven't forgotten how Southworth's '48 Braves broke out of the pack in mid-June to take over the lead and go on to win Boston's first flag in 34 years.

All signs point to Southworth on the warpath again. Flirting between fourth and sixth places only a week ago, his Braves won six of their last seven starts to become a challenger for the lead.

Aided immeasurably by the winter trade that brought Sid Gordon, Will Marshall and Buddy Kerr, the Braves boast a solid punch. They boast one of the leading hitters in Tommy Holmes, one of the leading home run sluggers in Gordon (14); and one of the leading runs-batted-in leaders in Bob Elliott (47).

In Johnny Sain, Warren Spahn and Vern Bickford, they own the best pitching trio in the laegue. Sain has the most victories, 11. Spahn has nine and Bickford eight. Spahn also leads all pitchers with 102 strikeouts. Rookie Sam Jethroe, up from Montreal Royals, is running away with stolen-base honors. The fleet-footed Negro has 18, 11 more than his nearest competitor.

A 3-1 victory over Philadelphia yesterday not only knocked the Phils out of first place but moved the Braves within 1 1-2 games of the pace-setting Cardinals who moved up even though their game with Chicago was rained out.

Brooks Fall Deeper

Brooklyn Dodgers fell deeper into fourth place when they dropped a 3-2 decision to New York Giants. Shortstop Al Dark broke up a brilliant mound duel between New York's Larry Jansen and Brooklyn's Preacher Roe by lofting a home run in the last half of the 11th inning.

Detroit's American League-leading Tigers opened up a 4 1-2-game lead over New York when they whipped Chicago White Sox 8-4 while Washington Senators were defeating the Yankees 7-2. The cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns upset Cleveland 4-2 to drop the third-place Indians five lengths behind the Bengals.

Joe Dimaggio, sterling outfielder, made his debut at first base for the Yankees. He handled 13 chances in the field but went hitless.

Cincinnati emerged from the National League cellar for the first time since May 7 by trouncing Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-5. The loss dropped the Bucs into the basement.

ON TWO COUNTS

Brantford, Ont., July 4 (CP) — Ten years ago Edward Groat got drunk—and was given several days to raise money for a fine. He joined the army instead.

Last week he got drunk again. Magistrate R. J. Gillen sentenced him on both counts: two $10 fines or two five-day jail terms.

Record Entry In Qualifying Round in Tourney

Toronto, July 4 (CP)—A record entry of 172 golfers will tee off at the Toronto golf course tomorrow in the qualifying medal round for the Ontario Amateur Golf championship.

Among the entries are Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, last year's amateur champ; George Eluck of Windsor, 1949 finalist; and Phil Farley of Toronto, six-time winner of the amateur.

Many of the entries have been getting in trim for the tournament by playing in a series of tournaments to select the Ontario Willington Cup team. But general consensus is that the Toronto Club's par 71 will be tough to crack.

In a practice round yesterday, only Farley and Bill Plomske of Kitchener Rockway bettered the mark, Farley with a 69 and Plomske with a 70.

The top 32 scorers in the qualifying round will enter the championship flight.

The champion will automatically make the four-man Willingdon Cup team, while the other three berths will be filled by the the three low scorers in the series of test matches, of which Wednesday's Medal round will be the third and last.

Baltimore Moves Into Contending Spot in League

(By The Associated Press)

After a slow start, Baltimore Orioles, under the capable guidance of Henry Nicholas Cullop, have moved into a contending position in the International League pennant race.

A fifth-place team last week, the Orioles have advanced to third, 2½ games off Rochester's leading pace.

And they've lost the fewest games in the loop, 29, three less than either Rochester or second-place Jersey City.

But winning baseball is nothing new to 49-year-old Nick Cullop. The St. Louis native has been active in the game since 1920, playing with Cincinnati in 1930-31. He piloted Columbus of the American Association to a "Little World Series" victory in 1943, then repeated with Milwaukee in '47. This is his first season with the Orioles.

His Baltimore team came through last night with a 9-7, 11-inning victory over Syracuse. Ben Guintini, another "youngster" who has been around, delivered the game-winning blow, a three-run homer.

Guintini's blast was the third Oriole home run, catcher Clyde Kluttz and Eddie Pellagrini hitting two-run homers.

Omar (Turk) Lown, Montreal's ace righthander, stopped the hard-hitting Rochester team, 5-1, on six hits. Butsy Fiala's homer with a mate on in the first inning gave Lown all the margin he needed. Montreal trails Rochester by 2½ games and is seven percentage points behind Baltimore.

Jersey City "squeezed" past Springfield 4-3 as Pete Pavlick bunted in the seventh inning to score Joe Brachitta from third base.

Max Peterson hurled Toronto a 4-2 victory over Buffalo. Peterson gave up five hits in winning his fourth game against five losses. Bud Heslet produced the deciding blow, a two-run homer in the fifth.

Sedgman, Talbert Have Backs to Wall In Men's Singles

Wimbledon, England, July 4 — (AP) — Top-seeded Frank Sedgman, 22-year-old Australian champion, and second-seeded Bill Talbert of New York have their backs to the wall in the men's singles of the All-England Lawn Tennis tournament.

When referee captain, Alben Trowe, stopped play in a murky light late yesterday, Sedgman, Australia's chief Davis Cup hope, was set down to hard-hitting Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif. The lefthanded Larsen had taken the first set, 10-8, and was all even with Sedgman at 2-2 in the second set when the play was halted.

Talbert, after splitting two sets with nonchalant Budge Patty of Los Angeles, 6-3, 4-6, trailed 2-5 in the third.

All four boys had slithered around the greasy surfaces for an hour before Trower called "enough!" He said the courts were becoming dangerous.

The decision to suspend play brought an unprecedented rhubarb from the 2,000 fans. They demanded their money back or rain checks for today's program. "Semi-rain checks" were issued, giving fans the right to buy tickets at the head of the queue today. Many Wimbledon old-timers criticized the decision to start the vital quarter-final matches under such conditions.

The unfinished sets were first on today's schedule.

They were to be followed by the other quarter-finals, which see Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt tangle with Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla., and Vic Seixas of Philadelphia meets Eric Sturgess of South Africa.

Because of the delay, Trower said he would call on some of the survivors to play three maches a day in order to finish the tournament on schedule next Saturday.

In the women's singles, champion Louise Brough of Beverley Hills, Calif., and Mrs. Margaret Dupont of Wilmington, Del., appeared certain to advance to the quarter-finals. Miss Brough had an apparent soft touch in meeting Britain's Enid Andrews. Miss Dupont plays British Wightman Cupper Jean Quertier.

Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Pat Todd of LaGolla, Calif., already have gained entrance into the quarter-finals.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, July 4 (AP)—When the late Lou Gehrig retired in 1939, he had played 2,130 consecutive games at first base for New York Yankees. . Now it looks as if the Yanks were shooting at another record of 2,130 consecutive first basemen. . . If Casey Stengel's experiment of playing Joe DiMaggio at first is successful, it may help the creaky Yankee machine run more smoothly, but it won't solve the problem. . . Implications of the shift are that Tommy Henrich no longer is the old reliable and that DiMag isn't as fleet-footed as he used to be in covering centrefield. . . That isn't surprising, for the exception of the war years those two have been the Yankees for the last decade. . . No matter what the rest did, you could always count on Joe and Tommy.

Henrich For———

For more years than New York fans like to count, there has been a standard spring training story that Henrich would stay in the outfield. . He did all through 1941, but the rest of the time who was in there at first when needed? Why, old reliable, of course - - - Babe Dahlgren first took over the job when Gehrig had to quite. . . But Henrich had to fill in occasionally . . In 1941 Johnny Strum handled the job with some assistance from Joe Gordon and Gerry Priddy. . . Then the army took Strum and Buddy Hassett was bought from the Braves. Priddy, Henrich and Ed Levy also played some games at first in 1942. . .When Hassett joined the navy, Nick Etten was purchased from Philadelphia and he handled the job for the duration of the war.

Post War Plight

In 1946 it was Etten, Henrich, Johnny Lindell and Steve Souchock. . . George McQuinn was signed for 1947 after being released by the Athletics and he lasted two seasons with the aid of Henrich (of course), Jack Phillips and Souchock. . . last year the situation deteriorated rapidly. . . Another National League cast-off, Babe Young, was brought in but couldn't make the grade; young Dick Kryhoski, Phillips, Collins, Bill Johnson and Fenton Mole were used at one time or another and they even picked up Johnny Mize. . . But it was Henrich for 52 regular season games and right through the World Series. . . With Henrich and Mize laid up and Collins failing to hit, this has been another season of experimenting—

Rampaging Cubs Claw Cannifton Clippers 18-4

The thunder of baseball was clubs rang out in Exhibition Park last night and by the time the truce was declared and the second adding machine sent to hospital for repairs, the Belleville Cubs held an 18-4 decision over the Cannifton Clippers in a Belleville District League game.

No less than 32 hits were scattered over the landscape and inner gardens with 21 being credited to the clawing Cubs. Twenty runners scuffed home plate two of them being on non-stop flights. And nine miscues were chalked up against the respective foemen with the Clippers good, or bad, for eight of them.

All the game needed to give it a real merry-go-round atmosphere was a steam calliope. At times it looked as though it was a refugee from one of Ringling Barnum and Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth acts.

Jones Hits Five

However, both sides fattened their batting averages to an appreciable extent with Peter Jones, Huck Reeves and Dave Lockyer in the limelight. The sorrel-topped Cub first baseman hit a triple and four singles in six times at bat; Reeves hit a homer and three for four and Lockyer got four for five. The trio garnered 13 of the 21 Cub hits between them. Soules hit a triple and single and Elder Neilson came through with a homer and two singles. Elliott connected for a three-base and Mulvihill drew a single. The only hitless Cub was Cuffer Noakes, who did enough work on the mound striking out 9 walking 2 and yeilding 13 hits.

Juby labored on the mound for the Clippers and survived the sock barriage after nine innings of terrific clouting. He struck out a pair and walked five. Chuck Barriage went in in the eighth for the Cubs and held the Clippers hitless and runless.

Sheffield was the big gun for the Clippers with a double and two singles with Timmy Williams smashing a pair of triples. Lawrenson was good for a double and Cook for two singles.

Cubs scored two in the first, four in the third, another in the fourth, five each in the sixth and ninth and one in the eighth. Clippers tallied two each in the fourth and seventh.

SUPPLY BACK TO NORMAL

Berlin, July 4 (AP) —West Berlin's water supply was back to normal today, city engineers reported, after a local shortage caused when the East Berlin communists shut off mains at the sector borders.

Since Saturday West Berlin has been operating on its own electricity supply after the communists shut off supplies which had been delivered from the surrounding Russian zone.

Three Shutouts Registered by Winning Squads

.. By The Canadian Press

If that gopher ball is invading the Intercounty Senior League there was no trace of it Monday —three shutouts were hung up in only three games played.

Most convincing was the 17-0 score last-place Guelph Maple Leafs hung on St. Thomas Legion. The win moved Leafs to within one game of seventh place, highest they have been since the early days of the season.

Big Marty Philip pitched masterfully for the winners, allowing only one hit and facing but 28 batters, one over the minimum. Philip struck out 10 and walked two, and was backed up by flawless fielding by his teammates.

St. Thomas were dealt a severe blow in the first inning when plate umpire Frank Elliott cleared the bench. Catcher Joe Reeve was added to the ejected list in the second and outfielder Joe Biros was forced to take over behind the plate.

Marv Rich and Dick Osmer led Leafs' 14-hit attack, which produced scoring plays in every inning but the sixth.

The other two shutouts resulted when Brantford Red Sox trimmed Waterloo Tigers 4-0 and London Majors edged Stratford Nats by a 2-0 score.

Only Five Hits

Ray Kirkgasser allowed only five hits in setting down Tigers with their 10th defeat of the year. But he was saved by a sensational over-the-wall catch by Tommy McGrattan on a long poke by Tiger third-baseman Fisher.

That started a 10-minute rhubarb which ended in Kirkgasser being struck by a pitched ball from Pat Boehmer, second Tiger pitcher. Police had to break up the fight which followed, and John Fornari of Tigers and Bob Whitcher, Brantford pilot, were banished.

London Majors showed lots of the old hustle when they pinned the second-place Stratford Nationals 2-0 in a tight pitching duel between winner Don Edwards and lefty Allen of Nats. Allen lost his game by two wild throws to first on attempted pick-off plays.

The game was marked by further outbursts, manager Joe Mossomando and Tommy White of the Majors being ordered from the park for arguing too strenuously with umpire Johnny Kumornik.

$629.50 Double For First Day Of Harness Meet

By The Canadian Press

Canada's premier harness racing meet got under way Monday at the Thorncliffe raceway in Toronto before a crowd estimated at about 2,500. The 42-day meet ends Aug. 19.

The small gathering got a thrill when the Daily Double backers netted $629.50, helped along by Daniel, a 12-year-old brown gelding which paid off at $277.30 for its victory in the second race.

Southland Miss, owned by J. R. Desjardins of Sorel, Que., went to the post favorite in the first race and came in with a good victory.

Daniel, owned by Harold McKinley of Orangeville, went to the post in its $500 heat at 30-1 odds on the board—the longest shot in the eight-horse event. It was a photo finish between Daniel and Preakness Win, owned by Parker Locks of Williamsburg, Ont., and the picture showed the McKinley-owned gelding a winner by a nose.

George Kell of Detroit Tigers has moved back into undisputed American League batting leadership over Larry Doby of Cleveland Indians.

Averages of games through Sunday show the Detroit third-baseman hitting .375 to .370 for the Cleveland outfielder. Both advanced from identical averages of .366 a week ago..

Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox leads in the runs batted in, 81, runs, 72, and tied with Kell for the most doubles, 22.

Jackie Robinson continues to set a blazing pace in the National League, his .378 average giving him a 28-point edge over runner-up Stan Musial of St. Louis.

Robinson leads three departments—batting, total hits, 93, and doubles, 26. Boston's rookie flash, Sam Jethroe, has most runs, 58, most stolen bases, 17, and is tied with Musial with six triples.

Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh and Hank Bauer of Chicago divide the slugging honors. Kiner is first with 19 homers and Bauer leads with 58 runs batted in.

Next Move and Bed o' Roses, a pair of three-year-old filly stars owned by Alfred G. Vanderbilt, ran one-two in the $20,000-added Gazelle Stakes before a crowd of 30,763 Monday at Aqueduct. It was the seventh victory in nine starts this year for Next Move, who was ridden by Eric Guerin.

Entries closed Monday night at London for the Daily Mail's £1,000 ($3,100) channel-swimming contest, and the paper said contenders already are assembling at the Folkestone race headquarters. The prize goes to the first person successfully crossing the 21-mile strip of water between England and France.

The channel attempts begin officially Aug. 21.

Lanky Fred Haas, Jr., of Claremont, Calif., set a course record of 64 — eight under par — at Detroit's Red Run Country Club Monday to go into a three - way tie for the lead at the three-quarter mark of the $15,000 Motor City Golf Tournament.

Haas' record - breaking performance gave him a 54-hole total of 204, tying with Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Honor Bright, a black filly who won the Acorn Stakes last year, scored a straight-heat victory Monday in the Coaching Club Trotting Oaks No. 10, featuring the Grand Circuit opening at Goshen, N. Y. The daughter of Bill Gallon won the first mile heat in 2:08 1/5 and the second in 2:08 2/5.

Hysteria, owned by W. N. Reynolds of Winston-Salem, N. C., finished second in the opening dash with Yankee Miss third.

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette prints an amusing line each day above the box score of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

As the Pirates fell into the National League cellar Monday, there seemed to be nothing funny to print.

The line of type above the box score appeared upside down.

When readers inverted their paper they read:

"Who's on top now?"

And sure enough, with the paper held upside down, Pittsburgh was on top in the National League standings.

Touring Collegian cricketers of the Ontario colleges of St. Andrew's, Upper Canada, Trinity and Ridley won their first match in Bermuda Monday, defeating St. George's Dinghy and Sports Club by 45 runs.

The Ontario Collegians scored 156 runs, as Philip Ketchum scored 39 and Richard Gibb 35.

Vern Mitchell, a London, Ont., heavyweight won his 57th professional ring victory at Windsor on Monday night with a third-round technical knockout over Tom Bagetto of Indianapolis.

Jorge Sugden, "the Little Cork" claimed the world's marathon swimming record Monday after spending 62 hours, one minute and 31 seconds in the water at Buenos Aires. Sugden, whose performance drew big crowds, said he had set the old mark of 61 hours, 50 minutes in 1949.

He plans to leave soon for a shot at the English Channel.

Centennial Park Near Denver To Hold Opening

Denver, Colo., July 4 — (AP)— Pounding hoofbeats on a mile-high track that boasts the majestic rockies as a backdrop signalize the return of legalized horse racing in Colorado today for the fist time in more than a generation.

Centennial Park, a brand new contribution to the thoroughbred sport, throws open its gates to a gala holiday cowrd. Preparations had been made to handle more than 20,000 turf enthusiasts for the premiere of the $2,500,000 plant.

Only nine miles from downtown Denver, it takes its place among the major courses of the United States. Its grandstand, which embraces club house and turf club, will seat 6,000 and the ground level sloping toward the one-mile racing strip will accommodate another 35,000.

Horse racing with pari-mutuel wagering was legalized in 1948 and construction of the track started last September. Centennial Park is the only thoroughbred track licensed in the state.

The inaugural program today revives the sport after an absence of 35 years.

The meeting will run 46 days with no Sunday or Monday races, except closing day, Sept. 4. Six stakes worth a total of $65,000 highlight the initial meet.

Whether the high altitude would affect the horses was a moot question. Harry Potter, owner-trainer who has raced a stable in the 8,300-foot altitude of Mexico City for the last two years, expressed belief that racing would be no different here than elsewhere.

Hamilton Tigers On Way Up

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton's rejuvenated lacrosse Tigers are looking more and more like the champions of old.

After a slow start in this year's Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series, the tabbies have been picking up steam and Monday night they added another to the victory column. Tigers walloped Weston Lions 18-7.

Lions started strongly, but after the first 10 minutes it was Hamilton all the way, with Merv McKenzie pouring four goals past Al Chard in the Weston nets. Jack Dorney and Love had three each.

Wild (Pop) Chard netted three for Weston in a losing cause.

In the Canadian - American Lacrosse League the first place Sarnia Beavers downed Wallaceburg Elliot Motors 14-10 at Sarnia.

Avon Jewellers Give Game Away To Bateman's

If Avon Jewellers ever start giving away jewellery the way they do ball games, get in line and get rich. Last night the Jewellers had to commit 11 errors before Bateman Motors piled up a sufficient lead to take an 11-10 win in a Commercial Softball League B game at the Alemite Field.

The astonishingly - generous Jewellers committed nine errors in the first four innings to compensate for three-hit pitching and hand the Motormen a 7-1 lead. Then when a persistent attack paid off for nine runs and a 10-7 lead in the ninth inning, they reverted to earlier form, booted the ball twice, and handed the Motormen four runs and the win. Five hit pitching, which is good enough to win any game at the Alemite Field was good enough last night only to break the pitchers' hearts.

Avon started off brilliantly with B. McTaggart leading off with a home run to left field. That was the substance of the Jewellers' attack until the sixth inning.

Bateman Motors, after a scoreless first inning, put together a double, two walks, and three errors for five runs in the second. Failing to take advantage of miscues in the third taught them what to do in the fourth when they pushed over two runs on a single and three errors. Arch Bellis, who came on to relieve McBride in the second, began to receive some support from that point on as he held Bateman's hitless and runless through the eighth frame.

Avon used a walk, three singles, and two errors to grab three runs in the sixth and two singles and an error for one run in the seventh. A double, a single and two fielder's choices gave them the tying counters in the eighth and they went to the fore with three runs in the ninth on Jack McBride's home run to right field two errors to the third baseman, and a single.

Prosperity palled on the jewellers at this point and with one away and the bases loaded by virtue of a double, a walk, and an error, the Motor masterminds were elevated to the rank of geniuses when George Graham, pinch hitting for Brown, blasted a double to right field that eluded Miller for two more bases and the ball game.

McBride started of Avon and in one and a third innings, walked two, struck out one, and gave up one hit for five runs. Arch Bellis did yeoman service in relief vainly restricting Batemans to four hits in front of a porous defence that let in six runs for the loss.

Hedger went all the way for Bateman's and he should be so lucky. He walked two, struck out three, and was solidly tagged for 12 hits. He also had to contend with a leaky defence at times.

Flyers Edge Belleville 3-2 In Soccer Tilt

In the Belleville Merchants Charity Cup semi-final played at the Air Force ground last night Trenton Flyers beat Belleville United by three goals to two in a very close and keenly contested game. Flyers won the toss and elected to kick with the sun in their favor and pressed from the beginning. Snowdon playing at centre forward for the airmen got the first half goals for the Flyers. Dale reduced the lead for Belleville and the teams changed over with the score at two goals to one. The second half was fairly even with the Flyers having a slight edge on the play. Blaker in the Belleville goal played to his usual high standard and prevented what would have otherwise have been certain goals. Faulkner scored the best goal of the match for the Flyers midway in the second half with a shot which gave the Belleville keeper no chance. With about ten minutes to go Cathcart got the final goal of the match and Belleville's second counter. The United went all out for the equalizing goal but had difficulty in penetrating the Flyers defence of Whyte and Kendall.

Teams:

Flyers: Wall, Whyte, Kendall, Hughes, Milligan, Jarvis, Grignon, Faulkner, Snowden, Miller, Silver.

Belleville United: Blaker, Findley, Dale, Lane, Scott, Williamson, Cathcart, Barclay, Gemmell, Alexander, Carter. Subs, Cox, Moody.

Referee: Les Digby; linesmen, Terry, Ellis.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

We harbor no method of madness for choosing the card we should lead. We thus play a bridge game with gladness and not in a manner to bleed.

How should you select the correct opening lead from any hand? By first eliminating from your reckoning the suits you should not lead. From what is left comes the card that should be led.

The operation is simple and practical. First review in your own mind the suits that have been bid by declarer and his partner. These are the suits which should not be led.

Then, if they have ended at a trump contract, look for any suit or suits in which you have either an ace or a king. Abandon thought of leading such a suit or suits. Then lead from any suit that is left.

So, there are only two don't for leads. One is: Don't lead a suit bid by opponents. The other is: Against a trump suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

What is meant by leading away from? It means not to lead a small card in a suit that contains a higher card. Against a suit contract, don't lead a small card in a suit containing an ace or king.

South and north bid spades and hearts, ending in spades. It is your opening lead from the west hand shown here:

♠J 9
♥J 4 3
♦K 8 4 3
♣Q 8 6 4

Since the opponents have bid spades and hearts, don't lead a spade or a heart. This comes under the head of don't lead a suit bid by the opponents.

From the suits left, your diamonds have a king at the top of them. Don't lead any card in that suit. It would be leading away from the king. Thus, the two don't advise you not to lead a spade or a heart or a diamond. Therefore, your opening lead is nothing but a club.

The least of all evils will start less upheavals.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 4. (AP)—Patricia Medina gives us a peek behind the silk curtain that has cloaked the filming of Rudolph Valentino's life.

The shooting of the Latin lover's life has been, as the cliche goes, shrouded in secrecy. Press correspondents have been banned from the set. The script was said to be guarded like a copy of "handy hints for making H-Bombs".

So I was happy to smuggle one of the picture's stars, Patricia Medina, out of the studio during the lunch period. "Have you been sworn to secrecy?" I whispered.

"Not that I know of," said the beauteous brunette.

"Well, have you seen the script—the whole script?"

"Oh yes, I read it all before I took the part."

Banned From Set

"Isn't the press banned from the set?"

"Come to think of it, I haven't seen any there."

"Isn't the set excessively guarded?"

"No, there's just the usual policeman—a nice old gent of 72."

Miss Medina said that Tony Dexter, who portrays Valentino, has a remarkable resemblance to the famed Latin. "Poor boy," she added, "all he has to do is make love. He makes love in the scenes from the old pictures and he makes love in the scenes of Valentino's real life."

She reported that she had just seen rushes of a love scene she did with him. "I was disappointed," she said, "I wanted to do the scene while reclining, but they propped me up on a couple of pillows. Love making has to be vertical, they said."

She said that most of the characters in the film will be fictional and Valentino's wives will not be portrayed.

Good and Bad

"Eleanor Parker plays a combination of all the good women he knew," she said, "and I play all the bad women. I nearly land him at the end of the picture, but he dies. That happens to me all the time.

Four-Year-Old To Attempt Swim Across Channel

Miami, Fla., July 4 — (AP) — A four-year-old Miami child may attempt to swim the English Channel late this summer.

Russell Tongay, Sr., said yesterday he will leave about Aug. 1 with his son Russell (Bubber) Tongay, Jr. He said the child plans to start the swim from the French side of the channel.

Long distance swimming is not new for Bubber. On June 23 he covered 22 miles in the Mississippi before leaving the water.

Both Bubber and his two-year-old sister, Kathy, have appeared in swimming exhibitions in the greater Miami area.

AT THE DRIVE IN

IT'S A GREAT FEELING

Starring Dennis Morgan, Jack Carson, Doris Day.

Fun in a studio. This is the tale about a picture Morgan and Carson are supposed to be set for at a studio which could be Warner Brothers, since a number of production people appear in it incidentally themselves. The directors refuse to take the assignment if Carson's to be in it, and he rigs up a deal for Miss Day, a commissary waitress, to crash the lead role by artifice. Amusing complications multiply, as is customary in the Morgan-Carson comedies, and it's all for laughs.

Little Benny's Note Book

I saw a true story in the paper about a boy not eating his spinnitch and having a happy ending for him, and I thawt, Oh, boy, wait till the next time we have spinnitch.

Being last nite for supper, and I said, Hay pop, hay ma, maybe I better not eat any spinnitch.

For land sakes, here comes the old story, ma said, and I said, No mam, it's a new story, I red it in the paper so it must be true. There was some boy, and he didn't feel like eating his spinnitch, so nobody made him, and a little while later his mother and father got so sick they had to be took to the hospittle to be pumped out, but the boy felt perfect so he just staked home, and the reason was, it wasn't spinnitch at all, it was some kind of poison stuff the same color, I said.

That must of been a different boy from the one I red about in the paper, pop said. This other boy neglected to eat his spinnitch, so he didn't get his share of vitamins S, P, I and N, otherwise known as the spinnitch vitamins, and after supper he acted so pepless that he had to be sent to bed an hour before his normal time, although naturelly his father and mother felt fine and stayed up chatting and laffing even later than usual, he said, and ma said, Maybe we better let Benny decide for himself. If he doesn't eat his spinnitch and you and I have to go to the hospittle for the evening, he'll be able to congradulate himself, but if he shows the slightest sispicious lack of energy after supper, off he goes to bed at once, she said.

Aw heck, G roozalem, gosh, good nite, I said.

And I ate my spinnitch and nuthing happened to anybody.

Lumbermen May Withdraw From Canadian Market

New Yorrk, July 4 (CP)— E. R. Plunkett, head of one of the largest lumber wholesalers in the northeast United States, said Monday that some American distributors are considering a 30-day withdrawal from the Canadian market because of high prices.

Plunkett, president of Plunkett-Webster, Incorporated, said mill prices of upper-grade Canadian hardwoods now are so high that American distributors can't pay the price and still resell to American furniture plants, their principal market at a profit. He said the mill price of birch and maple of Gas grade now stands at $220 a thousand board feet at nearly every mill in Canada. This was 10 percent more than American distributors can pay.

Plunkett blamed the huge demand by American furniture manufacturers, particularly in the New England States, for the high prices.

While the price $220 has been quoted by some Canadian mills for a long time, he said, it is only in the last 10 days that virtually all Canadian mills have fallen into line.

Plunkett reported that a representative of his company had just returned from Ottawa, where mill officials "wouldn't even talk to me" when he offered $200 a thousand.

The representative also reported that there were 10 buyers for every carload of lumber.

Plunkett said no definite decision has yet been reached on the 30-day withdrawal, but "we must decide soon if we want to back away for a month or gamble that furniture manufacturers will accept Canadian lumber, which is bound to advance an additional 10 to 15 percent if all distributors stay in the market."

"We hesitate about immediate withdrawal only because we know some distributors definitely will continue to buy."

OFFER ACCEPTED

Toronto, July 4 — (CP) — Ontario Court of Appeal Monday approved the $3,500 in damages offered William Wiltse, 7, of Brockville by Daniel Haggerty, driver of an automobile which struck the boy in Brockville last Sept. 17.

The boy's father, Kenneth Wiltse, appealed a lower court decision which awarded $1,000 of a $20,000 damage claim.

Before the appeal haring started Haggerty offered $2,500 more, without admitting negligence.

The offer was accepted by Mr. Wiltse.

UK Will Spend More on Research Than Ever Before

- - Shinwell

London, July 4 (Reuters)—Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell told commonwealth experts on scientific defence Mon. that Britain would use more of her national expenditure on research than ever before.

Britain, he said, regards this as "a sound investment", and wanted to see that this money, together with the skill and resources of the commonwealth countries, "is not frittered away through divergencies of aim or of effort."

Shinwell made the welcoming address at the first meeting of the commonwealth advisory committee on defence science.

Sir Henry Tizard, chairman of the British Defence Research Policy Committee, is chairman, and the delegates — from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India and Pakistan, as well as United States observers —are being assisted by top British scientists.

The object of the conference, which will last to July 20, is to promote joint commonwealth scientific research for defence.

2,000 Lanarkshire Coal Miners Strike

Glasgow, July 4 — (Reuters)— Two thousand miners in Lanarkshire, Scotland, went on strike today as a protest against the state-run coal board's refusal to grant a wage increase for 400,000 lower-paid miners. Nine collieries were affected.

The coal board refused to grant increases of about 15 shillings, ($2.30) a week for 400,000 underground and surface workers earning between £5 and £5 15s. a week.

These men are paid on a day-to-day basis and are distinct from 300,000 other employees in the coal industry who earn considerably more under piece-rate agreements.

THANKS ONTARIO!

On the occasion of the opening of the Des Joachims Generating Station on the Ottawa River, Prime Minister, the Honorable Leslie M. Frost, K.C., announced the lifting of lighting restrictions in Southern Ontario.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario wishes to convey sincere thanks to the Municipal Systems, farmers, householders, retail merchants, sign operators, theatres and other commercial consumers, and the employees and management of industries, for their splendid assistance during the past power shortage. This co-operation was a great help during the more critical periods making it possible to utilize electric power to the best advantage, and contributing very largely in maintaining production at a high level.

To all I wish to express my sincere appreciation for their help.

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

Upon recovery from her first minutes of stupefaction after finding the empty cameo box on the seat of her car, Hagar Blair had driven up Hillside Road to think out what her discovery might indicate, and what to do about it.

Opening the box, she ran her fingers across the purple velvet lining —idly she picked with her fingernail at the edge of the cushion. The cushion tilted. Hagar attempted to push it back into place, but it had become wedged.

Using a hair pin as a lever, she dug carefully at the side of the velvet cushion to put it straight. It finally popped out. Hagar brushed the loose glue out of the box, blowing into it to remove the small particles. She held it close to the light to appraise its condition and it was then that she noticed the numbers.

There were two sets of figures, engraved one beneath the other, and a single figure at the bottom. Probably some jeweler's code number, she decided. Arranged in a peculiar way, though for that sort of thing: 10-4; and below that 8-2; and below that 6.

She pressed the cushion back in place and closed the box.

She started the motor. Pulling the wheel hard over, she whirled the little car around and pointed its nose downhill.

She brought the car to a bouncing stop in front of Falter's mail box. As she climbed out and slammed the door, she was jeering at herself.

"So far, old lady, you've behaved like a stupid cat worrying behind." She climbed the steps at the tail the lizard has left to Martin's porch, "well, here's hoping it's not too late to catch the lizard.

Hagar saw a light inside and pounded on the door.

"Falter? Hey, it's me! Hagar. I've come to talk business."

She leaned against the door. It creaked open about two feet and stopped.

She stepped inside and looked around: What a pigsty! There was a bottle of red wine overturned on the floor and a murky pool had spread out around and under it.

Probably lying drunk on his bed, Hagar decided, and made up her mind to prove it. She approached the half-open door of what she judged would be the bedroom and peeked inside.

She froze for a few seconds, then her body perked up into boardlike stiffness and she tottered backward into the studio.

Though she could not now see through the bedroom doorway, the picture on the other side was photographed on her brain.

Martin Falter, in blue and white striped pajama trousers, sprawled across the bed, the hair on his naked chest matted with glistening dark red, his head lolling on the edge of a round pillow-bolster, and the whole dreadful tableau startlingly illuminated by the light of a fluorescent reading lamp.

Her eyes lost their look of vacant horror and became only astonished and curious as they darted over the disordered studio. Except for the spilled wine, Hagar thought, there was no sign of a fight. She noticed, then, that the front door was wide open and went over to close it. She reached for the knob, paused a moment and pushed the door closed with her foot.

Cinching up her nerves, she decided to look for the cameo in the bedroom.

Taking a pair of gloves from her pocket, she slipped them on and walked through the bedroom door on tiptoe and closed it behind her. She kept her eyes off the bed as much as possible.

On the floor, near the closet door, she saw an open suitcase; a number of clean shirts and socks were strewn around it. Hagar concluded the bag had already searched and turned her attention to a wardrobe chest opposite the bed. She examined the contents of the drawers and found but a few odds and ends of clothing.

Slowly then her eyes averted she advanced toward the bed. She crouched beside it and feeling as though she were about to touch a dead snake, slid her hand under the pillow bolster. There was nothing tucked away there, and she was about to withdraw her hand when she realized that the area under the pillow was hard and smooth rather than resilient. She pressed her fingers down on what seemed to be a wood panel about 10 inches wide which extended from her edge of the bed to a point amost halfway across.

She sat back on her heels and considered: There seemed to be a rectangular piece cut out of the mattress, and in the hole there seemed to be some sort of compartment or box resting on top of the springs. Hagar realized that there was no way of exploring this further without moving Falter's body. She shivered. Then, warily, she untucked the sheet from the side of the bed and peered underneath. Fitted in snugly between the mattress and bedstead was a gray wooden box of a type used by carpenters to carry tools. Hagar slid her hands in on each side of it and pulled—it slid forward quite easily.

Hagar glanced up at the bed and her stomach churned! The pillow bolster was settling as she moved the box from beneath it and Falter's head and shoulders had begun to slant to ward her!

Supporting the end of the box with her left hand, Hagar Blair used her right to push up the end of the bolster. Martin Falter's body stopped sliding.

Hagar blew out a breath of relief. Waddling forward, she eased the end of the box onto her knees and, still awkwardly supporting the bolster, she managed to raise the lid of the box just a crack. She caught a glimpse of what looked like several bundles of letters, each one tied with a string and bearing a label such as those usually attached to transient luggage.

As she squatted there, she was galvanized by a staccato of footsteps on the front steps and porch. She heard a muffled pounding on the door.

Hagar bounded across the bedroom, shut the door behind her and sped to the front door before Stephanie had time to call again.

"Shut up Stephanie!" she whispered fiercely, yanking the door open.

Stephanie stepped back in astonishment. "Hagar! What's the matter? Where's Mr. Falter?"

Hagar pulled her inside and closed the door.

"Dead!" Hagar exclaimed grimly. "Deader'n a doornail."

Stephanie drew back, trembling, her face marble white. "Dead?" she whispered, "Was he murdered?"

Hagar noted with a perverse satisfaction that the girl's teeth were chattering. Now she thought now somebody else could feel scared for a change!

"Looks like he was stabbed."

Stephanie didn't move. "Is there—is there a knife?"

"Knife?" Hagar looked dashed. To tell the truth, I didn't think to look for one. Come in with me and we'll see."

Stephanie was swallowing spasmodically, "oh no! "No, I couldnot! I don't want to see him!"

Hagar squared her shoulders. "Then you keep watch out here."

Hagar approached Martin Falter's bed. In stories, she thought there usually was a dagger projecting from the corpse. Here, there was nothing, no weapon at all. She got down on all fours and peered under the bed. No knife. But there was a crumpled piece of something. A small square of distinctive tapestry. She mediated a moment and then stuffed the material into her pocket.

"Not a sign of a weapon," Hagar declared when she returned. "Murderer must've taken it away with him. Let's get out of here before somebody comes along and catches us hobnobbing with the corpus delicti. Hope you didn't touch anything in here?"

Stephanie extended her hands, "I have my gloves on."

As they closed the front door behind them, Hagar suddenly paused: "Stephanie! How did you get up here to Falter's?"

"In a cab—oh!"

Hagar clasped her hands prayerfully and rolled her eyes skyward: "In a cab, she says! Now I'll have to think up a good reason why I was there when you walked in!"

Guiding her car up Rodin Ave. toward her house Hagar wondered whether to tell Stephanie about finding the empty silver box.

She compromised. "Who d'you think's got the cameo?" she asked as she swung the car into the driveway.

"I wish I knew. Whoever has it has no right to it."

Hagar switched off the engine and jangled her keys, selecting the one for the house.

"House is cold," Hagar commented rubbing her hands. Her glance came to rest on the glass door leading to the side patio. Immediately she strode toward it:

No wonder it was cold in here the patio doo's open." She closed and latched it.

Stephanie had come in and was bending before the gas heater, [illegible] match:

"That's probably my fault. I w[illegible] this morning to pick a few geraniums. Maybe I didn't lock it when I came in."

Stephanie tilted a pale troubled face: "You're not—aren't you going to go to the police?"

"And have that bunch of retarded monkeys clumping around here all night? I should say not! We both need food and rest before we start fending with Chief Peters."

She went to her room and drew the window shades against the night, and, as she did so, she glanced fondly at the glass-fronted cameo cabinet which stood between the bed and the windows.

Now here, she thought, was something worth looking at—this carefully arranged group of lovely miniature sculptures: "The one in the middle top row, she had talked away from Reverend Charles King's collection, using warm words and cold cash. The small one next to it, with the profile of the ugly Roman emperor, she had gotten after a long tug-of-war with Chicago Museum. And there on the third shelf was an interesting piece.

At this point, Hagar's familiar little parade of thoughts came to an abrupt halt! She stared unbelievingly at the piece fourth from the left on the third shelf: It was the delle Corniole carnelian! The exquisitely carved weeping woman, the frame of pearls gleaming softly around her the diamonds lighting tiny fires on the frame.

SHUNS SWEETS FOR STOGIES

Four-year-old Butchie Bossert of Philadelphia is much too young to play with matches, but that doesn't prevent him from enjoying his three cigars daily. Butchie, whose real name is A. Raymond Bossert 2nd, has been puffing away on cigars since before he could walk. At that time, he'd pick up his grandfather's cigars and put them in his mouth. Grandfather, A. Raymond Bossert, decided to teach Butchie a lesson by lighting one and giving it to the infant. But Butchie fooled 'em all. He liked the stogie. Occasionally, his grandmother said, he puffs on a pipe, but Butchie never touches candy, cake — or cigarettes. Grandpa, the neighbors or the local policemen light Butchie's stogies since, the youngster is not allowed to handle matches. — Central Press Canadian.

German Police Force May be In the Making

Frankfurt, Germany, July 4 — (AP)—John J. McCloy, United States high commissioner, said Monday that occupation authorities now are willing to reconsider tne Bonn government's request for a central west German police force.

Western Germans, who fear an attack from the east like that in Korea have asked for 25,000 federal police, presumably to offset the 50,000 east German people's police.

Just 12 days ago—four days before the Korean communist attack on the South Korean republic—the western high commission in effect rejected the Bonn request The high commisioner said local police units could be united temporarily to meet an emergency, but authorized nothing like a federal police force.

However, McCloy said Monday in an interview that the Allied high commission "has expressed its willingness to consider" the German proposal.

U.S. INFANTRY POSITION CUT OFF BY REDS

Two Parachutists Drowned; Blast Charges Tip Canoes

Soldiers Helping to Enact Battle Scene for Film Co.

Quebec, July 5 (CP)—Two members of the Royal 22nd Regiment parachute corps were drowned last night and two others were rescued in the filming of a battle scene of a film to be entitled "Quebec."

Army authorities said the victims were Ptes. J. Bellavance and C. H. Madore, both single and both from Rimouski, Que. Next-of-kin were given as L. de G. Bellavance, Rue Notre Dame, Rimouski, and J. B. Madore, Rue Ouellette, Rimouski.

The drownings occurred at the height of a battle scene on the St. Lawrence River near Brown's Wharf on the city's water-front.

Thirty men, all members of the Royal 22nd Regiment and most of them members of the regiment's parachute corps, participated.

They were distributed in nine large canoes and were simulating an attack. The men were dressed in multi-colored costumes of early "Voyageurs Canadiens" and carried ancient muskets made of rubber.

They were paddling in an area in which explosive charges set just underneath the water's surface were to explode.

One of the participants in the mock attack told The Canadian Press that all but one canoe either filled with water or tipped spilling its men in the river when the explosive charges blew up. One canoe was directly over a charge.

The eyewitness related that about 75 persons, including army officers, were watching at the time. Some of the onlookers leaped into the river when they realized what was happening.

Lights Expose Scene

Huge lights exposed the scene. One of the men who jumped into the river to rescue the men in the water was an official of the filming company, Lemay-Templeton of Hollywood, an affiliate of Parmount studios.

One of the bodies was recovered early today. The body of the other parachutist was found hours later by dragging crews.

Filming continued on the site of the tragedy after order was restored.

The film is said to be based on the 1837 rebellion in Quebec province.

No statement could be obtained from the filming company on last night's tragedy.

Army personnel have been taking part in many of the scenes which have been filmed in the city, on the island of Orleans and on the Plains of Abraham where battle scenes were re-enacted.

COST OF LIVING SHOWS RECORD HIGH IN JUNE

Ottawa, July 5. (CP)—The cost of living in Canada is still going up and hit a record high in June.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday that the official cost of living index, riding a wave of rising meat prices, had touched a peak at June 1 of 165.4 points. This compared to 164.0 points at May 1 this year and 160.5 at June 1 a year ago. The comparisons are on the basis that 1935-39 equals 100 points.

The food index was the big factor in the latest increase, rising from 204.6 to 209.0 points. And it was meat which drove the food index up. On the average fresh pork prices rose 6.3 cents a pound during June, beef 3.2 cents, lamb 4.4 cents and veal 1.9 cents.

Fresh vegetables and lemons also showed slight increases in the food group but butter declined 1.5 cents compared with May.

Slight increases also were registered in the home furnishings and services and miscellaneous indexes but clothing and fuel and light indexes eased a bit. Home furnishings were up from 166.4 to 166.9 and the miscellaneous group jumped 1-10th of a point to 132.4 due mainly to higher prices for auto tires.

Clothing prices declined 1:10th to 180.7 as lower prices for women's wear outstripped higher prices for men's wear, piece goods and footwear. Fuel and light costs were down 4-10th to 137.1 reflecting slightly lower prices for coal and coke.

Two Men Admit Conspiracy to Make Bogus Bills

Montreal, July 5. (CP)— Two men admitted in criminal court Tuesday that they conspired with Emile Paulhus, 25, of Sorel, Que., to make counterfeit $10 Canadian bills.

The men, Raoul Auger, 37, of Shawinigan Falls and Fernand Larocque, 32, Montreal, appeared at the trial of Paulhus. Auger is at present serving a 30-month sentence for his part in the conspiracy while Larocque is free on $500 bail pending his trial on a charge of conspiring to print bogus money.

Paulhus, jointly charged with Auger and Larocque with having obtained counterfeit machinery, is also charged with possession of bogus money.

Auger said he and Larocque had actually made bogus $10 bills last summer in the basement of Paulhus' Montreal home. Auger and Larocque identified an exhibit of 23 bills as some of a lot they had printed.

Judge T. A. Fontaine ordered Paulhus to appear for his voluntary hearing July 14.

Chutist Wears Out Five Pilots In Making 123 Jumps For Record

Fayetteville, N. C., July 5 — (AP) — A hard-boiled, 32-year-old para-trooper from Dillon, Mont., has brought the world's record for the most consecutive parachute jumps in one day back to the United States.

Sgt. John W. Swetich, attached to the 82nd Airborne Division at nearby Fort Bragg, wore out five pilots in making 123 jumps in a dawn-to-dark marathon yesterday.

The previous record of 105 jumps was set by Juan Iriate of Buenos Aires, May 19, 1950.

Swetich planned to jump 150 times, but quit at 11:15 last night after 123.

Asked why he did it, he told a reporter: "I wanted to keep the title in the U. S. I did it one time and I wanted to do it again."

The "one time" Swetich referred to was when he set a U. S. record of 60 jumps at Sioux City, Iowa, in 1946.

Swetich made his first jump at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. He made his 107th jump shortly after noon.

His only mishap came on his 50th try when he suffered a slight knee injury. During the afternoon he rested.

High winds caused him to knock off at 123 jumps. After that he said: "I almost broke my neck on that jump. I've got the record and I think I better quit now."

It took, besides the five pilots, two Piper Cub airplanes, seven parachutes, and six parachute riggers, going full blast to keep Swetich going. Also one pack of crackers— that's all he ate from start to finish. He trained for six months to get in shape for the gruelling effort.

What will he do next?

"I'd like to try for a record delay," Swetich said.

That's going up as high as possible, bailing out, then waiting until the last possible moment to pull the rip cord. He thinks the present record for a free fall of that type is about 40,000 feet.

SICILIAN BANDIT KING SHOT IN POLICE BATTLE

Object of Manhunt Since Early in 1943

Palermo, Sicily, July 5 — (AP) —Salvatore Giuliano, will-o'-the-wisp bandit king who proclaimed his own Sicilian government and taunted Rome for its desperate seven-year attempt to run him down, was shot and killed in his mountain hideout just before dawn today.

The Italian government said the death of the colorful 28-year-old Robin Hood of the hills meant the end of banditry in Sicily.

Commando police were hot on the heels of Giuliano for the last two weeks. In the last few days they closed in, surrounding him in his lair in the hills of Castevetrano, 50 miles from Palermo.

Giuliano tried to shoot his way out of the house in which he was hiding.

Police opened fire with submachine-guns and cut him down, ending in a blaze of fire the career of a man whose band was accused of killing nearly 100 policemen.

Some Comrades Escape

Some of Giuliano's comrades escaped.

The special detachment of 2,000 police which had been trailing the outlaw trapped him with a radio car camouflaged as a newspaper truck. When Giuliano left his hideaway house to go to another building, the police sprang the trap. The battle was brief. The bandit king fell with police bullets in his chest.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi personally ordered Col. Ugo Luca and his commando force to get Giuliano last August after seven carabinieri were killed in a landmine blast and machine-gun ambush.

Steel Industry Ready For Peace Or For War

New York, July 5.(AP)— The steel industry, with an annual capacity of about 100,000,000 tons compared with 81,600,000 in 1941, is ready for war or peace, the Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, said today.

"Carbon steel producers could change over to a wartime footing almost overnight," the publication said. "But alloy producers would probably encounter some problems resulting from large scale demand for special heat resisting alloys required for jet aircraft."

Production this week was placed at 92 percent of capacity, and scrap prices stable with the Iron Age scrap composite remaining at $37.67 a gross ton.

To Avoid Another World War U.N. Peoples Must Back Govts. Asserting Rule of Law

-- Attlee

London, July 5. (Reuters)— Prime Minister Attlee bluntly opened a House of Commons debate on Korea today by saying: "The only question before the House is whether the government are right in the action they have taken in the circumstances which have arisen in Korea."

Attlee's Labor administration, which has an elected majority of only six, was assured in advance of overwhelming all-party backing for a government motion asking parliamentary approval of its action on Korea.

The motion asked the Commons to support fully the steps "taken in conformity with obligations under the United Nations charter in helping to resist the unprovoked aggression against the Republic of Korea."

Only threat to the unanimity of Parliament was the possibility of a vote being forced by a handful of left-wing Labor members who doubt the validity of the Security Council's action.

U.K. Commission in Korea

The Prime Minister rejected allegations that United States action in South Korea was "an example of American Imperialism".

Facing a tense chamber, in which diplomats looked down from the galleries upon crowded members benches, Attlee said:

"It is to be noted that at the time the invasion of Korea took place a United Nations Commission was actually in the country. Meanwhile, North Korea had developed on the general lines of a communist satellite state and it had been heavily armed."

An excuse made for the attack, he said, was that South Korea hadn't a good government.

The House burst into laughter as he added:

"I never knew it was an excuse for assaulting somebody peacefully proceeding on his way that his character was not awfully good."

Attlee derided suggestions that the attack came from South Korea, saying "There is not the slightest sign of any evidence of that."

Biting his words sharply he said:

Act of Naked Aggression

"The world is faced with an act of naked aggression committed against a sovereign state established by the United Nations and recognized as a lawful government of South Korea.

"There could not be a greater affront to the United Nations."

If the United Nations was not to go the same way as the League of Nations, members must be prepared to act when need arises.

"If the peoples wish to avoid another world war they must support their governments in asserting the rule of law."

Legally Effective

Denying the allegation that the Security Council resolutions were invalid because of Russia's absence, he said the custom had grown up that if a permanent member at a meeting had abstained from voting, the resolution of the Security Council should be regarded as legally effective.

"The charter does not permit a permanent member by deliberate absence to impose a blanketing veto on all Security Council proceedings."

Amid cheers he said "I think the world is indebted to the government of the United States for its prompt action."

With equal speed the British government had supported this action, he asserted, amid further applause.

Was the U.S. justified in acting as she had under the charter?

Attlee answered firmly: "I believe she was."

The ordinary principles of international law recognized that any state which was attacked had the right to defend itself, and any other state had a right to assist another which was the subject of aggression.

"The broad principle is that all states may be endangered if the aggressor is allowed to get away with the fruits of aggression in any part of the world . . .

Aggression Should be Halted

"Surely with the history of the last 20 years fresh in our minds, no one can doubt that it is vitally important that aggressors should be halted at the outset."

There were dangers in the situation but, "is it dangerous to take action or to fail to take action?"

"To my mind, the danger of war would be increased were action not taken in this case."

Reminding parliament of obligations Britain had undertaken for preserving world peace, Attlee said:

"We are resisting this attack in Malaya. We have to be on our guard in other parts of the world.

"We are taking all steps possible to try to build up conditions in the world which will not be fruitful foil for communist propaganda.

"We are all in this. You can't leave it to everyone else. It concerns us all.

"We have pledged ourselves to support the United Nations. We have taken action— and I confidently ask the House and the country for its unanimous support."

Resources Minister Winters Says Northland Potentially One Of Richest Areas on Continent

Edmonton, July 5. (CP)—Resources Minister Winters said today that Canada's northern territory is "potentially one of the richest sections of the continent in terms of natural assets."

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Alberta and Northwest Chamber of Mines, Mr. Winters said that from the earliest times fur production has been a mainstay of the northern economy. But the mining industry, more than any other, was responsible for the opening up and permanent settlement of Canada's 1,500,000 square miles of northland.

"There is no doubt that the basic long-term development of the north will depend on the continued discovery and use of mineral wealth," he said. "Drilling programs continue to multiply and the spirit of the men active in northern mining enterprises is definitely optimistic."

Besides the search for minerals, efforts now were being made to locate petroleum and natural gas near Fort Province and Big Island and in the northwest territories.

"Should these efforts meet with success, the whole mining outlook in Canada's sub-Arctic would be rapidly transformed," said Mr. Winters.

He reviewed the assistance the federal government has given the north and said that this year $2,400,000 is to be spent on road improvements in the Yukon.

Previously announced plans for a power project at Mayo call for the construction of a $3,000,000 development to produce between 6,000 and 8,000 horsepower by 1952.

To assist the fur trade, the department is attempting to eliminate wasteful trapping practices. Trappers are being taught that wildlife is a crop to be harvested wisely.

Private Talks Get on TV Programs

New Haven, Conn., July 5 — (AP) — Viewers of telecast from New Haven's television station WNHC were treated last night to dialogue that was not part of the script.

A spokesman for the station said a short circuit during a storm caused private telephone conversation to go over the TV lines so that they were heard in the background of the TV programs. The situation lasted for more than 4 hours.

One woman was heard to tell another that it was "too damn hot out in front" of her house.

GOLD RESERVES, U.S. DOLLARS SHOW INCREASE

$63,000,000 Rise Seen Since March 31

Ottawa, July 5 — (CP)—Canada's reserves of gold and United States dollars jumped to $1,255,000,000 at June 30 from $1,192,000,000 at March 31, the Finance Department reported today.

At June 30, 1949, the total was $977,000,000.

Totals at May 31 and April 30 this year were $1,182,000,000 and $1,177,000,000, respectively.

Two Gunmen Secure $3,000 In Bank Holdup

Toronto, July 5. (CP)— Two gunmen Tuesday herded five bank employees and a customer into the basement of the Dominion Bank and escaped with about $3,000.

The pair entered the bank shortly after 2:30 p.m. They waved guns at the staff and the lone customer ordered them down the basement stairs and locked them in a vault.

Taxi drivers obtained the license number of their car and described it as a 1950-model lime-colored convertible. Later, police identified it as one stolen Monday night from a Yonge Street parking lot.

Alfred Brown, manager of the Dufferin Street-Glencairn Avenue branch, described the men as in their mid-30s, dark complexioned and heavy-set. Neither wore masks.

Three-Week-Old Baby Abandoned

Toronto, July 5 (CP)—A three-week-old girl was abandoned in the vestibule of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church here Tuesday night by a mother too poor to keep the child.

The baby, wrapped in a shawl, was found by Rev. C. F. Sullivan. Nearby was a note from the mother saying she could not afford to keep the child, and asking that she be brough up in the Roman Catholic faith.

The baby was taken to an infants' home. The Catholic Children's Aid Society issued an appeal asking the mother to identify herself and promising efforts would be made to enable her to look after the baby.

Three Canadian Destroyers Sail From Esquimalt For Pearl Harbor

Victoria, B.C., July 5 (CP)— Three destroyers, backbone of Canada's Pacific coast fleet, sail today for Pearl Harbor, the base where the Second World War began for the United States.

But the shooting war in Korea may be the final destination for the 600 sailors who man the tribal class destroyers.

Without wartime secrecy, and without brass bands, the Sioux, Cayuga and Athabaskan will slip out of the Esquimalt naval base at 3 p.m. (PDT) for the Hawaiian Islands.

The cruiser Ontario, the largest ship guarding British Columbia's thousands of miles of coastline, will serve escort duty part of the way, returning here in about two days.

Once in Pearl Harbor, the navy says, the destroyers will participate in South Pacific training exercises with units of the United States fleet.

"Beyond that I can say nothing," said a navy spokesman at Esquimalt.

Decision on whether the trio of warships will see action in Korea depends on developments in the tense war area and word from Ottawa.

Anglo-American Carrier Force Hits Capital of N. Korea

2 Red Tanks Knocked Out But Commies Continue Drive

Tokyo, July 6 (Thursday) — (CP)— Tank led communist forces today struck hard at South Korean troops on the front south of Suwon, outflanking an advanced American unit and threatening a whole important defence sector.

A statement from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said that communist troops, pressing south from Suwon, had moved forward 11 miles, forcing the South Koreans onto high ground north of Osan, 23 miles south of fallen Seoul.

It added: "North Korean forces continue to press the South Koreans from the north while at the same time extending their columns around the east flank of the defending forces with the apparent objective of cutting off the avenue of retreat."

Anxious air officers waited for a break in bad weather to loose their aircraft for attacks on the invaders. Yesterday Australian and American fighters struck at the advancing columns, while British and American planes from carriers hit tagets in North Korea.

MacArthur's latest communique did not mention the plight of American troops trapped by North Korean tanks. The Americans first to see ground action in Korea, knocked out two invading tanks before they found themselves encircled and cut off from support position.

Clash Hourly Awaited

In the teeming rain the main front line force of Americans called up reinforcements of men and anti-tank weapons to stiffen the front for the inevitable clash now hourly awaited.

MacArthur's communique confirmed a gathering threat of communist forces east of Suwon, apparently designed to lop off this whole sector of the front. That would open the way for a drive on Taejon, military centre 73 miles south of Suwon.

The northerners were pouring more troops and arms across the Han just south of Seoul despite repeated air strikes on the rail lines stretching north of the city.

A constant stream of U.S. reinforcements was flowing into South Korea from Japan by air and sea, the communique reported.

The setback on the Suwon front came after the communist tanks apparently had been turned back by the fire of U.S. artillery.

An undisclosed number of south Korean troops also was reported to have been isolated by the tank-led north Korean infantry.

A spokesman at advanced headquarters said there was a chance the Americans could still withdraw safely from the communist pocket. The Americans, setting up a position south of fallen Suwon, had met a north Korean spearhead of eight tanks with artillery fire which knocked out two of the invaders.

Front dispatches said the surviving communist tanks wheeled suddenly and rammed themselves between the infantry position

739 ACCIDENTAL DEATHS IN U.S. OVER HOLIDAY

Chicago, July 5 (AP) — Accidental death struck down at least 739 persons during the four-day Independence Day weekend in the United States. The toll was much higher than expected and rocketed toward the all-time high set in 1936—761 deaths.

Americans died in traffic crashes, by drowning and by miscellaneous accidents at a little better than one every 10 minutes during 102-hour period between 6 p.m. local time Friday and last night at midnight.

Highway smashups claimed 458 lives.

Water deaths totalled 168. Miscellaneous mishaps killed 113.

No one was reported killed in fourth of July fireworks tragedies, but the other deaths were tied in with Independence Day celebrations.

The National Safety Council had predicted that 385 would die in traffic crashes. But the toll mounted and mounted as holiday drivers coursed along the highways.

Mid-way through yesterday, as death figures kept piling up, Ned H. Dearborn, council president, issued a sane-driving appeal to "try our best to save at least a few lives by acting like civilized people on the highways."

Dearborn had predicted that 36,000,000 automobiles would roll 5,600,000,000 miles over U. S roads. He classified it as the United States' biggest traffic jam.

The 1936 death record was set during the four day Christmas holiday period. At that time 555 of the 761 deaths were in automobile accidents.

Story of Dr. Fuchs Is Given Denial

London, July 5 — (Reuters) — Suggestions that Dr. Klaus Fuchs, atom scientist who has served four months of a 14-year sentence for espionage will shortly be released from prison, were authoritatively denied today.

The Daily Mirror yesterday reported that Fuchs, who gave atom secrets to Russia, may soon be doing scientific work for Britain again. It stated "a provisional period of two years had been fixed for a thorough vetting of the ex-spy. But he may be released earlier if it is felt that his allegiance to communism has waned sufficiently."

A. Pringle, K. C., City Solicitor.

The object of their visit was to survey the present industrial sites in Belleville and to obtain data for transmission to various clients of the Railway throughout the United States and the British Empire who might be interested in locating in this district. They visited a number of industries and obtained complete information on available floor space that could be used for location of new industries and, it is hoped, that their visit will result in increased employment in the City.

City Engineer Silent Champion Of Kiwanis Club

City Engineer Charlie Mott was undisputed "Silent Champion" of the strong, silent men of the Kiwanis Club, in an unusual poll conducted at the weekly luncheon meeting held Tuesday afternoon in Kiwanis Centre.

When the expected entertainment was unavoidably absent, program chairman Fraser Fulton called on eleven of the Kiwanis sphinxes to introduce the speaker of the day, who was to be "the gentlemen to your left." Each man was drafted for a 90-second oration and was fined one cent for every second short of the ninety.

Mr. Mott doled out 71 of the 112 cents collected from what proved to be a very voluble group once they got underway. Several members, who doubled the allotted time limit, in asking for a refund, were informed that in the near future they would be allowed to expand their addresses to a full half hour and they promptly returned to their stoic silence.

A few favorable financial reports and a sing-song led by Vic White with Phil Huddlestone at the piano rounded out a very pleasant meeting.

Following the regular meeting, the Ways and Means Committee decided to sponsor a "Family Night" of clean, wholesome entertainment each Wednesday evening at the Drive-In theatre, beginning Wednesday, July 12.

Old film classics will be brought back, including such favorites as "David Copperfield," "Maytime", some of the Jolson pictures. "Snow White" and many more.

In addition the Kiwanis Club hopes to inaugurate a series of amateur contests in connection with their "Family Night" in which local talent will compete for prizes.

34th Battery Gunners Hold Unit Smoker

Marking the cessation of regular training until the unit leaves with the regiment for summer camp, upwards of 40 other ranks of the 34th Battery, of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment RCA (SP) held an enjoyable smoker in the Bridge Street Armories last night

Major J. Black, battery commander and his officers including Lieut. Mac Smith, second-in-command, Lieut. E. L. Smith, Lieut. R. Jago, and Captain R. Liddle, regimental quarter-master, were present with Major Black giving a brief address to his gunners.

He spoke of the importance of attending summer camp as he felt the training received there was invaluable. He also stressed esprit de corps and felt, he said, that his unit was the best in the regiment.

The smoker uncovered hidden talent in the ranks and an enjoyable musical evening was held with refreshments following social amenities.

PICTON

23-Pound Lunge Taken by Angler From Toronto

Picton—The first muskellunge of the season was taken in West Lake over the weekend. Leo Mazda of 35 Ontario Street, Toronto, was the lucky angler. The fish weighed 23 pounds six ounces and measured 44 inches in length. It was entered for Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce Fishing Hall of Fame prizes.

Bass fishing is reported exceptionally good in East Lake and very good in West Lake. The Bay of Quinte did not yield as good catches as usual at the opening. One Ohio lady took a 4 1-2 pound bass from East Lake.

The opening of the tourist season at the weekend saw a great influx of holidayers and cars with U.S. licences were noted in great numbers. Resort owners note that the great rush of guests will come in ten days or two weeks time.

Family Honored Before Leaving Community

Picton—Prior to their departure to reside in Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Seeley, son Carl and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Seeley and children were honored by the residents of Athol township who met at Cherry Valley hall, Monday night. On the same occasion, a shower was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fennell, who were recently married, the bride being the former Mildred Seeley.

An address was read by the chairman, Phil Dodds and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Seeley were presented with a silver tea service and tray; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Seeley with a tri-light lamp, and Carl Seeley with an electric clock. The gifts were presented by Raymond Goodwin, Mrs. Fred Jay and Mrs. Joe Wiggins.

Mr. and Mrs. Fennell were seated in decorated chairs while Mrs. J. Wiggins read an address. Many baskets of gifts were carried in by Joan Brummell and Lois Armstrong.

The program included a reading by Mrs. George Leavitt, piano solos by Nancy and Margery Dulmage; a piano duet by Miss E. Moore and Douglas Moore and a solo by Mrs. Gordon Bell. The Seeleys have purchased a store in Kingston.

First Sightless King Scout

Clarence Morris, 16-year-old student at the Ontario School for the Blind, Friday evening received the highest honor attainable by any Boy Scout when he was officially made a King Scout by Scoutmaster William Nankivell. As far as is known Clarence is the first totally blind King Scout in the world. Formerly a Wolf Cub, he has been a Scout for the past three years and is patrol leader of the Whippoorwills, 1st Brantford Troop, composed of 40 students of the O.S.B. All are partially or totally blind. Six of the eight members of his patrol are second class Scouts—an exceptionally high proportion. Clarence hails from Belleville, Ontario. Clarence was congratulated on his success by Ian Grills, field secretary here of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Other boys to receive awards were George Kelly, B. Downey, Gordon Frank, R. Streaker, L. Toulouce, L. Couwell, R. Schamp, G. Paton, J. Stoner and F. Lawrence all of the 1st Brantford Troop, O.S.B.

Scout Morris is a son of Mrs. M. Wright and late Clarence Morris of this city.

District Farmers Acquainted With Advertising Campaign For Dairy Products at Meeting

The advertising appropriation put up by Canadian farmers for advertising of all branches of the dairy industry will be "big business" in ten years, a group of Belleville district farmers were told here Tuesday evening.

This was stated at a Dairy Farmers of Canada-sponsored meeting held in Ann Street school to acquaint district farmers respecting the advertising campaign for dairy products now in progress. Speaker for the evening was O. J. W. Shugg, manager of the publicity department for the Dairy Farmers, who said that although a slow start must be made he did not see how they could fail.

"It will take a long time to get all the farmers in Canada to contribute one cent per lb. butter fat during the one month of the year," he said, "and our first goal will be to win the support of all those farmers."

Must Follow Product

As CBC farm forum organizer and long interested in farm group organization, Mr. Shugg said he had seen the day coming when the farm producer must follow his product to the consumer. He said the reason was that competitors offering substitutes for dairy products had been "beating the pants off us."

The first year's advertising appropriation was estimated at roughly $250,000 which in the beginning would have to be spent in the heavy consuming areas. "It was in this field that the most benefits would be first received", he said.

Erle Kitchen, secretary manager of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, gave an outline of the history of his organization, noting that it was made up of producer organizations with no direct membership.

25 Directors

There were 25 directors, six from Ontario, four from Quebec, two each from the Western provinces and one each from the Maritime provinces.

Directors had decided on a publicity campaign to advertise dairy products and all producers' organizations had approved of the program. The money would be derived from contributions by farmers amounting to one cent per lb. butter fat sold during the month of June.

"Some farmers might think this a lot of money," the speaker went on. "But for the average farmer producing 400 pounds of milk per day it would mean just 14 cents or roughly $4.20 for the month."

He said the aim was for all 300,000 farmers in Canada to contribute and this would mean a sizable sum.

"We can't expect anyone else to publicize our industry," he said. "Every pound of milk sold means a better market. If you can create demand you will get the price."

Offered for Use

He told how the advertising campaign of the American Dairy Association had been studied and how the Dairy Farmers of Canada hoped to profit by the experience of the American Association during the past ten years. Mr. Kitchen said all literature and other materials of the American Dairy Association had been offered for use in Canada.

A color film "The Power of Pennies" released by the American Dairy Association, indicated the advertising program for dairy products being conducted south of the border. It showed how colorful ads in national and other magazines were being run to attract the attention of the American housewife and how advertising tie-ins with other food products could be used to boost sales of dairy products.

Spoke of Appeal

Following the showing of the film Mr. Kitchen spoke of the appeal of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture to the Privy Council with respect to the oleomargarine question.

He said that while awaiting the decision of the Privy Council on the matter, farmers must make a decision and recommendation — they must decide if there would be enough butter in Canada if there were no oleo and whether importation of butter should be allowed.

He noted that vegetable oils had many uses, such as a butter substitute, in ice cream and in "filled milk". In asking for protection he did not think that Canadian farmers were asking for anything they were not justified in doing. Production of vegetable oils in New Zealand and Australia was regulated as to quantity and he thought some measure of this kind was necessary in Canada.

Mr. Mac Robertson, local creamery proprietor, said control of oleo should not be asked. "The only way to beat oleo is to have it banned entirely," he said. "Canada is differently situated than the United States where such producers may have their rights. We do not grow vegetable oils in Canada."

Charles N. Heath, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board, acted as chairman for the meeting.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 5 (CP) — Prices settled into a narrow price range as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today following two-days of steady decline. Volume for the first three hours was 1,354,000 shares.

Industrials opened higher but lost part of the early advantage as mild selling appeared. Papers, utilities, steels, refining oils and constructions tended lower. A few key stocks like International Paper, CPR, Dominion Steel B and Distiller's Seagram edged upwards.

Senior and junior gold producers were strong in early trading only to sag as the session progressed. Recent heavy selling has pushed the list to the lowest average price levels in more than a year.

Base metals turned downwards. Anacon Lead, a sharp loser yesterday, slumped suddenly at the half-way mark after strengthening in early trading. Losses were held to small amounts.

Western oils found the best support. Moderate buying in stocks like Calgary and Edmonton, Foothills, Federated Petroleum and Pacific Petroleum buoyed the list.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, July 5 — (CP)—Produce prices quoted on the spot market here today:

Churning cream: No. 1, truck price, 54 cents; delivered, 57 cents.

Creamery prints: first grade 55 cents.

Trading was quiet with supplies ample at the Toronto egg market this morning. Prices on a large and A medium were down fractionally. Country shippers' quoted graded eggs, cases free. Grade A large 48; A medium 46; A pullet 38; grade B 30-32; grade C 27-28.

SICILIAN BANDIT

The outrage aroused Italian public opinion to a new high. Many said at the time that if parliament had been in session a "Giuliano" crisis might have resulted.

With his commando force armed to the teeth, Luca began a methodical military sweep of the Sicilian Hills where Giuliano long had held sway.

Since then more than a dozen known bandits have been caught or killed. More than 100 small-fry lawbreakers have been rounded up.

Giuliano's end brought out newspaper extras in Rome.

Giuliano, who was credited with being a fiery anti-communist, also was charged with turning his machine guns on a May Day parade near Palermo in 1947. Eight persons including two women were killed and 33 wounded. Four of the wounded later died.

Several of his lieutenants, including two cousins, are among 27 defendants now on trial at Viterbo for the May Day massacre.

Nine others including Giuliano also are named in the charges and are being tried in absentia.

When the trial opened Giuliano sent a letter to the court from his hideout claiming the shooting was an accident.

Bit of Robin Hood

Giuliano was a bit of a Robin Hood and a politician not above making dramatic declarations of his devotions to his mother.

When his mother, Maria Lombardo, was arrested for helping her son in July, 1948, he threatened to attack the jail to release her. Another time he wrote in a letter to a Sicilian newspaper that he would never leave the Montelepre Hill area near here until she was freed.

Signora Lombardo was released last Jan. 21, under an Italian Holy Year amnesty.

Cheese Board

The price of cheese took a one-sixteenth cent increase on the Belleville Cheese Board Tuesday evening as a price of 26 11/16 cents was paid by the ten buyers present. Price previously paid on the board since requisitioning went into effect was 26⅝.

Buyers said actually the new price had been paid by buyers for the past two weeks in the Belleville area but this was the first board meeting since the increase. The change in price was due to final adjustment of handling costs.

The factories represented and the cheese each offered were as follows: There were 3,874 cheese offered.

and its supporting artillery and supplies.

Under Plane Fire

A source at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters here estimated that three or four north Korean divisions were being poured into the outflanking operation. They were under fire from American and Australian fighter planes.

Aircraft from the British carrier Triumph and the American carrier Valley Forge struck farther north. In attack on the north Korean capital of Pyongyang they destroyed two Russian-built Yak fighters in the air, strafed eight aircraft on the ground and heavily damaged air installations. All the attackers returned safely to their carriers.

Prior to the announcement of carrier operations, MacArthur's headquarters reported American planes had destroyed seven and damaged four north Korean air-

Eight Engaged

O. H. P. King, AP correspondent at an advanced American base, said the two tanks destroyed by American artillery were among eight engaged. He added in a dispatch that the withdrawal of South Korean forces from the Suwon area had been stopped.

If the Americans succeed in breaking up the communist spearhead, King said this may be the turning point of the Korean war which began 11 days ago.

No statement has been issued by MacArthur's headquarters on the ground fighting since the announcement that the Americans had gone into action.

Gen. MacArthur confirmed the fall of Suwon to the communists during the day.

His communique, which estimated the Korean spearhead at three to four divisions (a North Korean division numbers 10,000 men), said the invaders were taking part in an "enveloping" movement against the Seoul-Inchon-Suwon triangle which embraces more than 200 square mils.

Tanks that smashed into Suwon yesterday rolled on southward as the reds apparently sought to hit new defence lines before the Americans could bolster the South Korean forces.

A steady movement of American troops and supplies continued from Japan to South Korea.

But it was a gray, rainy day. Aerial operations were sharply reduced. This probably meant that fighter planes were unable to support front-line troops.

20,000 Veterans, Families Competing in Garden Contest

Hastings County VLA smallholders are showing increasing interest in the current and second national Veterans Land Act development competition, settlement supervisor Bill La Tour said today.

"Despite last year's drought, many of our smallholders attained outstanding development success during the 1949 contest. Heavy rainfall to date this year will result in an even more impressive showing," he predicted.

Approximately 20,000 veterans and their families settled on VLA smallholdings across Canada will compete again this year for prizes valued at $9,000. Altogether, 666 awards including 150 for junior gardens entered by settlers' kiddies, are available.

Divided in Two Groups

Smallholders are divided into two groups: those with one acre and less and those with more than an acre. Subdivision group contests were excluded this year in favor of the children's competition.

Top prizes for both groups are worth $20 with numerous others graduating downward from that figure at intervals of one dollar. First prizes for the youngsters are worth $7.00 and second and third valued at $6.00 and $5.00 respectively.

This year's new feature, the junior competition, divides the kiddies into two sections: those nine to 13 years of age and children eight years and under.

Qualification requires maintenance of a garden at least 100 and not more than 150 square feet. At least three varieties each of vegetables and flowers of the youngsters' own selection are also necessary.

All smallholders in the Eastern Ontario area are automatic competitors. Copies of the scoring guide have been provided the veterans to assist them in development efforts.

Returns Play Role

Properties will be scored on the basis of landscape and agricultural development, with particular stress on the arrangement of features making up the entire property. Economic returns from the small holdings will also play an important judging role.

Mr. La Tour is carrying out preliminary judging in the Belleville area. A three-man team will make final selections following completion of the preliminary survey.

"This competition is part of the 'Operation Good Earth' program introduced by the VLA this winter," Mr. La Tour explained. "It envisages and encourages the sound development of small holdings and farms with the advice and assistance of settlement officers. We in the field are the links between the settlers themselves and the sources of ideas and information."

A demonstration and illustrated lecture on general landscaping and horticulture will be held on the lawn of Veteran Reid in the Tracey subdivision this Wednesday evening at 7.30 p.m. The guest speaker will be Russell Gomme, district horticulturist for Toronto district office. All veterans are invited to attend.

PROSPECT OF CROPS

A survey of the prairie provinces and British Columbia shows that while rain is still needed in some areas, crop prospects as a whole have greatly improved in the past two weeks. Wheat is now averaging between six and nine inches in height in most places, with only a few spots reporting a definite lack of rainfall.

Manitoba reports wheat eight inches in height, but shows decrease of 25 per cent in grain sown between Portage la Prairie and Brandon. Slight hail storms reportedly did no damage in the northern part of the province, and warm weather is the prime requisite now for good crops.

In Saskatchewan, the moisture condition is reported as generally good, despite a desperate need for rain in southwestern parts. Grasshopper damage here has been as high as 50 per cent between Regina and Central Butte.

Alberta crops northeast of Calgary have made great progress during the past week, due to the 1½ to 2½ inches of rain received in the area. North and west of Edmonton, the situation is still very dry, with rain urgently needed. In the Peace River district, rain has been plentiful, but a steady maintenance of precipitation is needed to keep the crops moving.

Perhaps most startling in the crops survey are the findings of the British Columbia Tree Fruits that the cherry crop from the three producing areas at Naramata, Penticton and Summerland will be a mere 20 per cent of last year's yield. Peach crop is expected to be only 5 per cent or 10 per cent of last year, and the apple crop is expected to run to only 75 per cent of last year.

On the whole, crop conditions in the west appear favorable, with grains moving in fine style as long as moisture conditions remain good. Grasshopper damage, while ranging from 5 per cent to 50 per cent, does not seem to be too serious on the overall.

FOREST LOSSES BY FIRE

While Ontario has not suffered from any great holocaust in her forests this spring, it is still startling to read that no less than 515 forest fires, involving 36,000 acres of bush, have smudged the green horizon of trees.

One only has to camp in the northern part of Ontario or take advantage of a gift like Algonquin Park to realize what beauty and quiet can be destroyed by licking, crackling flames. The finest that nature can produce can be wiped out in a short period by a red rage. Hon. Harold Scott, speaking in Belleville a few weeks ago, told a group of diners that he had seen tracts of lumber go up in flames that made him, as a lumberman, cry.

The worst part of the spring total for this year is revealed in the breakdown of the figures. Smokers were responsible for 150 of the fires, settlers clearing brush accounted for 114, and campers started 77. There, then, are 341 forest fires started by carelessness. There is no more reason for leaving a cigarette burning in the woods than there is for leaving it ignited on the family chesterfield. Settlers are destroying their own future by carelessly allowing fires to start, and campers have no defence. If they cannot learn to camp properly, and to put out their fires before they leave, then they should be barred from the bush.

Other causes were listed as railways, blamed for 55 fires; road construction camps, 34; lightning, 12; logging operations, nine; mining and incendiarism, two each. Thirty-two had miscellaneous starts, such as children playing with matches, houses burning and setting adjoining bush on fire, and sparks from tractors. Cause for 28 of the fires are still unknown, with the department and Provincial Police attempting to find them.

Our quarrel, however, is with the few careless people whose actions jeopardize what rightfully belongs to all. Their indifference to the value of our northern forests is a definite danger, and they should be punished for it.

LIQUID GOLD

A century of progress in California was summed up on Saturday, when Shasta Dam on the upper Sacramento was dedicated, says New York Times. Shasta Dam is part of the astounding Central Valley Project, which contemplates, among other re-arrangements of Nature's plan, taking water from the Sacramento and pouring it, with the aid of pumps driven by electric power generated by its own energy, into the San Joaquin River. The water surplus of the North will thus, in part, redress the water deficit of the South; floods in the North will be checked; power will be available for many uses, and by a regulated flow of the river the brackish tide water which has endangered the rich lands of the Sacramento delta will be held back. Assistant Secretary of the Interior William E. Warne, who spoke at the dedication ceremonies, estimated that power revenues would pay the bulk of the cost.

Recreation is not being idle; it is easing the wearied part by change of occupation.

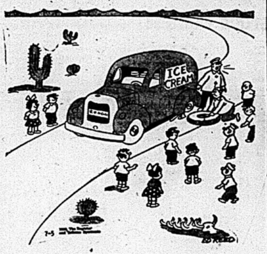
WATCHING A TWO-YEAR-OLD

Run, little fellow, all day long;
Keep busy while you can.
Those legs of yours won't be so strong
When you've become a man.

Pry into everything on stands
And shelves, both low and high.
Time will restrain those eager hands
With caution by and by.

Yours is a wonder-world today
Where all is bright and new.
You have but twelve brief months to stay
A little boy of two.

So now at top-speed romp and race
While hands and legs are spry.
You will have learned to slow their pace
When you're as old as I.



"I don't know—they weren't here a minute ago!"

COMPROMISE — RIGHT OR WRONG?

The person who is always waiting for perfection in the world generally gets left with something far less than perfection on his hands. This does not mean that we have to compromise ideals, but it does means that all along the highway of life, we have to compromise on the matter of policy. Often we have to accept things we do not like very well to keep peace or to achieve some higher good. The way is not pleasant, but it is profitable and characterized by nobility of spirit.

In the famous Jay Treaty negotiated by President George Washington more than 150 years ago, we observe a compromise of policy, a willingness to accept something less than perfection. The majority of Americans criticized Washington bitterly and many were ready to tear him to pieces because of the compromises he had made with England in the Jay Treaty. But there were no principles compromised, only policies.

Looking back over history we can see that the Jay Treaty kept us out of war with England and was one of the great landmarks in our democratic history. The rule is — never compromise on principles, but be willing to go to the second mile or the twenty-second to compromise on matters of policy if this will serve some higher end.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

What we need now is a silent aeroplane. The aeronautical industry should switch its attention from speed to something more important; less noise.

Aircraft designers must wake up to the fact that the next great step before them is to evolve a means of propelling aircraft that will not disturb the non-flying public. So far, the entire attention of the industry has been devoted to the comfort and convenience of those who fly. Speed and security have been the sole objectives. And every year, in order to approach those goals, aircraft have become noisier and noisier. They are on the verge of being a public nuisance. The new jet liner, which might have been a step in the right direction, since it progresses by means of sucking air, howls like a demon.

When the motor car was first introduced, there was an immediate public outcry at the disturbance the contraptions created in the public peace. The automotive industry realized its position and devoted itself to muffling the engine and to making the motor car as quiet and inoffensive as possible. So far, no large section of the public, other than those who live near airfields, have raised any outcry over this violation of the public peace by aircraft — the disturbance of the vast majority for the benefit of a very small minority. Aircraft manufacturers may take pride in the noise their product makes. They probably rate it as part of the publicity for their industry. They would doubtless scoff at the idea of a noiseless aeroplane. But a machine roaring through the public sky like forty freight trains is none the less a primitive thing. It stands to reason that in ten or twenty years, we will have silent aircraft. The logic of engineering history assures it.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

BIG LITTLE TOWN

For what may be obvious reasons, this column will go without the customary dateline. I'm writing it in Lake Louise, but it is not about Lake Louise. It is about the kind of town I don't ever want to live in.

There is a kind of town that's between village and city. It has most of the drawbacks of both, few of the advantages of either. In the last month we've visited several of them, places between two and ten thousand population. We got a warm hello. We liked the people we met. But we did not envy the life that's dictated by half-village, half-city.

I suppose the gossip we heard in such towns was no more malicious than the gossip you hear anywhere. But it came thicker and faster than I ever heard. Everyone knows what everyone else is doing or has done, or is likely to do. Since everyone's path crosses in some way or other there's no lacking a topic or an audience.

The result, it seems to me, puts an awful strain on a citizen and his right to privacy. Those of us in the cities have at least the protection of numbers, the anonymity of the pack. In the villages, it's true, your life is also an open book, but there's a limit to the number of readers.

It seemed to us that people in such in-between towns are acutely conscious of living to conventions, of hiding any of the lustier pursuits that might set the tongues flapping. In one such town, for example, the citizens has just soundly defeated a plebiscite for beer parlors. Yet there are six legal "private" places for drinking.

The Joiners

The extent to which these towns are organized is almost unbelievable.

One typical town of around 8,000 boasts a Board of Trade, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Ratepayers' Association, Retail Merchants' Association, Lions, Rotary, Kinsmen, Gyros, Soroptimists, Breakfast Club, Garden Club, Rifle Club, Eagles, Moose, Elks, Odd Fellows, Masons—and ladies. auxiliaries to everything.

I wouldn't think for a moment of deriding the good these groups do or of underestimating their fraternal aspect. But many who belong admit quite frankly that they are primarily a question of economics.

"Our trouble here," the owner of a small business told me, "is that we have village economics and big-city ambitions. Even the introverts among us become reluctant Babbitts. You have to be a joiner and a booster, especially if your business has competition. The man who gets out 'with the boys' is the one who gets the trade."

This can have a cynical and unpleasant effect. We saw this on the outskirts of one such town when we pulled in for gas at a big, prosperous looking service station. The proprietor was a hefty, hearty-looking man with an almost overpowering geniality.

When I asked him how he could expect the town's business at such an unlikely location, he guffawed and said: "I'm vice-president of everything in this here town except the Women's Institute. Half the people in the burg get their gas here because they like me. The other half get it here because they're afraid of me."

The wife of a retailer in another diminutive city, who moved from Vancouver, said, with a sigh: "I never see Harry anymore. He's had to join everything to keep in with the clique that really runs the place. It's no good being an individualist or a rebel. Not when you're in a business where there's not enough for two."

Big Event

You might think a town of such proportions offers the contentment of small places. Does not seem to work out that way, mainly because there's a biggest-little-city complex. We've heard from so many sincere people, "All this town needs is a little get-up-and-go to come into its own."

This attitude leads to some curious kind of progress. In one of these little cities we wondered why there was no water truck to keep the dust down in the back streets. The town had apparently considered a wiser investment to be parking meters down the one main street.

In terms of culture there seems pretty much of a blank. Each of these little cities expends its energies on one annual fiesta, usually in the form of a carnival or a rodeo. We were surprised at how many people weren't altogether happy about this.

"Our show is primarily to attract tourists and stimulate business in the slack season," one active joiner told us, in an introspective moment. "I sometimes wonder if it's a good thing. We all have to wear funny hats and grow beards and shoot off toy pistols and, hell, it just brands us a cow town. If the businessmen in this place would put half as much energy into getting us a decent library I'd think we were accomplishing more."

Mackenzie's Column:

No Real Basis For Negotiation Says Mackenzie

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

India's reported offer to mediate between Russia and the United States in an effort to end the Korean war undoubtedly is inspired by the highest humanitarian motives, but it makes one pause in puzzlement.

Maybe there is something concealed in the proposition which we don't sense, but this column fails to find any real basis for negotiation. The issue would seem to lie between North Korea — the Russian-backed aggressor — and the United Nations, which has condemned the aggression and has called on its members to give aid to the Southern Koreans in meeting the assault.

Perhaps the key to India's intentions lies in the statement that she regards Korea as a single country and wants to see it reunited politically and economically. New Delhi is said to hold that any attempt to end the fighting would have to take into account that the Korean people want unity.

The ideological lines are drawn here as elsewhere in the world strife between communism and democracy. If the Korean imbroglio could be negotiated between the U. S. and Russia, then the whole cold war, the globe around, could be negotiated.

Absurd Hypothesis

And that, as the professor might remark, is an absurd hypothesis.

Still, this Indian proposal has virtue. To my mind by far the most important aspect of the offer lies in the fact that it once more emphasizes that in India's Prime Minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, we have a new, great advocate of peace.

Nehru was one of the most devoted followers of the late Mohandas Gandhi, the famed exponent of brotherly love. Now we find the disciple trying to put into practice the preachings of the saintly little Mahatma.

Nehru, the advocate of peace, is one of the newly-developed great world figures who bids fair to play a dominant role in the affairs of the Far East.

As for the ideological war between the communists and the democracies there is no mediation which can settle that. The conflict must run its course until mankind finally gives the verdict.

And will that be in the dim future, far beyond our time? It could be, of course, but somehow one has the feeling that the denouement may be closer than it seems.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SIMPLE PLEASURES

Millions of people daily add to their pleasures and happiness. And it doesn't take money to do it. It just takes the will and the desire, and the simpler the pleasures, usually the greater amount of interest and joy is the result.

Stevenson once wrote that "nature is a good guide through life, and the love of simple pleasures next." A day with the camera, an afternoon at the baseball game, a day at the shore, or a simple vacation in the country with all nature demonstrating its beauty and instruction. Anyone can enjoy these things, and an endless number of others.

It's simple pleasures that children most enjoy. And we all are but a little way removed from them. Nothing is more fascinating than the study of birds, their calls, their habits, and the many varieties. Men have devoted their lives to this simple pleasure, and added to the interest and joy of others. My little bird book is worn from consultation, and each year I learn something new to add to this pleasure.

Not only is the reading of good books a pleasure, but it enriches the mind and adds greatly to one's interest in all affairs. Widely read people are interesting people to meet, for added to their knowledge is that of observation and discussion. We like to have people give us ideas, for they always stimulate us to new discoveries.

Stamp collecting can be made quite inexpensive, but at the same time very instructive. Study the postage stamps of a country and you learn a great deal about it. You learn of its heroes, its products, its poets and writers, its famous institutions, and its history. It is a worldwide hobby, and a useful and pleasurable one.

Nearly every day, especially in the early Springtime, I meet my friend and neighbor, John Kieran, on his tramps to learn something new about his great pleasure in birds and flowers. He breasts the weather with the same zest and courage that our mail carriers do. Cling to the simple pleasures and all life will be enlarged for you!

SAFEST PLACE TO HAVE YOUR BABY

An expectant mother inquires whether she should continue taking her iodin ration throughout pregnancy. "Of course I would ask my own doctor," she explains, "but don't feel I should be taking up his time at this early date."

The answer is that if you take an iodin ration as I advise in the pamphlet The Iodin Ration, you get only the amount of iodine every man, woman or child should get daily from drinking water or food, and so you should continue it throughout pregnancy for the little stranger's welfare as well as your own.

But your feeling that you should not take up your doctor's time is wrong, daughter. Time is the doctor's stock in trade. It is what you pay for. If your doctor intimates that you are taking up his time needlessly or anything like that, you had better change doctors right away.

In the baby blue book Preparing for Maternity (for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope) I explain why it is never too early to engage the physician. We engaged the best doctor in town at least two years before our first baby came. There was no difficulty about selecting the doctor. One guess who he was.

The expectant mother tells me I have sold her on having her baby at home.

I'm glad to hear that. I hope she will find a doctor who believes, as I do, that home is the safest place to have a baby.

Now that nearly one third of all the practising physicians in the United States choose to practise as specialists (any doctor licensed to practise may do so if he wishes) it is not easy to find a good doctor who will attend a confinement at home. Especially not if you are gullible enough to believe that because the doctor holds himself out as a specialist he must have greater skill or knowledge than an "ordinary" doctor who purports to be nothing but a general practitioner. The prevailing spirit and intent of the absurd specialism in American medicine is to keep the dumb laity thinking something like that. People who fall for the specialist hokum cheerfully pay five to ten times as much as a good family doctor would charge for the service and in their childish way think they have had better service than the "ordinary" doctor can give.

Not only the prospective mother but also the prospective father should attend the doctor's instructions, going together to the doctor's office, studying everything pertaining to prenatal hygiene, diet, development of the baby or embryology as partners in the business.

33 Runs Scored In Industrial Softball Game

Trenton (Special) — Thirty-three runs crossed the plate in an dustrial Softball League game at Bayshore Park last night. When the scoring spree was over, Jack Zigman's Scrappers found themself on the short end of a 20-13 score, after Hinde and Dauch ahd pounded Jack Zigman and Scrapper relief pitcher Squires for 19 hits.

Zigman started on the mound for the Iron Men and lasted two innings. In those two initial frames, Hinde and Dauch blasted Zigman's offerings for ten hits and nine of those ten safeties were converted into runs.

Alf Squires took over on the Scrappers hill for the rest of the way and was tagged for nine hits including two doubles and a triple. Squires only walked two but faulty fielding by his teammates saved five Hinde and Dauch hitters. In the remaining five innings, the papermen added 11 more runs to their total.

Zigman's Scrappers collected 15 hits off Hinde and Dauch hurler Lidster who lasted the distance. Five of the 15 went for extra bases. Ken Nokes rapped out two doubles, Bernard Reid also hit a double for the Iron Men and Keith Beckwith connected for a triple in the fifth.

Hinde and Dauch made five miscues, while the Scrappers failed to hold on to nine.

U.S. Car Traffic Heavy During July 4 Holiday

Trenton (Special) — More American than Canadian cars passed through Trenton over the long Fourth of July and Dominion Day weekend, according to reports from local resort, restaurant, hotel and service station operators.

Estimates of the volume of traffic can be summed up with these three comments "heaviest this season," four out of six cars on the road are Americans, and "very heavy."

One tourist camp operator whose resort is located on the eastern outskirts of town said "a great many reservations were made ahead of time." Everyone interviewed agreed that business this year over the Dominion Independence Day weekend was "as good, or a little better than last year."

Even on Friday and Saturday nights when large numbers of Ontario cars were on the road, three resort owners said they had more American customers than Canadian.

One reason for the exceptionally heavy flow of United States tourists was the unusually long holiday weekend which in most case was Friday night until this morning. As Dominion Day was generally observed on Saturday, it had little effect on the normal amount of weekend auto traffic.

Bus Terminal Busy

However a substantial number of Canadians also took advantage of the holiday to travel. Trenton bus terminal reported Tuesday night that Colonial Coach lines had as many as six buses on runs where one coach normally handles all the passengers. Since Trenton is a transfer point for everyone from Prince Edward going east or west through Trenton by bus, the local bus station was quite a busy place over the holiday.

Although motor traffic was heavy, the Ontario Provincial Police at Brighton said this morning they had no record of any serious highway accidents in the Trenton vicinity, during the weekend.

2 Seamen Killed By Cyanide Gas Aboard Warship

Birkenhead, England, July 5 (CP)—Two seamen were killed and some 38 others were made ill today by cyanide fumigating gas aboard the 10,000-ton British liner Cheshire in the Mersey River docks.

The victims died in a hospital while receiving treatment. Most of the others recovered soon.

The liner, owned by the Bibby Line, was being prepared for a voyage to Australia with 650 British emigrants. No passengers were aboard.

Crew members said the vessel was declared safe this morning after fumigation. The men became ill in the engine room when an air compressor was turned on, apparently dislodging a gas pocket. First reports said there had been an explosion, but after investigation by police did not confirm this.

Third World War Not Inevitable Churchill's View

London, July 5 (AP)— Come what may in Korea, the western world shall not be trampled down into serfdom and ruin," Winston Churchill said last night. He emphasized that he did not believe a third world war was inevitable.

In an Independence Day address at a dinner of the American Society in London, Britain's Conservative party leader declared:

"It certainly seems to me that there would be a better hope of a general settlement with Soviet Russia following upon the defeat of aggression in Korea on a localized scale than would be possible after another communist success.

"The new fact in relations with Russia is that we have been told that the Kremlin Oligarchy knows how to make the atomic bomb.

"Nothing would more surely prepare the way for a third world war than that we should drift on while large quantities of these devastating weapons are accumulated."

Churchill was confident that communist imperialism, surpassing anything dreamed of by the Czars, would be halted.

"The situation is not appreciably worse than it was before the aggression in Korea began, but I always held that it was bad enough already —it all depends at what point you start to think."

If what the communists had begun in Korea should end in a triumph for them a third world war might be forced upon us, or even hurled at us, he said.

Churchill gave unqualified assurance that the political opposition which he leads in Britain will not hamper Prime Minister Attlee's government in its support of the United Nations and American military operations in the Orient.

Rains Make Full Crops - - Kennedy

Toronto, July 5—Recent rains, unpopular with early vacationers, have made full crops out of what might have been half crops, Agriculture Minister Kennedy said.

The minister, who recently returned from an inspection tour through Eastern Ontario, summed up the general crop situation: "There has never been a year like it."

The province at present is enjoying a bumper crop of strawberries. The rains have extended the season and the yield has been about 40 per cent higher than last year. Some Ontario strawberries are being trucked to Buffalo, Detroit and other near-by United States points.

Potatoes have shown excellent growth, the minister reported and large crops are expected.

Woman Jockey Outrides Men

Cochrane, Alta. (CP) — Women may be the "weaker sex," but you can't prove it by Millie Hamilton.

The mild-mannered, bespectacled woman out-manoeuvred and out-rode some of the country's best jockeys to win four firsts and two seconds at the annual Cochrane race meet.

The woman rider asked no quarter and gave none. She was bounced around at the open gate but when the starter gave the signal she was almost invariably on top and the rest of the field was dizzy trying to catch her.

One of her firsts was scored in the feature event, the Cochrane Derby, over the one mile route.

Reds, Greens, Other High Colors Most Popular Boudoir Numbers

New York, July 4 — (AP) — There's a revolution going on in ladies' underwear.

It involves a tactical change, not a difference in over-all strategy, says John Norman, who designs lingerie.

More and more women, he said, are breaking away from demure whites and pinks and blues and are wearing reds, greens and other high colors.

"These are by far the most popular boudoir numbers," Norman reports. "Even brides are dropping the usual white lingeries. They're wearing green, yellow, lemon and lime, even black. Imagine a bride in black lingerie?"

"The essence of sex," Norman said, "is subtley. Here's what I mean." He exhibited a red pair of panties.

"You see," he said, "we achieve our effect by the red and by adding a fringe of flemish lace on the back.

"The art in this business is to show flesh when you least expect it and hide flesh when you wouldn't expect it. Look at this bittersweet nightgown. The shoulders and neck are nothing but nylon lace. Suddenly it reveals bare arms and then, of course, there's the abrupt plunge at the bodice."

Norman, 32, is handsome and a bachelor. He gets his ideas principally from paintings and particularly from the French impressionists.

"They really got glamor in women," he said.

Who makes the best lingerie designers, men or women?

"Men, definitely," Norman answered. "Women are apt to get prissy at the wrong time."

Are bachelors better lingerie designers than married men?

"Of course, I'm prejudiced, but I'd say bachelors," said Norman. "A married man, especially one with daughters, is likely to let his home life interfere. In this business, you have to be completely uninhibited."

Hospitals Probe Shortage Of Pupil Nurses

London (Reuters) — British hospital authorities, concerned over the grave shortage of trained nurses, have learned from a group of survey made in northern England that only 40 out of every 100 student nurses are likely to complete their full training.

Staff and students of Liverpool University, surveying a hospital group in Cheshire, said they found many things wrong.

Some of their findings:

Male nurses objected to working under women, and some of them suggested a male "matron" should be in charge of them.

One male nurse complained men were treated "like little girls."

A rigid 'caste" system exits in hospitals.

Strict barriers between grades limit opportunities for advancement, and staff personnel admitted they had no sociable contact with people of a "lower status."

On Lowest Rung

Domestic staffs are the most miserable because they were on the lowest rung of the hospital social ladder and are, for instance, banned from hospital social clubs.

In one instance, this gave rise to the peculiar position of a man —not employed at the hospital — being invited to a social club dance to which he could not take his wife because she happened to be a cleaner in the hospital.

The surveyors founds that hospital staff health and safety amenities are inadequate.

They also discovered that 71 per cent of hospital staffs worked more than the industrial 44-hour week, and 58 per cent more than 50 hours.

Yet despite all this, the surveyors came to the conclusion that morale among hospital workers is high.

Among nurses the explanation probably is true love for their work, reported the investigators. They said 73 per cent of them—asked why they took on their arduous job—answered "interest in hospital work."

Program of contests and game was conducted by Miss Beatrio Macfarlane and dainty refreshments were served as a conclusion to an enjoyable evening.

Make Strawberry Jam this Easy, Short-Boil Way
1 THIS "SURE-RESULTS" RECIPE WILL SAVE TWO-THIRDS OF YOUR TIME
Crush thoroughly 2 quarts of fully ripe berries. (Use ripe fruit, not the underripe fruit called for in old-fashioned recipes.) Measure 4 cups of the crushed fruit and 7 cups of sugar into large saucepan. Mix well. Bring to full rolling boil over high heat. Stir constantly before and while boiling.
2 BOIL MIXTURE ONE MINUTE ONLY KEEP FRESH FLAVOR AND COLOR
Here's where you save time and work! BOIL HARD ONE MINUTE BY THE CLOCK! (This short boil retains the luscious taste and lovely color of the fresh fruit.) Remove from heat. Stir in half-bottle of CERTO Fruit Pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit.
3 YOU'LL GET 50% MORE JAM FROM SAME AMOUNT OF FRUIT
Because you don't have to "boil down" your fruit to make it set, very little juice wastes away in steam. You'll have about 10 glasses to ladle and paraffin instead of the 6 to be expected from old-fashioned long-boil recipes. With CERTO you average 50% MORE jam from the same amount of fruit.
4 NO GUESS WORK. FOR SURE RESULTS FOLLOW SIMPLE DIRECTIONS EXACTLY
With CERTO you get a booklet of 78 kitchen-tested recipes . . . a separate one for each fruit since different fruits need different handling. Follow the simple directions exactly and you'll have bright, sparkling, better-tasting jams and jellies whatever fruit you use. Even beginners can be sure of results with CERTO.

The topic for the evening was taken by Mrs. Douglas Clancy, there were readings by Miss Hazel Pauley; Mrs. Lorne Watson and Miss Ruth Clancy.

Mrs. Burton Morton then read a farewell message to the teachers Misses Joan Hoard and Lois Weaver, and presented each with a book of poems by Edna Jaques. Both girls made appropriate replies.

Women's Institute

PINE GROVE W.I.

Pine Grove Women's Institute met for their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. F. Campbell presiding.

The answers to the roll call were interesting and varied with each member giving an item pertaining to the work of her particular standing committee.

Correspondence regarding the W.I. holiday in Guelph, July 10-14, and an appeal for the W.I. Manitoba Flood Relief fund was read and discussed.

Mrs. L. Finkle convener of the committee on Canadian Industries took charge of the program.

Mrs. A. Tanner read a paper supplied by Mrs. W. Slater, who was unable to be present, on "The Men and the Jobs". This brought to the members' attention the fact that while Canada is receiving many people from Europe through immigration there are also a very large number of Canadian men who emigrate every year, chiefly to the United States.

Mrs. W. Rodgers gave an interesting paper on a new Canadian industry which has been started recently in Lindsay—the manufacture of Visking Casing—a cellulose casing used on prepared meats. The finished product is pure, tasteless, and odorless, gives meat products appetite appeal, and helps to prevent spoilage, waste, or untidiness. Meat packers and the food industry are now using these products extensively.

Hastings County tops in Cheddar Cheese

Mrs. L. Finkle gave an interesting and informative talk on the industries of Hastings County and the city of Belleville, noting the Bata Shoe Co., at Batawa, the talc mines near Madoc, the muskelunge hatchery at Deer Lake, the only one of its kind in Ontario; the lumber mills at Coe Hill; the woollen mills at Bancroft; lastly brought to the members' attention the fact that Hastings County produces more hard Cheddar cheese than any other county in all Canada.

In the city of Belleville 52 industries are located, and much information on these may be had free of charge from the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Speaking of the dairy industry of Canada, Mrs. Finkle said "Canada's dairy industry consists of 430,000 farms. It requires 1,100 creameries, nearly 900 cheese factories, 173 combined butter and cheese factories, many hundreds of milk pasteurizing and distributing plants, and 31 concentrated milk manufacturing plants. Surely it is a big enough business to make it worth while to study it and plan for its future prosperity.

Dairy Industry Necessary

Consumers need to be shown that because of its importance to many Canadian businesses; because one out of every six Canadians is directly or indirectly dependent on it, as a source of income, because of its necessity in our conservation program prosperity of the dairy industry is essential to the well-being of Canada."

The president, Mrs. F. Campbell, thanked Mrs. Finkle for her informative address.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed following the close of the meeting.

35th WEDDING ANNIVERSary

Rawdon.—On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Brady, of Rawdon, celebrated their 32nd wedding anniversary. The dinner guests at 6.30 p.m., were Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMullen, of Copper Cliff, Ontario; Mrs. William McMullen, Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Royle and sons of Rawdon.

Mrs. Janet Utman, Stirling, visited Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Couch, on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burkett, Bonarlaw, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McAdam.

Mrs. Joe Grills, Carmel, entertained on Wednesday in honor of the anniversary of the birthday of her aunt, Mrs. Louise Anderson. Several ladies enjoyed the afternoon after which refreshments and birthday cake were served.

A number of Carmel relatives journeyed to Trenton, Friday evening, and were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charle Johnston. The gathering was i honor of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Far rell. All enjoyed a happy even ing topped off with refreshment

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

The going was tough in ancient Gaul for fat people:

So called maximum girth laws must have made Gallic eaters think twice before dipping into the butter plate or reaching for the bread bowl. All persons who weighed more than the legal limit for their height were fined.

The unfair part of such legislation was that not all fat people could afford to pay both high food bills and fines.

Maximum girth laws not only enforced temperance in food but in drink too. People today who imbibe Manhattans and Martinis without limit soon learn that the number of calories you take in, whether liquid or solid, must be either spent in energy or stored up in the fat deposit vaults around the waist line.

Summer is perhaps the easiest time to watch your calories. Hot weather dishes should be light, cold and free from fatty garnishes. A continued diet of salads, of course, will become tiresome and will not supply normal diet requirements.

But a hearty dinner salad on a hot night occasionally will keep both tempers and temperatures low.

Dinner Salad with Swiss Cheese. Serves 4

Combine 3 tablespoons salad oil and 1 tablespoon vinegar. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon grated onion and 1 teaspoon chopped parsley or chervil. Mix well. Keep in refrigerator until needed.

In a large salad bowl or mixing bowl place 1 cup of cooked drained fresh string beans or canned string beans. Add 2 large fresh tomatoes cut into wedges. Add 1-2 cup sliced cucumber, 1-2 cup sliced radishes and 1 cup of leftover cold lean meat cut into thin small slices. Meat may be beef, veal, lamb or ham.

Add dressing using only as much dressing as is needed to moisten ingredients. Let dressing and salad stand in refrigerator at least 1 hour to marinate.

Place leaves of lettuce on serving plates. Place salad mixture in centre. On each plate arrange 2 or 3 thin slices of Swiss cheese. Cheese should be rolled into small cylinder shapes and placed beside salad mixture.

Memorable Orange Services Held at St. Paul's Church

Stirling—On Sunday morning over 125 Orangemen gathered at Stirling Lodge Rooms L.O.L. 110, and marched behind Stirling Municipal band to St. Paul's United Church for a special service.

About forty L.O.B.A. members were also in attendance headed by a guard of honor from Stirling L.O.B.A. No. 655. Many Orange sisters and brothers were in attendance from the district and they all sat in a body in the church.

Fred Bateman, Deputy Grand Master, Ontario East, carried the flag up the aisle on this Dominion Day Sunday followed by L.O.B.A. members and L.O.L. members

On their return from the church, a guard of honor followed at the rear composed of Leslie McKeown, Master L.O.L. No. 110, Earl Wallace, Sid Demorest and County Master John B. Hagerman.

Many Representatives Lodges

Lodges were represented from many places in this district while several attended from Tanner, Wellman's, Springbrook, and the home lodge at Stirling. Several Orange ladies from a distance were in attendance which included Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Belleville.

St. Paul's church was resplendent with baskets of peonies in the lobby, while the pedestal vases were filled with gloxinias and double petunias, gifts of Mrs. R. Duffin and Mrs. Wm. Reynolds. A lovely bouquet of red roses sent to the parsonage by Mrs. J. H. Beatty of Glen Ross, graced the communion table.

The church was filled to capacity with the gallery also in use.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.T.C.M., presided over the music and the organ prelude.

The two choirs had the processional hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers", with "The Lord's Prayer in unison.

The Royal Junio rchoir sang very effectively "My Own Dear Land", by John Oxenham.

AWARDS MADE

At this point in the service, four young people, who have attended six full months regularly, received their Cross and Crown awards in a special ceremony at the altar rail. They were Marjorie Ketcheson, Ralph Carlisle, Donna Carlisle and Tommy Wells. The next three months will be the testing time with holidays on the scene. The pastor congratulated them on their efforts.

Janet and Charles Reynolds then sang their intial duet in public, "The Sabbath Morn", and were highly congratulated for their rendition of this lovely selection.

The responsive lesson was Psalm I. and Archie Sinclair, county chaplain, read the lesson in Romans I.

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker, graciously welcomed all visitors at the service and announced that the senior choir were staging their comedy operetta, "The Gypsy Rover," in October.

The offering was gathered by Messrs. Roy Duffin, Will Fox, Geo. Carlisle and Walter Elliott.

Fred Bateman, Deputy Grand Master of Ontario East, and a member of St. Paul's United Church, gave a brief message of welcome to members of both ladies' and men's Orange Lodges, and a word of commendation to the pastor, choir members and a special thank you to Mrs. Baker for her organ voluntary, "The Orange Parade."

The pastor gave the children a message on the theme, "Don't grumble, be content with your lot in life," and the large audience sang with one voice "Faith of Our Fathers."

Growth of Protestant Church

Rev. A. E. Baker gave a stirring message on the theme "Papal Indulgences and the Reformation Spirit." He traced Protestantism from its beginning when they had set up altars of loyalty and liberty. In 1690 the historic battle of the Boyne and before that the seige of Londonderry, where liberty has always been defended.

The dedication of the first Orange Lodge, No. 748, took place in tSirling on March 8th., 1857, and very soon they will be commemorating their 100th. anniversary.

The Orange Association is a bulwark of protection for, and a champion of the freedom of worship. It is composed of men and women who "fear God and honor the king." It's fraternal and social benefits have stood the test of time, and proven their value to the individual and community.

Orange Order Creed.

The Orange Order stands for the open bible, one flag, one school, a united Canada, with equal rights to all. Mr. Baker deplored the laxity of displaying flags throughout this country of ours and felt each individual should be keenly interested in the flag of freedom.

The pastor continued with the thought that all Protestants should be united in one Christian church—rather than so many varieties of Protestant churches.

The simple ideal of Protestantism is serving God to the best of one's individua lability. Orangism is known for its benevolence and it spreads the language of universal love and leaves no room for racial prejudices.

The speaker pointed out that in heaven all would be sons and daughters of God, with no distinction for any. He said "time marches on and let us be on the vanguard for a new day, laboring for the coming generation that truth will supersede all evil."

The Orange Order was built on the firm foundation of loyalty and Mr. Baker, speaking directly to the Orange members in the audience told them "keep your eye on the goal, true, sticks and stones will be hurled at you as you carry on, but remember these same missiles are found under the best apple trees, too."

Be True, Hold the Faith

In closing, Mr. Baker challegende the lodge members to keep the open Bible in your heart, home and schools, stick to your faith and then all men will respect the altar of true loyalty.

The service closed with three verses of "God Save Our Gracious King," and Mrs. Baker rendered an organ postlude, "A Mighty Fortress," while lodge members left the edifice with the congregation standing.

Johnny Bulla Figured to Win British Open

Troon, Scotland, July 5 (AP)—Johnny Bulla figures it will take a record score to win the British Open golf championship — and he aims to set it.

The 72-hole title grind began this morning with the first of four rounds by 93 qualifiers who had scores of 153 or better for two days' trials.

Bulla, a Pittsburgh pro, led with a four-under-par 140 over two courses.

His steady golf made him the talk of the tournament. Bookmakers were regretting they pegged him at 25-1, making him a long shot compared with defending champion Bobby Locke, favorite at 4-1.

Unusually clear weather with light, gusty breezes has prevailed here for the two qualifying days.

"If it stays like this," Bulla said, "I think it probably will take 279 or 280 to win and that's what I'm aiming at."

The record for the British Open is 283 set in 1932 by Gene Sarazen on another course. It has been tied four times since the Open has been played on this course only once before — in 1923. It took 295 to win.

Locke blew up yesterday and shot a four-over-par 74 on the Troon course. He bobbed his little white cap and said grumpily, "290 ought to be safe here."

The whole field plays one round today and one tomorrow, cutting down to a maximum of 40 lowest scorers for Friday's 36-hole stretch run.

Pointers Show Too Much Power For Planters

Point Anne Cementmen, with too much pitching and too much power at the plate sandbagged Stephen's Adamson 12-0 in a Commercial Softball League 'A' game at the Alemite Field last evening.

The issue was never in doubt from the first inning, when Finlan crashed out a home run to left field with Jack Hunter aboard. They followed up their three run first inning with four more in the second and romped in for the win.

Pat Maracle started for the winners and went seven innings before Big Jim Hunter came in for practice. Maracle walked one, struck out six and scattered three singles in copping the win. Hunter preserved the shutout striking out four and giving up a lone hit in the final two frames.

Frank Day started for Stephens-Adamson and in seven innings was shelled for 11 hits and a dozen runs. Frain went the last inning without incident.

Finlan with a home run and a single in four tries led the winners.

Temple, F. Deline, Rivers and Palmer hit safely for the losers.

Baseballs Same as They Were in 1910 So Why Should They Travel Farther?

Chicopee, Mass., July 5 — (AP) —Has anything happened to the 1950 baseball?

The answer in the factory where all major league baseballs are manufactured is:

"Absolutely nothing has happened to the baseball. It is just the same fundamentally as it has been since 1910."

Look elsewhere, says A. G. Spalding Company, if you want to find the reason for the modern splurge of home runs and big-scoring games. Since 1878 this company has made all National League balls. Through acquisition of A. J. Reach, it makes all the American League balls. Many minor leagues are served as well.

It is significant that with all the clamor raised about the recent epidemic of home runs, not one protest about the ball has been lodged by official baseball sources with the factory that makes it.

Sample driving tests made at the factory during the last 10 years show a variation from a low average distance of 351.2 feet into a headwind of 7.7 miles an hour in 1936 up to a maximum of 410 feet aided by a following wind of 5.8 miles an hour in 1935.

In 1949, for instance, tests on the mechanical batter averaged 379.4 feet to 400.9 feet, all into head winds. This year, on May 22, the tests showed 375.5 feet into a head wind of 5.3 miles and up to 403.8 feet June 26 with a following wind of 2.4 miles.

Until 1910 a centre of live rubber was used in baseballs. Then natural cork was introduced.

A cork centre cushioned in rubber—a minor change— was introduced in 1925 and in 1935 the National league went its independent way, also on minor point.

The National League wanted a slightly-heavier cover, with more prominent seams.

This last two years, when a committee headed by Clark Griffith of Washington Senators worked out a standard league ball. Now both leagues use identical balls—only the markings differ.

Minors and majors alike have the same specifications for a

Gates are Down In Intercounty

Kitchener, July 5 — (CP) — Gates are down in the intercounty baseball league. Officials say it's because of the weather.

Only Brantford Red Sox and St. Thomas Legion have averaged higher paid admissions than last year. Others—even the league-leading Waterloo Tigers —have slumped at the gate.

Cold damp weather is blamed, rather than the amusement tax levy imposed this year for the first time. The tax raised admissions about 10 cents.

Accurate statistics were lacking, but officials here said gates appeared to have fallen of as much as 15-20 per cent in some centres. They pointed to the Guelph Maple Leafs, now in the cellar, who have averaged only about 600 customers a game.

They said this is far in the red in a league where the agreed salary limit is $2,500 monthly and total expenditures much higher. Player costs are the highest they have ever been due to the import of high-priced U.S. stars, they said.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HEY, FELLAS!

The long distance telephone went into sudden action this morning and brought the news a lot of young baseball players have been waiting for.

Dale Jones, of the Philadelphia Phillies informed us that the team will definitely hold a four-day baseball "clinic" in Exhibition Park here from Monday July 17 through Thursday July 20. Mark these dates.

Arrangements have been completed with Parks Board Commissioner Jack Devine for the use of the grounds, so we're all ready to go.

The Pennsylvania team set the age limit at 16 to 22 years. Boys are requested to bring their glove, uniform and shoes when reporting to the field.

Everybody reporting will be put through the regular "school" course with every chance given him to prove his ability. Expenses incident to attending this camp will be refunded to boys signed to a contract.

Philadelphia, a rising power in the National League has extensive farm holdings and the school is designed to uncover promising youngsters for the clubs.

Pat Colgan and Dale Jones, Phillie Scouts will be in charge of the school.

Colgan, Director of the Clinics had a long career in baseball. Last year he managed the Utica Blue Sox in the Eastern League. He previously managed Carbondale, Pa., and Terre Haute, Ind., and other Philadelphia farm clubs. Pat caught for Scranton, Pa., and Louisville, Ky., in the Boston Red Sox chain for several years.

Jones pitched for the Phillies and several other teams in organized baseball and at one time was a member of the Detroit Tiger's organization. For several years he was coach of pitchers for the Phillies and their farm clubs. In addition to assisting Colgan, Jones handles the publicity for this activity, which has been a leading factor in the rise of the Phillies from a second division club to a National League Championship threat under Eddie Sawyer. This will be the tenth school Colgan and Jones have held throughout the United States and Canada this year in their search for talent.

As has been mentioned the school will be of four days duration. This has been designed so as to give players the fullest opportunity to present their best ability. It is felt that one day, or at least one appearance of a youth before the coaches is not fair to either, so the school was lengthened to its present four-day session.

Players will be instructed in whatever position they play and in team play. There will be no favoritism shown and each boy will be judged on his playing merits, adaptability to instruction and general baseball deportment.

This is easily one of the best baseball schools or clinics, as it is called, to be held in this part of Ontario. Reports from other centres where it has been held, state that it is thorough, has efficient, capable coaches who do not spare time or effort to give the proper instruction to prospects.

To get an inkling of the number of youths who will attend the school, coaches, managers or the youths themselves are requested to get in touch with the sports editor of this newspaper by mail or phone as soon as is convenient.

Remember, it is all free. There will be expert instruction and coaching, and those who are not selected as future prospects will derive a tremendous amount of knowledge through their attendance at the school.

AFTER ANOTHER

The run-hungry Belleville Cubs rested their weary batting eyes and arms yesterday and are now readied for that important tussle at Point Anne tonight where they meet the Ox Point team in a scheduled Belleville District Baseball League game. The Cubs' batting averages, especially those of Peter Jones, Dave Lockyer and Huck Reeves durned near burst at the seams after Monday night's slugfest against the Cannifton Clippers, and they'll be out to expand the B. A.'s at the Point Anners' expense come twilighting. Don't know who will essay the task of stifling the Ox Point bludgeons, but it will possibly be Gab Moynes or Bob Bunton.

IREDAND VERSUS AUSTRALIA

"And sure, it'll be me that will be acomin' awaltzin' wid you, Matilda" hummed Timmy Geohagen, the Irish edition of Mister Sandow. The Irish of him had the lyric slightly askew but the melody was lilted in a swate Oirish tenor, bedad. Timmy, while not a John McCormack, can warble "The Rose of Tralee" wid the bist of 'em. But that's not the pint. Timmy was merely creating an Australian atmosphere so he'll feel more or less at home Friday evening when he meshes muscles with Fred Atkins, the hardrock from down under. Atkins is no pushover, nor can it be said that he is the sissy type. He is rugged, tough, and can be real nasty at times. So the bout should be a severe test for the broth of a bhoy from County Leitrim. To add zest to this tasty entree will be the clash between Jim Moore and Ray Villmer, a bout that will not lack for speed and action. Opening the ceremonies will be conducted by Messieurs Toar Morgan, and Patrick Flanagan.

A NICE GESTURE

The boys of the Commercial Softball League "B" section now have something to line their batting sights on. President Don Lee informed us yesterday that the Conger Lehigh Coal Company branch here, through its manager, Bill Smith, has donated a handsome trophy to be awarded annually to the leading batter of the section. A miniature of the trophy will also be given to the winner as his permanent possession. The winner's name will be inscribed on the trophy which will be on display in the window of the McNab Sports Centre, Front Street.

Five-Run Splurge in First Frame Aids Napanee Athletics To Down Bata Shoemen 7-6

The Napanee Athletics came out of their recent tailspin as they took advantage of three costly Batawa errors to rack up a 7-6 win in a COBL fixture under the lights at the Fair Grounds last night.

The win drops the Shoemen back into the COBL cellar with Picton whom they take on in a twilight game in Picton tomorrow night.

The Athletics teed off in the first inning for five runs as they batted around. Vern Green led off with a triple to right field and came home as Dick Bridgeman lost Markle's pop up to short for two bases. Hayes connected for a solid double to left field to score Markle. Gerow hammered a double to centrefield to plate Hayes, coming around to third on Jocko's single. Jocko stole second with Gerow racing in from third to beat the relay back to the plate. Bud Green grounded out third to first as Jocko advanced. McTaggart dumped one down the third baseline with Jocko scoring because Acquino was off the plate. Burtt went down third to first and Hooper lifted one to left field to end the inning.

Batawa struck back for three runs in the bottom of the first. Carson was hit by Hooper with two away. Watson and Acquino singled, and Rankin powered one into left field to account for all the runs. The Shoemen picked up the equalizers in the second frame on an error to Vern Green, a single by Beckstead and a double by Carson.

Overthrow Didn't Help

Both teams went scoreless until the sixth when the Athletics taking advantage of a walk to Bud Green, singles by McTaggart, and Vern Green, and an overthrow at third by Beckstead, pushed over two runs.

Batawa counted once in the seventh with Acquino, who had reached first on a fielder's choice, coming all the way home when Burtt dropped Rankin's hoist to short centrefield.

Willis started on the mound for Batawa and in eight innings walked three, struck out six, and gave up eight hits in front of a shaky defence for the loss. Wright toiled the final frame without incident.

Hooper started for Napanee and in three innings gave up seven hits for five runs. McTaggart took the victory in relief, walking none, striking out three and giving up two scattered hits for one run.

Carson led the Batawa hitters with a double and a single in four tries while Gerow, with the same record, and Vern Green with a triple and a single were best at the plate for the winners.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Greenwood Lake, N.Y., July 5 (AP)—En route to Tiberio Mitri's training camp, Al Weill was ribbing Saverio Turiello, Mitri's manager...Al can claim that privilege because he used to manage Turiello, and Saverio had laid himself open by almost blowing a gasket when his "Tiger of Trieste" had been matched for what proved to be an easy victory over Dick Wagner.."If anything had happened in that fight I'm dead," Turiello explained. "I have to change my name in Italy".."What if something happens in this fight?" Someone asked, dragging in Tiberio's coming title tussle with middleweight champ Jake Lamotta .... "I'm dead, too," Turiello replied seriously, "but I die honorable." ...Weill had the last word: "You're dead anyway, you gotta box him tomorrow."

Let's Meet Mitri

Mitri, who will be 24 July 12, the day he faces Lamotta, might pass for a scatback on a football team...Only the breadth of his shoulders and the muscles of his upper arms stamp him as a boxer ...He likes to clown around training camp, but he's a serious young man when he talks about fighting...Walking beside a traffic-laden highway, Mitri let his eyes roam fondly over a shiny motorcycle. "I have one at home in Trieste, a red one," he said.

No Comment

Back at camp, someone asked Turiello if Mitri could have beaten Marcel Cerdan.. "Cerdan when he was champion—about even," he conceded grudgingly.. "But Americans never really saw Cerdan—too old. He was a three times better fighter than Americans saw."

Coach Adamant Players Will Play With Cleveland

By The Canadian Press

A report that two former Villanova football players had signed with a Canadian team drew a rejoinder Tuesday night from Paul Brown, coach and general manager of Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

John Sandusky, tackle, and Tom Clavin, back, were the players involved. The report from Ottawa was that they had signed with the Rough Riders of Canada's Big Four Football League.

"Both Sandusky and Clavin signed contracts with us and accepted bonuses we offered them," said Brown. If the players fail to report to the Browns, "We will take legal action against them."

Members of Canada's Davis cup tennis team got the feel of grass underfoot in Montreal Tuesday as they started limbering up for their encounter with Australia on grass courts July 14, 15 and 16.

Canada's foursome is composed of Brendan Macken, Lorne Main, Henri Rochon and George Robinson.

Macken showed a strong forehand and an accurate service in a singles encounter with Rochon. He displayed a tricky second service, scoring a number of aces.

Main, who has been home in Vancouver only a few weeks in the last two years, had trouble with his two-handed baseline shots. His service was steady while his overhead smashes were strong.

Rochon had his drop shot working effectively when he teamed with Robinson against Macken and Main. Robinson, veteran of the team, had his service down pat. His volleying, a strong point, was equally reliable.

Manitoba's 1950 Willingdon cup team probably won't better its best effort of third in the interprovincial golf play, but the four members feel that they can't get much more bad luck this season.

The Manitoba foursome was decided last weekend after a 72-hole playoff over two Winnipeg courses—Elmhurst and Pine Ridge. And there was only one change from last year's squad.

He is Greg Macdonald a member of the 1948 team. The repeaters are Mike Pidlaski, his brother Bill and Al Boes.

Normally hampered by a short summer, the Manitoba shotmakers were further set back this year by the floods which swept across a number of the courses.

J. S. Woodward, Saskatchewan director of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, announced Tuesday that players with handicaps of 10 and under from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be eligible for the Canadian amateur at Saskatoon July 17-22.

He said the concession was granted by the association to encourage prairie entries. Handicap limit for those in other provinces and the United States remains at seven strokes.

More than 200 entries from Quebec, Ontario and the United States will vie for honors in the 23rd annual shield competition; invitation golf tournament at Murray Bay, Que., July 9 to 15.

Open to all amateurs, the shield competition will be a 36-hole, medal play and will be run in conjunction with the annual invitation tournament sponsored by the Province of Quebec Golf Association. The women's invitation tournament to be played July 13, will be 18-hole, medal play.

The big names in United States power-boat racing will be heard from Saturday in the second running of the Maple Leaf International classic on the Detroit River off riverside in subarban Windsor.

The biggest and newest name may be among them.

Six Teams Will Play in Tourney At Toronto

Toronto, July 5— (CP) — Six Central Ontario baseball teams from authorized leagues will be admitted to the Toronto and district sandlot tournament sponsored by the National Baseball Congress. The three-day tournament starts July 28.

Winner of the tournament, in which Mayfairs triumphed last year, will represent Toronto in the Canadian championship at London, Ont., Aug. 21. All teams participating at London will be eligible to compete in the 1951 tournament to decide the team to represent Canada at all-global series in Japan.

The tournament at the Millen Stadium here will embrace circuits north to Gravenhurst, east to Belleville, south to Hamilton and west to Brantford.

Average Crowd Exactly Same As Last Year

New York, July 5 — (AP) — The average major league baseball crowdfor July 4, 1950 — 28,531. The average major league baseball crowd for July 4, 1949—28,531.

It's just another oddity added to the many which baseball has produced this season.

Biggest baseball throng yesterday was 49,316 at the polo grounds where New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers split.

The four national League parks attracted 199,714 fans against 118,418 in 1949.

The total of the three American League parks—one park was rained out—was 87,026. A year ago, that circuit's full schedule drew 138,363.

Phillies and Tigers Will be Pennant Winners in Majors If July 4 Legend Holds True

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Phillies and Tigers to clash in the 1950 World Series—that's what the signpost says.

If tradition is to be upheld, then the second-place Philadelphia club in the National League and the first place Detroit team in the American should win the flags.

For years baseball men have stood by the legend that the teams in first place on July 4 were almost certain to meet in the World Series.

That is only a half-truth.

Figures for the last 15 years show that 13 of the American League pace-setters on that significant July 4 marker have gone on to win pennants. In the National League, only seven have fulfilled the legend.

Of the eight trailing clubs to win in the National, five rose from the runner-up spot to overtake the leaders. So it appears that the second-place Phils stand just as good a chance as the front-running St. Louis Cardinals of winning the pennant.

Here's the race today following yesterday's bargain bills:

Detroit leads New York by four games in the American with Cleveland five games behind the Boston 6 1-2. St. Louis tops Philadelphia by 1 1-2 games in National, Boston trails by 2 1-2 and Brooklyn by four.

Of the seven doubleheaders played (rain washed out the Athletics Red Sox twin bill in Boston), only the Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds won both games. The Cards whipped Chicago Cubs 4-1 and 4-3 to pick up a full game on the Phils. The Reds beat the Pirates twice, 8-4, and 5-4.

Phils Trample Braves

In a pair of swatfests, the Phils trampled the Braves 14-5 in the opener but Boston came back to win the second, 12-9. New York Giants shaded the Dodgers 5-4 in the first game but dropped the second 5-3.

Detroit lost a half-game off its lead when it divided a doubleheader with Chicago White Sox, while Yankees gained a victory and a tie against Washington. After bowing 4-1, the Tigers struggled to a 10-9 vctory. The Yankees won the opener 16-9 then saw the second game halted by darkness after nine innings with the score deadlocked at 3-3.

St. Louis Browns whipped Cleveland 8-3 after the Indians won the opener 8-7.

Yesterday's fireworks included three grandslam homers. That tied a record for most grand slams in one day. Ken Wood of the Browns hit one as did Andy Seminick of the Phillies and Sid Gordon of the Braves, tying a record held by seven others.

Al Dark slugged a four-bagger in each game. That gave the Giant shortstop a home in each of his last four games. Stan Musial rapped a pair of homers for the Cards, one in each game.

Derry Leading In Home Runs In International

(By The Associated Press)

Russ Derry's favorite game is run, rabbit, run. The lanky Rochester outfielder has sent "jack" all the way 18 times this season to lead the International League in smacking home runs.

And when Russell, the deadpan outfielder, is hitting 'em, all's well with Rochester.

He blasted a couple last night against Montreal to help the Red Wings take two, 4-0 and 8-5. The twin triumphs boosted Rochester's lead to three games over Jersey City.

Tommy Poholsky fired a five-hitter in the opener, posting his 10th victory against two losses. Derry's 17th with one on in the sixth, iced the issue.

An eight-run fifth inning decided the nightcap against Carl Erskine. Derry capped that blast with a three-run homer. Bill Reeder won his seventh game.

Bob Raney of Baltimore stopped Syracuse 2-1 on two hits after Syracuse had won, 11-6. He had a no-hitter until the seventh. Then Carden Gillenwater and Claude Corbitt reached him for consecutive singles.

Al Rubeling hit two homers and drove in five runs for Syracuse in the opener. The Chiefs had 14 hits in all off three Baltimore hurlers.

Toronto and Buffalo split, Toronto taking the opener 9-4; Buffalo the nightcap, 5-2.

Clem Hausmann stopped Toronto with three hits in the afterpiece. Steve Ridzik, who hit a homer, picked up his fifth victory in the opener.

Brooklyn Gets Seven of 25 Jobs To Dominate Team

By JACK HAND

New York, July 5 (AP)—The stumbling Brooklyn Dodgers dominate the National League All-Star squad named today by Manager Burt Shotton. They got seven of the 25 jobs.

Shotton included his two aces—Don Newcombe and Preacher Roe—in the eight-man pitching staff to face the American leaguers Tuesday at Chicago's Comiskey Park.

The Nationals, non-winners since 1944, also will have the crafty control pitching of Larry Jansen of New York Giants, perhaps the hottest pitcher in the league.

Philadelphia contributes a pair—23-year-old Robin Roberts and Jim Konstanty, strictly a reliefer with a puzzling sinker. Despite his 11-win record, Boston's Johnny Sain is passed up for his left-handed teammate, Warren Spahn, last year's starter. Roe and Spahn are the only southpaws on the team.

Ewell Blackwell of Cincinnati is back for the fifth time.

Bob Rush of Chicago is the eighth man. He and Roberts are the youngest on the staff.

Only real surprises in Burt's pitching selections are omission of Sain and his failure to name a single St. Louis hurler.

Picked by Fan Vote

The starters, except pitchers, were picked by fan vote with 3,167,326 participating. All must play at least the first three innings. No pitcher is allowed to go more than three unless the game goes into extra innings.

Stan Musial of St. Louis will be on first base. Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn is the fans' second-base choice. Marty Marion of St. Louis is the starting shortstop and Philadelphia's Willie (Puddin' Head) Jones at third.

1 Shotton named the Dodgers' Gil Hodges for first base relief and Pee Wee Reese for shortstop. He also chose two extra second basemen—Red Schoendienst of St. Louis and Eddie Stanky of New York.

Behind the starting outfield of Enos Slaughter of St. Louis, Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh and Hank Sauer of Chicago, Shotton called on Duke Snider of Brooklyn, Johnny Wyrostek of Cincinnati, Dick Sisler of the Phils and Andy Pafko of the Cubs.

Campanella Catcher

Roy Campanella of Brooklyn, the fans' choice and probably unanimous selection of all baseball men, is the No. 1 catcher. He'll be helped by Boston's Walker Cooper, named for the eighth time.

Next to the seven-man Dodger contingent in numbers are the Cards and Phillies, each with four men. Chicago has three, Cincinnati and New York and Boston, two each, and Pittsburgh one—Kinner.

The complete squad: .. .. ..

Pitchers:

Larry Jansen, New York; Robin Roberts and Jim Konstanty, Philadelphia; Preacher Roe and Don Newcombe, Brooklyn; Bob Rush, Chicago; Warren Spahn, Boston; and Ewell Blackwell, Cincinnati.

Infielders:

Stan Musial, Red Schoendienst and Marty Marion, St. Louis; Jackie Robinson, Gil Hodges and Pee Wee Reese, Brooklyn; Eddie Stanky, New York, and Willie Jones, Philadelphia.

Outfielders:

Enos Slaughter, St. Louis; Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh; Hank Sauer and Andy Pafko, Chicago; Duke Snider, Brooklyn; Johnny Wyrostek, Cincinnati, and Dick Sisler, Philadelphia.

Catchers:

Roy Campanella, Brooklyn and Walker Cooper, Boston.

Baseball Roundup

(By The Canadian Press)

You don't move ahead when you take two steps backward for every two forward.

That's what's ailing Galt Terriers of the Intercounty Senior Baseball League. Terriers took the backward step Tuesday when they dropped a 7-3 verdict to Kitchener Legionnaires.

It was only Saturday that Terriers finally snapped out of a long losing streak. Now they're working on another. Unless they start putting those wins end-to-end, they aren't going to get ahead very fast.

Terriers lost the game in the eighth, when Legion pushed over four runs to break up a 3-3 ball game. The runs came on two singles, a sacrifice, a walk, two more singles, and another walk.

Galt missed their big chance in the sixth when they loaded the bases with two out and one run in but Wally Biggs came in to fan Hary Mooradian and retire the side. Biggs blanked Terriers the rest of the way and got credit for the win.

The only other scheduled Intercounty game, London at St. Thomas, was postponed because of rain.

In a Niagara Senior League game in Welland, Danny Patakfalvi pitched the home-towners to a 2-1 victory over Niagara Falls Fords, Patakfalvi also drove in his team's only runs with a two-run homer in the second inning.

Toronto Ace Bowling Centre moved into a first - place tie with Oshawa Merchants in the Viaduct League by trouncing Toronto Dover Men's Shops 15-3 behind the six-hit pitching of veteran Cam Church. Church also banged out four hits, including a homer and double.

CHILD DROWNED

Blaine Lake, Sask., July 4 — (CP) — Valerie Kitchula, 18 months old, was drowned Monday in a 10-gallon 18-inch-high earthenware crock.

Her mother and grandmother had been washing clothes and though the child's disappearance was noticed within a matter of minutes, it was almost a half - hour before the baby was discovered face-down in the crock.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When partner has bid or doubled he has given you some kind of information. Whether definite or not, he has given you some sort of indication of what to lead. Therefore, your lead is not blind.

When partner has given you no indication of what to lead, you are called upon to make a blind lead. But you are not blind to what your own hand contains. Your blind lead should not be blind.

Look at what your hand contains. Decide first what suits not to lead from. This will leave the suits that should be led from. All you need then know is which card to lead from such remaining suit or suits.

On the subject of leads my classes are advised not to lead a suit bid by opponent. One other don't is fundamentally applied. It is: Against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

Invariably I am asked why? So, take an illustration. South is the declarer at four spades when the clubs are strewn over the four hands as shown here:

NORTH
♣J 6 4 2

WEST ♣K 9 7 3
EAST ♣10 8 5

SOUTH
♣A Q

Don't lead away from an ace or a king against a suit contract. So, west should not lead a club from his holding. Follow the results in this case if he should lead a club.

South will win two club tricks with ace and queen if west leads a club. The west king will then go to the boneyard. It will be ruffed by declarer on the third or later round.

West thus loses a valuable trick thereby. And the same would be true if the club queen was in dummy north. Or the ace was in dummy north and the queen was in the south hand.

This is only one simple example of how a trick is lost by the leading away from a king in a suit contract. And no good player will agree to a play that deliberately loses a trick unnecessarily.

It is committing partnercide.

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 5 (AP)—Don't mention men to Joan Blondell. She has given them up for ever. Or so she says.

The bouncy bonde is in town after shedding her third husband, Broadway producer Mike Todd, in Las Vegas. made the mistake of asking her if she thought she'd get hitched again.

"I don't know why I'm even talking to you," she retorted. "When I see men I feel like taking a scythe and swooping away at them."

Fortunately her gesture was strictly figurative. But there was no doubt that her late marriage had left her very much anti-men.

"I've tried marriage and it hasn't worked," she said. "The trouble now is that I've got to convince my children that marriage is a wonderful thing." She indicated that will be one of the greatest performances of her career.

"For four years, my husband didn't want me to work, or at least he said he didn't. Now I'll go anywhere for a job and do anything—pictures, legit, television, even strip if necessary."

As an assertion of her independence, Miss Blondell now is sheltering her family in a couple of trailers at the beach. Her family includes her children by Dick Powell—Norman, 15, and Ellen, 12—plus a boxer dog and two ducks. The actress is here to play a role in "For Heaven's Sake."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was reeding the sissiety page, saying to pop, Well William, I see the glammerous Nancy Skyler and her handsome husband are back from their honeymoon, and now I suppose they'll be like any other married cupple.

What do you want them to be like for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, My, what an unsentimental question. I suppose you dont even remember our own honeymoon, when we were together like thick and thin every whole long wonderful day. And now the entire day goes by without our even seeing each other, like 2 people on separate continents with an ocean between them, she said.

But a man must werk, my dear, pop said. If he wants to feed himself and his mate he's got to obey the clarion call of the office, he said, and ma said, Of course, naturelly, and that's just the sad pathetic part of it.

Well now by gollies I mite just be able to fix something up, at least for a while, pop said. With all the paper werk I've got ahead of me, I think I can manage to werk half of every day at home, if you feel it would make you happier, he said, and ma said, Goodness, what a gassly thawt. Jenny Risling's husband is some kind of a writer, and Jenny says there's no more mizzerable existance on land or sea than having a man under your feet all day, and of course even half a day is the same principal.

Yee gods, aren't you being just a trifle inconsistent? pop said, and ma said, Not at all, I'm meerly being sensible and practical.

Proving ladies never admit they lose arguments and probably being the same sensation as winning them.

Open Canada's Door Wide To Immigrants is Object Of New Order-in-Council

Ottawa, July 4 — (CP) — Immigration Minister Harris expressed hope today that movement of British settlers to Canada will be stimulated by relaxation of United Kingdom currency restrictions.

Mr. Harris said at a press conference that British immigration has slumped seriously and that any improvement will depend on the U.K. lowering the bars against emigrants taking out funds.

He noted that Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said a few days ago that the British government was considering increasing the amount emigrants could take out in the first year.

"Such a policy would be helpful," he said. "The big stumbling block has been capital."

British Immigration

(At present, prospective settlers may take out only £250—about $770—a year for the first four years.)

The minister said immigration from the British Isles—including Eire—had dropped to 22,201 last year from a post-war high of 51,408 in 1946. In the first five months of this year, it plunged to 5,351 from 10,472 in the same time last year.

Mr. Harris was explaining provisions of a new order-in-council, announced in the Commons last week, which is aimed at opening Canada's door wide to prospective immigrants. The order allows several new classes of settlers to enter the country almost automatically, and gives the Minister power to admit others who previously had to obtain an order-in-council through cabinet.

A general streamlining of the immigration procedure is being undertaken, Mr. Harris said, with a view to facilitating the admission of those immigrants considered to be able to make a contribution to Canadian life.

The move was taken following a general drop in immigration last year to 95,217 from the post war high of 125,414 in 1948.

Mr. Harris said he could not estimate how many persons might be brought into the country yearly in future under the broadened regulations but particular care would be taken to see that the labor market was not disturbed. The policy was that anyone who could improve the business and labor situation of the country would be admitted.

Mr Harris said that apart from discussions with Britain over the question of freeing more funds for immigrants, similar discussions had taken place with other countries.

Sent to Trial In Marlborough House 'Break-in'

London, July 4 — (Reuters) — Gerard O'Brien wanted a "likely-looking" house to break into and "sheer accident" made it Queen Mary's home, a court was told today.

O'Brien, a 26-year-old gardener, is charged with assaulting the Queen Mother's housekeeper, Mrs. Alice Knight; with assaulting Mrs. Knight's attendant, Mrs. Winifred Ralph; with being armed with a knife; and with stealing a purse elsewhere.

O'Brien, who pleaded not guilty and reserved defence, was committed for trial at Old Bailey before a high court and jury. No date was immediately set for the trial.

The offences all allegedly occurred the night of June 23, after O'Brien had been drinking.

The Marlborough House break-in and the subsequent search through the Royal home for O'Brien, who finally was unearthed in the cellar, kept London agog for days.

O'Brien, reduced to prostration by the search, was said by Prosecutor F. Donald Barry to have been in a state of collapse when found and to have told police: "Please Sir, don't hang me for it."

Barry said there was no reason to disbelieve O'Brien's statement that he did not have the faintest idea what house he was breaking into.

THREE KILLED IN CRASH

Chicago, July 5 — (AP) — A United States torpedo bomber crashed into Lake Michigan yesterday, killing three men aboard.

NATURE UNSPOILED

YOURS TO PROTECT

The GOLDFINCH is the common "canary" we see all-year round. The male is solid yellow, with black cap, wings and tail. The yellow warbler is all yellow. In winter he's much duller in color. He lives on seeds, beetles and insects, and should be protected.

Aircraft Anchors Shorten Landings

Dayton, O. (AP) — Engineers at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base are experimenting with anchors for small aircraft and gliders.

The experiments involve a steel tube, 28 inches long, filled with rocket propellant.

The tube, 1⅜ inches in diameter —is inserted in a holder near the tail assembly of the plane. Just before landing the pilot pushes a button in the cockpit. That discharges the rocket propellant in the tube, driving the anchor 18 inches into the ground at a 45-degree angle.

Attached to the anchor is a 200-foot stainless steel ribbon wound on a hydraulic brake. This absorbs the energy spent during braking and permits a smooth, easy stop.

Engineers say 700 feet is the normal landing distance for one type of small plane when landing at 75 miles per hour. With the explosive anchor in use, only 168 feet are required.

Airmen say this shortening of landing area will prove an advantage to liaison planes and gliders, which in combat often are required to land in much less space than under normal conditions.

SWANK CLUB RAIDED

Chicago, July 5 (AP) — The swank Tam O'Shanter Country Club was raided last night by police who seized 27 slot-machines and arrested the club owner and president, George S. May.

May, promoter of the annual Tam O'Shanter golf tournament, richest in the world, was charged with being a keeper of gaming devices. He posted $500 bond for appearance in court July 10.

The raiders also hit six other spots yesterday.

Police swarmed into Tam O'Shanter while 2,500 club members and guests were watching a fireworks display.

Romania Expels American Roman Catholic Bishop

London, July 5 (AP)— Romania has expelled the American Roman Catholic Bishop Gerald Patrick O'Hara of Georgia, and two other members of the Apostolic Nunciature on charges of spying, the Romanian radio said today. They must quit the country within three days.

Besides Bishop O'Hara, the foreign office ousted Msgr. Delmester de Chonbert, auditor of Nunciature, and Msgr. John Kirk, secretary of the office.

O'Hara was accused last week during the trial in Bucharest on treason charges of his chauffeur and six others of engaging the chauffeur to spy for him. The Bishop's chauffeur, Nicolau Popescu, was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment.

Mother Measures 3-Mile Road to School With Tape

Margate, England, July 4 — (Reuters) — Three miles is a long way to walk to school, so Mrs. William Parry decided that if the school board would not supply transportation, her two daughters could stay home.

Authorities said the Parrys lived just 150 yards inside the three-mile zone which would have entitled the children to free transportation.

Then a summons arrived for failing to send the children to school.

Mrs. Parry got a tape measure and measured the road to school, found it tallied 396 yards over the three-mile mark.

In court the magistrate dismissed the Parry's summons.

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

Crouched in a thick growth of Jasmine, exactly the right height and thickness to conceal a small, slender person like himself, Arnold Pfieffer looked through a window, open a few inches, and saw Stephanie Smith talking to Hagar Blair. Stephanie had the cameo in her hands.

"Isn't it lovely, Hagar? You can't imagine what it means to have it in my hands after all these years."

Arnold saw Hagar plump down on the bed opposite Stephanie and say: "Hold on girl. The cameo's not really yours yet, you know. We can't play finders-keepers when there's just been a murder because of that brooch. Or, at least, we're assuming that's why somebody stuck a knife into Falter."

Arnold stiffened. So they knew about Martin!

"Another thing," Hagar continued. "What's the story on this cameo? As far as you're concerned I mean. You act like a Crusader holding the Holy Grail. I've got to know whether to aid and abet you or turn the thing over to the police." She brooded. "Have to, anyhow, I guess."

Arnold shuddered. What would the police find out?

Then Stephanie began to talk. "You can't Hagar!"

Hagar shrugged: "It's evidence in a murder, don't forget!"

"But you want it too! You can't give it up."

"Oh, yes I can. Do you think I want Chief Peters to jug me for complicity? We're already suspects—or will be, anyhow, by tomorrow morning. But I think this is a good time for you to give me the story on the cameo. Your story, that is."

Stephanie spoke: "Nell O'Neill is my aunt."

Arnold choked back an involuntary gasp.

The girl's eyes were lowered to the cameo: "She doesn't know it, of course, she hasn't seen me since I was a little girl. I despise Nellya, even if she is my mother's sister. She stole this cameo from my mother. My mother was dying then. She lived only a few days after Nellya left us."

Arnold forgot the penetrating salt air. He moved dangerously close to the window to hear Hagar's words:

"How did you know she was here in this little corner of the country?"

"I saw her picture in the paper when she married Tom O'Neill. There was a big story about it being his fifth marriage. It told all about how much money his other marriages had cost him in settlements and allimony. And the article called Nellya 'the blond Russian dancer.'"

"Umm. I think I remember seeing it. She was a ballerina, wasn't she?"

Stephanie gave a short, bitter laugh. "A ballerina! One must have a soul to be a ballerina! My mother was the ballerina. My mother was dancing the ballet in Moscow when she was only nine years old."

Hagar stared at the girl. "This is the most fantastic story I've ever heard."

"My mother showed me that it was a locket. It contains a picture of her and of my father."

"Let me see."

Stephanie looked troubled. "I don't know how to open it. My mother used to open it and show me the pictures. You press something and the cameo springs away from the frame. I think I can learn how it opens if only I can keep the cameo long enough."

Stephanie spoke again, beseechingly: "Do you understand, Hagar? It gives me an identity. A family!"

Arnold ducked as Hagar stood abruptly and faced the window. "What happened to your father?"

"Mother received word that he was killed in Russia during the revolution. He was trying to escape and come to her. He was captured and shot."

"He must have been on the losing side. Did he have a title?"

"I don't know. But sometimes mother used to tease me when I was naughty and say that little countesses didn't behave that way."

"Great graven gods! You don't suppose you're a countess?"

Stephanie smiled. "I don't suppose so. I've always thought of myself as an orphan who started making her own way in the world by working in a department store in Chicago."

She turned away again and perched on the foot of the bed. "Can you prove the cameo's yours?"

"No."

"Then how do you intend to get it away from Nell?"

"She'll sell it. We know that."

"Wonder how she happened to let Falter get hold of it?" Hager was speculating. "Well with him dead, there's no question of her ownership. She can claim it—if she can find it. But, here's something we've almost lost sight of: Who put it in my collection cabinet. And why?" Closing her eyes tightly she appeared to be thinking hard. "Umm. I think I know the answer to that one, though."

VISITING GOLFER: "I hope to be in Toronto the last two weeks in July. Being an ardent golfer I would like to find out at what courses in and about Toronto a non-member can play. Do I need any business or personal credentials?"

The following courses are all public and all in and about Toronto: Credit Valley, Glen Leven, Humber Valley, Lakeview, Pine Point, Rouge Hills, St. Andrews, Summerlea, and Tam O'Shanter. The Ontario Golf Association tells us that to play at any of these courses you would not need credentials.

FALL FASHIONS: "All the forecasts claim that skirts will be much shorter this fall. How short is that? What is the best fall colour? What about hats? Will short fur coats be popular?"

Fashion experts claim skirts will be 14 to 15 inches from the floor—some even shorter. The trend is definitely up. Leading fall colour is grey with all its variations. After that comes brown of every shade from leaf to beaver. Hats are small, off the face, and very lightly trimmed. Short fur jackets are increasingly popular for wear up to Christmas.

Defence Planners Step up Security Moves in Canada

Claxton Says Dominion Will Not be Caught Napping

Ottawa, July 6.—(CP)—Canada's defence planners, a weather eye cocked on the Korean war, have stepped up initial moves for the the internal security of the Dominion.

Defence Minister Claxton at a press conference yesterday disclosed various defensive steps, some of which he said had no connection with the Korean fighting. But he left the impression that Canada would not be caught napping should a war emergency arise.

The Defence Minister said:

1. Canada has a defence plan "which could be put into effect rapidly" if any of her cities were attacked. He did not elaborate on this statement, given in reply to a question as to whether attacks on cities like Victoria or Vancouver could be handled tomorrow.

2. Peacetime conscription forms no part of government policy—"we're not in favor of it". Canada's primary need, along with that of her Allies, was more equipment rather than more men.

3. Anti-aircraft defences will be bolstered around the Sault Ste. Marie Locks area. It was learned later that 3.7-inch anti-aircraft guns will be moved shortly to that vital shipping channel between Lakes Superior and Michigan and the locks also will get more equipment soon "under a program arrived at independently of Korea". Speaking generally of the reserve army, Mr. Claxton said it was being built up and will take all the men it can get.

5. Training of civil defence experts will begin "in the immediate future" at certain armed forces schools and will include the handling of atomic and other kinds of attack.

GOVT.-OPERATED FRUIT, VEGETABLE MARKETS MOOTED

London, July 6 — (CP) — Cheaper fruits and vegetables may be a basic part of labor's plans for the next election.

Party leaders are reliably reported to be studying proposals for establishing government markets throughout Britain.

Trained staffs, probably including many middlemen absorbed from the present system, would handle and grade all fruits and vegetables at government depots which presumably would replace such famed distribution centres as London's Covent Garden.

Even the most optimistic socialist spokesmen admit trying to reduce retail prices is a tricky, thankless task. But there are signs that the cost of living will be one of the main issues whenever the next election is held.

There is popularly supposed to be a continuing struggle within the party regarding its attitude toward further nationalization. Whichever wing emerges triumphant—those who want to call a halt now or those who favor all-out "socialism"—retail prices will still play a dominant part.

Included in Manifesto

In its maifesto for last February's general election, labor made this promise:

"Fruit and vegetables: More wholesale and retail markets under municipal or other public ownership, together with improved storage facilities, will reduce the present waste in marketing."

Little has been heard of this since the election. Similar silence has enveloped a labor proposal for an "independent consumer advice centre," which would counsel housewives on what brands give the best value for the money.

Now both ideas are reported under consideration by a cabinet committee.

Whatever happens, it seems clear that labor leaders are determined to embody some fresh and appealing proposals in the next Speech from the Throne, outlining government legislative plans, in the autumn. Because of the present precarious parliamentary situation, the address that opened this parliament will be remembered for promising legislaion to keep cattle from straying across highways—a curious contrast to a state opening rich in color and fanfare.

Moscow Press Attacks U.S.

Moscow, July 6 — (AP) — The Moscow press attacked "rampant United States imperialists" in discussions of the Korean war today and for the first time criticised Holland and Australia for their part in the fighting.

An Izvestia editorial said "United States imperialists are reaping what they have sown," adding that the strengthening of the answer of millions to "American aggression" in Korea.

The editorial said the cry "hands off Korea" expresses the wrath of the people against "American interventionists and their British, Australian, Dutch and other abettors."

Moscow newspapers also carried a Tass dispatch from Pyongyang, North Korean capital, saying that young Koreans are volunteering for front-line duty. More than 115,000 had joined the army by July 1, and 30,000 of them quickly asked to be moved to the front, the dispatch said.

Govt. Will Erect Modern Piggery As Experiment

Toronto, July 6. (CP)—Alarmed by the number of young pigs being lost throughout the province the Ontario government has decided to go into the pig raising business.

Agriculture Minister Kennedy said today he was seeking a site for the erection of a modern piggery for experimental and educational purposes. It will likely be located in Western Ontario.

"The demonstration farm will be operated by a farmer and the government will subsidize it," he said. "I am certain that the plan will save the province large sums annually."

Improvement of pasture lands will also be the subject of a study by the department. The number of demonstration pasture farms in the province is going to be increased to six."

Menzies May Renew Call to Canada And Other Powers to Join Pacific Pact

Ottawa, July 6 —(CP)— Prime Minister Menzies of Australia, due here within the next two weeks or so, will probably use the Korean war as the basis for a renewed call to Canada and other powers to join in a Pacific Defence Pact, informed quarters said today.

Reports from Canberra indicate that he will come here from London and Washington and will be here a few days. Canadian officials said he could be assured of a hearty welcome and will see Prime Minister St. Laurent and the cabinet.

Australian officials said the Menzies government has been pressing for a Pacific pact for months but has stipulated that it must have teeth and must include the United States. The Korean action, it is felt, has taken the Western World in a long way in both directions on an informal basis.

Canada's stand has been that while countries such as the U.S., Britain and India say a Pacific pact is premature there is not much sense in pressing for one at this time.

Mr. Menzies is also expected to discuss methods for increasing Canadian - Australian trade, now hobled by the dollar shortage, and for retaining the services of the steamer Aorangi, now nearing the end of her career as the only regular sea link between the two countries chiefly because of the same shortage.

TEN ARE KILLED, FIFTY INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK

Fifteen Cars of One Train Leaves Rails

Galesburg, Ill., July 6 — (AP) —Ten passengers were crushed and twisted to death today in a freak collision of two sleek Santa Fe Railway streamliners, running side by side.

Coroner Chauncey Wood of Peoria county announced the toll of 10. The number of injured ranged between 50 and 75, some critically.

The wreck occurred while the Santa Fe's El Capitan and Kansas City Chief were running in the same direction, both eastboundfi alongside each other on parallel tracks.

The accident occurred at Monica, more than 20 miles east of here.

Running Very Fast

Otto Brinkman, Peoria Journal reporter at the scene, said he was informed the mail coach of the 16-car El Capitan was travelling about 90 miles an hour at the time, and that the Chief was running about 70 miles an hour.

When the mail coach was derailed, four or five cars in front of the mail car rolled ahead on the tracks.

Both trains were en route to Chicago.

A railroad spokesman at nearby Chillicothe said the El Capitan was running on the regular east-bound line and that the Chief was travelling eastward on the west-bound line under automatic control.

Sees Brilliant Object Flying 1000 Feet High

Los Angeles, July 6 —(AP)— William Grant, 26, former aerial photographer today reported seeing a brilliantly lighted circular object in the sky last night.

He estimated the object was 50 feet in circumference and when first seen was about 1,000 feet overhead. Its speed at first was about 100 miles an hour, then increased to about 500 miles an hour before disappearing, he said.

"It was in sight about 45 seconds," Grant said. "It left no exhaust trail and made no sound."

His story was confirmed by a friend, Gilbert Magill, 35, president of a firm conducting research with helicopters.

KING SETS FASHION

London, July 6 — (CP) — Saville Row buzzed today — the King was wearing a checkered handkerchief in his breast pocket instead of the usual white.

The handkerchief had small dark checks on a white background. It peeped out of the breast pocket of the King's morning jacket yesterday when he attended a fashionable Mayfair wedding with the Queen and Princess Margaret.

50 Bushmen, Eight Planes Scour Woodland for Bushman

Timmins, July 6 (CP) —Search parties today scoured the thick bushland 45 miles northwest of here for James Breckon, missing for 13 days.

Breckon, an experienced bushman, was acting as chief of a five-man survey gang when he became separated from the rest of the party June 24. It was learned yesterday that he was missing.

Provincial police and officials of the Spruce Falls Power and Paper, Co., for which Breckon was working, fear for his life.

A search party of 50 experienced bushmen and eight planes is working out of Kapuskasing about 50 miles north of the spot where Breckon was first reported missing.

The searchers are combing a 40-mile square area with the belief that the missing man is somewhere in that area.

The planes have been equipped with a radio hookup and one able to talk with the search party at a woodsmen office.

Police said that it is unusual for Breckon to be lost for so long. The area where he became lost is far from any community or mining area but he has a good knowledge of the bush.

It is not believed that Breckon had any food supply with him.

Without food and burdened by the black flies and mosquitoes a man would have a difficult time to survive for long, police said.

Korean Sidelights

New York, July 6 (AP)— The Korean war apparently has had little effect on the Europe-bound tourist trade.

A survey of seven steamship lines disclosed today that only two had received travel cancellations from persons fearing the Korean fighting would turn into a general conflict.

Honolulu, July 6 (AP)—Nine Lockheed Neptunes, the U.S. Navy's newest snorkel sub-killers have left here presumably for Korean waters.

Jakart, July 6 (AP)— Indonesia will remain neutral in the Korean war, despite her union with the Dutch, an Indonesian spokesman declared today.

Hong Kong, July 6 (Reuters) — Former Chinese Nationalist soldiers in Hong Kong have volunteered to form an international brigade under the United Nations to assist South Korea against the communist invaders.

Washington, July 6 (AP) — Communists have sabotaged a multimillion dollar plan to make Southern Korea independent in electric power, U.S. technicians said today. The technicians were members of a six-man team which made a two-month field study of a proposed Korean reclamation development program.

Tokyo, July 6 (AP)— Lieut. Harry M. Lister of Topeka, Kas., twice jumped out of his stalled B-26 bomber before he finally hit the ground.

The first time his coveralls caught on the seat and the 29-year-old bombardier had to crawl back and release himself and jump again.

That started a chain of events like this:

Lister hit the water safely but his life raft tangled with his parachute and he floated about four hours supported by his life preserver before South Korean fishermen found him.

The Koreans could not ascertain whether he was Russian or American. That caused some bad moments.

Finally the Koreans took him to a village. Policemen eyed him suspiciously. Eventually a Korean colonel cleared him as American, presented him with silver after-dinner coffee cups and sent him by jeep to Pusan, where the mayor and other city officials gave him a hero's welcome.

This is the first team of young farmers from Canada to compete at the Royal Show since 1930.

HEN SITS ON POTATOES

Oakland, Calif., July 6 (AP)— R. C. Trotter says he just hasn't the heart to tell his little red hen the facts of life.

He gave her some potatoes to eat a week ago. She's been sitting on them since, waiting for the spuds to hatch.

Duke Unhappy About Damage Done to Castle

Woodstock, Oxford, England, July 6 (AP)— Low-down manners by high-born Britons at a ball in Blenheim Palace drew an explosive "disgraceful" from the Duke of Marlborough.

The Duke lent the Palace Tuesday night to his son and daughter, the Marquess of Blandford and Lady Rosemary Spencer-Churchill, for a charity dance.

The guests, 1,800 of them, paid three guineas ($2.75) and up for their tickets.

And what happened to Blenheim Palace put the Duke in a dudgeon.

When the last guest had left at 3:15 a.m., the Duke told reporters he found:

Dozens of holes burned in two costly hall carpets by cigarets.

Dozens of stains from spilled drinks.

A stone pillar damaged by a carelessly-driven car.

Two vacant spacers where two ornamental stone balls used to stand.

The Duke said coldly: "I consider that what happened was disgraceful."

At noon Wednesday, the Duke reopened the Palace to the public at 2s 6d. a head. He lets tourists in to help pay his taxes.

After what those bluebloods did to the joint the Duke seemed relieved to have the common people take over again.

LINEMAN CRITICALLY HURT

Grimsby, July 6 — (CP)—Hydro lineman Frank Maxim, 31, of Niagara Falls, Ont., was critically injured when he came in contact with a live power line Wednesday. After Dr. N. S. Bowers and firemen had worked on him for three-quarters of an hour with an inhalator, he was removed to the St. Catharines General Hospital.

MURDER SUSPECT 'IS MY SON' SAYS W.E. McAULIFFE

Father Removes Last Doubt as to Identity

North Bay, July 6 — (CP) — W. E. McAuliffe said today the Langton murder suspect "is my son all right."

Mr. McAuliffe said in an interview that he made the identification last Monday at Simcoe where a 37-year-old man previously identified as George Walker is being held.

"As soon as I saw him in the cell I knew it was Herb," said Mr. McAuliffe. "We didn't say much, just talked business."

The brief meeting in Norfolk county jail apparently wipes out the last trace of doubt about the identity of "Walker."

He is charged with the $23,000 holdup of the Imperial Bank of Canada branch at Langton June 21 and the machine-gun slaying of two farmers who chased the bandit. The victims were Arthur Lierman and William Goddyn.

First Used Name "Frank West"

The man now identified as McAuliffe was captured June 24 after a 27-hour manhunt following the slayings. When arrested he gave his name as Frank West. R.C.M.P. fingerprint experts said later that records indicated his name was George Walker.

Windsor police, after a raid last week on a garage in which counterfeit 50-cent pieces had been made, indicated there was a link between the missing counterfeiter and the Langton suspect. The name McAuliffe was mentioned at that time.

Citizens who knew the man who rented the garage said he called himself McAuliffe and that he appeared to be the man whose picture appeared in newspapers after the Langton suspect was nabbed.

My Son, All Right

Mr. McAuliffe said today:

"He is my son all right. My other son, J. E. McAuliffe, and I saw a picture of the man arrested as the bank robber suspect in the paper on Sunday. He was sure it was Herb and so went to the Provincial Police in North Bay. They took us down to Simcoe Monday.

"As soon as I saw him in the cell I knew it was Herb."

He said his son lived in Simcoe before the war and served four years as a staff sergeant armament artificer — an expert on guns — during the war.

"After the war he returned to Simcoe and worked on tobacco farms. We haven't heard from him for a couple of years."

Quebec, July 6 (CP)— Rosaire Bedard yesterday was fined $100 for treating a Provincial Highway Policeman disrespectfully after refusing to heed advice to move unloading trucks out of the way of traffic.

Evidence was that Bedard told the policeman: "If you didn't have brass buttons on, I'd give you a trimming."

Sergeant Describes U.S. Effort To Hold Back Superior Strength

By ROY MACARTNEY

With American Forces in South Korea, July 6 (Reuters) —North Korean armor and infantry smashed forward again today in a dawn attack which swept Americans another 15 miles south.

Unconfirmed reports said American bazookas and artillery knocked out 17 Russian built tanks in a hard-fought rearguard action to avoid encirclement.

Red-starred tanks rumbled on as far south as Chonan, according to one report, only a few hours after over-running advanced American positions at Osan in the first head-on clash with American troops in South Korea. Chonan is only 35 miles from Taejon, temporary South Korean capital.

At first light the victorious northerners struck through American entrenchments at Pyongtaek, 36 miles south of Seoul, pushing down the main road to Songhwan and then to Chonan.

Sgt. Lester A. Loflen gave me this story of the second unsuccessful American bid to hold back superior strength:

"We were sitting astride the road at Pyongtaek when I saw eight North Korean tanks advancing down the road to where we had blown a bridge about 1,000 yrds in front of our positions.

"Our mortars opened up and scored a direct hit on the first tank which burned fiercely.

"Mortars destroyed two more tanks and one truck.

"Behind the tanks marched the biggest number of tramps Ive ever seen on the road. They were in fours, laughing, smoking, wearing anything from North Korean to our G.I. uniforms."

Three N. Korean Divisions Miles South of Seoul

Situation of U.S. Ground Forces Not Considered Bad

Tokyo, July 7 (Friday)—(AP) —General MacArthur's communique today reported three north Korean divisions were continuing to press southward towards Osan and Pyongtaek, 35 and 46 miles south of Seoul, but field dispatches put the Red vanguard 60 miles south of Seoul.

A frontline dispatch from AP correspondent Tom Lambert said the Reds had captured Pyongtaek and nosed into Chonan, 14 miles farther down the road.

The Tokyo headquarters communique did not confirm this, but said tank-supported communist infantry was in the area 31 miles south of Seoul and eight miles south of Suwon. It said general invader reinforcement with troops and artillery was underway.

Withdrawal of American troops for "regrouping and reorganization" after co-ordinated invader infantry and tank assaults on U.S. positions was acknowledged by the communique.

Not Considered Serious

(In Washington an army spokesman said General MacArthur's headquarters had advised that the situation of American ground forces "is not considered serious in any way.")

An American field headquarters spokesman had said a few hours earlier that American troops had been forced back eight to ten miles.

The Tokyo communique credited American F-80 jet planes with destroying eight enemy tanks in new strikes south of Suwon.

The field headquarters spokesman said 20 to 35 of the Russian-built tanks and 19 to 25 Yak planes had been destroyed by American forces, but did not specify the period. Apparently he was summarizing all recent actions.

American reinforcements were being rushed to three points on the U.S. left flank at Pyongnyon, Kongdoyu and Kanu, none of which are shown on detailed maps The main action was reported in that area.

DEBATE A-BOMB RESOLUTIONS

London, July 6 (Reuters) — Two of Britain's largest trades unions today debated resolutions calling for a ban on the atomic bomb and other weapons of mass destruction.

The 7,000,000-strong National Union of Mineworkers, at its annual conference at Llandudno, north Wales, rejected the proposal by 421,000 votes to 261,000.

The 500,000-strong National Union of Railwaymen, in conference at Morecombe, Lancashire, approved with only one dissenting vote a motion committing it to fight a ban on the hydrogen bomb and all atomic weapons and for the destruction of all existing stocks.

UNITED NATIONS IN FOR LONG, HARD CAMPAIGN

Lake Success, July 6 — (AP)— Veteran U.N. people feel that the United Nations is in for a long, hard campaign to turn back communist aggression in Asia.

Secretary - General Trygve Lie and his top aides, who would like to see the Korea fighting ended immediately with the North Koreans pulling back beyond the 38th parallel, boundary between North and South Korea, are understood to have just about concluded that it will not be a short-term campaign unless there should be some unexpected shift.

Even after the war in Korea is over, U.N. observers say, there is no guarantee that the communists will not break out somewhere else in Asia and the whole police action will have to start again.

In the belief that the war will continue for some time, the U.N. is preparing the framework for as effective a police force as it can muster.

The Security Council meets tomorrow for the first of these steps.

The United States, France, Britain and Norway were reported yesterday to have discussed a proposal for the Council to do these two things:

1. Allow the United States to designate Gen. Douglas MacArthur as supreme U.N. commander in the Korean war.

2. Recommend that forces of U.N. members in the field fly the blue and white U.N. flag along with their national flag.

Talk of a war council to coordinate the U.N. political front against the North Korean communists has dwindled.

Ottawa, July 6. (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton left by air for Newfoundland today on a combined inspection tour and holiday. No definite date has been set for his return but he is expected to be gone at least a week.

In the later stages of the visit, he hopes to land some salmon on the Gander river.

China Novelties Dainty Figures In City Shops

Pot-bellied little men about three inches high, bewitching ladies who wink becomingly at passer- [illegible] and plastic monsters that [illegible] posed to be just the thing [illegible] junior, are featured attractions in the show windows of Belleville stores these days.

The little man is a china doll who seems to find his bulging waistline a source of merriment to judge from his gargantuan grin. The winking lady winks because some optical technician stuck to the plans and hewed out a trick glass shield that presents a different view as you pass along the street with the ego-lifting effect which only a charming lady can produce when she winks. The plastic monsters are the rage in junior beach fashions making all ages from two to three happy on sight.

Strictly in keeping with the weather are the many displays of warm woollen blankets, travelling bags, and posters recommending sunny Bermuda and points south.

Other china novelties include dainty figures of an artist's mid-Victorian conception of farm children counselling the birds, and swinging from rail fences. On the more practical side are some very artistic German steins and silver or nickel tops to guarantee the safety of the contents.

Medicinal glasses with remedies for various minor illnesses curable with Tom Collinses, whiskey sours, and so forth, etched on their sides are well matched by other such glasses bearing the score of a favorite old time song on one side and a nostalgic illustration of the song on the other. These latter glasses are just the thing to promote harmony following a lemonade social.

Bobby Burns, the immortal Scottish bard, has his countenance glazed into the side of a pitcher. The whole thing sells for $5.95. At that it beats a roughly octagonal ash tray bearing the profile of H.M. King Edward VIII, with the inscription "Coronation—May 12th 1937." This tidy little item, which somehow has an irony of its own, sells for one dollar.

What price glory?

Officially Open West Belleville Playgrounds

The official opening last evening of the West Belleville playgrounds was a decided success, both on the part of the several hundred kiddies who were on hand, and also for the officials of the local recreation committee whose efforts have been responsible for fitting the playgrounds for summer operation.

During the official opening ceremony brief addresses were heard from Enos David, recreation committee chairman; A. L. Davis, of the Y.M.C.A., Henry Becker who looks after the financial interests of the committee and by Fred Symons whose particular interest has been supervision of setting up the playground committee.

With ceremonies completed the kiddies were treated with free cokes, and ice cream pies, as well as receiving free balloons.

Then it was playtime for the kiddies and the swings, slides and teeters did yeoman service until darkness put a quietus on proceedings.

A goodly number of parents were on hand and enjoyed the fine band concert given by the Belleville Municipal Band under the direction of Bandmaster Ted Robbins.

Tonight will see the official opening of the King George playground when the Salvation Army Band will be on hand to assist in the opening.

Prices Fluctuate For Strawberries

Strawberries again fluctuated in price on the local produce market today as prices increased to a general 30 cents per box with vendors from the Gardenville district asking 40 and 45 cents per box for the especially large variety.

The offering was not large and berries were mostly picked up by late morning. Vendors stated the season in the immedate Belleville district was about through.

New potatoes were more plentifully offered with basket lots going for 75 cents Bushel lots were offered at $5.

Peas were quite plentiful at 50 cents per quart, shelled and unshelled peas bringing 15 cents per box or two for 25 cents.

Picton Hydro Crew Honored With Medals For Saving Lineman's Life After Shock

The lineman working atop a Hydro Electric Power Commission pole in Wellington, last January suddenly slumped. He sagged, an inert figure, in his working belt. He had contacted "live" wires carrying 4,000 volts of electricity.

Fellow workmen on the ground quickly sensed what was wrong. Without hesitation, a spur-equipped man quickly climbed the pole and assisted in lowering the unconscious figure to the ground.

Other workmen went into quick action. Calling on their knowledge of resuscitation they worked in turns over the prone figure. Eight anxious minutes passed, and then came signs of consciousness. Later the shocked men was rushed to the hospital. His life was saved.

He was Don Hogle, 20, a member of the Picton Area crew of the Hydro Electric Power Commission, who today is alive and grateful for the fact that his co-workers had expert knowledge of resuscitation methods at their literal fingertips. He spent five months in the hospital and the accident toll was the loss of a forefinger and a slight limp.

Crew Given Medals

Tangible appreciation of the presence of mind and quick action of the Picton Area crew was shown yesterday in Picton, where the crew was formally presented with the Canadian Electrical Association Resuscitation Medal and each member a miniature of the award.

The presentation was made on the grounds of the rural district offices of the HEPC before high-ranking officials and representatives of the commission of the district, as well as civic and other representatives of the town.

Mr. Wills McLachlan, Toronto, special adviser of personnel of the HEPC, and representing the president of the Canadian Electrical Association, made the awards. He presented the medal proper to Foreman Harold Abbott of the Picton Area crew and miniatures and certificates to crew members, R. M. Lindsay; H. A. McMann; G. F. Storms and A. E. Theobold.

The presentation was the 83rd of its kind to be made in Ontario and the first in Prince Edward County. The copper contained in the bronze of the medals was taken from wire used in the first high tension line laid in the British Empire. It was a 10,000 volt line which extended from St. Narcisse to Trois Rivieres, Quebec.

Tribute Paid Crew

Mr. McLachlan paid sterling tribute to the area crew in a brief pre-presentation address. He compimented them on their quick action and knowledge of resuscitation methods. "If other people were trained in this method as are employees of the Power Commission," he said, "there would not be so many drownings or other fatal accidents."

Presenting the crew medal to Foreman Abbott, he said, "It is a Divine attribute to give life. It is a grand thing that you were picked as an agent of the Divine to save a life."

Foreman Abbott expressed his appreciation and that of his crew for the honor accorded them.

"It was well warranted," Mr. McLachlan said.

Mr. Ernest Gurnett, regional superintendent of Eastern Ontario added his tribute. "It must be a source of satisfaction" he said, "to be able to save a life— a satisfaction beyond that of anyone in the organization. We, of Hydro, are proud of these men, our fellow workers who will receive these awards today."

"The general public," he said, "has little conception of the hazards hydro workmen encounter in their daily tasks. "We, too, sometimes forget the dangerous nature of some of the work, and for this reason we must be prepared for any emergency. In spite of every precaution, unforeseen circumstances arise for which we must be prepared."

Mr. Gurnett pointed out that in Hydro all personnel are trained in and continuously practise resuscitation methods. "Practice is necessary," he said, "to establish a habit of motion."

"In this case long years of experience and practice paid off. A man's life was saved."

Mr. McLachlan, in a message to the public through newspapermen present, asked in general, "Were you at the bottom of that pole in Wellington last January, could you have saved Hogle's life?"

Present at the presentation ceremonies besides Messrs. McLachlan and Gurnett, were Mayor Billy Henley and Messrs. Bert Tully and H. G. Blakely of the Picton Utilities Commission; H.E.P.C. area managers, W. Montgomery, Kingston; Miller Johns, Tweed; Rex Walters, Norwood; A. H. Lloyd, Picton, who acted as chairman for the occasion and L. Hendricks, Frankford.

From Belleville were Messrs. R. A. White, safety superintendent; E. Flinn, R. McDougall and A. Leslie, Line Department; F. Adsett, Consumer Service Engineer; E. Frost, Consumer Service Superintendent; W. Reynolds, Personnel Dept., and R. L. Brown, Regional Accountant. Also present were Mr. William Tait, Picton Utilities superintendent, and a number of local Hydro employees.

SERGEANT

He said confusion between North Koreans and southerners and American uniforms was so great "you don't know who to shoot."

Then the northerners —50,000 infantry are said to be driving on in the greatest concentration of the 23-day-old campaign — swarmed across the river "like rats."

The tanks wheeled about to outflank the Americans who retreated to avoid being cut off.

Between 25 and 35 North Korean armored vehicles and tanks have been knocked out so far — more thanhalf their local battle strength, an army spokesman said. He estimated that 160 to 170 northern tanks had crossed the 38th parallel.

A senior American commander disclosed today—as the first casualty train arrived at Taejon from the front with one dead and seven wounded—that 30 to 35 percent of the Americans who fought to the last bullet near Osan yesterday were either casualties or captured.

Harvard Noses Into Semi-Finals

Henley, England, July 6. (Reuters) —Harvard University today nosed into the semi-finals of the Grand Challenge cup, premier eights event of Henley Royal Regatta.

Harvard's strong bid to recapture the cup, which it won in 1914 and 1939, was a heartbreaker to the opposing crew, a strong entry from Lady Margaret's College, Cambridge, which has been a consistent winner in this year's English rowing.

Dartmouth Rowing Club, only other United States crew in the Grand Challenge, was smartly disposed of by Leander, present holders.

THREE N. KOREAN

Reinforcements Rushed

The spokesman said the reds, their drive gaining force and fury, had between 160 and 170 Russian-built heavy tanks in South Korea. He added they might be running low on fuel and supplies.

The fast-moving red tanks forced abandonment of one American command post. Red infantrymen accompanied the tanks.

American gunners fired at almost point-blank range on the tanks, then removed breech locks and gun sights and pulled back.

A front-line dispatch from Tom Lambert, Associated Press correspondent, said the reds had captured Pyongtaek and Songhwan and nosed into Chonan. Pyongtaek is 36 miles south of Seoul and Chonan 12 miles south of that. Songhwan is between.

A senior United States officer pausing at a railroad station in the battle zone, said gloomily:

"It was a bad one this time."

U.S. soldiers agreed.

That could mean heavy American losses and a general kicking around by the invaders, who have shown power in their southward thrust.

The Americans were said to have destroyed 10 tanks in rearguard action.

Approximately 40 tanks and 1,000 North Korean infantrymen were in the fast moving force, which once was halted temporarily but picked up speed a short time later.

Improve Lot

A commanding officer at Korean headquarters said Americans at the advanced position had improved their lot by moving to a new defence position. The communists were reported to have by-passed some advance American units.

Asked if the situation were good or bad the commander replied: "No situation is good unless you are advancing."

U.S. air power continued to pound enemy bases despite poor flying conditions.

The U.S. Far East air force said its planes encountered no North Korean aircraft on 74 sorties. A sortie is one flight by one plane.

B-29 superforts destroyed three spans of a bridge linking one of North Korea's biggest industrial centres with its nearby airfield. The bridge is north of Yonpo airfield, target of a recent raid by the powerful bombers

The bridge leads to Hamhung, site of a huge nitrate plant, eight miles to the north

Although there was an absence of enemy aircraft, a communique said anti-aircraft fire was increasing, particularly in the Seoul area.

NEWCOMER AND TOLERANCE

A correspondent to the Toronto Globe & Mail takes to task the intolerant attitude of some people towards displaced persons. The writer states that he or she overheard an elderly man make this statement "The unions believe in promotion by seniority. Why should some punk from Poland come over here and take a good job after about four months."

The obvious answer to the gentleman is that Canada was built by such "punks" — from England, Ireland, Italy, Germany, and many other countries. But the mere answering of the question does not erase the intolerant feelings.

We in Canada are fortunate that we can have these feelings, and even more fortunate that we are able to express them without fear of state police or spies. It is unfortunate, however, that there are some who let their minds become warped towards those people who have been driven out of thir own countries by war and suppression. These are the persons who pursue the "all men are brothers" line of thought until they are faced with the displaced person. Then the newcomer is an ignorant, ill-spoken oaf whose presence they will not welcome.

Certainly the displaced persons are ignorant — of Canadian customs. But we who have known nothing else but freedom of religion, speech, worship and freedom from fear do not and cannot realize the new situations continually thrust at the DP. We cannot appreciate his difficulty with the English language, his feeling of loneliness in a new country.

Yet, officials whose job it is to help the displaced person find himself and his place in the community say that the DP's as a whole are fine people. Like any other group, they no doubt have their malcontents and misfits, their lawbreakers and persons lax in morals. On the whole, they are possibly no worse than any group whose ancestry in truly Canadian.

COMMONWEALTH TEACHERS

Exchange teachers between the United Kingdom and Canada will be a fact within a few weeks. In a short time 40 British teachers will be sailing to exchange posts with 40 Canadians. The United Kingdom teachers come from a representative range of schools in England, Scotland and Northern Ireland and under the scheme they exchange positions for one year. Most of the visitors will be coming to Ontario, but one will go as far west as Victoria and another will be in the east at Halifax.

The exchange scheme is not limited as were the prewar exchanges which were mainly confined to public and secondary schools in the United Kingdom and to independent and private schools in Canada. The new scheme embraces all types of teachers in all types of classes from nursery to high school.

What this will mean to those who attend the schools whose teachers have been exchanged can be left to the imagination. What it means to the teachers in broadening of outlook and in absorption of ideas and ideals can be all to the good for pupils as well as teachers. Lord Holden, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Commonwealth relations, made this comment the other day, "It is, I think a matter of great importance and for satisfaction in this country that through the visits of teachers from overseas the children in our great cities, in our towns, our villages and in the countryside can hear first hand accounts of life in other Commonwealth countries; accounts given, I am sure, with vigor, clarity and picturesque details which must stimulate their imagination and desire to travel. My only regret is that it is not possible to send our children on a 'grand tour' round the Commonwealth. But until that time may come we are all the more grateful for the visit of teachers from overseas."

All Britons will feel as the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State and it is also certain that in the other nations of the Commonwealth outside the British Isles the exchange will have lasting influences for good on teacher and pupil. Those who no longer attend school can have only regrets that the hand of time cannot be turned back that they might have the privilege of the benefits of this exchange of teachers which will surely be the next best thing to exchange of great numbers of pupils which may some day be a normal part of the education of our children of the many sections of the Commonwealth in many parts of the world.

Frog in Oklahoma, believed to have been buried alive for years, took one look at the world and went back under the foundation wall. Could be a sign of intelligence, avers Hamilton Spectator.

God appoints our graces to be nurses to other men's weaknesses.—Beecher.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

RELY ON YOUR BRAKES

Motorists in one part of the country often see a sign advertising a certain manufacturer's brake-lining, which says in large letters, "Rely on your brakes instead of your horn."

This is good advice. The principle behind depending on brakes rather than horn is that of relying on one's own actions instead of on those of others, of controlling ourselves rather than counting on others to control themselves. This is an important principle for daily living. The man who lacks control of his language and temper, for example, is as dangerous to his family as the motorist depending on his horn is to a crowd of pedestrains. For the good of others, we need self-control.

But we need it for our own good, too. Strength and power are useless until they are controlled. In baseball, the pitcher with speed but no control will never get into the major leagues. And the man who lacks restraint and moderation, who cannot control his desires and impulses, cannot hope to succeed in society or business. As St. Paul said, "Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

This is what the watch repair men call "mainspring weather." June, July and August are the busy months in the mainspring business.

The professionals say that it is the sudden changes of temperature which cause the mainsprings to break. But whenever there is a thunderstorb, all the watch repair men in the country take the loup out of their eyes —that is the little black magnifier—and say—"ah, I'll be busy with mainsprings tomorrow." Which suggssts to a layman that possibly electric tension in the atmosphere may have something to do with the explosion of a tensed mainspring. Because they will tell you that often a spring is broken not into two pieces, but into forty. There will be a crack across the coiled spring as though a knife had sliced it. Maybe a little lightning-stroke all unheeded on your wrist?

The change of temperature theory, however, is supported by the fact that all winter, every Monday morning, the watch repair men are visited by a procession of skiers whose watch mainsprings have broken over the weekend in the open. They blame it on the sudden extremes of temperature in going from a warm ski lodge into the cold outdoors. Why the rest of us do not suffer from mainspring trouble in the winter is doubtless due to the fact that our coat sleeves protect the watch during the jiffies we are in the open air between leaving the house and getting into a warm car or a warm trolley.

But summer is the great benefactor of the watch business. Watches go in swimming, get dumped from canoe and dinghy. Sand on the beaches, far finer and more destructive than the sand we can see, gets into the works. The sudden changes from sun-baked heat to evening chill cause condensation within the the works, to make rust. Summer is a good time to leave your watch at home and depend on your stomach to tell you the time.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

HILL AND DALE

Banff, Alta.—See by the paper that a Mr. Dixon, in a letter to the editor, complains I'm not devoting enough space to scenery. Says he'll be very surprised if any oil company hires me to write their travel folders.

With me, the customer is always right and so, for Mr. Dixon, and any oil companies that might be listening, I put aside all thoughts of frivolity when we arrived this morning in Banff. I have just spent an arduous day devoted entirely to an inspection of Rocky Mountain scenery. I hope Mr. Dixon appreciates this.

So happens there's a first rate vista from my hammock and I spent a good, solid hour of observation from this vantage point. The trailer camp at Banff is on a high hill above the town looking out over what I think is the Bow Valley. There is a really stupendous mountain just across the way. I am almost dead sure that it is Mount Rundle.

Mount Rundle — if, indeed, that's what it is—is just about the most satisfactory mountain I ever studied. It is all rock. Looks as if it had been stained by iodine. Its bottom is warmly tucked in evergreens, but all the rest of it is rock except where a few stubborn trees have managed to take root. Got the picture, Mr. Dixon?

You can study Mount Rundle by the hour and figure out ways to climb it. I have been mentally clamping on my crampons and pitons all morning, scorning the easy route to the north and taking the straight south face, a good deal of it demanding nylon and nerves of steel, or the kind a man just naturally has in a hammock.

The Banff golf course spreads green and inviting at the mountain's base and I can see tiny figures walking its fairways. I am glad I'm not one of them.

Ride Upstairs

After lunch, determined to carry on my observations for Mr. Dixon, I actually did climb a mountain. Well, not exactly climb. But I did take the chair lift up Mount Norquay, which cost $1.50 and, I may say, is worth every penny.

There are a lot of brightly colored little chairs dangling from a cable. An attendant puts you on a platform, facing up the hill, so that a chair comes along and just scoops you up. Presently you find yourself going almost straight up. The view keeps getting better and better and the air keeps getting colder and colder.

In ten minutes you travel a vertical distance of 1,300 feet, which means that you're 7,000 feet above sea level. Attendant scoops you off and you can go for a little walk along a trail. There are mountain goats and their kids grazing on a slope that appears to have all the footholds of a wall.

I was just wishing that Mr. Dixon had been up there with me, because the scenery is out of this world. There is nothing but scenery.

Down there is the toy town and back, buried in evergreens that look like tall dark grass, is the baronial Banff Springs Hotel filled to the doors with Gyros, and more mountains than you'd think possible. It made me drool to think of how it must be to stand here in winter with a pair of good skis on your kicks and that wonderful downhill run ahead and maybe a hot rum with butter in it waiting in the lodge below.

Off to the left there's Cascade Mountain and the snowy peaks of the Fairholme Range. On the right, the Goat Range, and our friend, Mount Rundle. (It was Mount Rundle, after all.) Away out ahead are mighty Aylmer, Peechee and Ingismaldie, growing into the sky, and, below, the Stony Squaw drops into the valley. (All this is from a travel folder and may be taken as accurate.)

And Dusk

While I was up on the mountain the ladies in the party had been out scouting for possible scenic spots that might interest Mr. Dixon and reported they had found a truly picturesque nook.

Turned out to be one of the finest swimming pools you could imagine with two green, inviting tanks, one with the water at 80 degrees, the other eight degrees warmer and all surrounded by glass sides to keep out the wind and let in the sun.

A good deal of attractive scenery was on view here, wearing the latest in two-piece bathing suits and reclining in graceful poses about the shimmering water. I lay on my back in the warmer of the pools, thinking of Mr. Dixon and studying the blue summer sky and some fat lazy clouds that seemed to be going nowhere in particular and, thus, right in my mood.

It took all my will power to leave this happy place, but work comes first with me, every time, and so I was able to get back to our camp in time to witness a Rocky Mountain sunset.

It happens very swiftly. The difference between day and night is a sudden blaze of burning color in the mountain peak or just about the time it takes to sip a glass of ale. The copper colored face of Mount Rundle began turning indigo. The shadows of the trees supporting my office began to lengthen visibly. Two friendly elk walked daintily from the edge of the bush.

Only then, exhausted by my research, but conscious of having done my duty, did I come in to my typewriter to let Mr. Dixon know that I am on the job.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BE YOURSELF

There isn't a single one among us who doesn't have something that no one else has in the same way. We should be proud of our inheritance, no matter what it may be. It may be small, but it can be enlarged!

Charles Lamb, the great English essayist, had little in material wealth, but he had an abundance of himself. It is said of him that few men had his independence of mind, and the gift of quaint and original expression. He aped no one. He was an institution within himself, and a beloved one at that. "By virtue of being himself," he lives in all that he wrote, so that in reading him today, we in fact read his own life.

By a careful analysis of ourselves we learn about our outstanding abilities and talents. By developing these we can well stand alone, becoming a personality, and asserting ownership of all that we are and possess. We can then be ourselves, borrowing from no one!

Those whom we admire most are those who are most themselves. We are born with certain characteristics. We ought to hold to them, and make them more and more outstanding. It's the you of you that attracts people and makes of you a friend. All the great personalities, however, are not famous ones. Many of them are your friends whom you meet from day to day. The ones who are always themselves.

The interesting personality is always a radiating one—in manner, speech, and even in writing. I have a friend who writes as interesting and originally constructed letters as he does his famous books. It's because he is always himself. Be yourself and people will continually hunt you out!

When we look upon other people as separate entities, and not like our automobiles, mass produced, then we give to each an accurate appraisal. And then they see in us something unique. It is a compliment to us when we praise, or admire, qualities in others. What we should look forward to every day of our lives is a better I.

Hamilton Raises $217,000 For Flood Relief

Hamilton, July 6 — (CP) — Nearly $217,000 for Manitoba flood relief was raised by the Hamilton "dream home" project, it was announced last night by President Ken Soble of radio station CHML, which sponsored the project. Objective was $50,000.

Soble presented a cheque for $216,832, raised through sale of raffle tickets on the home, special donations and tours of the home, to city treasurer R. J. Menary for credit to the fund. Mr. Menary said the cheque would bring donations for flood relief from the Hamilton area to nearly $440,000.

Mayor Garnet Coulter of Winnipeg, who made the draw for the home, said the figures left him "breathless."

The winning ticket was held by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hopwood of Hamilton.

RAILROAD WORKER KILLED

WHEN YOU GO ON A DIET GO EASY

Whether you have chronic liver and/or gall-bladder trouble, obesity, or potential diabetes or all three, you should go on a diet right now, not next week. If you take it easy going on a diet won't be so difficult as you think, and you will stand a better chance of deriving some benefit from correction of your diet than you would if you go at it hammer and tongs, as the magazines say the Hollywood stars do—you know, the 18-day hokum.

First it stands to reason that if you have liver and/or gall-bladder trouble, obesity or potential or early diabetes your ordinary everyday eating habits have been wrong. Hence the first step in prevention or relief is to correct your had eating habits.

As explained in preceding talks on this subject the high-calory food which most people take in excess is carbohydrate (starch or sugar) and moderate, not drastic, restriction in the amount of such food in the diet is the secret of success in dieting for any of the conditions mentioned at the beginning.

Many misguided individuals eat cereal of one kind or another for breakfast and then go on to bread, roll, toast, cakes or other starch food. Not that starch in two or more forms or "combinations" is harmful in any way, but taking it in the form of "breakfast food" and then in the form of waffles is as reasonable as it would be to have some roast beef and then go on to pork chops. If you must eat two different cereal or carbohydrate products at least take only one-half a serving of each.

When I come to breakfast make mine pancakes, waffle, crisp brown toast, fresh French bread or rolls with thick hard crust or, wow, wow, wow—why do these thoughts come to me eight hours after breakfast? and three hours before dinner? — fried corn meal mush. But for goodness sake don't serve me two of these items—just call me a pig if you feel I am one and save the extra item for another meal.

A bad habit common to the majority of Americans is the gulping of unmasticated or insufficiently masticated food, by washing it down with water or a beverage or by dunking it or grinding it to reduce it to a semi-fluid state. Equally bad is the habit of taking only the juice of fruit or vegetable and discarding the pulp. In order to derive the full nutritive value from fruit or vegetable one must chew and eat the whole fruit or vegetable.

Another bad eating habit, bad for clerks, office workers, students, professional people, parasites and those who live by their wits, not for honest working people, athletes, growing children, soldiers, sailors and those who live by their muscle; is dessert.

An excellent first step in dieting, for any one with chronic liver and/or gall-bladder trouble or obesity or potential or early diabetes, is omission of dessert.

Another good idea for such persons is to eat salad before the main part of the meal, not after the meat. Besides being nature's own regulator, supplying needed bulk and stimulation, real salad (a dish of herbs, raw herbs) serves as a filler and gives a satisfied feeling with less food. Moreover it supplies most of the vitamins and minerals which modern refined food lacks.

Speaking of dunking and grinding food, this is the place to say a word about mashed potato, but unfortunately I am not permitted to use such language here.

Baked potato—there ought to be a law imposing a suitable fine upon any one who orders baked potato and leaves the jacket uneaten. One with chronic liver and/or gall-bladder trouble, obesity or early or potential diabetes should eat only the jacket and let any one who wants it eat the contents.

U.S. Forces Doing Well for Short Time in Korea

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

United States intervention in Korea has been encountering disconcerting obstacles, as witness the trapping of that American infantry position by north Korean Red troops in the Osan area and the big-scale retreat of south Korea troops.

Such setbacks attract wide attention at home. Naturally, too, they cause public anxiety as to just how well the rescue operations are getting along.

This being so, we shall do well to pause for a check-up to see whether we are correctly estimating the significance of some of these developments—whether we are expecting too much in too short a time.

It would be absurd to represent that even a relatively minor setback isn't a matter of great concern to U.S. military chiefs. Still, it's true that in the early days of an operation by U.S. troops abroad, even minor events assume major importance, while major events become mountainous in the eyes of the general public.

Unemotional Look

So let's take an unemotional look at this Korean show, which admittedly has been going badly for the south Koreans, and consequently for the U.S. as the rescuing knight.

First off, it's only a few days ago that President Truman threw the support of the United States government behind the United Nations' effort to end the Korean war produced by the invasion of south Korea by the Russian-dominated north Koreans. Here was the position in thumbnail:

Powerful north Korean military forces already had poured into south Korea. They were trained and equipped by the Russians, who rank among the world's best soldiers. They had powerful support of Russian tanks and planes.

The invaders caught the south Koreans off guard and quickly captured the capital of Seoul—a terrible blow to the morale of the south. The south Koreans were unable to withstand the battering-ram attack of the communists and the Red successes continued.

Gen. MacArthur faced the task of starting from scratch, so to speak, in an operation against an enemy which had over-run not only the southern capital but important military positions. It was a herculean job, no matter how you look at it, for the rescuing forces had to be moved into Korea by air and sea over long distances.

On that basis we have no right to expect miracles.

However, while we must expect ups and downs, I believe we have the right to be confident of the future. MacArthur is a good soldier.

Unemployment Continued to Drop In Trenton During June Latest Employment Office Figures Show

Trenton (Special) — Unemployment in Trenton and district continued to drop during June. Figures released by the local unemployment Insurance Office early this week show that 292 unplaced job applicants were registered at the end of June, as compared with 313 listed job seekers at the beginning of last month.

In releasing the figures, J. W. A. Russell, manager of the Trenton office pointed out that there were only six more registered unemployed at the present time than there were at the end of June last year. Mr. Russell emphasized that this comparison was significant in view of the fact that the general employment picture is not considered to be as bright as it was a year ago.

"There is less male unemployment this year but more female workers are out of work," said Mr. Russell. "The reason for this difference is mainly due to the fact that the egg processing plant which formerly employed quite a number of female workers is no longer operating."

Men Easier to Place

A breakdown of the number of registered unemployed shows there were 167 men and 125 women registered for employment at the end of June this year, as compared with 192 male and 94 female applicants at the end of June 1949.

There are more requests coming in from employers for men than there are for women. The office has 16 openings on file for men but only one request for a female worker. At the same time last year, the local office had 21 vacancies listed for men and 10 for women.

The number of unemployed at the present time represents a substantial improvement over the beginning of February when 916 persons were registered as being available for work. Mr. Russell said that "since these figures were compiled, I am sure the several canning factories in the district have absorbed some of the applicants."

Will Take Up Slack

When asked if he thought reduced operations by some of the canning plants in the district would affect the employment situation as the summer progresses, Mr. Russell said he was certain that stepped up highway and building construction would more than take up the slack.

The Trenton office serves a 500 square mile area which includes, Trenton, Sidney in Hastings County, Hillier and Ameliasburg in Prince Edward and Brighton, Cramahe and Murray townships in Northumberland.

$936,000 Debenture for Two Schools Approved by Dept.

Trenton (Special)—Tentative approval of an expenditure of $936,000 for the construction of two new schools in Trenton was given by the Department of Education after a meeting with representatives of the Board of Education in Toronto last Wednesday.

Chairman of the Board of Education, R. F. McInnes and two members of the board, R. H. Smithrim and M. W. Andison met with the department to discuss the Board of Education's proposed school expansion program before formally approaching Mayor Couch on the matter.

Following the meeting, the department gave its tentative approval to the building of an eight-room public school on the east side of the river costing an estimated $216,000 and a $720,000 high school, which would accommodate 600 pupils.

"The department realized that the building program suggested was one complete program and could not be chopped up," said Mr. McInnes. "We have a situation existing that simply demands immediate action and attention, but we are very anxious to work along on a friendly basis with both the council and the Ontario Municipal Board."

Now that the plan for expanding Trenton school facilities has been favorably received by the Department of Education, the board plans to arrange a meeting with Mayor Couch "very soon", stated Mr. McInnes.

Board Approves

The Ontario Municipal Board has already approved the spending of $42,000 for a two-room addition to North Trenton Public School. A basement room at Dufferin Street School was originally included in the board's program which would have cost an additional $2,000. This part of the overall plan was dropped after it was turned down by the department.

Another matter discussed at the meeting in Toronto was the question of providing high school education facilities in Trenton for children of air force personnel living in the Middleton Park housing project.

Estimate High

Some time ago, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation estimated there would be 400 secondary school children in the new housing project by 1960. Following the meeting with the Department of Education, M. W. Andison reported that both department and RCAF officials thought this estimate a little high. Mr. Andison said that generally, secondary school enrollment runs about 30 per cent of those attending primary schools which in Trenton's case would place the number nearer to 300.

"We are prepared to make some sort of deal with Central Mortgage and Housing for these children on a term basis, starting this fall," stated Mr. Andison. "By Christmas it is expected there will be 50 children of high school age living in Middleton Park."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Developing an acquaintance by phone

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 22 years old, and at a wedding I recently attended, I met a very nice girl. We were properly introduced, and throughout the reception I enjoyed her company very much, but, in the excitement, I failed to ask her for her telephone number.

I would like to know if it would be correct just to look up her number in the 'phone book and give her a call. If so, how would I begin the conversation?

A. J. F.

Dear A. J. F.:

Of course it would be perfectly correct for you to call up a girl you met in a perfectly conventional way. Usually, it is true, the natural thing is for a young man to ask a girl, when meeting her for the first time, if he may call her, but it's not necessary to stand on such ceremony. No doubt the girl will be twice as pleased to be surprised by a call from you as she would if she had been expecting it.

As for how to begin a conversation, that should be very simple. Why not just say: "Hello, Miss ——, this is ——. We met at ——'s wedding, —remember?" From there on, things should be easy.

A woman with a sadly mistaken idea

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My boy friend's father is in a rest home, and his mother drinks excessively, but he is a very nice boy. I like him a lot, and he has told me he cares for me, but my mother doesn't want me to see him. She says that just because his father is in a rest home, he'll be crazy too some day. She also says that she doesn't like the way he looks at me.

He took me out once, and was a perfect gentleman, but when he brought me home, my mother yelled for me to come into the house, and since then, he hasn't asked me out again.

How can I make my mother see things differently?

W.

Dear W.:

Your mother has a very mistaken idea when she tells you that this boy will have mental trouble just because his father has had some sort of difficulty that way. Nothing could be more foolish than such a misconception.

It is very sad for the boy that your mother should not feel she can be friendly with him. Surely he has enough trouble already, and needs to have someone take an interest in him. As he has not asked you out again, though, you don't have any reason to keep on quarrelling with your mother about the matter, and if he should want to take you out some time later, perhaps you could suggest to him that he go directly to your mother and ask her permission. That might work better than if your mother just heard about the invitation through you.

AGGRESSIVE CREATURE

The griffon is a mythological beast with the hinder parts of a lion, the head, shoulders, wings and forelegs of an eagle.

BEAUTY

If the dry skin is your problem

Different ages bring different good-looks griefs. The majority of teen-agers have oily skins; the majority of women have dry ones. Youngsters are active, get plenty of exercise, eat too much ice cream and too much pastry. The sebaceous glands, created to keep the skin smooth, are over-doing the job. Women—lacking exercise in the open air, finding their circulation slower, cutting down on fats lest they take on adipose panniers—are victims of the dry skin. And that's just too bad. The dry skin wrinkles early, it looks scaly when powder is applied, and there is no health in it.

The condition can be corrected. The dry skin may be that way because it is thirsty. Drink five or six glasses of water a day—unless you are a demon tea or coffee drinker, in which event you can cut them down to four.

FOR OILY FOR DRY
7-6

The majority of teen-agers have oily skin; the majority of women have dry skin.

Do not be afraid of using soap and water unless the combination causes discomfort. Suds and friction help to remove dead scales that are ever present. Use cream to remove makeup, have a rousing scrubbing, rinse with tepid water, use cream again. Avoid hot and cold water.

It is important that oily cosmetics should be used freely not just spread over the flesh, but worked in with the fingertips. Massage is simulating, will help the glands to function normally.

After patting in a light cream, many skins are in perfect condition for powder without the use of a make-up foundation. One has to experiment with these toiletries, find out which kind will produce an effect of smoothness. In mid-winter cold or mid-summer heat you may find that a heavy cream serves as a protective measure.

The kind of powder to be used is an important detail of the treatment. It should have an oily base, yet be of light, fine texture. When making a purchase, consult the attendant. If you patronize a cosmetic bar, you will probably come in contact with a better-informed attendant than you will find at the cosmetic counter. You can experiment, too, as the powders are in open containers.

A cream rouge is preferred to the compact when the skin is rough; the color is less concentrated and your blush will look less artificial. Put it on in little dots, then blend them.

The diet should contain a certain amount of fat, upon which sebaceous glands thrive. A little more butter on bread and cooked vegetables, more oil in the salad dressing, more cream in desserts. And do not fail to drink more water, our facial tissues heed it. If they don't have it they may soften, and the first thing you know some horrid little furrows will appear.

GOOD MANNERS

Canadian custom of groom's parents giving reception for "bride" is also popular in United States

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I were married several months ago in my home in Canada, and have now come to live in the United States in the city where my husband and his family have lived for some years. I have a wonderful mother-in-law! She has been so kind and thoughtful in all her plans for my happiness. Now she wishes to follow the Canadian custom of giving a reception soon in our honor and so that I may meet "Tommy's" relatives and family friends. In Canada, as you doubtless know, on this occasion the "bride" wears her wedding dress (but not of course her bridal veil). So (1) Here would it be all right for me to wear my wedding dress on this occasion? And (2) If, as I very much hope, my mother can come from Canada for this reception, would she also stand with us to receive the guests?

Martha M.

(1) Yes . . .on this festive and so-important occasion, in the United States, as in Canada, the "bride" customarily wears her wedding dress, but, as you say, she does not wear her bridal veil. Nor does she carry a bouquet but often wears one or two flowers in her hair, or some other simple and effective flower headdress. This welcoming reception given by the groom's parents is indeed a most gracious and graceful custom. . .to introduce their son's bride to their relatives and friends. (2) Yes . . I am sure your kind and thoughtful mother-in-law will make this gracious bow to your mother.

Seating her guests Without place cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to give a luncheon in honor of a college classmate of mine who is passing through out city on her way to sail to Europe. I have only one maid. I don't feel that it is especially appropriate to have place cards, and so I would like to indicate the seating myself. Just how should I do this . . .should I enter the dining-room first or last?

W. B.

You enter the dining-room first. . . that is, not alone first, but with one or two of the first guests entering . . . and while you slowly walk toward your place-at-table, you tell each guest where to sit. You remain standing until all your guests are seated. An excellent way to do, if your guest of honor is not busy chatting with a guest, is to ask her to 'go in' with you, and make a charming feature of the fact that she is your guest of honor; "Sallie, will you sit here at my right, please?" . . . "and Florence here" (indicating the place) . . . "and Helena here" . . .and so forth.

Welcome to newcomer can be simple hospitality

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine here is planning to give a tea next month for a friend of hers who was married two or three months ago and has just recently come here to live. (Formerly they both lived in the same city, and now will both be together here.) I would like to go to the tea, but hesitate to assume any social "obligations' about entertaining this newcomer, because my husband and I are living in cramped "temporary quarters" which make entertaining difficult, if not impossible. Just what would my obligation be, in case I accept this invitation?

Flora B.

Do go to the tea and so show your welcome to this newcomer. Then afterward you should go to call on her . . . again to show your welcome. Then later, whenever convenient for you, make any gesture of hospitality you can. If you cannot entertain her in your home for the time being, how about inviting her to have tea with you at some attractive place, or invite her to the movies with you one afternoon and have a cup of tea afterward? In other words, until you have a convenient place to entertain, offer whatever simple hospitality you can. . .this is all that is needed to show your hospitable 'intention and inclination'.

OBJECTIVE OBTAINED

Vancouver, (CP)—The "conquer cancer" campaign in British Columbia has raised $165,000, well over the $100,000 objective set when the campaign opened in April. Campaign officials said it was the most successful drive ever held by the B.C. Division of the Canadian Cancer Society.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

Ripe olives always put a strain on the imagination. The strain is not caused by the olives but by the labels that describe the size of the contents.

If you've ever bought a can of mammoth ripe olives, for instance, you've discovered to your sorrow that the word mammoth is a synonym for puny. A so-called giant ripe olive is a pigmy with only a mite more prestige than a mammoth olive.

Only when you advance up through the staggering heights of colossal, super colossal and special super colossal will you find olives of really respectable growth. The recent proposal that sizes larger than the above mentioned be called cosmic and promethean reveals how high in the imaginative sphere lowly olives have been catapulted by publicity men.

Of course the greatest and biggest of all ripe olives, it has been appropriately proposed, should be called Californian.

California has not only produced ripe olives but many variations on native Mexican dishes which are popular everywhere. One of these, tamale pie, requires ripe olives in the preparation. Since the olives are chopped in this case you can buy any size you please without reference to giants or colossi.

Beef Tamale Pie—Serves 4-5.

Bring 4 cups of water to a boil in a heavy saucepan. Add 1 teaspoon salt. Add 1 cup yellow corn meal. Corn meal should be added to water in a small stream and stirred constantly until thickened.

Cook corn meal over a very small flame 30 minutes or cook in top part of double boiler 1 hour. Stir frequently. Remove from fire. Add 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese and 1-2 cup chopped pitted ripe olives.

Spread half of corn meal mush on bottom of a greased baking dish.

In a clean saucepan melt 2 tablespoons fat. Add 1-4 cup finely chopped onion and 1-2 teaspoon finely chopped garlic. Simmer slowly until onions turn yellow. Add 1 pound chopped beef, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Cook, stirring frequently, until meat loses red color. Add 1 tablespoon flour, mixing well. Add 1 cup of chopped canned tomatoes, drained. Add 1-4 cup bottled Chili sauce and 2 teaspoons Chili powder. Simmer slowly 20 minutes.

'Peoples Police' E. German Army Upped 15,000

By RICHARD KASISCKE

Berlin, July 6 (AP) — East Germany's communist government is expanding its "people's police" army by about 15,000 men to a total of nearly 100,000, Russian-zone political sources reported Wednesday.

These forces also are to receive new weapons and to become highly-motorized through an increased budgetary appropriation of nearly 50 per cent, sources close to the East-German ministry of Interior said.

The dark-uniformed "people's police" have been branded by the western powers as an illegal German communist army, created and equipped with infantry weapons under Russian auspices in violation of four-power agreements for Germany's demilitarization. The communists also have announced they are creating a naval division of these forces.

German anti-communist spokesmen have expressed fears that the communists might some day use this police army to create "another Korea" here with an attack on West Germany if the western occupation powers withdrew.

East-German sources said budget appropriations for the "people's police" in the new fiscal year have been boosted by 300,000,000 east marks to about 900,000,000 (about $250,000,000 at the official rate).

The funds are to be raised by extra levies upon the governments of the five laender (states) of the Russian zone.

Unofficial estimates place the present strength of the "people's police" at about 80,000.

Bricklayers Will Strike Friday

Toronto, July 6 (CP)—Toronto's bricklayers voted Tuesday night to strike Friday to enforce their wage demands on members of the Toronto Builders' Exchange.

The strike would bring a halt to all major commercial and industrial building in the city. Private construction would not be affected.

The bricklayers, members of the Bricklayers' Union (A.F.L.), said they would picket exchange projects. Union officials said they have "every reason to believe" the other building trades in the city would respect their picket lines, in line with an earlier agreement among the trades.

The strike is to enforce demand for a 20-cent hourly wage increase over the next two years. The Union personnel rejected an exchange offer of a 10-cent increase and protection against further cost-of-living rises.

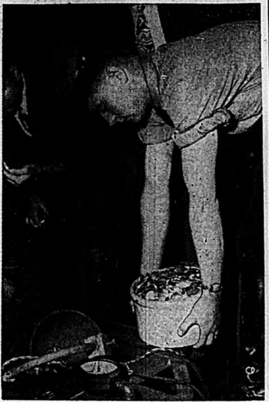
UNSTAMPED COINS



This bucket of unstamped coin blanks was found in a Windsor, Ont., garage, together with counterfeiting equipment and shiny, bogus fifty-cent pieces. Owner of the garage said a man named Herbert James McAuliffe had used it as a workshop for four years without revealing the nature of his operations. Police said they believed McAuliffe may be the man charged with the recent Langton, Ont., bank robbery and double murder — identified as George Walker, alias Frank West. — (CP Photo.)

Modern League Baseball Starts With Piece of Cork Not Jackrabbit

By TED SMITS

Chicopee, Mass., July 6 (AP)—If any jackrabbit is being put in major league baseballs, this reporter didn't see it.

Instead of a rabbit, to make a baseball you start with something that looks like the cork on a wine bottle. Called "suberac," it is ground cork held together by a binder.

A machine moulds these pellets into balls the size of a marble which are put inside the halves of a hollow, black rubber washer separating the two parts.

This is moulded under heat and vulcanized to form the smooth, hard core of a baseball.

The winding is done in a room in which temperature and humidity are kept constant.

In some of the arguments over the 1950 baseball, the theory has been advanced that balls now are wound more tightly than a few years ago. To do so, however, would mean adding more wool to the ball and increasing its weight. The weight must be kept between 5 and 5 1-4 ounces. That "tolerance" of a quarter ounce permits no liberties in the winding.

Gray Wool Twine

With the ball spinning in the grasp of three rollers, a girl loops a piece of gray wool twine around it. When the ball reaches a circumference of 7 3-4 inches—about two inches under the size of a finished ball—white wool of finer grade is wound on.

The ball now measures 8 3-16 inches and weighs 3 11-16 ounces against the finished weight of five ounces.

The third winding uses a smoother, finer grade of gray and then a thin layer of cotton thread is wound on. The next step is dipping in rubber cement.

The final operation is sewing on the horsehide cover.

Two moistened horse-hide panels are fitted around the wound up ball and stapled into place. The staples come out when the stitching is done. Each girl works with a needle in both hands from which dangle the traditional waxed red thread of a baseball.

When the sewing is completed —108 double stitches in all — the thread is anchored by a long deep stitch and the ball is trimmed up.

DIDN'T WASTE TIME

Lethbridge, Alta. (CP)—"Once I got started I just couldn't stop," said Dale Imeson after he completed 30 hours of flying time in four days to get his private pilot's licence. Normal training period before even soloing is about a month.

TOO CLOSE FOR COMFORT

Dublin, (CP)—A man was excused jury service because he said he had claustrophobia and could not stand being confined with 11 other persons.

Sixardee, Cubs Win District League Games

The Belleville Cubs and No. 6 R.D. RCAF baseball squads, running second and first in the Belleville District League extended their winning ways last night with the Cubs setting down the Point Anne crew by an 8-1 score and the air force crew defeating Napanee 9-5 in away games.

The win was the ninth straight victory for the rampaging 6 R.D. crew while the Cubs are close behind with seven wins and two setbacks. The teams clash here on July 12 in what should be one of the outstanding games of the season.

Sixardee, whose diamond career is being closely watched with absorbing interest by Group Captain Greene, commanding officer of the station, rapped two Napanee pitchers for 17 hits while Maloney, their hurler, let the Gibbardville crew down with three clouts. Seven errors were chalked up against the winners and these aided in the five runs garnered by the losers.

Perry started for Napanee and was yanked after being touched for 11 hits and seven runs in six and two-thirds innings. Robinson relieved him and was nicked for six hits and three runs over the rest of the route.

Hastings hit a triple and two singles to lead the airmen at the plate. Coursol, Maracle and Gibson each got a trio of blasts. Switzer, Van Vlack and Holmes were the only players to connect safely off the airman hurler.

"Gabby" Moynes of the Cubs barely missed the hall of fame in Point Anne last night when he let the homesters down with a single hit. The young hurler was in rare form and had the situation well in hand at all times. The Cubs played outstanding defensive ball behind him and at the moment are red hot.

Electric Girls Win Seventh Over Grafton

Northern Electric ladies softball team stretched their win list to reven as against two losses, last night, defeating Grafton by a 13-6 score in a Lakeshore Ladies Softball League game.

Ann McGrath went the route on the mound for the winners allowing seven hits while her mates were chalking up nine safeties against the hurling to Kernaghan on the mound for Grafton.

Electrics scored one each in the first two innings, four in the third, five in the fifth and two in the seventh. Grafton were held scoreless until the fifth when they shoved over two runs and added four more in the seventh.

McGrath, Robson, B. Reeves and Sequin rapped out two hits each for the Electrics with Tunny and Clouston connecting for two each for the losers.

Pee-Wee Jardine (nee Colden) has returned from the honeymoon and has rejoined the Electrics pitching staff.

Portslade, Sussex, England. — (CP)—John William Moyer plans to retire from his job as a drug-store messenger in 10 years. Moyer is 81 and believed to be Britain's oldest "errand boy".

Holloway, Middlesex, England, (CP)—Residents blamed an earthquake when two explosions flung paving stones into the air. The blast was due to an electricity failure. No one was hurt.

London, (CP) — Schoolboys leaving London airport for an educational tour in South Africa had to empty food hampers because their luggage was overweight. The boys gave away what they couldn't eat at the airport.

Glasgow, Scotland. (CP)—The Glasgow Orpheus choir will be disbanded next year when conductor Sir Hugh Roberton retires. By agreement, the choir will not perform under any other conductor. Sir Hugh is 77.

Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, (CP)—A fisherman's dream came true here. Two tired anglers were strolling from the pier after a fruitless day's fishing when a seagull swooped down and dropped a fat mackerel at their feet.

Widecombe-in-the-Moor, Devonshire, England, (CP)—This village —famous for the song of "Uncel Tom Cobley"—now has more than a few ghosts to worry about—there's an unexploded bomb in the vicinity.

Hellidon, Northamptonshire, England. (CP)—One of the village signposts here reads Helidon, while two others spell the name Hellidon and the residents are unable to agree which is correct. "One L", says the church council. "Two", says the parish council. C. Haynes, clerk to both of them, spells it either way as duty demands.

HIGH EFFICIENCY

St. Mary's, Ont. (CP)—A local furniture dealer has found that garbage collectors are possibly too efficient. He left two expensive chairs in cartons at the rear of his store for a couple of hours and they disappeared. He later found them on the city dump—one intact one burned to a crisp.

New Building Will House 15,000

Toronto, Ont.,— (CP)—A skyscraper has been called the engineers' way of making business convenient.

Statistics compiled by the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario to reveal that the estimated daytime population of the 25-storey Bank of Nova Scotia building, now nearing completion in downtown Toronto, will be 15,000 persons.

The building contains enough concrete for 100 miles of sidewalk, yet it is possible to walk around it in two minutes. The skeleton shaft is 325 feet high and the building will weigh 200,000,000 pounds when completed and occupied. One of the columns that stretches from basement to roof carries a weight of 1,800 tons.

Like all modern skyscrapers the building is designed to withstand sweeping winds. Based on engineering calculations, it can sway two inches, although it is unlikely that more than half an inch in either direction would be required for a safe margin.

Four thousand horsepower will be used daily for lighting, motors, pumps and elevators, stokers and refrigerators, an amount too great to entrust to wires. Instead bars of pure copper, connected with a special underground, electric sub-station outside the building will be used.

PICTON

Council Strikes 57 Mill Rate For Coming Year

Picton — A 57 mill rate was struck by town council at its June meeting Tuesday night. This is the same rate as last year. The levy is based on the following requirements:

Public school, $25,839.22; County requisition 37,427.95; Public library, 3,910.00; Public school debentures, 1,510.03; Public school debentures, 3,069.57; Collegiate Institute purposes, 7,584.40; Relief purposes, 3,076.57; Town purposes, 47,438.98; Separate school, 1,935.00.

Assessor Burton Baxter reported on information secured in regards to assessment work and the work is being completed on Main Street with the new information being followed.

A petition bearing 27 names was received, asking the town to take actions in regards to smoke nuisance in the western part of the town, this arising from canning factories. It was stated the smoke makes it impossible to hang out clothes or keep doors and windows open.

The market clerk was instructed to collect fees from the bus companies which use the terminal at the market square.

In an effort to enforce traffic by-laws, council will make a survey to determine where additional stop signs are required.

Council authorized the painting of the roof of the fire hall at a cost of $207.

The finance committee was asked to investigate the matter of salaries of town employees. It was stated that rates of 90 and 60 cents an hour are paid. The employees suggested that rates be equalized at 70 cents an hour for all employees.

Dual Language Helps Canucks In U.N. Jobs

Ottawa (CP) — Canada's bilingualism is one reason there are so many Canadians working with the United Nations at Lake Success, a first vice-president of the newly-formed administrative tribunal said during a recent visit here.

Madame Paul Bastid, a sister of Jean Basdevant, Charge d'Affaires at the French Embassy, said in an interview that under the U.N.'s administrative regulations each country is entitled to have a certain number of its nationals employed by the U.N.

But because of the bilingual nature of Canada and the need for bilingual employees the number of Canadians working at Lake Success actually is greater than the number of positions to which Canada is entitled.

In town for a brief visit with her brother after a year's work in helping to set up the tribunal, the prominent French lawyer said she hoped to take time out to visit some of the paper mills in the area before returning to Lake Success.

Explaining the workings of the tribunal, Mme. Bastid, professor of International Law at the Sorbonne in Paris, called to mind the fact that any person taking a job with the U. N. — whether he be junior typist or highly-paid legal adviser — immediately became an "International" citizen.

No Recourse

In effect this means he cannot turn to his own government or courts if he has grievances to air, she said.

That is where the new administrative tribunal will come into action.

Questions of sick leave, hours of wages are just a few of the things which will be dealt with when this court holds its first session in the near future.

Another problem is that of permitting employees living at a distance to spend their vacation at home.

"Obviously a person doesn't want to spend all his time on the train or ship," said Madame Bastid. 'Something must be worked out to give the employee reasonable home leave."

Fourteen persons from the U.N. staff will present their problems at the first session of the new administrative court before a panel made up of the president, the Maharajah of Nawanager, India; Madame Bastid and Sir Sydney Caine, prominent British lawyer who also is a vice-president of the tribunal.

AFRAID OF TANKS, ADEPT WITH RIFLES

Though said to be afraid of tanks and mechanized equipment, South Korean troops, according to U.S. observers on the battle scene, say that they have fought well with small arms. Mountainous country gives this South Korean sniper good opportunity to show his skill. — Central Press Canadian.

U.S. troops fighting alongside South Korean soldiers are teaching their comrades-in-arms the way to use machine-guns and other equipment. Here a G.I. keeps an eye on his crew in a shallow trench and their target is not a bullseye, but live communists. — Central Press Canadian.

Souvenir of a visit to Korea is this bullet hole in the fuselage of a U.S. Japan-based plane. The pilots have breakfast at home, fly to Korea, have dinner with their wives and families. — Central Press Canadian.

DEFENCE

May Hold Conference

6. Though there is no immediate plan to stimulate local civil defence training on a municipal block-by-block system, a conference here in the Fall will consider the basis for co-operation with the provinces and will enable them to take further co-operative action with individual municipalities.

Dealing briefly with the dispatch of the Canadian Destroyers Cayuga, Athabaskan and Sioux from Esquimalt, B.C., yesterday to Hawaii and possibly on to the Korean war zone, Mr. Claxton said Canada's offer of naval aid to the United Nations could be enlarged without recalling parliament.

However, there was no plan at present to boost Canada's contribution and he felt that if circumstances were such that army or air force aid from Canada was considered, then parliament would have to be recalled.

No Civilian Permitted

Certain security measures also have been taken by the United States on the Michigan side of the locks where no unauthorized civilians now are permitted.

The minister made it clear that the government would not put any obstacles in the way of Canadians volunteering for action against communist invaders in South Korea. But there likely would be little call for such volunteers because the kind of aid needed in Korea was formations of men and materiel.

Mr. Claxton said it was not realistic to anticipate a gas attack on Canada. Nor was it realistic to think that this country or this continent could build up a radar defence network on a scale anything like Britain had in wartime. Neither was it realistic to talk of air raid shelters for all Canada.

Canada's 2,000 miles of northland territory had a "great" significance in defence. Exercise Sweetbriar had proved the difficulty of trying to move any sizeable force across the Arctic waters.

Strategic sections of Canada were being covered as fast as possible with radar and other early-warning protection.

FLOOD CLEAN-UP WORK

Winnipeg, July 6 — (CP) — Flood clean-up work will restrict the eastward flow of Manitoba agricultural workers to help with the Ontario harvest this year, national employment service officials here said today.

Ontario has called for 1,000 western harvest hands before the end of this month. So far about 200 have gone east. Alberta is expected to provide 350 and Saskatchewan 400.

U.S. Takes New Steps to Get Power into Korea

By ELTON C. JAY

Washington, July 6. (AP)—American moves to get more power into the defence of South Korea coincided today with speculation on the virtual disappearance of North Korean planes from the skies.

Some United States military men were led to the hope that the strategic attacks by American and British aircraft were beginning to show results.

They quickly added, however, that this should be viewed as only one possible explanation and that the real reason is not yet known here.

Overnight there were two developments indicating stepped-up air activity to bolster the South Korean defences:

1. The U.S. Air Force said it was sending an undisclosed number of Mustang fighters to the Far Eastern Air Forces. These planes, able to operate at slower speeds and greater ranges than jets, are needed to support the hard-pressed ground forces of the American and South Korean armies There have been some in action, a few of them flown by South Koreans, others by Australian Air Force and U.S. pilots—but not enough. Defence officials, in a separate action, confirmed that the escort carrier Sicily is taking extra aircraft and spare parts to the big carrier Valley Forge, operating off Korea. The Sicily could carry perhaps as many as 60 planes.

2. The Defence department contracted with seven airlines to make special flights from the United States to the Far East to carry men and supplies. These flights will supplement the regular operations of the military air transport service. They will be similar to the charter flights used to support the Berlin airlift.

For days, U.S. and British aircraft have been hammering at North Korean air fields, rail lines, fuel dumps and highway convoys.

Air strategists here comment that it is strange that during the last few days the North Korean air force has failed to take off for defence of bomb targets.

SELDOM SEEN ISOLATED

Pittsburgh, July 6 (AP)—The little suburban community called Seldom Seen is just that today.

It was isolated by rains of near cloudburst proportions yesterday. The community of a dozen homes on Saw Mill Run Boulevard is inaccessable by car. Swollen waters of a nearby creek washed out the only available road entering the area.

Churchill Calls for New Talks Says Red Win in Korea Would Bring Third World War

London, July 6. (CP)—Winston Churchill said Wednesday that a communist victory in Korea would result in a Third World War.

"Only one thing is essential now," Churchill said, "namely that the step which the communists have taken in Korea should not end in their triumphs. If that were to happen, a Third World War in conditions more deadly than now exist would be forced upon us before long."

Churchill called for new talks with the Russians to seek a settlement before they possess the "devastating power" weapons.

"It is my belief that the American superiority in atomic warfare is, for the time being, an effective deterrent against a general communist onslaught," he told the House of Commons, debating the Korean war.

The Conservative leader joined Prime Minister Attlee in declaring that British and American action in Korea gave the best chance of maintaining world peace.

Amid the applause of a crowded House, Attlee had said the world was "indebted to the United States government" for its prompt action in defending South Korea against "naked aggression."

Defending Britain's swift support for the United States, he said delay might have let the aggressor "get away with it" and faced the United Nations with a fait accompli.

Churchill urged a secret session to give the House more information in "this deepening crisis." The session would deal with the foreign situation generally, not just Korea.

Appealing for unanimous support for the government's action. Attlee spoke of Korea as only one manifestation of communist pressure.

"We are resisting this attack in Malaya.

Saw Friend Die, Shot In Crowded Park

Otto Flaig, 12, is shown with a detective after a middle-aged baseball fan, whom young Flaig identified as Bernard Doyle of Union City, N.J., was killed by a high-powered rifle bullet while sitting in the crowded upper left field deck at New York's Polo Grounds. Flaig, a neighbor's son who accompanied Doyle to the ball park, said he heard a "pop" and saw blood spurting from Doyle's head. The shooting occurred just before the double-header between the Giants and Dodgers. Baffled police began an investigation of the apartment houses that overlook the Polo Grounds from Coogan's Bluff. — Central Press Canadian.

Vishinsky May Be on Diplomatic Mission to Asia

London, July 6 (AP) — The continued absence of Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky from the Moscow scene has raised speculation among diplomats that he is on a mission to Asia.

The speculation centres about these guesses:

1. That Vishinsky is in Red China for talks with Chou En-Lai, premier and foreign minister, on the crisis in the communist east's relations with the west.
2. That Vishinsky is in Pyongyang, capital of communist North Korea, conferring with the Red government on moves in the Korean war.
3. That Vishinsky is ill.

The last word on Vishinsky from Moscow was that he was apparently on vacation. His last announced appearance was when he saw Secretary-general Trygve Lie of the U.N. May 18.

A suspicious circumstances is the similar absence from the news of Ho Chih-Minh, leader of the Viet Minh rebellion against the French-sponsored Viet Nam government in Indo-China. There has been speculation that he has been either in Red China's capital, Peiping, or in Moscow. It could mean a conference on future communist moves in Asia.

Hottest Weather In Century Hits City of Vienna

Vienna, July 6 — (Reuters) — Fires roared through Austrian forestlands Wednesday as Austrians gasped in a heat wave which brought Vienna its hottest day in a century.

One fire covering more than 200 acres near the Czechoslovak frontier almost destroyed the village of Ceuhof, near Ottenschlag.

Tuesday's Vienna record temperature was 99 degrees, one degree hotter than last Friday's which had exceeded anything recorded in the last 100 years.

S. Korea-Japan Route Gets High Priority on Plans

Washington, July 6 (AP) — Protection of the all-important sea route linking southern Korea with Japan is getting high priority in the Far East war operations.

Ships of the United States and Royal navies and land-based patrol planes of the American navy are scouting along the Korean coasts and the sea lane across to the southern port of Pusan to keep them clear of raider vessels or aircraft.

The expected arrival of a U.S. carrier in the area will augment this protective cover for the supply ships and troop transports upon which the heavier part of the military build-up in Korea hinges.

Dispatches from the Far East and reports at Washington indicate that up to now the only menace has been from small surface craft, chiefly of the motor torpedo boat type, and the north Korean air force. A communique yesterday by the Far East command said laconically: "Transportation of munitions, material, supplies and troops from points in Japan to Korea continued unmolested throughout the day."

No one here was inclined to bury, behind easy victories of cruisers over motor torpedo boats, the possibility that submarines might enter the picture.

One of the serious problems of American military forces is the fact that virtually all men and material being rushed to south Korea must funnel through the single port of Pusan.

Three Shot to Death In Two Gun Duels

Detroit, July 6 — (CP) — A father, his son and a police constable were shot to death Tuesday night in two gun duels in the father's home.

Police said that Norman Doe, 55, killed his son Norman, Jr., 25, with a shotgun during a family argument.

Patrolman Joseph Maglinske, called to the scene, was fired on by the father and died two hours later in hospital.

Another police officer, Patrolman James Downey, went to the house and bullets from his gun killed Doe.

LAND OF CONTRASTS

The northern mountains of Korea are bleak in winter, the southern lowlands hot and humid in summer.

Taken to Hospital With Ice Pick In His Chest

Vancouver, July 6 — (CP) — Robert Cameron, 41-year-old marine engine salesman taken to hospital Tuesday night with an ice pick in his chest, still was in critical condition Wednesday.

Cameron was found lying in a west-end apartment. Found with him was Mrs. Carmen Ryan, 33, her face covered with blood.

Cameron has severe chest and throat wounds. Mrs. Ryan, whose condition was described as 'fairly good,' is being treated for chest lacerations.

Mrs. M. Carey, who occupies the apartment under Mrs. Ryan's, said she was reading the paper when she heard screams coming from the apartment above.

"I knocked on the door and she opened it. Her face was covered with blood. I asked her what was wrong.

"She screamed: 'Help me; stop him; he's hurting himself.'

"I looked in the front room and saw a man kneeling in the middle of the floor with what looked like a knife in his chest."

Crop Conditions Much Improved Throughout West

Ottawa, July 6 — (CP) — Crop conditions have improved throughout Canada's vast prairie wheatlands in the last two weeks, but the prospects in Alberta and Saskatchewan are not all they might be.

In Manitoba there has been more than enough rain and though the crop is late it is making good progress. Moisture conditions have improved in Saskatchewan and Alberta but are still below normal in those two big wheat producing areas.

This was the report Wednesday of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in its periodic summary of crop prospects across the Dominion. In the Maritimes, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia, it said, prospects are good.

In Ontario the crop prospects have improved but rain is still badly needed in some areas, particularly Renfrew County. Hay and clover crops yields will be better than expected and fall wheat is already headed out and harvesting will begin shortly.

Serious Shortage Of Farm Labor May Develop

Toronto, July 6 — (CP)—Officials of the Ontario Agriculture Department said today a serious shortage of farm labor may develop within the next few weeks as farmers prepare to harvest a possible all-time record grain crop.

Reports from all sections of the province indicate a shortage of skilled harvest helpers.

The immediate shortage will be eased to some extent next week when some 350 field workers from Alberta arrive to assist with the harvest.

But an official said, more workers will be needed and "We don't know where we can get them."

TARGET OF RED ABUSE

John Foster Dulles, right, is the favorite target of communist propaganda now. Recently returned from a tour of Korea, immediately before the invasion from the North started, Dulles, President Truman's emissary, is accused of having made the trip to see if the "time was ripe" for the war to start. — Central Press Canadian.

VOYAGE TO PEARL HARBOR CALLED "NORMAL TRAINING"

In what Canadian naval authorities describe as a "normal training cruise," three destroyers, the Athabaskan, Sioux and Cayuga took on supplies at Victoria, B.C., before sailing for Pearl Harbor. Biggest Daily News Story In Canada is the Weather

By CAMERON JAMES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, July 6 (CP) — The weather is the bigegst daily news story in Canada. Forecasts on what it will be like tomorrow make the front pages of newspapers and are featured on radio broadcasts.

To the man in the street, the farmer, the builder, the confectionery maker, the sailor, the aviator and the business man a foreknowledge of whether it is likely to rain or shine is of interest —in some cases of extreme importance.

Where does the forecast come from? Who supplies it?

Chances are 100 to one that forecasts you read or hear in Canada come from one of the seven public weather offices located across the country — at Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, Halifax and Gander, Nfld.

These offices are maintained by the Meteorological Division of the Federal Department of Transport. Each office provides forecasts for a large district covering on the average about 1½ provinces. Each is linked by more than 21,000 miles of teletype circuit which are also connected with forecast stations which dot the map of Canada, from Whitehorse in the Yukon to Torbay on Newfoundland's east coast.

By international agreement, connections are maintained with weather stations throughout the world. By phoning the nearest weather office, it is possible to learn whether it is raining in Honolulu or snowing in Yucatan.

Expanding Service

Officials at the Meteorological division's headquarters in Toronto say it took the Second World War to awake Canadians to the vital importance of weather forecasts. Its cost tells the story of its growth. In 1939, the Dominion government appropriated less than $1,000,000 for the service; now the cost is more than $5,000,000 a year. The service now has about 1,000 full-time employees with another 250 working part time.

Extension of service accompanied growth on size. Now, among other things, the weather office supplies a frost warning service to fruit growers, storm warnings for fishermen, weather information to forest rangers to help prevent and fight forest fires, and temperature reports to shippers of such perishable goods as fruit and vegetables.

Comparatively New

Most of these services are comparatively new in the life of Canada's oldest government service which can trace its beginnings back 110 years. It began on Christmas morning, 1839, when Lieut. Charles Buchanan Riddell stepped out of old Fort York (now Toronto) in Upper Canada and noted that the thermometer stood at 26.6 degrees Fahrenheit.

Riddell went to Montreal earlier in 1839 to set up a combined meteorological and magnetic observatory but mineral deposits interfered with his instruments and he moved to Fort York. The site of the observatory has changed since although it has always been in Toronto. The present meteorological division was established in 1872.

In the early days, weathermen in the government's service were hampered by public apathy, low budgets and inferior instruments. Grammar school principals of the 1850's who were compelled by law to take weather observations could not be said to have possessed an "esprit de corps", and their readings were hampered by improperly calibrated instruments.

Now no populated section in Canada is without its forecast service.

Bullet Kills Fan in Grandstand At Polo Grounds

New York, July 6 — (AP)—A bullet aimed by chance or incredible marksmanship whipped through the Polo Grounds Tuesday and struck one of 50,000 baseball fans dead in his grandstand seat.

Twelve hours later part of the 40 detectives working on the case found several empty .22-calibre shells on the roof of a nearby apartment building — and a .22 target pistol and two .22 rifles in an apartment one floor below.

They questioned a 14-year-old boy who lived in the room with his grandmother, but said she denied any connection with the holiday shooting.

The boy was booked on a charge of juvenile delinquency made in connection with possession of the guns and pistol. The grandmother, Mrs. Marie Belld was charged with violation of the Sullivan (anti-weapon) Law.

The victim was 54-year-old Bernard Lawrence Doyle of Fairview, N. J., a former fight manager who launched James J. Braddock on the path to the world's heavyweight championship.

Doyle was sitting in an upper left-field stand with a 12-year-old neighbor boy, watching Brooklyn Dodgers' pre-game batting practice when persons near him heard a "pop" like a paper bag breaking, and saw Doyle slump back in his seat.

They assumed he had been taken ill suddenly, but then saw blood run from his ears. There was a small hole in his left temple. The bullet had passed through his brain and lodged in the other side of his skull. He died almost instantly.

Military Training Compulsory Soon In Australia

Canberra, July 6 (Reuters) — Australia will introduce compulsory military training "as soon as possible," it was announced today.

The announcement was made after a meeting of the defence council comprising service ministers and service chiefs.

The defence council also decided that youths age 18 will be drafted for between 3 1-2 and four months for all three services.

The proportion will be 75 percent for the army, 15 percent for the air force and 10 percent for the navy.

The defence council's decisions have to be ratified by the Federal Cabinet.

EVERY LITTLE HELPS

Hanna, Alta. (CP)—Eavestroughs are helping to solve the water shortage in the southeast corner of Alberta. Water caught in the troughs of the larger buildings is being put through the filter plant and used either for the town or the swimming pool. Thousands of gallons of water have been saved.

60 HELPING HANDS

Saltscoats, Sask. (CP)—Bert Kirkham has been ill as the result of several years spent in a prisoner-of-war camp. When he wanted 30 acres of land broken in, 30 neighbors gathered with trucks, tractors and implements, broke and prepared the land and seeded it.

Chevrier Opens Most Modern Freight Railway Terminal In N. America at Montreal

Montreal, July 6 (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier today opened North America's most modern railway freight terminal.

He touched a button to send the first box car rolling down the hump to be switched automatically to its place in the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's St. Luc "Hump Retarder" yard, a $12,000,000 project 2½ years in construction.

Covering 682 acres, with 111 different tracks totalling 75 miles in a series of three operational yards, the terminal has a capacity of 4,869 cars.

Trains enter at the north entrance, near Montreal west, from the C.P.R.'s main line from the west, proceed into a receiving yard, where they are "humped" by gravity and switched automatically to designated places in the classification yard.

If the cars are in poor condition as they pass over a glass-enclosed, three-man inspection pit, they are automatically routed to repair tracks.

They then move on an assembly-line basis into the departure yard where road engines haul them out into main line traffic, 3½ miles from the entrance. All yard traffic is one way.

Direct steaming facilities in the 37-stall engine house enable steam locomotives to dump their fires before entering the yard and not rebuild them until they have left, this overcoming the smoke problem.

It is expected that at peak traffic periods, between 2,800 and 3,000 cars can be handled each 24 hours. An 85-car train can be switched in 20 minutes.

Cars are automatically braked by electric retarders on the wheels. These also are worked by push-button.

Messenger Ends 110 Years of Publication

Montreal, July 6 (CP)—John Dougall and son of Montreal today put out their last edition of the Northern Messenger to end more than 110 years of publishing.

Frederick E. Dougall, 83, last surviving member of the family wrote a farewell editorial in which he said he could find no one financially capable as well as willing to carry on and had no other alternative but to discontinue "the last of our papers while yet its sole surviving member is able to meet all its obligations."

"We could have sold the paper for thousands of dollars to exploiters, but we would not do that," he added.

The Messenger sent to homes and Sunday schools for 87 years, once had a circulation of 63,000 but dropped to 23,000 in recent years.

The Montreal Daily Witness, another family publication, was discontinued in 1938 after it steadily lost money.

Referring to the Witness, Mr. Dougall said: "It was the most morally courageous newspaper Canada ever had. In the hardest of all fields, it championed the cause of righteousness and fought against the popular evils of the day, economic, social and political — its independent fight for the right would fill a large volume.

"It is with sadness that I must now close the vault, with its combination lock, on the three-generation-long adventures of the Dougalls—finished!"

The Messenger, a 16-page weekly publication, dealt mainly with religious matters.

It was founded more than a century ago by John Dougall, who operated it until his death when his son, John Redpath Dougall, Jr., took over. He died in 1934 with the present publisher undertaking the management. Mr. Dougall's only son was killed while serving with the RCAF during the Second World War.

Sub-Machine Gun, $521 Found Near Crime Scene

Langton, July 6 (CP) —Discovery of a Thompson sub-machine gun, two articles of clothing and $521 in cash was announced Wednesday night by Ontario Provincial Police. Efforts will be made to link the find with the robbery and double slaying near here June 22.

Mary Holmes, of Kinglake found a coat and shirt about a mile east of the spot where Arthur Lierman, 31, wealthy real estate man and farmer, and William Goddyn, 24, one of Lierman's farm tennants, were shot to death in a fusillade of machine gun bullets. They had given chase to a bandit who robbed the Imperial Bank of Canada branch at Langton.

The young girl did not think the discovery important and neglected to tell her mother about it until Wednesday night.

After a short search along the farm fence, Mrs. Holmes discovered $521 in cash and a short while later, her son Robert discovered the gun, cached in the stump fence.

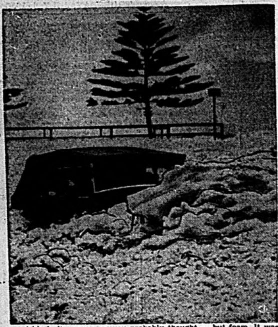
THREE GUESSES



This isn't snow — as you probably thought — but foam. It was blown in from the sea by strong winds along the Sydney, Aust., coast. This photo shows an intrepid motorist driving his automobile through part of the foam at Newport Beach, about 15 miles from Sydney. In some places it was so deep it had to be swept away from houses and beach-side kiosks. — (CP Photo.)

Marmora Swamps Norwood 15-2 In Juvenile Game

Marmora—By the score of 15-2 Marmora avenged its defeat at the hands of Norwood in the Trent Valley Juvenile Baseball League in their game in the western village on Tuesday evening. Neither pitcher was of the strikeout variety. Darrah on the mound for the winners only got four, while E. Spencer who lasted for six frames for Norwood only retired three in that manner.

Hickey, Marmora's first baseman brought off a neat double play and narrowly missed repeating the performance. Brown, Sweet, Killian and Dikun stood out as hitters for Marmora. Kelly was the star hitter for Norwood. In taking over as pitcher in the seventh he fared badly for support and the seven runs which made the final score one sided were largely the result of errors.

Teams:

Marmora: Brown ss; Jones cf; Sweet 3b; Killian 2b; Darrah p; Borland c; Dikun cf; Hickey 1b, Bedore rf.

Norwood: Monahan 2b; R. Spencer 3b; E. Spencer p, 1b; Kelly ss, p; Horne rf; Fredericks cf; Cuthbertson lf; Starke 1b; LaBrash c, 2b.

Score by innings:

		R	H	E
Marmora	121 004 7—	15	9	3
Norwood	010 100 0—	2	3	6

Umpires: T. Cousins at plate; A. Aldred on bases.

BONARLAW

Mrs. G. Williams Honored by Pupils And Parents

Bonarlaw—In the schoolhouse on Thursday evening of last week, Mrs. Geo. Williams, teacher of S.S. No. 5 for the past seven years, had a get-together party.

There was a short program of songs and recitations by the pupils, after which Mrs. Gordon Webb read an address expressing the regret of all that Mrs. Williams finds it necessary, on account of her health, to give up the teaching profession. It was noted that some of the children had completed their entire public school education under her instruction.

On behalf of the pupils and parents, Mrs. Wm. E. Neal presented Mrs. Williams with a large wall mirror.

In thanking all for this kind remembrance, Mrs. Williams remarked that in this school she had received such wonderful cooperation from the parents and such good attendance by the pupils.

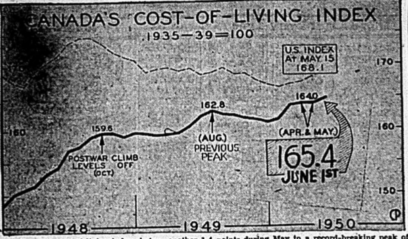
RECORD CRACKED



Canada's cost-of-living index shot up another 1.4 points during May to a record-breaking peak of 165.4 — after remaining stationary at 164.0 during March and April. The Bureau of Statistics said the rise was due almost entirely to higher meat prices. The heavy line shows the United States' cost-of-living index which was at 168.1 on May 15. CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"YER PAYS YER MONEY . . . !

Next Tuesday gloaming should settle a lot of arguments and some nice neat leaves of lettuce, the folding kind, will have a new home, for the nonce, at least.

For that evening, gentle readers, and kind hearts, sees the momentous much-ballyhooed clash between the mushball gladiators of dear old Suds Seminary and Stillson State.

There are murmurings in the Howe and Hagerman haciendas where Professor Cyrus B. Barriage holds secret sessions with the Class of '50 which is majoring in mushball and on the side clanging wrench on pipe in order to collect the weekly stipend doled out more or less monotonously by Dean Jack Howe, boss-man of the seminary.

"The honor of deah old Stillson is at stake," dramatically declared the rotund coach of the plumbing platoon. "You guys — pardon — gentlemen have had the noble escutcheon of the school tainted by the stigma of defeat at the hands of the lowly Ramsay Pigmenteers. That must be wiped off, and the only way to restore it to its former pristine glory is by wiping it clean with the blood of the Suds. These Foam-blowing Fusiliers must be hurled to the dust. Only by their defeat can you remove the besmirchment that now adorns the shield of Stillson."

And there are portentious sounds emerging from cellar-way and basement, or wherever the sons of Sud meet. In the bistros, the eateries, the cavernous aisles of warehouses, office and shop, there is heard whisperings bordering on the braggadocio as to what will happen to the Wrench Wrenegades when the teams clash on the Alemite Campus.

Professor Herbert Theopholus Murgatroyd Henn, master eggbeater of the Seminary faculty has no qualms as to the outcome. He lightly tossed off, among other things, the very idea that his froth dispensers will go down to defeat before the onslaught of the Stillsoneers. Why it's ridiculous. Didn't the Darrah Dandies knock 'em off in what was not so much of an upset as the newspaper boys had it? Why those pipe-cleaners will be wilted like a rainsoaked cabbage after the Sons of Sud have performed their practice calisthenics against them next Tuesday.

We cornered La Henn the other evening after he had finished the daily chore of issuing vitamin tablets to his mushball pullets, rubbed them down, bedded them and tucked them in.

He dismissed his handlers and two secretaries with a wave of the hand.

"Back to your crates, you Rhode Island Blues" he snarled.

"Can't call 'em Reds", he grinned. "Uncle Joe might approach them with offers to buy our signals".

"Hear Prof. Barriage has Johnny Bawden on the dotted line?" we ventured. "What do you think of that?"

The mighty one smirked.

"He's just a pitcher".

"What about Hunter and Al. Adams?"

"Two more pitchers".

Well, we learned something at least, so we tried another tack.

"What do you think of your team's chances in this forthcoming battle of the mushball century?"

Henn cackled. He ruffled his feathers, borroweed two cigarettes, (he never does things by halves) and followed through with a request for a handful of matches.

"What would Citation's chance be against one of those mules I saw in the Exhibition Grounds last Saturday?" he countered.

That stopped us for the moment. We had never heard of a team called "Citation".

We begged for a more specific answer.

"Well," he said. "It's like this. Would you like to make yourself some money, iron men, masuma, lettuce or coin of the realm?"

We shook our head.

"I thought so", he came back. Here's what you do. Mortgage the family shanty, get a loan on that jalopy of yours, borrow a few bucks from the Low-charge Finance Company and put it on the line. One will get you three that the Stillsons will be dethreaded come sundown next Tuesday."

Proud of our ability to keep a secret, we immediately got in touch with Professor Barriage. He pried the above information from us and gave his own opinion of the outcome.

"You tell that double-yolked scion of a Plymouth Rock that his little soft-shells will be scrambled, poached, fricasseed, turned over, sunny-side up and flapjacked by the time the Wrenches are through. Just because we allowed a team to defeat us, does not necessarily mean that this froth-blowing fraternity can kick us around as they see fit."

And the stubby prof. with the crew cut resumed his study of "Mushball Maybem".

We have it on good authority that Pied Piper Peaver will lead his Bakelite Buglers in a grand victory parade following the game, no matter which team wins.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, July 6 (AP) — They'll hardly get the All-Star baseball game out of the way in Chicago next week before the footballers begin drilling for the All - Star-Philadelphia Eagles game in the same city Aug. 11. ....Just to show you how tough that can be in mid-summer, Los Angeles Rams recently notified their hirelings to report July 17 and added this warning: "Be in such shape that you can jog two miles, do 30 push-ups and run five 100-yard sprints on opening-day."

Biting Answer

Via the Sporting News, Oscar Ruhl passes on this one about Jack Onslow, who is being paid approximately 800 bucks each pay day by the White Sox to go fishing...Jack was fishing in Canada when he hauled out a huge bass and tossed it right back...The amazed guide asked why he had done that and Onslow glumly replied: "Because that big-mouth bass reminded me of an umpire in the American League I wanted to forget."

Unconscious Poetry

Philadelphia's Jim Haughton reports that a baseball fan walked into his office the other day moaning: "There's no headline so oft repeated as the dirge—'The A's defeated'."...We can match that with Dan Parker's possibly intention rhyme: "Brooklyn fans don't cotton to the strategy of Shotton."

One-Third American League All-Star Team Composed Of New York Yankees Players

By JERRY LISKA

Chicago, July 6. (AP)—A 25-player American League squad, one-third composed of New York Yankees and listing only one regular third baseman, will face the National League's best in the 17th All-star game here next Tuesday.

Eight of his own world champion Yankees are on the squad completed today by Yank manager Casey Stengel, the American loop pilot, who selected eight pitchers and nine reserve players to go with the eight starters named in a fan vote.

All eight American clubs are represented on the squad which meets a National loop array selected yesterday. Boston Red Sox have five All-star nominees, followed by Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers with four each. Chicago White Sox, Philadelphia Athletics, St. Louis Browns and Washington Senators have one apiece.

Stengel picked two left-handed pitchers and six right-handers. The Southpaws are Tommy Byrne of the Yanks and the Tigers' brilliant Ted Gray. The right-handers are Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds, also from the Yankees; Art Houtteman of the Tigers; Bob Feller and Bob Lemon of the Indians and Ray Scarborough, the Lone White Sox man on the squad.

Although Stengel lined up nine infielders, stellar George Kell of the Tigers is the only third baseman by the book. Five outfielders and three catchers round out the squad.

Two as Starters

Two Yankees—catcher Larry Berra and shortstop Phil Rizzuto are in the starting American lineup dictated by the fans. Besides them and Pitchers Byrne, Raschi and Reynolds, Stengel also picked second Sacker Gerry Coleman, outfielder Joe Dimaggio and first baseman Tommy Henrich from his own team.

Second to Kell in the third-base fan voting was Cleveland's home run slugger, Al Rosen. But if Indian fans raise an eyebrow over Rosen's absence, it should be pointed out that Stengel named the tribe's Jim Hegan, along with Sherm Lollar or St. Louis Browns, as catching replacements for Berra.

The Red Sox have the most starters, three, with rookie Walt Dropo at first base, Bobby Doerr at second and Ted Williams in the outfield. Detroit's Walt Evers and Cleveland's Larry Doby, both outfielders, complete the starting line-up Stengel must use for at least three innings.

The two-man outfield reserve corps is strictly a family affair, with Boston's Dom Dimaggio and brother Yankee Joe as Stengel's spare fly-hawks.

A third first baseman named by Stengel was Philadelphia's Ferris Fain, while Boston's Vern Stephens lines up behind Rizzuto at shortstop and Washington's Cass Michaels' a 1949 All-star starter, will wait with Coleman behind Doerr at second base.

Petes Win Over St. Catharines In Thrilling Game

(By The Canadian Press)

It was lacrosse at its best in Peterborough Wednesday night.

In one of the most thrilling games of the Ontario Senior Lacrosse season, Peterborough Petes edged out St. Catharines Athletics 15-14. Arn Dugan's goal at 10:21 of the fourth period broke a 14-14 tie and gave the home team the win.

The game was clean and wide-open all the way. A crowd of 1,500 saw the lead change hands several times before Dugan's timely counter, his sixth of the night. Don Ashbee got four, and Dootch Vitarelli bagged a pair.

For St. Kitts, Tony Damico was the leading light. He scored four goals, while Leo Teatero turned the hat trick. Jim McMahon and Pat Smith each had a pair.

In Mimico, the Mountjes trounced the last-place Toronto Riverdales 19-15 on the strength of a furious last-half drive that netted them seven goals in the third quarter.

Toronto sprang into an early lead, led by the Dixon brothers, Ken and Art. But they seemed to tire after the interval and Mimico took complete command of the play. Bruce Webster was the leading Toronto sniper with three goals.

Boston Red Sox Call up Hurlers For Stretch Drive

Boston, July 6 (AP)—Girding for another hard-driving pennant finish, Boston Red Sox have jettisoned much pitching flotsam while calling back two promising youngsters.

While reorganizing a flinging staff that has given up 16 runs and 700 hits in 74 games, three shy of the American League's halfway mark, General Manager Joe Cronin yesterday reduced it to six strong-armed members before calling up Willard Nixon and Dick Littlefield, from Louisville and Birmingham.

Nixon, a 22-year-old right-hander, has won 11 and lost two in the American Association so far this season and the 24-year-old southpaw Littlefield turned in 10 victories while losing but thrice for Birmingham.

Cronin's pruning sent Charlie Shanz to St. Louis Browns and Al Papai to St. Louis Cardinals, both via the waiver route, and demoted Jim Suchecki and lefty Earl Johnson to Louisville.

Johnson, however, will not report to the Colonels until July 17. By then he will have had 10 years of American League experience and be entitled the benefits such service entails.

The current Red Sox staff, blamed for the club's sorry start this season, now includes right-handers Joe Dobson, tops with nine wins and six losses. Ellis Kinder, Walt Masterson and southpaws Mel Parnell.

A few days ago, the Sockers signed Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., a former Philadelphia Athletics star, as a free agent after he had been released by the Buffalo International League club.

When one of Marchildon's former major league teammates heard about it, he snickered. "If Phil's arm was too sore to help us and he couldn't win for Buffalo, what can he do for the Red Sox?"

That's something the Red Sox expect to learn soon, for Marchildon is due for an early assignment.

Bobby Locke Man to Beat In British Open

Troon, Scotland, July 6 (AP)—All eyes focussed today on unruffled Bobby Locke, the mechanical golfer from South Africa, as the man to beat in the British Open championships.

Golfers remember how Locke won the title last year. Playing Irishman Harry Bradshaw, he imperturbably sank a tough putt for a birdie on the 17th green which enabled him to go on and tie his opponent. Then, in the 36 playoff, Locke won by 12 strokes.

That's the way this killer of the fairways operates. He never worries about a bad or gloats over his many good ones. He concentrates on the next poke.

He never varies his putting routine. He sizes up the putt, takes two practice strokes, and taps the ball—usually only once.

Locke didn't lead the field at the end of yesterday's first round but he was just one stroke off the pace with a 69.

The leader was Arthur Lees, a round little Yorkshireman. Lees had a 68 but most folks around here don't think he can hold that pace for four rounds. They feel the same way about E. E. Whitcombe, another Briton who tied Locke with 69.

Four Americans may have trouble staying in the tournament after tonight. A score of 145 for the first two rounds may be needed to remain in the last 40 who advance into tomorrow's 36-hole finals of medal play.

The best American score yesterday was 73, turned in by both Johnny Bulla, the tall Pittsburgh pro, and Jimmy McHale, the Philadelphia amateur.

Just behind them in the battle with Troon's par-70 course was Art Clark of Huntington, W. Va., with a 74.

Farr in the rut was Frank Stranahan, the muscular Toledo, O., amateur and former Canadian champion, with a 77.

Montreal Royals Defeat Leafs In Hectic Game

(By The Associated Press)

Brooklyn isn't the only place where shenanigans occur.

There were a number of those things that made Brooklyn famous in Toronto last night where Montreal Royals, a Dodger farm club, defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 11-7.

First of all Manager Jack Sanford and infielder Bobby Rhawn of the Leafs were bounced from the game in the fifth inning for arguing over a close play in which Rhawn was called out.

Shortly after, infielder Ralph Lapointe of the Leafs, coaching at first base, streaked to the Montreal dugout seeking a Royal who was tossing pebbles and heckling him at the same time.

Lapointe's sprint was closely followed by the Leaf team and the gendarmes hustled out and restored order. Then outfielder George Schmees, who didn't participate in the game, dashed from the Montreal dugout into the stands after a heckler and was hauled back by two of his teammates before any damage was done.

The game took three hours to complete and the Royals won by virtue of a five-run sixth inning and a three-run ninth. Former Leaf Johnny Welaj paced the victors by driving in three runs on a pair of round trippers. Ed Sanicki hit a homer for the Leafs.

Meanwhile, the League leading Rochester Red Wings trounced the tail-end Buffalo Bison 9-5. Rookie first baseman Don Bollweg led the Wings' 13-hit attack by driving in four runs on a homer, double and single. The Wings wrapped up the decision with a six run blast in the sixth.

The second-place Jersey City Giants climbed to within 2 1-2 games of the Wings by sweeping a doubleheader from Springfield Cubs, 4-3 and 2-1.

The Baltimore-Syracuse game was rained out.

Rocky Nelson's Work at First Base Injects New Life Into Ranks of St. Louis Cardinals

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Rocky Nelson looks like the answer to Eddie Dyer's "who's on first" riddle. Since Nelson rejoined St. Louis, the Cards have won six straight on their march into the National League lead.

First base has been manager Dyer's headache since he took the job. Each spring he goes through the same motions, hoping to keep Stan Musial in the outfield. Usually Stan winds up on first.

It was the same story last March. Steve Bilko, the hulking rookie from Rochester, opened, but on May 5, Stan was back on first.

Nelson had been shifted to Columbus where, when he was recalled, he was leading the American Association with a .419 batting average.

He continued where he left off in the minors, with nine hits, including three doubles and a homer, in 23 trips. He's hitting .391. His defensive play has been excellent. And Musial is back in the outfield.

Last night, Nelson hit a two-run homer that featured a four-run second inning. The early lead held up for a 5-3 edge over Cincinnati, although rookie Joe Adcock threw a scare into 13,667 fans with a three-run homer in the ninth.

Phils Game Away

Despite the win, the Cards lost ground to Philadelphia Phils who added two victories. The Phils' Robin Roberts set down New York Giants one-two-three in the ninth and only remaining inning of a May 14 suspended game to preserve a 9-7 edge. The win went into the standings along with a 10-3 regular night-game verdict.

The Phils climbed to within one game of the Cards.

Mel Queen of Pittsburgh held Chicago to four hits for a 4-1 victory that snapped a Pirate six game losing streak.

The Boston-at-Brooklyn scheduled night game was washed out.

Detroit clung to its four-game edge in the American League as Art Houtteman trimmed St. Louis 6-1 for his 11th win. Johnny Lipon, with four hits, and Vic Wertz with three led the attack.

Bob Lemon of Cleveland matched Houtteman with No. 11 also a nine-hitter, in subduing Chicago, 8-3.

New York Yankees mauled Philadelphia 12-8 in a game marred by an injury to Eddie Joost, the A's shortstop. Joost suffered torn ligaments in his left knee in a second-base collision with base runner Cliff Mapes. He was carried from the field on a stretcher and may be lost for a month.

Tommy Byrne tied the modern major league record by hitting four batsmen before he left in the sixth. Still he received credit for the decision as Joe Ostrowski staggered through on relief.

Washington came from behind to trip Boston Red Sox 9-7 in a game called after seven innings because of rain. Chuck Stobbs blew up with a 5-1 lead in the sixth and six runs were across before reliefer Joe Dobson got the side out.

Boston, July 6 — (AP) — Cheered by Boston Red Sox fans, Joe Capillo pushed a frozen fish with his nose along Commonwealth Avenue yesterday—and then ate it.

It was Joe's way of paying off a bet that the Red Sox would be in first place in the American League by July 4. They were in fourth place.

A hotel chef offered to cook the fish for Joe if he wanted to eat it. He did.

Old Orchard Beach, Me., July 6 — (AP) — A $648.90 daily double was paid last night at Old Orchard Beach downs on Miss Mabel E. Peters and Shaker Dan in the first and second races of a harness program.

Redding, Calif., July 6 — (AP) —Ben Scott pitched one-hit ball —but took a 6-0 walloping last night. Scott walked eight Marysville batters and his own Redding Browns, who lead Far West Baseball League, committed seven (ouch!) errors.

Baltimore, July 6 — (AP) — Baltimore Orioles are going to be working overtime the rest of the season to make up for all the rainy days they've encountered.

Last night's rained-out meeting with Syracuse there brought the number of postponed games to 21. On their next trip to Syracuse they're scheduled to play seven games in four days. The rest of the season's play will be almost as tight.

Galt Terriers Thump Majors

By The Canadian Press

For a team that's supposed to be in a slump, Galt Terriers were a bit out of form Wednesday night.

Terriers trampled the fourth-place London Majors 11-3, and had a field day at the expense of one of the league's top pitchers, veteran Tommy White. White got exactly one man out before he went to the showers, trailing 5-0 in the first inning.

Terriers scored six runs in the opening frame when 13 men paraded to the plate, Tom Lynett and Babe Roberts getting home runs. after that, it was easy. In the sixth, with the score 7-0, manager Goody Rosen yanked starter Elmer Stephes and began playing around with the Terrier lineup.

London manager Joe Rossomando protested the game, claiming Galt had one man over the regulation 17 listed on the official card presented to the umpire at the start of the game.

In other intercounty games Wednesday, the teams played more to form. The league-leaders, Waterloo Tigers, beat the tail-end Guelph Maple Leafs 8-2, second-place Brantford Red Sox defeated Kitchener Legionnaires 8-5; and Stratford Nationals downed St. Thomas Legion 7-2.

The snarling, roughie toughie Australian Fred Atkins, brings his bag of tricks to Memorial Arena Friday night where he will try them out on handsome Timmy Geohagen of Ireland. The Aussie is well-known here and is anything but the white-haired boy in the eyes of the faithful. He is, however, pitted against a smart, elusive foeman in the young good-looking Irishman and the fans should be in for a wrestling treat. Jim Moore grapples with smart Ray Villmer in the semi-final and this bout should provide as much action as the main affair. Pat Flanagan will match muscles with the Lindsay Leatherneck, Toar Morgan, in the opening event.

Cincinnati Reds Hottest Team In National Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Cincinnati Reds may not be going any place this late in the season, but currently they are the hottest club in the National League.

Luke Sewell's charges have won 10 of the last 14 games, to climb over Pittsburgh and out of the loop basement. That's playing at a .714 clip.

The pitchers are beginning to pitch, and the hitters are starting to link their safeties together for runs.

Sewell has started to smile again. He believes the pitchers may finally have started.

Ewell Blackwell showed his 1947 form in turning back Chicago last Saturday, when he struck out 14 batters.

Herm Wehmeier and Howie Fox, big power pitchers with a lot of moxie on the ball, have shown some of the stuff that wins ball games.

Sewell does not hope for anything sensational, but he is aiming at a higher position in the standing than at present and believes there is a chance the team may make it.

Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler has ordered St. Louis Browns' officials to stop talking about moving their franchise to a minor league city.

Frank J. (Shag) Shaughnessy, President of the International League, said Wednesday that Chandler, acting on his complaint, told Bill Dewitt of the Browns that talk about moving his club "is hurting attendance in the minor leagues."

"Sure, I protested against Dewitt's actions," stormed Shaughnessy "why not? Dewitt had no right to pop off the way he did. All that talk about moving the Browns to Baltimore has cut down attendance considerably in that city. Fans are of the mistaken opinion that the present ownership is blocking a movement to bring big league baseball to Baltimore."

Joseph A. (Joe) Sargent, 56, former infielder for Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals, died Wednesday at his home in Detroit.

Sargent started with Minneapolis in the American Association at the age of 17. After the First World War he played with Buffalo, Newark and Toronto in the International League before going to the majors in 1920 as third baseman with St. Louis.

Some London newspapers reported Wednesday Gertrude (Gussie) Moran may soon turn professional.

They said she is dickering with Bobby Riggs, promoter of Jack Kramer's professional tennis tour over an offer of $50,000 for the first year.

Ezzard Charles, recognized by the National Boxing Association as heavyweight champion, Wednesday was declared fit for ring action and Manager Jake Mintz said the Cincinnati, O., battler will fight in about four or five weeks.

A medical board stated "The bruise of the heart muscle which has kept him inactive during the past few months has completely healed. He is now in condition to resume training immediately."

Charles said he "feels fine" and is ready to take on all comers — "Joe Louis, Lee Savold, anybody."

Mintz said he would make up his mind about Charles' next fight "in the next week or so."

Jockey Kenneth Church was commended by the Illinois Racing Board Wednesday for an act of heroism which may have cost him victory in the third race at Arlington Park.

Shortly after the break in the third race, Jockey Wendell Eads, aboard Trier, lost his stirrup and was at the point of falling when Church, seeing his predicament, spurted up alongside and pulled him back into the saddle. He rode along until Eads regained control of his mount.

Church was riding Hair Stylist, the favorite. After his rescue of Eads he went after the leaders, but the race went to Ferry Pilot. Hair Stylist finished second by a length.

Joseph Broderick, secretary of the Racing Board, said the board will honor Church with a scroll.

For the second time in three days, the harness racing at Thorncliffe Raceway Wednesday featured daily double pay-off of more than $600. The combination of Johnny Worthy in the first race and Thor Grattan in the second paid ..652.30 for $2.

WASHABLE NEWSPAPERS

Braidwood, Australia, (CP)—Founded in 1855, the Braidwood Despatch, a country newspaper has some notable achievements to its credit. When ox-teams failed to bring in newsprint because of floods some issues were printed on brown paper and others on sugar-bag material. Then calico was used, the issue called in, the calico washed and then used again.

REBUILD BOMBED AREAS

London. (CP)— Provincial cities and towns in Britain are to be allocated $12,000,000 next year for rebuilding bombed areas. This will be spent almost entirely for reconstructing business centres devastated by air raids.

TOM GARD'S
NOTE BOOK

Half the joy of having a garden is having a comfortable chair in a shady nook where you can lounge and enjoy the changing beauty of your surroundings. What's the use of having a garden if you can't take time to sit down and enjoy it? These are the days when the home owner should be able to recline comfortably on a lawn seat in the dense shade of a towering maple . . . not one task to be done . . . not a care in the world . . . sounds like Utopia!

Garden Seats

My own siestas take place in a secluded corner of the garden, well hidden from the surrounding neighbourhood. One of my prize possessions is a garden bench I made last year. True, it isn't the most comfortable piece of furniture in the world, but it is sturdy and wasn't too hard to make—as you can see from the sketch. My pride and joy is the wide bench I built around the trunk of the maple that stands to one side of the patio. It took a bit of fitting to give an attractive natural finish but it has attracted more favourable comment than any other piece of garden furniture I have made.

Garden Pools

If you are like me, you'll have a bird bath and a small pool in clear view to help you relax. Nothing is quite as restful and cooling as the sound of running water and the reflection of blue sky in a still pool. The size of the pool doesn't matter—you'll get the same effect from a small binder wheel set in concrete (mentioned last month), a washtub sunk in the ground or an extensive cement job. When properly planned and planted so that it fits naturally into its surroundings, the size or expense of the pool is immaterial.

Bird Baths

I could watch my bird bath for hours if work would permit. On a warm afternoon there is a steady procession of bluebirds, chipping sparrows, wrens, song sparrows and robins. The birds do not care how expensive the bath was. As long as the water is fresh, clean and not too deep, they will use it regularly. Between the two extremes illustrated are a host of styles and designs.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 6 (AP) — On this day in 1933:

President Franklin D. Roosevelt acted to save the London Conference on monetary stability.

Babe Ruth hit a homer to beat the National League All-Stars 4-2.

And a hardy group of players opened an aged melodrama called "The Drunkard" at a neighborhood theatre in Los Angeles.

Tonight "The Drunkard" staggers into its 18th year of continual playing. The old boy is as creaky as ever, but there seems to be no end to his raucous drinking.

"The Drunkard" was an old preachment against gin which had been presented by P. T. Barnum. It was resurrected and played strictly for laughs before a beer-guzzling and sandwich-munching audience. The actors expected to get two months' work out of it.

But audiences still are hissing and cheering. The show has broken all the long-run records in the history of the American theatre.

Some Fun!

One of the show's veterans is Jan Duggan, who almost every night for 17 years has played the heroine's mother in the play and the "Bowery Nightingale" in the after-show. You may remember her in W.C. Fields pictures.

"It's fun," she says. "You can't take it seriously. The audience is the toughest in the world; sometimes you have to shout to be heard. But it's a challenge to make them quiet down and listen."

All in The Act

Part of the show's success seems to be that the players enjoy themselves as much as the audience. This spirit goes on backstage as well. The actors carry on a revolving bridge game during the performance, each participant leaving when he hears his cue over the loudspeaker. He is replaced by someone who is not due onstage.

Says Miss Duggan: "A real actor would go crazy doing the same thing every night for 17 years. But for an old ham like myself, it's heaven."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

To those who shun bridge rules as stodgic I offer a piece of good logic. More gains will accrue when pairs know what to do than if they use methods 4 hodgepodgic.

When partner has not indicated what to lead, the opening lead is known as a blind lead. It need not be done blindly. The correct blind opening lead is decided by one simple overall rule.

It is this: Don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king; from what is left, follow the order of choice in tops, longies, shorts.

Against a suit contract refers to a final bid that does not end at no-trump. Leading away from a king or an ace means the lead of a small card in a suit that also contains either an ace or a king.

Tops refer to the highest of a sequence, or the king from A K with one or more others, or the ace when you will ruff that suit on the next or third round. These are known as the top card leads.

Longies refer to long suits of four or more cards. From such a longie lead the fourth best card. Shorts include all suits containing three cards or less. From a short lead the highest.

Objection to leading away from an ace or a king applies only when the contract ends in some suit (trump) contract. Thus, there is no objection to such a lead if the final contract is in no-trump.

Why not lead away from an ace or a king against a suit contract? Because such a lead is likely to lose a trick for the leader. Such as when south is declarer at four spades and clubs are as here:

NORTH
♣10 7 2

WEST ♣A 9 5 3
EAST ♣Q J 8

SOUTH
♣K 6 4

If west leads a small club, south will win a trick with the king. If west had waited for clubs to be led from elsewhere, south would never have made a trick with his king.

Some players cannot win from losing.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reeding his paper and ma was reeding hers, saying, Mersey, William, the biggest volcano in Peru has erupted again and thousands of people are homeless for the 3rd time in 5 years.

That's too bad, pop said, and pritty soon ma said, Well, here's an article about a cat that was born with 2 tales but only one of everything elts.

Only one leg? pop said, and ma said, Yes, only one where one should be, making 4, naturelly. But 2 tales, that's the point, she said.

That's 2 points, pop said. I'm trying to reed about the ball game, he said.

Which he kept on doing, and after a while ma said, Here's a university professor who claims it's possible to make a bomb powerful enough to blow the entire erth strate into the sun.

That awt to teach some people a lesson, pop said. I knew it was a mistake to let Skidmore pitch again, he's not in shape, he said and ma said, Goodness, William, do you want to bern a hole in your new hand knitted swetter-vest?

What, where? pop said, and he started to slap himself all excited, and ma said, Never mind, it was only a few flecks of ashes. I just exaggerated a little to prove H. Willis Hirkle was rite. According to his article today, modern man has become so impervious to the rapid pace of important events, he takes no actual intrist in anything but his own petty concerns, sutch as a personal fleck of cigar ash, she said.

But horse blanket to blazes, you had me thinking I was breaking out in a blaze, pop said, and ma said, Now William, dont exaggerate. Where there's smoke there must be fire.

Winston Churchill is well known for his prowess in politics and war and even for his work as writer and artist, but few know he also is a farmer. Here, at his country estate at Chartwell, near Westerham, Kent, he is seen watching a tractor clear land for cultivation. With him are Anthony Eden (seated, right), heir-apparent to Churchill, and Churchill's son-in-law, Capt. Christopher Soames (standing), who manages Churchill's three farms adjoining the country home. — Central Press Canadian.

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

Stephanie leaned forward. "Who?"

"Arnold Pfieffer."

Listening outside the window, Arnold Pfieffer heard Hagar Blair speak.

"Well, Arnold's a timid little mouse. You saw how he juggled the pin like a hot potato when he brought it to the shop. Obviously he was panting to get rid of it. He may have dropped the empty box in my car as a kind of signal. I didn't tell you about the box—thought it would upset you. I found it just before I went to Martin Falter's."

"But why would Arnold leave the cameo here?" Stephanie Smith asked.

"Maybe he took it back to Falter and found him murdered. Or on the other hand, maybe he took took it up there and they had words and Arnold stabbed him."

Arnold's scalp crawled. The old bag of bones, he thought furiously, if she were to go to the police with an idea like that!

Then he closed his mouth abruptly. Someone was coming up Hagar Blair's pathway.

Arnold saw Hagar leave the bedroom when the doorbell sounded. He left the window and moved cautiously to the front of the house. The outside light flicked on and the caller's identity was revealed: Andrey Yakov!

"My apologies for this late call Yakov said to Hagar. "There is something I must discuss with you. It is important."

Arnold crouched in the shadows wondering how he could hear what went on between Yakov and Hagar. He permitted himself to utter a mild oath when he realized he was shut out completely.

He crept away from Hagar Blair's house, reached the sidewalk, and with quick, cat-like steps, struck off for town.

Yakov settled himself on Hagar's tropical divan. He offered her one of his long, fragrant cigarets, which she refused.

"Well, Miss Blair," he began, "exciting events take place in even the quietest of small American towns, do they not?"

"What exciting events are you talking about?"

Yakov gave a slight chuckle, "Surely even you cannot be so blase as to consider a murder unexciting!"

"A murder?"

"Ah, Miss Blair," Yakov waved a hand in protest, "you looked upon the body of our poor friend did you not? When his blood was almost fresh, perhaps."

Hagar's flesh crawled visibly. He leaned back, "let us be honest with one another. You were there looking for the camoo. So?"

"So what! What were you looking for, Trotskyites?"

Yakov's smile disappeared. He gnawed one edge of his narrow mustache. "May I ask if you found the cameo?"

"I'll give you a straight answer: If it was around Martin's place anywhere, I certainly didn't find it."

Yakov looked relieved. "I, also made a careful search without result. If neither of us could locate the gem, it probably was not there. Perhaps you have thought where to look next? It might be politic to put our brains together. Neither of us can buy it until it is returned to its legal owner, the charming Nellya."

"How do you know the charming Nellya hasn't got it now?"

"I have just talked to Nellya at her studio."

Hagar sniffed. "Tom there?" she asked pointedly.

"I assisted Nellya in getting him into his bed. He arrived home feeling very unhappy and very ill. His stomach." Yakov patted his own lightly. "Very sad."

"Very. Did you tell the O'Neill's about the murder?"

Yakov looked pained "that is something I could not do. They will learn soon enough."

Yakov avoided her eyes. He strugged and sighed. "A tragic thing. A man peacefully sleeps on his own bed, and while he innocently dreams, an assassin plunges a knife into his neck!"

Hagar gripped the arms of her chair: "Neck? I thought he was stabbed in the chest?"

"You did not look closely at the body? But no. You would not—it was too horrifying for a lady eyes. However, the wound was in the base of neck, a very tiny mark—one would have to search.

"If Martin was stabbed in the neck, how come his chest was drenched with blood? I mean, so much blood!"

"I would guess that the knife was plunged into an artery, though I am not enough of an anatomist to make a positive statement."

"Did you see the knife?"

One of Yakov's heavy eyebrows slanted upward, "did you?"

Hagar blurted "stop trying to play cat and mouse with me! Of course I didn't! For all I know, maybe you stabbed him and have the knife in your pocket right now!"

Hagar took hold of herself. "It seems to me we're being pretty casual about all this. I'm tired, too. If you'll excuse me, now—"

Yakov bowed. "Certainly. But, before I go, as a special kindness, would it be possible for me to see your cameo collection? As I told you, I, also, am an enthusiast."

Hagar Blair considered Andrey Yakov's request to see her cameo collection. It might show how much he knew about cameos. But her finest pieces were in the bedroom and Stephanie was in there. She might show him the cabinet in her studio.

"If you'd like to see a few minor pieces, come along out to my studio."

Yakov eagerly followed her outside to a shed in the rear of the yard. She unlocked a padlock on the heavy redwood door. Yakov looked outside until Hagar turned on the light.

It appeared that Hagar Blair was a competent sculptor, but not a genius, he decided, surveying her work. "Enchanting," he said. "You work much in wood, I see."

Hagar glanced suspiciously at the Russian, but saw in his face only enthusiasm and admiration. Grudgingly, she began to think of him as not a bad fellow, after all. "Here are the cameos," she said, her voice almost cordial. Yakov did not miss her changed tone and smiled.

Yokov peered in. "Very interesting pieces. I see no carnelians.

"I like the carnelians best and keep them in the house where I can look at them. That sardonyx fourth from the left on the fifth shelf, is very similar to the famous Tazze Farnese. You've seen it at the Metropolitan Museum, I suppose?"

"Yes. I went there several times to look at it. A wonderful piece, most exquisite!"

Hagar's next words came out precisely and coldly: "The Tazza Farnese is in Naples and has been for the last 100 years or so. Even the most amateurish collector of cameos would know that."

RULED SENATE DEBATES

Senator Thomas Vien, 68, was summoned to the Senate on his 64th birthday after a long political career extending back to 1917. A barrister and former deputy chief commissioner of the Board of Railway Commissioners, he was a lieutenant-colonel commanding the Quebec and Levis regiment for seven years. He has presided as chairman of numerous committees of the House of Commons and the Senate and was Speaker of the Senate from 1943 to 1945. — (CP Photo.)

Yakov met her eyes, his face bland "perhaps I have it confused with something else."

"It would be impossible to confuse the Tazza Farnese with anything else!" She locked the cabinet with significant finality. "I don't think there's any point in discussing cameos any further, Mr. Yakov."

Idly, Yakov had picked up a slender chisel from her workbench, he was testing its razor edge gingerly against his thumb. He turned to her holding up the tool so that light glittered along its edge.

"Wouldn't you say, Miss Blair that a weapon similar to this chisel could have killed our poor friend, Martin Falter?"

Chief of Police Monroe Peters, fat hands clasped loosely looked at Tom O'Neill and his wife Nell, who sat across the desk from him in his office. At the chief's side, near a corner of the desk, was Charlie Reddy, bright and handsome beginning lawyer, and the chief's pro tem assistant.

"Tom, Bob Knox says you and Martin Falter had a big row at his place yesterday afternoon and you saw fit to make a few remarks about what ought to happen to Falter. Pretty violent ideas, Bob tells me.

Tom, looking tired and painfully sober, looked apprehensively at the chief. When he spoke his voice was hoarse.

"The thing is Chief Peters, I had one or two too many yesterday. I admit I don't like Falter—didn't like Falter—but I'm not the only one. If everybody who didn't like Falter is suspected of murdering him, you'll have a whole army of possible murderers. We had an argument, sure, I'm not denying that, but Falter had arguments with lots of people."

"Sure," the chief was saying. "We know Falter wasn't popular. Nothing personal in this. Tom. What we're trying to establish now is why you went to Martin's this morning after fighting with him yesterday."

Tom's hand shook as he lighted a cigaret: "I came right down here and reported the body, didn't I?"

Peters sighed heavily. Charlie Reddy looked severe.

"Tom," said Reddy in his pleasantly modulated voice, "how did you happen to find the body? Why did you go to Falter's this morning?"

O'Neill stared at a grease spot on the knee of his trousers: "I—I went up to apologize. I was ashamed of the things I'd said to him yesterday."

Nell threw back her brilliant blonde head and gave a snort of derisive laughter.

Tom jerked around, his face purple: "Shut up you tramp!"

Chief Peters pounded on his desk: "Cut out that kind of talk, O'Neill! I've tried to be pleasant about this, but unless get a little co-operation, we'll change tactics!"

Nell put on a serious face, Tom once again appeared abject.

The telephone gave a short, strident jangle. Reddy picked up the instrument:

"Chief Peters' office, Reddy speaking. Yes. What time? Was she alone? Just a minute." He covered the mouthpiece. "Chief it's Allen down at the cab company, he says he brought Stephanie Smith—the chick who works at Hagar Blair's shop— up to Falter's last night about 8 o'clock.

Tom's cigaret was burning close to his fingers but he seemed not to notice: "See? What did I tell you? Lots of other people in this besides me." He wagged his white head earnestly. "Bet you'll find plenty more, too."

As Tom and Nell O'Neill left the police station, they almost collided with a tall man in a gray suit who was waiting to enter. They exchanged apologies and the newcomer strolled up to the chief's desk.

"Chief Peters? My name is Trotter, Lansing Trotter." He took a slim black leather folder from his inside pocket, opened it and extended it to Peters. Chief Peters inspected the folder and shook hands.

"What brings you to our little town, Inspector Trotter?"

The visitor brought out his pipe and filled it while he answered. "Just between us," he specified, lighting his pipe with one match and four short puffs. "I was sent up from San Diego to dig around on a little matter that has connections here. Enjoying myself at the same time. Just when everything was getting along nicely, one of my characters up and gets himself murdered, which means my dawdling days are over."

NEW TASK

Cmdr. Paul D. Taylor, newly-appointed Commanding Officer of H.M.C.S. Sioux, will be in charge of that destroyer when she sails Wednesday for Pearl Harbor and possible action in the Korean war. Cmdr. Taylor, a native of Liphook, Hants, Eng., came to Canada in 1935 and served with the Canadian Navy during the Second World War. He completed a staff course prior to his appointment to the Sioux. Besides his duties at sea, he has served as Deputy Director of Naval Plans and Operations in Ottawa. — (CP Photo.)

Charlie Reddy leaned forward attentively: "You mean Martin Falter, of course, sir?"

"Martin Falter, of course." He blew a rounded puff of fragrant smoke "ladies man, confidence man, blackmailer and self-styled artist."

Peters and Reddy tensed, the word came from both:

"Blackmailer?"

Trotter passed his briar back and forth under his nose:

"Served time for it early in his career. Specialty was rich old ladies who longed for the rejuvenating effect of one last fling."

Peters' fat face crumpled humorously, "now that you mention it, I've heard a few stories." He turned to Reddy: "Remember the whirl he gave that old dame at the Inn—the one from Minneapolis?"

"He had a pretty good modus operandi," explained Trotter. "He'd get the affair going white heat, then take off on a 'short business trip.' While he was gone he'd receive purple letters from the lady. Then he'd save the letters until such time as it would be profitable to wave them threateningly under the poor creature's nose. He made quite a good living that way."

Reddy looked puzzled. "Hope this isn't out of order, sir, but I didn't know the bureau concerned itself with blackmail, as such."

"As such, we don't. But one of Falter's little coups — he was known as Michael Frazier, then, by the way—almost became an international incident. The lady in the play was the wife of a South American consul who eventually got wind of the routine and made a big to-do at the State Department. That happened 13 years ago." He paused to re-light his pipe "and under the heading of history repeats itself, this current affair seems to have a foreign root or two. The country involved is one with which we want the least possible trouble at the present time."

"I don't need to tell you," the chief pronounced "that all our facilities are at your disposal."

Trotter bowed his appreciation. "I think best tack at the moment is to proceed separately. I'll amble around, pick up what I can, sub rosa. We'll exchange information —okay, Chief Peters?"

"Fine with me," the chief agreed. "Reddy and I already have started interviewing suspects. We began with Nell and Tom O'Neill. Tom found the body this morning. This afternoon, Reddy and I'll see what we can find out from Hagar Blair— a sharp old character who runs a shop in town. We'll also question a Miss Smith who lives with her and helps out in the store. Miss Smith is a hot one—in connection with the murder, I mean. Cab driver in town left her at Falter's place about 8 o'clock."

"Miss Smith, eh? Mind if I follow up, too Peters?"

Had Indigestion, Backache Headaches; Praises Syntona

Says She No Longer Suffers With Gastritis, Heartburn, Dizzy Spells, Cramps and Constipation. Nerves are Calmed, Sleeps Better, Has More Energy.

Almost every day you can read in the papers about local men and women who have been relieved of common ailments of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels and their long train of symptoms by taking a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound. Here, for example, is the experience of Mrs. Elizabeth Alward, 81 Thames Street, Chatham, Ontario, as reported recently:

"During the past three years I was nervous, weakened and rundown. My appetite was poor and what little food I did eat gave me awful gas and soured in my stomach causing belching, bloat and heartburn. I would get severe cramps in my stomach and suffered from dizzy spells and constipation. My back and limbs ached and I was subject to sick headaches.

"I have only taken a short treatment of Syntona, but already it has done wonders for me. My appetite is improved and my food digests well without all that gas, heartburn and sour acidity. I am now free of headaches, backache and dizzy spells. Also my nerves are relaxed, so I sleep more soundly and arise mornings feeling rested and ready for my day's work."

Why not let this pure herbal medicine help you, too? Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

DEFENDERS MAKE 10-MILE COMEBACK IN SECTOR

New Civil Defence Course is Secret, Students Screened

Atomic, Biological, Chemical Warfare on the Curriculum

Ottawa, July 7 (CP)— Defence officials said today the course they are giving in human defence against atomic and bacterial attack is secret and civilians who take it apparently will have to be screened for security purposes.

Details of the course have been on the classified or secret list for almost a year.

Defence Minister Claxton announced Wednesday that "relatively small" numbers of civilians, including health and fire officials, will be taking the course starting in the immediate future.

The action marks a first step to build up a nucleus of experts for later expansion of civil defence groups in emergency.

Defence officials said they have been instructing members of the three forces in what they call ABC warfare—atomic, bacteriological and chemical —since last September but the whole project has been on the classified or secret list, both the course itself and its syllabus.

Officials declined to say much in elaboration of Mr. Claxton's statement but these facts were made clear:

The only course so far established is a wing of the army medical corps school at Camp Borden, Ont. Each course lasts about three weeks and "provides a general indoctrination in the potentialities and limitations . . .of atomic, biological and chemical warfare."

One of its main purposes is to bring those subjects down to earth, to remove some of the distorted thinking that has arisen from "dissemination of faulty information."

Mr. Claxton said a group of officials expert in civil defence has been built up in Ottawa to guide others who may want guidance. Officials said officers have been going to the United States for brief, intensive courses to get such knowledge.

NEW WEAPONS MAY BE TESTED ON KOREAN FRONT

Washington, July 7 (AP)—The Korean war front may become a testing ground for new and improved weapons.

Right now United States forces, locked in a bitter land battle with a surprisingly powerful enemy, are using whatever they had handy when they were rushed into what started as a mere "police action."

As the fighting goes on, additional weapons will be brought in—possibly including many new ones.

On the basis of the type of warfare now under way in Korea, speculation at army headquarters here is that ground force weapons likely will be the first to undergo any battle-testing.

However, the possibility was discounted that weapons of mass destruction, such as atomic bombs, might be given field trials. For one thing, there are no logical Korean targets for A-bombs, designed for strategic destruction of industrial points and cities. But such arms as the new "super bazooka" and the light, accurate recoilless gun may eventually be tried out against the North Koreans' powerful tanks and artillery positions.

No Jets Yet

As for the air, officials here incline to the view that if the war continues with only North Korean planes and pilots, any testing of new American aviation equipment probably will be limited.

So far as is known, the North Korean air force consists of second-line aircraft—Russian Yak fighters with propeller power, but no jets. However, if new Russian jet designs should appear, the United States may be compelled to meet the challenge with its model jet craft.

In addition at least two new U.S. anti-aircraft designs have gone into production. Delivery to the army of one of these — the "Sky-Sweeper" —started several months ago. There also have been improved radar gunsights and aircraft detection equipment.

At sea, the navy may be presumed to be using new and improved models of submarine — aircraft-detection devices, in addition to improved designs of rockets and bombs launched from carrier based aircraft.

If Russia openly takes a part in the Korean war, the whole complexion of the "testing ground" atmosphere can change. Then the situation could become in miniature, a preview of what might be expected on vast scale should the great powers fall into major war in Europe.

He said the United States had 'informally' asked Britain 'whether it would be possible to limit oil shipments to China in the light of the Korean situation."

The spokesman reported the British answer was that the quantities of oil being shipped to China by British oil companies "is sufficient only for civilian consumption" in China.

RUSSIANS STEP UP MANOEUVRES IN EAST GERMANY

Allied Experts Are Not Alarmed

Berlin, July 7 (AP)— United States Intelligence agents reported today that the Russians have stepped up normal summer manoeuvres in East Germany.

These informants said that in East Germany eight Soviet divisions are going through special exercises. Some involve tank-supported river crossings.

Experts said this increased Red troop activity could be a normal step—designed to let the Germans know who is boss and possibly to give Western Allies a dose of jitters.

A senior American officer said Allied military leaders aren't too concerned.

Intelligence agents have been told to watch the Russian moves closely, however, on the chance that the Soviets may be planning to stage something similar to the Korean action over here.

The informants said five Soviet divisions are training between Berlin and the Elbe River. They reported another three north of Berlin in the Mecklenberg, area, trying to illustrate the best ways of encircling the fortified position.

To Sharpen Training

Between now and the end of August, Allied experts believe the Russians will stage at least a half dozen manoeuvres to sharpen the training of their East German armies. The People's Police, who have been expanded into what amounts to an infantry force, will be used for odd jobs in these manoeuvres.

The high American officer, minimizing the significance of the manoeuvres, commented:

"The Soviet army in East Germany was 20 divisions in 1946. It is 20 divisions in 1950. It is no bigger than before and certainly a lot less effective than it was in the past. The total number of Red Soldiers is pegged at about 200,000. The Korean outburst did not affect it in the least."

Observers estimate that the Russians have 2,000 tanks in the East zone—far more than the combined Western armored forces can muster.

100 Lives Lost in Wartime Fire Found Result of 'Enemy Action'

St. John's Nfld., July 7 (CP)— A statement that a fire which took 100 lives here in wartime was the result of "enemy action" was contained in a brief to the Massey Commission today.

The reference was to the blaze that destroyed the Knights of Columbus Hostel Dec. 14, 1942. It appeared without elaboration in the brief of J. L. Butler, managing director of the Colonial Broadcasting System, which operates station VOCM.

In recounting the station's work in entertaining servicemen during the war, the brief referred to a program from the hostel the night of the fire, and said: "As a result of enemy action the hostel was burned to the ground one Saturday night and 99 persons lost their lives. Two of them were members of the VOCM cast who were on the stage broadcasting at the time."

Questioned about the reference to enemy action, Mr. Butler said the official report of the investigation by Mr. Justice Dunfield had suggested the fire was of incendiary origin. Also, in connection with another fire— at the Old Colony Club Jan. 12, 1943— Mr. Butler said it had been known that Canadian and United States "brass" had been scheduled to be present. "This forms the grounds for belief that these fires were the result of enemy action," he said.

Truman Asks $260, 000,000 To Speed A-Bomb Study And Experiments on H-Bomb

Washington — (AP) — President Truman today asked Congress for $260,000,000 to speed development of atomic bombs and push experiments on the hydrogen bomb.

Truman said the money would be used to enable the Atomic Energy Commision "to build additional and more efficient plants" to carry on his directive of Jan. 31 ordering work on the H-bomb

The president said the fundamental objective is to use atomic energy for peace, but he added:

"Until this objective is achieved. however, we must strengthen our own defences by providing the necessary atomic energy capacity"

Truman said the plants to be built would be "of advanced design" and their operation will "provide new knowledge that will speed the progress of the atomic energy program."

"The expansion in the scope of our atomic energy program gives added emphasis to the fact that atomic energy has great potentialities both for destruction and the benefit of mankind."

Korean Sidelights

Paris, July 7. (AP)— The French National Assembly's Foreign Affairs Committee approved today, 25 to 13, United States action in Korea. The opposing votes were cast by communists, who proposed a motion terming the U.S. action "aggression". It was defeated by the same vote, 25 to 13.

Somewhere in Korea, July 7 (AP)—The steady drone of American warplanes brought smiles to the country folk of South Korea today.

London, July 7. (AP)—Tirana radio said today the Albanian Assembly has condemned American intervention in Korea an "outright act of aggression against a free country."

The Assembly of the Russian satellite country also declared the United Nations Security Council's Korean resolutions were "devoid of legal validity."

Taejon, Korea, July 7. (AP)— President Syngman Rhee said today "despite earlier communist Terriorist activities within the Republic of Korea" there has been "no single act of sabotage" since outbreak of war.

The South Korean president through a spokesman expressed appreciation of moral and physical support given his invaded country by the United States. He also praised the morale and devotion of the Korean people.

Rangoon, Burma, July 7. (AP) —Field Marshal Sir William Slim, chief of Britain's Imperial General staff, said today the Korean war would not spread through the rest of Asia "unless Russia wants it to."

He told reporters the action of the United States and Britain to defend South Korea would be "reassuring to other Asian countries who value their independence".

"We must call a halt to aggression," Slim said "The last time, we did it too late and we learned that it is better to halt aggression earlier than later."

He said Britain would honor its military aid agreement with Burma should this country be attacked.

Sydney, Australia, July 7 (AP) —The communist-controlled federal executive of the Australian Seamen's Union decided today that Australian merchant seamen will not transport war materials to Korea.

A resolution adpoted by the executive said, in part:

"The Seamen's Union condemns the dictatorial decision of (Prime Minister Robert) Menzies ordering Australian naval seamen to submit to orders from the United States in its blatant armed interference in the domestic affairs of the Korean people. They will mobilize opposition to Menzies' aims to make Australia an American colony."

ATTLEE SUMMONS WAR MINISTER TO 10 DOWNING ST.

Daily Mail Says U.K. Is Tiring of Strachey

London, July 7 —(Reuters) — Prime Minister Attlee today summoned War Minister Strachey to 10 Downing Street for a second interview on his weekend "plot against socialism" speech — on which the opposition may move a vote of censure in Parliament Tuesday.

This second interview strengthened anti-government speculation that Strachey was "on the carpet."

The Prime Minister, in two Parliamentary rows this week, has defended Strachey's own explanation that his use of the word "plot'" in a speech at Colchester referred to Parliamentary opposition manoeuvres and not to the Schuman plan, as critics have alleged.

Strachey is understood to have assured Attlee that he prefaced the criticized part of his remarks by saying "I now turn to events in the House of Commons last week."

The Times, the Daily Telegraph and The Daily Mail all made editorial comment on the Strachey case today and all suggested he was unsuited to hold office as a minister of cabinet rank.

The Times said Strachey's speech last weekend had been "sectarian outburst" which had renewed doubts about "the government's honesty in the coal and steel transactions."

"There may be room for doubt about the strees and phrasing of what Mr. Strachey actually said: there can be no question about his gist and intention" The Times added.

"The Schuman plan was a 'capitalist' plot: so too was the 'bogus federation' sought by the French.

"When Mr. Strachey went to the War Office, many natural doubts about his politics and his record might have been much more widely voiced had they not been drowned in a crudely exaggerated and even malignant outcry about his discarded communism.

Must Take Stock of His Men

"The first doubts must now return. The Prime Minister, loyal, though he is to his staff, will have to take stock of his men as well as his measures."

The Daily Telegraph said a Strachey:

"His latest performance should surely have exhausted his claims to retain any office of any kind."

The Daily Mail said "this is not the first time he has been concerned in a quibble of this kind or has to be defended in the House. The country is getting tired of Mr. Strachey."

Spaniel is Whizz at Mathematics, Barks His Age and Days of Week

Montreal, July 7 —(CP)— A hairy mathematical genius with a tail and a weakness for card tricks was guest of honor here at a meeting of the Canadian Progress Club.

"Dinghy," the seven-year-old genius, startled guests by solving square and cube root problems, multiplying, dividing and adding. Then he named cards selected by the audience when his back was turned.

This was quite an accomplishment, for "Dinghy" is a coal-black cocker spaniel, the property of Dr. A. F. Jones of Montreal.

He started his performance by barking his age and the days in the week. Then guests called out addition questions.

"Two plus two," called one. Dinghy curtly barked four times.

"One plus nothing," said another. Dinghy barked once and yawned.

He breezed effortlessly through multiplication, and division and nearly yawned again at the square roots.

Then, without looking, he identified cards chosen by the audience. First he identified the suit and then barked the number.

He only made one mistake. After correctly telling the audience he had four feet and two ears, he was asked how many tails he had. Dinghy enthusiastically barked twice.

Dinghy was born in Scotland in 1943 and went overseas with the RCAF as a mascot until 1945. When Dr. Jones returned to Montreal he brought him with him and continued his training begun in Scotland.

However, despite all his training and practice, Dinghy still has trouble with his tails. Dr. Jones, a surgeon and general practitioner, says he suspects it's wishful thinking.

Reds Continue To Press Enveloping Movement to South

Two Divisions Being Used To Carry on Operations

By Lief Erickson

Tokyo, July 8 (Saturday) — General MacArthur reported today the North Korean communists were continuing to press their enveloping movement deep in South Korea, but fresh field dispatches credited the American and South Korean defenders with a 10-mile comeback in at least one sector.

The Tokyo headquarters communique said the front reached from a point north of Chonan— which is 60 miles south of Seoul —northeast to Mugung, Chungju and the East Coast.

It said the North Koreans were pressing their enveloping movement' with two divisions in the Pyongtaek area, which is 14 miles north of Chonan.

However, Tom Lambert, AP correspondent reporting from the South Korean front by telephone said an American combat patrol had moved about 10 miles north Friday against meagre opposition. He said the only planes visible in the clear sky were American.

Earlier a South Korean Colonel said the defenders had recaptured Pyongtaek and Chungju, 40 miles east of Yyongtaek.

MacArthur's communique said the envelopment threat by the Reds in the Pyongtaek area was being pressed by the Third and Fourth Divisions. The enemy first division was reported farther west, near the West Coast, while the Fifth Division was probing south and west from Wonju, which is 60 miles northeast of Pyongtaek.

North Korean divisions have an estimated combat strength of 5,000 to 6,000 each.

(The communique in effect confirmed field dispatches of 24 hours earlier. Tokyo headquarters matter has been running consistently later than field reports, a fact which lends credence to field news of an American comeback.)

MacArthur's communique also reported widespread American air blows, ranging from close front support for the troops to a B-29 raid on an oil refinery at Wonsan, 70 miles inside North Korea.

It added that naval patrols bombarded enemy oil tanks, bridges and shipping along the east coast at undisclosed places.

REDS DETERMINED TO TAKE FORMOSA U.N. INFORMED

Lake Success, N.Y., July 7 — (AP)— Red China has served notice on the United Nations that it is determined to seize Formosa despite any military measures the United States may take.

Foreign Minister Chou En-Lai outlined the Peiping regime's position in a cable yesterday to U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie. It accused the U.S. of an "act of open aggression" in assigning American naval units to protect the Chinese Nationalist island bastion.

Meanwhile, the Security Council called a session at 3 p.m. EDT today to take final action on a resolution asking the United States to name Gen. Douglas MacArthur as the first supreme commander of a U.N. military force in battle. Passage of the measure appeared certain.

Chou En-Lai's message accused the U.N. as acting as a tool of the United States by countenancing President Truman's action in sending American naval vessels to guard Formosa. It said:

"By keeping silent on this act of aggression of the United States government, the Security Council and the secretary general of the United Nations have foregone their functions and duties of upholding world peace, and thereby became pliant instruments of the policy of the United States government.

"Despite any military steps of obstruction taken by the United States government, the Chinese people are irrevocably determined to liberate Taiwan (Formosa) without fail."

The communist note assailed as illegal the Security Council's resolution calling on U.N. members to aid South Korea. Following the line Moscow has been following, the message contended that Russia and Red China should have been present for the council action.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister, repeated this argument yesterday when he notified the U.N. of Russia's refusal to help in repelling the North Korean invasion.

Manitoba Flood Campaign Will Draw to Close on July 15, Thanks Voiced for Donations

Manitoba Flood Relief Fund Campaign will come to an end on July 15th.

The Honorary National Organizer Cecil Lamont has forwarded to the Ontario Intelligencer the following communication on the success of the campaign and conveying the gratitude of the organization for the work given by the newspapers and radio stations of Canada, and the generous donation made by the citizens and organizations to the fund.

Mr. Lamont says:

"On May 12th, just eight weeks ago, the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund made its first appeal to the public for contributions through the daily newspapers and radio stations of Canada. As a result of the magnificent support given by the newspapers and radio stations in setting up receiving stations for contributions and in supporting the multiplicity of local efforts on behalf of the fund, approximately one million persons have now contributed over six and one half million dollars to the fund. Gifts have poured in from all parts of the world at the rate of more than $120,000 daily and as a result of the openhearted giving by the public the committee has now decided that the campaign should be drawn to a close on July 15.

Hope Contributions Ample

The committee is hopeful that with the contributions yet to be forwarded it will be possible for us to fully achieve our objective of restoring property damaged by the flood and not included in the government's program of repairing structural damage.

The general committee of the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund. And the flood victims whose homes will be restored by the fund wish to express to the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer, Belleville, Ont., deep appreciation for all that you have done to assist in enabling the fund to reach its objective. They also ask that you convey deep appreciation to your citizens who have contributed so generously and to those who have worked so diligently in local efforts which will enable the fund to achieve its objective. Committees have operated on behalf of the fund in all parts of Canada and even in such remote villages as Aklavik.

Contributors will be interested in knowing that fund has operated entirely with voluntary help and that the expenses in raising the fund have been less than one half of one percent of the amount collected. The gifts to the fund have been so great in number that the accounting staff have fallen behind in issuing receipts. Voluntary helpers are working day and night in an effort to issue receipts as early as possible but there will be some delay and the public is asked to bear with the honorary treasurer of the fund in this connection. Individual receipts will be issued covering all contributions received.

In drawing the campaign to a close would you be good enough to request that the committee operating in your area forward funds collected as soon as possible after July 15th. This may be done without cost through any chartered bank.

As a result of the action of the government in compensating flood victims for cost of structural repairs and the generous contributions made by the public to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund. Coupled with the steps being taken to guard against a recurrence of the flood. Rehabilitation has progressed so rapidly that normal business activity has been restored to this area. The restoration of some 6,000 houses damaged by flood waters is progressing with dispatch and will be completed within a few weeks. The flood victims will long remember the generous response which will enable the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund to again make their houses into homes."

Victoria Park Being Returned To Former Glory

With work progressing steadily under the direction of park chairman, Arthur Keegan, Victoria Park is slowly being returned to a semblance of its former glory.

After hundreds of loads of earth fill had been dumped onto the north end of the park to raise its level, the area is now being levelled and graded in readiness for seeding. At the south end the grass is being kept mowed and the children's wading pool has been repaired in readiness for flooding in the near future.

Spending from three to four hours in supervision of the work Mr. Keegan is taking a particular interest in the rehabilitation of Victoria Park. He said that water lines had been repaired and the children's wading pool at the extreme south end of the park would soon be flooded allowing the kiddies an opportunity to beat old man weather.

Graded and Levelled

For the north end of the park which is now being graded and levelled, Mr. Keegan visualizes a softball diamond for the pleasure of those using the facilities of the park.

Local contractor, W. J. Hamilton, Dundas Street West, is doing the grading and levelling. It is a sort of a "two for one" with the contractor, according to Mr. Keegan. The parks board is paying for the use of the contractor's bulldozer while the grader is being obtained "for free."

Final approval of the Department of Transport has been received by the parks board to proceed with filling in of the local harbor immediately to the south of the C.P.R. bridge. The work has already commenced and ultimately there will be a roadway leading from South Front Street, providing easier vehicular access to the park.

Bullet Lodges In Boy's Neck

Owen Sound, July 7 (CP)—Peter Moon, nine-year-old son of Elmer Moon, Toronto, is in hospital here with a .22 bullet lodged deep in the left side of his neck. He was struck by the bullet while standing outside his family's summer home at Oliphant on the Bruce peninsula. The bullet was fired by two boys on an island 2/3 of a mile away.

Hospital officials said the bullet did no damage although it is located near the jugular vein. They said removing it without causing damage would be difficult and it will be allowed to remain in Peter's neck.

Re-Route Traffic To Move Chapel Across Street

Through traffic along Dundas Street, East, was re-routed this morning as result of a house-moving operation being carried on by a construction contractor.

To clear property at the corner of Newberry and Dundas Streets for the construction of a new motor showroom, the owner sold the former Grace Chapel building for removal and ultimate fitting as an apartment on a lot across Dundas Street.

The building was jacked up with rollers being set underneath and this morning commencing at five o'clock moving of the building across the street was started. It was expected the operation would take several hours.

In the meantime through traffic on Dundas Street was re-routed by police along Bridge Street.

U.S. Officials Now Assess Korea War As Long Struggle

Washington, July 7 — (AP) — The United States government is beginning to assess the Korean war as a long, difficult and costly struggle.

This development of a less optimistic outlook about an early end to the conflict apparently means a steady build-up of American forces in the war area — with increasing requirements for money, men and munitions.

In addition, the United States is confronted with the need to (1) keep up a flow of arms to Western Europe, the Middle East, and Southeast Asia and (2) keep its own forces prepared to deal with any further moves by the Russian - controlled communist bloc.

The administration thus far has withheld any indication of what measures it may eventually take. But some highly - placed informants now believe that a degree of industrial mobilization may be essential.

Inquiries among informed officials today brought out that fundamental estimates of the Korean situation have changed considerably under the impact of events in the two weeks since the communists set out to conquer South Korea.

Initial calculations here were that:

1. The South Koreans would put up a tough, effective resistance.

2. The North Korean army would not prove overwhelmingly powerful.

3. Determined action by the United States, with the blessings of the United Nations Security Council and the co-operation of other U. N. members, might rapidly discourage the Korean communists.

The powerful southward thrusts of the communist armies, even against the opposition of such limited American forces as have been quickly thrown into combat, have knocked the props from under those estimates.

Taipei, Formosa, July 7 (AP)—Nationalist China today observed Army Day—the 13th anniversary of the Marco Polo bridge incident at Peiping in 1937 that led to Japanese invasion of China.

Prompt Action of G. Bradshaw Averts Near-Drowning of Two Boys South of Railway Bridge

Tragedy was narrowly averted yesterday when the quick action of Garth Bradshaw, Donald St., saved one boy from drowning and helped another to shore just south of the railway bridge at the foot of Front St.

Bradshaw, who works in the nearby Brewer's Retail store, heard and saw two young women shouting, ran to the river bank and pulled out Alec Ryan, 10. The other boy involved was Joey Sanford. No one seems to be sure how many times the Ryan boy had gone down before Bradshaw pulled him out, but the boy himself remembers that he was choking and sputtering when Bradshaw grabbed him.

Ryan is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Clint Ryan, 65 Front St., and Sanford's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sanford, Water St.

Neither Boy Could Swim

The boys were playing in a homemade kayak affair that the Sanford boy claims to have found on the west bank of the river above the bridge. The craft, named "Lulu", consisted of a small keg with a hole about one foot square cut in the top of it. Two four-by-fours were fastened to the sides of the keg, and it was braced at the ends of the keg with two-by-fours.

The Sanford lad was sitting in the keg when Ryan jumped on the back, straddling the four-by-fours. They were about 20 feet out when Alec Ryan fell off. Neither boy could swim.

"Gee, I was scared", Sanford said. He said that he had found the craft drifting, and that after this, it could drift away again—he doesn't want it.

Ryan, whose mother put him to bed when she got him home after the escapade, was none the worse for wear three hours later, at four o'clock, when he went up the street to see his rescuer.

Depth Not Known

Actual depth of the spot, where the boys were sailing is not known, but Bradshaw said "It was well over my head. I started to walk out to grab the boy, and all of a sudden the bottom just dropped away." One of te neighbors phoned Mrs. Ryan as soon as the boy was rescued, and she took the dripping child home.

Sanford, who also got wet and had to be pulled in, said afterwards "I'm going to learn to swim now, boy." Ryan, whose mother had warned him about playing in the boat at noon, rather sheepishly admitted that he was throught with "that boat". Earlier in the day, one other lad in the neighborhood had fallen out of the craft, but he could swim, and made his way to shore safely.

"Lulu" remains tied up at the dock just below the bridge.

Appeal Board Says Man Cannot Deduct Expenses

Ottawa, July 7 (CP) — The Income Tax Appeal Board ruled today that a person cannot deduct for income tax purposes expenses involved in defending himself against a charge of driving a car while drunk.

The ruling was made by Rabio Monet, assistant chairman of the board, in a case in which Albert M. Buraglia of Toronto appealed against a 1946 tax assessment.

Buraglia claimed $1,075 as a deduction. This was paid for his counsel's fee and for the fees of a specialist in neurological cases and another doctor, both heard as defence witnesses when Buraglia was charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated.

The charge was subsequently dismissed on the grounds that Buraglia's condition was due to a long period of overwork and exhaustion, rather than drinking.

Buraglia claimed the expenses made for his defence against a charge later dismissed was an expense necessarily for the purpose of earning income. The minister ruled it was a personal expense.

The board upheld the minister's ruling.

REDS CONTINUE

Guerilla Activity

Guerilla activity was reported on the east coast near Yongdok, 100 miles south of the 38th parallel, the communique said.

Earlier in Korea, a South Korean source had reported the recapture by Pyongtaek and Chungju from the Reds in an apparent counter move by the American and South Korean forces.

A South Korean colonel, considered reliable, said the report of the recapture of the two towns from North Korean Reds was made to the South Korean army. American headquarters in Korea had not reported recapture of the town.s Both were taken by the communists yesterday.

An unconfirmed South Korean report said a red column headed by two tanks and two armored cars threatened the southeastern Pusan area. The east coast force was reported 80 miles north of the important port and supply base where the first American seaborne troops were landed in Korea.

The Korean colonel said "it took a big fight" to wrest Chungju from the Reds. U.S. troops have been fighting alongside Sotuh Koreans around both towns.

Road Village Captured

The Red radio in Pyongyang, northern capital, said tonight communist troops had captured Ansong. It is a road village 10 miles east of Pyongtaek and on the highway to Chungju. The Red radio also said the Americans and South Koreans ahd suffered heavy defeat and were fleeing in disorder.

Pilots returning to a Southern Japan air base reported 10 extremely large communist tanks lined up on the highway north of Pyongtaek. They said the tanks were larger than any seen before in the North Korean force.

Meanwhile, both sides rushed men and supplies into the muddy, red clay area along the winding Kum river for what appeared to be an imminent battle involving upwards of 90,000 Korean Reds and a small American force.

The rugged river country just north of Taejon is likely to become the battleground.

N.Z. 13-Year-Old 'Blue Baby' is Given Examination

Toronto, July 7. (CP)—New Zealand's 13-year-old "blue baby" is undergoing preliminary examinations this week to determine whether an internationally-known Toronto heart surgeon, Dr. Gordon Murray, can save her life.

Mr. and Mrs. K. N. Boardman brought their daughter, Gillian, here from Auckland, N.Z., after doctors there said they could do nothing for her rare heart disease.

Dr. Murray has been successful in treating hundreds of similar cases.

Gillian, Dr. Murray said, has a hole in one of the partitions of the heart and is in serious physical condition, although her color is not the usual "blue" of so-called "blue babies".

He said it would be several days before a decision regarding an operation could be made.

NO ROOSTERS IN BACKYARDS

London, July 7 (Reuters) — There shall be no roosters mixing with hens in the backyards of Britain.

The Under-Minister for Agriculture, G. A. Brown, yesterday rejected a bid to ease regulations forbidding the early morning cock's crow in suburban garden patches.

The Conservative member who sought the extension, R. H. Turton charged that the minister was bing unfair—not only to the hens being unfair—not only to the hens—but to his own sex.

FATAL PLANE COLLISION

Hamburg, July 7 (AP)—Three British officers were killed when two R.A.F. training planes collided over the British zone of Germany yesterday.

Bobby Locke Winner of Open For Second Time

Troon, Scotland, July 7 (CP)—Bobby Locke of South Africa, who never wastes a stroke, won his second straight British Open Golf crown today with a fourth-round 68 that lifted his total to 279—four strokes less than anyone had used to win the title before.

The pudgy putting master put together rounds of 69-72-70-68 for his record total.

Locke started the days double-barrelled round in third place, two strokes off the pace. But his par 70 in the morning 18 lifted him into a three-way tie with Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina and Dai Rees of Wales at 211 for 54 holes.

In the final round, during which Locke was over par on only one hole, De Vicenzo needed a 70 for 281 while Rees zoomed to a 71 that gave him 282.

FALLS 130 FEET AND LIVES

Mount Forest, July 7 — (CP)—William Blair, 44, of Ayton, Ont., had a miraculous escape from death or serious injury Thursday when he fell 130 feet to the ground from the top of the United Church steeple and got up and walked away.

Blair, doing repair work on the steeple, was pulled on a rope attached to a pulley when he lost his footing and fell. His 130-foot tumble was partially broken when he struck part of the roof of the church lower down.

Two doctors examined Blair and he was later taken to hospital where x-rays failed to disclose any breaks or fractures.

Boy Says He Wrapped Hand In Kerchief to Pick up Gun Not to Smear Any Prints

Langton, Ont., July 7 (CP) —A 13-year-old boy's keen interest in radio crime programs may link a tommy gun found near here last night to Herbert McAuliffe, suspected slayer of two district farmers after a bank holdup June 21.

The sub-machine gun, a coat, shirt and $521 in cash were found a stone's throw from the spot where Arthur Lierman, 31, and William Goddy, 24, were shot to death after a chase which followed the holdup of the Imperial Bank Branch.

An assist in the discovery may go to Robert Holmes' brother, Larry, 10, who was hunting for baby crows when he found the coat shirt. He reported the find to his mother. They and Robert found the gun and money.

"I'm a mystery program fan," Robert said. "I listen to them all the time on the radio, so I knew what to do when I saw the gun.

"I wrapped my hand in a handkerchief—so as not to smear the fingerprints—picked the gun up and took it to the house where we called the police."

Earlier reports credited the discovery of the clothing to Mary Holmes, but subsequently it was found the initial clue was turned up by a boy—Larry.

If fingerprints are found on the weapon, they will be compared with those of McAuliffe, identified earlier as Frank West and George Walker.

The prisoner was positively identified by his father, W. E. McAuliffe of North Bay, who said in an interview today that he visited his son in jail at Simcoe, last Monday.

NEW ALPHABET FOR HALLMARK

John Basing of London has just designed a new alphabet which has won a competition run by the Assay Office in Birmingham, Britain's largest city. The Assay Office looks after hallmarks placed on gold and silver and the Birmingham Assay Office has been doing this for one hundred and seventy-seven years. In that time it has used up seven different alphabets and now it will start on Mr. Basing's lettering. G. R. Hughes explained this somewhat complicated business of hallmarks in a broadcast in the BBC. There are four marks on an article, the maker's initials, the town mark of the Office to which the article is sent for assay, in other words to be chemically tested; the mark showing the standard of the metal; and the mark giving the year when the article was tested. It is the fourth mark which was the subject of the competition. The Birmingham Assay Office wanted a set of twenty-five letters extremely simple in outline as they would sometimes have to be reproduced by punches no bigger than a pin's head. Each year has its own letter, forming a succession of alphabets of varying type. These are contained in distinctive shields and by identifying the date letter in the hallmark of any piece of British plate and studying its combination with the other hallmarks the year in which the piece was tested is determined..

Hallmarks had their origin at Goldsmith's Hall in London in the fourteenth century. They are now recognized as a sign of integrity and of the high quality which British traders and craftsmen have tried to maintain for hundreds of years. King Edward the First ruled that no gold or silver ware should be sold before it had been tested and marked with the leopard's head which was originally taken from the royal arms. Later on this head became London's town mark and for the last six centuries has been used in the Assay Office at Goldsmith's Hall. There are Assay Offices in several big towns and each has its individual mark. Birmingham has an anchor, Sheffield a crown on silver and a York rose on gold, Chester a sword between wheat sheaves, Edinburgh a castle, and Glasgow a composite mark of tree, bird, bell, fish and ring. Goldsmiths and silversmiths in Britain are still producing work which can compare favorably with that done by their predecessors six hundred years ago.

TEN MOST BORING BOOKS

Columbia University Press, as a mid-Summer stunt, took a poll of editors, writers, booksellers, librarians, critics and plain citizens to determine "the 10 most boring books in the world" in the ranks of what are called "classics."

First place went to Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," which will surprise many who say it's a great book but never have read it. The next nine were Melville's "Moby Dick," Milton's "Paradise Lost," Spenser's "Faerie Queene," Boswell's "Life of Samuel Johnson," Richardson's "Pamela," Eliot's "Silas Marner," Scott's "Ivanhoe," Cervantes' "Don Quixote," and Goethe's "Faust."

The organizer of the poll says that every book which ever had a place on a high school reading list was mentioned at least once — this including most of Shakespeare's plays. This observation tends to indicate that compulsory reading defeats its purpose, develops a lifelong aversion to a work which an adult might enjoy if it came fresh to him in his maturity.

All readers will have their own amendments to this list, but we should be surprised if "Paradise Lost," "Faerie Queene" and "Faust" appeal to many persons in this generation. But we are amazed to find Boswell's life of Dr. Johnson in the list — we should put it instead in any list of the 10 most interesting classics. The others are borderline cases. Many find amusement in "Don Quixote" — others find him unreadable. There are long parts of "Pamela" which are incredibly dull. "Ivanhoe" used to be a favorite of young people, but nowadays they want something more exciting. So do tastes change.

But the poll was a change from attempts to find the 10 "best books" or the one book which would be most comfort on a desert island. — Ottawa Journal.

IDENTIFY FISH IN SEAS

A firm in East England is carrying out tests on equipment which will help the fishermen not only to locate fish deep in the seas but also to identify their species. If tests prove successful, skippers and their crews will be able to make up their minds whether they can "shoot" for prime or whether the catch is likely to be less profitable. The equipment, which is still in the "hush hush" stage of development, may be ready for use at the end of this year.

He that will make a good use of any part of his life must allow a large part of it to recreation. — Locke.

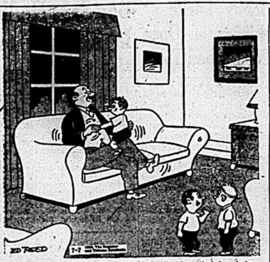
WHY X-RAYS ARE NUMBERED

As in the dentist's chair I sat,
Some little films I chanced to see
And asked: "Whose set of teeth is that?
Their owner could you name to me?"
The dentist said: "The number will."
And then proceeded with his drill

"Now just a minute," I replied.
"Those films are photographs of teeth.
Though different they appear outside,
They're all so much alike beneath
That you require a code by which
To tell the humble from the rich?"

"Yes! Heart and lungs and teeth," said he.
"We're much alike from head to toe.
The outward differences we see
The X-ray taken never show,
But all the troubles that we find
Are similar in pain and kind.

"The rich, the poor, the weak, the bold,
The fair, the plain, the fat or thin
This fact the rays we take unfold,
Are brothers underneath the skin.
So much alike of flesh and bone,
They must be numbered to be known."



"Actually we don't care for Uncle Bob—it's just that he shakes a lot of loose change into that chair."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 7th., 1930.

Dr. James Cummins and Dr. Austin Walters of this city have passed the examinations of the Ontario Council of Physicians and Surgeons. The former will take a post graduate course at White Plains, N.Y., and the latter will do likewise at the General Hospital in Montreal. Among others passing the Council are Dr. Scott Elliott, Tweed; Dr. W. Wade, Brighton, and Dr. Carl Haig, Campbellford.

The Adams family and their descendants recently held their annual picnic at Twelve O'Clock Point. Close to 300 were in attendance.

A barn owned by Mr. James W. Campbell, in the Oak Hills, was destroyed by fire.

Miss Mary Gibson, Calgary, Alberta, is a guest at the home of Mrs. David Waters, Forin Street.

Miss Ethel Barrett is spending her vacation in Chapleau.

CHRISTIAN STATESMANSHIP

Future generations are going to have something to say about General MacArthur as a statesman, and a Christian statesman at that. He has served notice on the Church that he wants 3,000 missionaries and ten million Bibles for the Japanese. Then he proposes to leave Japan to God and to God-fearing leaders who will carry on the development of the nation according to Christian principles.

MacArthur is a soldier and understands the necessity for military defence. He does not propose to substitute Bibles for armament, but he knows that armament is useless unless the character of the people who arm themselves is sound. He has dealt with armies, tanks, and artillery and knows exactly what they can do and what they cannot do. What they cannot do is, after all, the important thing which needs to be done. Military machines never make people more resourceful or build into their hearts ethical principles by which life must be lived every day. Therefore, cries MacArthur, give me missionaries and Bibles, and be quick about it, for time is running out.

And while he thus makes his demand, our own Bibles gather dust on the book shelves, and we wonder if some great home missionary will have to arise in America to turn her from her heathen ways.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Farmers and rural drivers generally are easily recognizable when driving in the city by the extreme caution with which they handle their vehicles in the city traffic.

But farmers and rural drivers in their native townships are anything but cautious and timid. They drive with an abandon that makes the skilled city traffic puck-chaser's hair stand on end.

Over the rural back roads, they bounce and slither; and if the road is winding, that only seems to excite them, as the roller-coaster excites city folk at an amusement park. Stop signs means nothing to them, in home territory. They whang out side roads onto the highways with a terrifying disrespect for those warnings that mean law at its grimmest to city drivers.

The fact of the matter is, farmers and country folk are not so impressed by vehicles as city people are. They are accustomed to driving wagons over the fields behind a team of frisky horses, the wagon tilting, jouncing and staggering. They drive tractors that are ten times rougher and more violent than ever a truck was on a gravel side-road. Very often, the family car is treated with that same scant respect you see afforded farm implements left out wherever they happened to be when a job was done. Where a city driver slackens speed whenever he comes to a rough spot in the road, the country driver, conditioned to roughness as a natural characteristic of his world, under wagon wheel, plow share, tractor tire, pays no respect to a rough road, but drives lickety split over it, as he would with a stone boat.

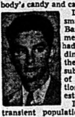
In the country, city drivers are recognizable by the caution with which they drive, easing over the bumps, slackening for the bends, watching anxiously at all back road intersections. And with darn good reason!

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

TRANSIENT GOLD

Banff, Alta. — To you and me, tourists are just a bunch of people in yellow shirts with cameras over their shoulders. To people in a place like Banff they are a commodity to be studied and analyzed blessing and nuisance and everybody's candy and cake.



Last night a small group of Banff businessmen, with whom I had the pleasure of dining, let down their hair on the subject and some of the observations might interest you.

In Banff the transient population nearly always outnumbers the resident. On the main street the cars nosed fender-to-fender at the curb bear licence plates from every state in the union, every province in the Dominion.

Everywhere you look there are visitors. At least a third of the town's homes have rooms for tourists or small bungalows in their back yards and signs out front with the words "Approved Accommodation."

Yet the townspeople live their own life in a manner surprisingly detached from the gay, floating populace. You can pick up a copy of Banff's weekly paper, aptly named "Crag and Canyon," and never know there was a tourist within a thousand miles.

The cream of society of the outside world may be domiciled in the magnificent Banff Springs Hotel. Crag and Canyon and its readers are more interested in Mrs. John Smith who has just come back from visiting her aunt in Okotoks, Alberta.

"We have our own lives to lead," one of my hosts said. "The visitors here find a place that's on a perpetual holiday, dedicated to having a good time. But for those of us who live here the year round life is pretty much as it is in any small town."

Lonely Female

Two of these men have been studying tourists for more than 20 years. Both agree that a man gets more out of a vacation than a woman.

"Some women can come up here and relax, but most of them don't seem to know what to do with themselves," one said. "We get a lot of golf widows, of course, because so many of the men come up for a week or so of steady playing. It's kind of sad to see the women. They'll walk down the street looking in the shops and examining each other. You'll see them up at the hotel playing bridge or canasta by the hour."

"Women just don't seem to know how to enjoy themselves alone," the other man agreed. "The only women I've seen here who really look happy are the gals who come on their honeymoon."

Banff, they agreed, gets a large number of hopeful husband-seekers. The number of available or predatory females is always in excess of the males.

They break down the tourists in three general categories, as follows:

1. The Rich Couple. Almost always American. Man usually a golfer. Wife will almost surely buy some Hudson Bay blankets or fur coat. Both appear deeply bored. Rarely leave hotel except to shop and golf.

2. The Old, Retired Couple. Dreamed of the trip and saved for it for year. Usually take a room in lodging house. Take part in all conducted tours. Purchase novelty goods such as pillow covers or totem poles. Happiest moment for them: If they meet somebody from their home town.

3. The Middle Class Family. Want to see and do everything, always recorded by camera. Appear to have the happiest time of all. Usually stay in auto camp.

The Shoppers

The merchandising required to loosen a few kopeks from the visiting vacationist is somewhat involved, my friends pointed out.

"Doesn't seem to be any half-way point with a tourist," one said. "He'll either buy some of the most cockeyed dime-store trinkets you could imagine or a mink coat. Nothing in between. At a place like Banff, or Sun Valley or any other big resort, you make the most money if you figure on selling to millionaires or tramps."

Why no normal buying?

"Because," said another retailer, "the tourist is always on the defensive when he gets away from home. He's suspicious. Expects to be soaked and so he's not in the market for anything he could buy at home. It's something we've got to break down. Meantime, the trick is to sell him stuff he can't get at home or wouldn't dream of buying."

All agreed that the way to get "repeats" is to keep the visitor busy.

"There are enough activities here to keep a tourist going from the time he gets up until the time he goes to bed," one said. "Most people when they get away from home, seem a little lost. Don't know what to do with themselves. You've got to lead them by the hand as it were."

But doesn't the holidayer crave relaxation above all, I asked. To which a longtime student of the breed replied, "I never yet saw one who knew how to relax."

MacKenzie's Column

Red Domination Of Korea Would Be Blow to U.N.

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Winston Churchill said in the House of Commons a couple of days ago that a communist victory in Korea might result in a third world war.

Such a statement by this war-wise statesman demands respectful consideration, especially in these days when all the hills are echoing the anxious query:

"Must we have another world war?"

This column has discussed the point before, but it is worth looking at again. Churchill didn't mean literally, of course, that the loss of Korea in itself would immediately produce a global upheaval. However, a red victory in Korea certainly could set in motion a chain of reactions which inevitably would lead to another world conflict. This is indeed a dangerous moment.

The domination of all Korea by Russia would be a hard blow to the democracies. The mountainous peninsula is of great value strategically — a base of much importance to supremacy in the Far East. And because of this circumstance its control has come to be universally regarded as a mark of strength. Thus its complete domination by Russia would be a serious blow to the democracies — militarily, in prestige and in the matter of morale. It would have a great influence on the rest of Asia.

Now just to keep the records straight let it be stated here that the action in Korea sponsored by the United Nations is not for the purpose of putting the democracies into "control" of the peninsula. It is to establish the independence of the peninsula, and that would tend to nullify its importance as a military base.

American forces in Korea have continued to encounter tough going in these early stages of their U. N. assignment, as was a foregone conclusion. However, the High Command in Washington yesterday described the situation of American ground forces as not "serious in any way." This was after reassurances had been received from General MacArthur's headquarters.

President Truman himself also declared that he was confident everything would work out all right in Korea. Plans are being pushed to throw more strength, especially air power, into the fighting.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

VACATION BAGGAGE

I wonder how many people, about to enter upon their vacation adventure, take exactly what is essential — and no more? Long before the day for departure, the baggage problem looms like an unsolved riddle. And that problem seems to solve itself by taking two or three times as many things as we need.

Every year that I have gone to my small summer island retreat, I have repeated this folly of taking two or three times as much as I ever used. So, this year I am going to be different, take but a few things, and make it a varied selection. For Father's Day I was presented with a harmonica, so that will surely go, for now I can look forward to composing a little music to entertain the birds and squirrels!

My cameras will have to go, too, as they always have. They are really more important than clothes. Most of the clothes we wear on the island are old ones, anyway, and not too many at any one time. Then there is the habitual little noiseless typewriter, a lifelong companion, no matter where I go. A few other odds and ends complete the list.

In one respect, however, this year I will take with me a unique personality — a genuine article from Uncle Sam's contingent — a New Jersey mail carrier! I want to learn about this mail service of mine. Not only is this mail carrier a public servant, but a poet, musician, and expert photographer! His name is "Bucky" McDonnell, and he is the beloved friend of everyone on his Jersey route. Children adore him for he writes poetry for them, tells them stories, and sings songs to them, as he walks from place to place.

And so I think my vacation baggage will work out fine this summer, and I shall return refreshed and newly inspired. After all it's the baggage and equipment that adds to our joy and contentment that is the most valuable and essential. A delightful companion, added, in the form of a mail carrier, is something, especially with the "trimmings" that "Bucky" has added to his achievements!

HEART TONIC THAT CAN DO NO HARM

Rest, which is the most essential remedy for dilated heart, lost compensation or congestive heart failure, as the condition is variously known, can become detrimental if continued to long. In every such case, if the general treatment is effective, there comes a time when graduated exercise is necessary to bring about rehabilitation. Just what form of exercise, how much and under what individual circumstances the patient's own physician knows or should know better than any specialist, no matter how eminent.

Exercise is the best heart tonic I know. It is especially beneficial for people with weak heart. Unfortunately many such persons have an obsession that exercise is bad for the heart or even dangerous.

Just what is a tonic, anyway? Stedman (medical dictionary) tells you that a tonic is a remedy which restores enfeebled function and promotes vigor and a sense of well-being. You know, something like vite, which is not yet defined in any dictionary, but I live in hope.

An ideal heart tonic would be one you can take no matter what kind of heart trouble, weakness or attack you have or have had. It may do little if any good but anyway it can do no possible harm. You can't tell how much good it may do until you have taken it regularly for six weeks or longer. Certainly you will be disappointed with it if you "try" it for only a few weeks.

The ideal heart tonic is an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex. Optimal means at least three times as much as nutrition authorities designate as essential to maintain good nutrition.

Any one with enough gumption and inventiveness can get it from farmer, miller, feed dealer or market, in the form of plain wheat, wheat germ, wheat bran etc. On written request accompanied with stamped self-addressed envelope I'll send you the pamphlet Wheat to Eat which will give some practical suggestions to aid you in restoring wheat to your everyday family diet, in place of refined white flour. Of course wheat meal or flour doesn't keep long after it has been ground, so if you expect to like it or want your family to eat it you'll have to find some one who will grind enough to supply your requirements from day to day, or better, get a mill (hand power or mechanical) of your own and grind as much as you may need every day. If a famous hotel in Seattle can do so why can't you?

Nutrition authorities estimate that a person eating white bread and refined white sugar or syrup today gets most of his calories from these items and about one-quarter of the vitamin B he needs to maintain good nutrition. If he replaces the white flour with whole wheat (from which nothing is removed) and the white sugar or syrup with old-fashioned brown sugar and molasses, he will get all the vitamin B he requires to maintain good nutrition. As for his daily calories, no difference. It is not that refined white sugar or syrup and refined white flour or bread does any harm. But these modern staples supply practically nothing but calories, and man can't thrive on calories alone. He must have vitamins as well, particularly the three factors of the B complex above mentioned.

Working in Cold Storage

Your opinion in reference to the results, if any, of working from 30 minutes to an hour in food freezing room, with 15 to 20 minute periods outside of the freezer to thaw out. In rush periods some men work 12 hours a day. Is this likely to cause rheumatism, arthritis etc? (F. F. E.)

Answer—No.

Swollen Ankles

My ankles have been swelling every day for eight or ten years. Doctors examined me and found no kidney, heart or other trouble. They say it is oedema but they know of nothing to do for it. The swelling goes down every night, but recurs after I have been up a few hours. (C.M.D.)

Answer—It could do no harm to take a suitable daily ration of iodine. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping, please) for pamphlet The Iodin Ration.

MENZIES TO VISIT LONDON

Canberra, Australia, July 7 — (Reuters) — Defence co-ordination, migration and finance are the three main points Prime Minister Robert Menzies will discuss on his rush trip by air to London, Washington, Ottawa, Vancouver and New Zealand during the current parliamentary recess.

Leaving Sydney for London July 9, he will limit his stay at any one place to a few days.

Menzies yesterday issued a statement that he would discuss "certain financial questions." This observers took to mean he would, if possible arrange means of relieving the dollar shortage which is seriously retarding Australian development.

Children Enjoy Themselves at City Playgrounds

The teeter is ever popular as playground equipment as can be seen in this picture taken at the King George school junior playground which was officially opened Thursday evening. This particular shot was taken in the junior playground established last year, the senior section being at the north end of the school grounds where new equipment was installed this year. Carol Watson is the supervisor shown in the picture.

Above is a general view of the West Belleville playground in the Queen Mary public school ground. This too is a combined playground for both seniors and juniors who can romp and play all day in a delightful setting beneath the many large trees on the area. Fitted out under the direction of committee member Fred Symons this playground saw its official opening Wednesday evening when the Belleville Municipal Band turned out to assist in the opening.

News of Trenton Playground Supervisors Lack Equipment to Provide Proper Activity For Children

Trenton (Special)—Lack of equipment in the two Recreation Commission playgrounds opened on Wednesday makes it extremely difficult for the supervisors to provide suitable activities for the children.

This complaint was voiced by both Vic. Swirzon, physical education instructor at Trenton high school, who is in charge of the playground at Dufferin public school and Joe Scott, supervisor of the other playground at College Street school.

On Thursday, Mr. Swirzon was confronted with the problem of entertaining several toddlers from two to four years old and the only equipment available was a ball and bat, so he rose to the occasion by reading them a nursery story.

Recreation Director Jack Dean promises that some sand boxes are being built and will be ready in a few days for the younger children. The Recreation Commission intends to erect volleyball standards at both playgrounds but their efforts are being hampered by a shortage of funds. Mr. Dean in the meantime is endeavoring to obtain some swings and slides from another school in town where a playground is not being operated.

Able to Play Ball

Joe Scott has a little better facilities at College Street school grounds, as there are swings and a merry-go-round. Also the children who frequent the playground are from about 6 to 13 and able to play softball. Mr. Scott said he has been promised a couple of horseshoe pits, volleyball standards and a soccer ball. He expects these to arrive in a day or two and judging by the number of kiddies who have taken advantage of the playground in the last two days, he predicts that the playgrounds will be well patronized during the next two months.

The College Street Home and School Association has purchased a lot just east of the school for a new playground and the association has also bought a considerable amount of equipment which it plans to install as soon as the tearing down of the old house situated on the lot is completed.

The two playgrounds will be open from 9.15 to 11.45 in the morning and from 1.15 to 4.30 in the afternoon, Monday through Friday during July and August. The purpose of the playgrounds is to provide supervised recreation for children of public school age, in order to keep them off the streets as much as possible during the summer holidays.

Spotless Cleaners Beat Baltimore By 20-8 Score

Trenton (Special) — Spotless Cleaners tagged three Baltimore pitchers for a total of 17 hits as they defeated their visitors 20 to 8 in an error-filled ladies Lakeshore Softball League game at Bayshore Park Wednesday night.

The two teams piled up a total of 26 errors. Baltimore was away out in front with 18, while Trenton bobbled eight, five of which were credited to Spotless short stop Barb Whitley.

Sally Twigg handled the hurling duties for the local ladies, holding Baltimore to seven hits, as she struck out two, walked five and helped win her own ball game with two singles and a two run homer.

For three and a half innings it was a tight ball game, Baltimore starting pitcher Shirley Slater and Sally Twigg gave up only three singles each and the score was tied at three all.

In the bottom of the fourth with the score still tied, DuVarney rapped out a single, after Barb Whitley had started the inning by striking out and the next two Trenton hitters were safe at first, thanks to Baltimore infield fielding errors. Sally Twigg followed with a single, scoring what proved to be the game winning run, as Trenton was never headed from then on.

Smith in Relief

Smith relieved Shirley Slater on the Baltimore hill in the 5th and lasted two innings. With one away in the last of the seventh, DuVarney was safe at first on an error and Audrey Carswell went to first base on a fielder's choice that Baltimore fumbled. Jean Robertson hit a two sacker then Sally Twigg came up with a round tripper and Smith switched duties with second sacker Slater in an attempt to stop the scoring splurge. The change failed to pay off immediately, as Trenton collected four more hits and three runs before they were retired in the seventh and added four more to their total in the eighth.

Baltimore took the lead in the first, scoring three runs, but after Trenton tied it up in the second, the visiting ladies were held scoreless until the fifth when they picked up two easy runs on a pair of walks and a Spotless error. Baltimore threatened in the sixth but Sally Twigg stopped the rally at three runs.

Warned to Move $60,000 Hidden In Record Player

Montreal, July 7 — (CP) — A west-end Montreal resident has been warned to remove $60,000 hidden in a playroom record player before it is stolen, police said today.

The citizen, one of several in the district, was warned by police following the arrest three weeks ago of seven expert American safecrackers.

Police said the burglars showed them their burglary list compiled after "casing" several homes. The information listed was minute and amazingly accurate, police said.

The seven, who had no charges against them in Canada, have been sent back to the U. S.

TABBIES MOVE UP

Weston, Ont., July 7 (CP) — "Look out for Hamilton"—that's the cry around the Ontario Lacrosse circuit these days.

The Tabbies, last year's champs moved up into a third-place tie with St. Catharines Athletics and Peterborough Petes last night when they scored a convincing 21-10 victory over Weston Lions.

Old reliables Blain McDonald and Tommy Love again paced the Tigers' offensively by scoring five goals apiece. Jack Downey also sparkled and netted three goals for the night's work.

For the Lions, Hal Downer bagged three goals, and Venner, Pop Chard and James had a pair each.

All set to enjoy the first slide at the East Belleville playgrounds is this group of juniors. Shown in the picture are Fred Symons (left) and Henry Becker, members of the recreation committee, while the young lady in the picture is Miss Eleanor Sprague of Mountain View, supervisor for the playground. The very young man well down the slide is Owen Stevenson, while behind him are Marylee Sager and Ann Hawkins. The East Belleville playgrounds were officially opened Tuesday evening when about 300 kiddies turned up to get a share of the free ice cream and "pop."

WEDDINGS

FRY—NOKES
KIRKPATRICK—NOKES

Christ church was the setting for a lovely double wedding on Saturday July 1st., when Violet Marie, and Lillian Elizabeth, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nokes, of Belleville, became the brides of Henry Charles Fry, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fry, and William Charles, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kirkpatrick, of Belleville.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with standards of Canterbury bells, snapdragons and princess feather. The Rev. J. Grant Sparling officiated and Mr. Dana Cook rendered the wedding music.

Violet Marie was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Arthur Nokes, and was lovely in her bridal gown of white Chantilly French lace over taffeta, the full skirt was fashioned with a peplum of French lace with matching mittens. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion fell gracefully from a headdress of seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and baby breath.

Mrs. Arthur Nokes, the bride's aunt was matron of honor, and was becomingly dressed in pale blue, corded taffeta. The bodice featured a triple collar edged with tulle. She wore matching mitts and poke bonnet of the same material and carried a Colonial nosegay of red roses, bridal rose and baby breath.

Miss Lola Thompson, of London, Ont., was bridesmaid, wearing a gown in similar design to that of the matron of honor, with matching mittens and headdress. She also carried a Colonial nosegay of similar flowers.

Miss Sandra Cross, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, dressed becomingly in a pale pink taffeta floor-length dress with heart-shaped hat of lace and tied with mauve velvet ribbon. She also carried a nosegay similar to the bridesmaid's.

Mr. Murray Atkinson was groomsman and Mr. Robert Rickettes was usher.

Lillian Elizabeth was given in marriage by her father, and was lovely in her bridal gown of white slipper satin fashioned with yoke of French lace, adorned with seed pearls and a sweeping paplum edged with deep lace, the skirt sweeping into a circular train. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, white carnations and baby breath.

Miss Margaret Clapp was maid of honor, wearing maize corded taffeta, designed with fitted bodice and triple collar with matching mittens and poke bonnet. She carried a Colonial nosegay of red roses, bridal rose and baby breath.

Mrs. William Ashman, cousin of the groom, was bridesmaid, gowned in maize corded taffeta, similar in style to the other bridesmaid's, with matching mittens and poke bonnet. She carried a Colonial nosegay.

Little Sharon Lazure, small cousin of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a lovely pale green floor length taffeta dress and poke bonnet, with pink trimmings. She carried a nosegay of similar flowers.

Mr. Gerry Robertson was groomsman and Mr. Stanley Meeks, was the usher.

After the ceremony, the reception was held at the Orange Lodge which was beautifully decorated for the occasion by the Ladies of L.O.B.A. No. 350.

The guests were received by the brides' mother, wearing mauve silk tissue faille with cut-work of self material, with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. She was assisted by the grooms' mothers, Mrs. William Fry, who wore navy sheer over printed silk with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Fred Kirkpatrick wore navy blue nylon with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The brides' table was charming with the two wedding cakes of three tiers, and the hall tastefully decorated with summer flowers.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fry left on a honeymoon trip to Vermont, and Lake Placid and Mr. and Mrs. William Kirkpatrick to Prince Edward Island.

Out-of-town guests were from Toronto, Orillia, Oshawa, London, Peterborough, Melville, Trenton and Consecon.

SHANNON—FINKLE

On Saturday, June 24th., a pretty wedding was solemnized at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, at 10 a.m. when Joanne Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Finkle, of Belleville, became the bride of Joseph Desmond Shannon, of Plainfield, son of Mr. Thomas Shannon, Plainfield, and the late Mrs. Shannon. The ceremony was performed before a background of rose and white peonies and summer flowers by the Rev. Joseph Shannon, P.P., of Carleton Place, and uncle of the bridegroom.

"Panis Angelicus" was rendered at the offertory of the Mass. Mr. William Finkle, brother of the bride, was soloist, and sang during the signing of the register "Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a charming bridal gown featuring a molded bodice of white Chantilly lace buttoned up the back, with pointed collar, long tight-fitting sleeves, lily pointed at the wrists, white satin skirt having a two-panel front of lace with lace panel in the back which gracefully widened into a long train. Her three-quarter length veil of hand-embroidered lily-of-the-valley, tulle illusion was held in place by halo of lily-of-the-valley, and she carried a shower bouquet of white calla lilies and stephanotis with satin-edged French lace.

Miss Marylou Finkle, Belleville, and sister of the bride, was maid of honor, becomingly gowned in heavenly blue satin fashioned with low, round neckline, tightly fitted bodice, puff sleeves, and tiered skirt.

Miss Lenore Bradden, of Belleville, and Mrs. Michael Boyles, of Cardinal, Ontario, and cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids, gowned alike in color and style to that of the maid of honor. All wore matching petal halos of Picardy pink gladioli and Johanna Hill carnations, and carried shower bouquets of the same flowers.

Mr. Harvey Shannon, of Plainfield, and brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Donald Finkle, of Belleville, and brother of the bride, and Mr. Patrick Shannon, of Plainfield, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The reception was held at "Sunset Cottage", Pete's Point, summer home of the bride's parents, which was tastefully decorated with rose peonies, cornflowers, and bouvardia, where the bride's mother, gowned in flowered grey mesh, with grey accessories and corsage blue cornflowers centred with a pink rose, received the many guests, assisted by the bridegroom's aunt, wearing a white linen suit with yellow accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

For travelling to the United States, and Muskoka, the bride donned a beige suit, with kola brown accessories, and corsage of gardenias, and stephanotis. Upon their return, the young couple will reside at Plainfield.

Out-of-town guests were present from Guelph, Carleton Place, Kingston, Toronto, Read, Plainfield, Cobourg, Napanee, and Cardinal, Ont.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at various showers, given by Mrs. Edgar Vermilyea and co-hostess, Mrs. Leroy Madden, Miss Catherine Meagher, Octavia Street, Miss Lenore Bradden, North Front St., and the Sodality of the Children of Mary, at John Street High School. The hospital laboratory staff of the Belleville General Hospital, also entertained at a dinner in the bride's honor.

CRUSADE AGAINST T.B.

London, July 7 (Reuters)—The British Medical Association today called for a crusade against tuberculosis, which it cited as Britain's No. 1 health problem. The B.M.A. said more than 19,000 patients in England and Wales and more than 3,400 in Scotland died in 1948 of the disease, and deplored the lack of hospital beds.

Budge Patty Wins All-England Tennis Title

Wimbledon, England, July 7—(CP) — Budge Patty, the 26-year-old giant killer of the courts, won the all-England tennis championship today by upsetting Australia's Frank Sedgman, 6-1,8-10, 6-2,6-3.

Thus the Los Angeles player completed his sweep of the tourney's two top-rated players.

Earlier in the meet, the fifth-seeded Californian ousted Billy Talbert, the second-seeded New Yorker. Sedgman, 22-year-old Australian champion, was top-seeded in this tourney, the most important one of the tennis world:

Patty didn't waste too much time to polish off the Aussie Davis Cup star with a 6-3 victory in the fourth set to win 3-1.

It was the first Wimbldon crown the lanky American had ever captured and it gave the United States its fourth consecutive men's singles championship here.

Succeeds Schroeder

Patty, who has spent most of his time abroad in the last few years, succeeded Ted Schroeder as champion. Schroeder did not defend the title.

Patty raced through the first set in 14 minutes but Sedgman, noted for his stirring comebacks, rallied to win the second set.

But the Australian apparently shot his bolt with that short triumph. He was dog-tired.

Patty, unranked in his own county because almost all of his tennis campaigning was done in Europe last year, broke the Australian's service repeatedly in the third and fourth sets to win.

Local tennis fans had made Sedgman a slight favorite today. But Patty never gave Sedgman a fifth set for one of his fighting comebacks.

Patty, his volleying rising to championship heights, and his placements hitting the spots the loser had just left, was the complete master in the last two sets which lasted only 50 minutes altogether.

POLICE BULLETS END CAREER OF SICILIAN BANDIT

The end of the road came for Salvatore Giuliano, self-styled "Robin Hood" bandit king of Sicily, when he and several of his henchmen walked into a police ambush while attempting a raid on the outskirts of Castelvetrano, 45 miles south of Palermo. Giuliano had conducted a reign of terror for more than four years, during which he is believed to have killed 100 policemen. — Central Press Canadian.

Princess, Prince Save $4,650 on Car

London, July 7 (AP)—By waiting for Britain's new budget, Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip saved £1,500 ($4,650) on a new Rolls Royce delivered today.

The treasury cut the sales tax on automobiles costing more than £1,000 from 66 to 33 per cent in the budget laid down April.

At the old rate the car would have cost £8,000. At the new, it stood the royal pair about £6,400.

Prince Philip picked out the sedan months ago, before he went on active duty with the fleet in the Mediterranean.

It can seat seven. It has step lights which flash on when the doors are opened, a radio controlled from the back seat and three heaters. The paint job is green and the upholstery grey.

CLOCK IS STOPPED

Stratford, July 7 (CP)—Stratford's faithful old post office is on vacation these days. After running since 1882 without a general overhaul, it is having its four faces lifted and its mechanism repaired. It will probably be back in service next week.

Exiled Monarch Being Attacked By Socialists

Brussels, July 7 — (AP) — Anti-Leopold socialists prepared new manoeuvres today in their fight to keep Belguim's exiled monarch from the throne the social Christian government is preparing for him.

The socialists, most bitter opponents to the return from Switzerland of King Leopold III, completed plans for a giant parade tomorrow. They called it a "popular demonstration of tribute" to regent Prince Charles, who has served during the exile of his brother Leopold.

As the pro-Leopold Catholic government began its parliamentary battle to recall the king, socialist inspired token strikes swept Belgian industry yesterday.

Protesting the proposed return of the monarch who surrendered to the Germans in 1940, every shift of coal miners stopped work for 30 minutes. Metal plants, Antwerp dockworkers, streetcar men and ship-construction and repair workers all halted for short periods.

In parliament, the house and senate met in joint session but socialist filibusting and wrangling forced adjournment before debate on the royal question could be opened.

The two houses meet jointly again Tuesday. The socialists already have announced that at least 11 speakers will debate in oppostition to the king. The social Christians plan to use only two but are counting on their majority in each house to restore Leopold to his throne.

Buffalo Bus Strike Ended

Buffalo, N.Y., July 7 (AP) — A bus strike that has tied up public transportation in the Buffalo-Niagara Falls area since Wednesday ended today.

Settlement came as drivers, mechanics and clerks of the Niagara Frontier Transit Corporation ratified a proposal featuring an immediate $1.50 an hour wage scale.

Officials of the N.F.T., the striking A.F.L. Union and the city drew up the proposal at a three-hour conference late yesterday. Union leaders recommended ratification by the members.

Clayton Stephenson, president of Local 1342 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric and Motor Coach Employees of America, said partial bus service could be resumed almost immediately.

But to get all the buses rolling again would take about 35 hours, Stephenson added.

The strikers demanded a 32-cent raise in the prevailing scale of $1.38. The company's top offer was $1.47 plus six paid holidays and several fringe benefits.

Two Cars in One Parking Space

Santa Monica, Calif., July 7—(AP)—Motorcycle officer Bob Clark found two of those pint-size automobiles in one parking metered space—and scratched his head.

Finally he wrote out two tickets.

Betty Newell and Bob McDonald protested. "We had economy in mind when we bought such little cars in the first place," said she.

City officials have decided to make a test case of it.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

There's Your Miracle

By ROY L. SMITH

Said Frederick the Great one day, in the midst of one of his skeptical moods, to his chaplain: "Sir, show me a miracle," to which that worthy man replied: "My Lord, the Jew."

There's your miracle. For 3,500 years the Jew has been a man ground under the wheels and the heels of the great and powerful nations of the world. He has suffered pogroms, lived in ghettoes, suffered contempt and ridicule, wandered across the face of the earth in search of a home, and been the object of suspicion and violence everywhere. Yet he has survived!

His Religion Has Saved Him

In all the 3,500 years of his history, the Jew has lived under rulers of his own brood less than 500 years. He has never had an army or a navy at his back, he has been denied the inner councils of the governments, and all the other defences usually deemed so necessary have been beyond his reach. The question then arises, what has saved him?

To this there is but one answer. He believed something!

He believed for instance, that he was living in a moral world in which a God of justice and love was the final authority. He believed he was made in the image of that God with certain spiritual qualities within him that were imperishable. He believed that every individual was born with certain rights which could never be denied to him, because of the fact that he was born in the image of God.

Moses Taught Them

According to the Old Testament the honor of having been the father of the Hebrew race must go to Abraham, but the honor of having founded the Hebrew nation must certainly go to Moses, the foster son of an Egyptian Pharaoh who broke with privilege and outlawed himself to become the leader of the first great labor movement in history.

It is highly significant that Moses based his entire philosophy of government and administration upon religion. The law he gave to the nation was divinely authorized. The institutions he set up rested back upon a religious base.

It is also highly significant that Moses made no provision for a class of nobles. In fact, aside from the assignment of priestly functions to one of the tribes, no differences were set up among the Hebrews. All men stood on the same level. This was in harmony with the fundamental principles. Moses taught concerning the dignity of all men who have been born in the image of God.

Jethro Taught Moses

The Sunday School lesson for July 9: "Moses, Who Led His People to God," Exodus 4:28-31; 19—20; 35; 40:17-38.

As an infant Moses had been adopted into the royal household, having been found beside a little stream by the daughter of Pharaoh. As a foster son he had been trained in Egyptian lore, including religion. The day he struck out for the desert he was, probably, as much of an Egyptian in religion as was Pharaoh himself.

In the wilderness, however, he met an old desert sheik who introduced him to a new line of religious thinking. The record is incomplete and many of the gaps in the Old Testament record have to be filled in the best we can. But we know that Moses came out of the wilderness a devout believer in Jehovah, and a man thoroughly dedicated to certain profound ideals. Modern Christians (and Jews as well) have paid far less tribute to Jethro than that good man desreves for having introduced the mind of Moses to the idea of Jehovah, God.

Moses Was Different

The race has known many rulers since Moses' day, but never another quite like him. He sought no power for himself, and never claimed to be anything other than a representative of power— of God. He asked for no adulation of himself; sought no place or privilege for himself; bequeathed no crown or throne to his first born.

The laws which Moses gave to the nation, for which he claimed the sanction of God, provided for justice equally distributed and for mercy for the poor. To every Hebrew he assigned rights and privileges and stamped them with the approval of God thus making them irrevocable.

All of this in the name of religion! He subjected economics, jurisprudence, social ethics, and the national welfare to the test of religion. If anything met with the approval of God it became law; if it failed to meet with the approval of God it became anathema.

The First Great Democrat

It is extremely interesting to note that every one of the great political documents which declares for the rights of mankind root back in the teachings of Moses. Magna Charta, the Declaration of Independence of the United States, the great political principles of the Dutch Republic —they were all phrased by men steeped in the teachings of the Holy Scriptures.

If anyone were to try to subtract Moses from history, he would take away all the foundation stones of modern democracy. Without the law and teachings of the great Hebrew founder, the world would never have dreamed of the sacred rights of men. At least it never has.

CREDIT UNIONS

Toronto, July 6 (CP)—Establishment of the 500th Ontario Credit Union was marked in a brief ceremony in the office of Agriculture Minister Kennedy today when a charter was presented to representatives of the Department of Veterans' Affairs employees.

Credit Unions in Ontario now have 125,000 members and represents accumulated savings of $6,000,000.

Transportation Strike Averted At Last Minute

Calgary, July 7 — (CP) — A transportation strike scheduled to start at 5 a.m. yesterday was averted a few hours earlier when employees of the city-owned transit system accepted a last-minute wage-hour offer by city council.

The strike would have paralyzed the city during the week of the Calgary Stampede, the city's biggest tourist attraction.

While the press was not admitted to the union meeting which accepted the offer, it was reported that the margin favoring settlement was large.

The city's offer will give the men a 40-hour week in place of their present 44-hour week, with a reduction of $6 monthly in take-home pay. Present salary is $218 for bus and street car motormen.

Employees will get a $3-a-month cost-of-living bonus retroactive to last Jan. 1, which continues in effect until a 42-hour week at 4½-cents-an-hour wage boost can be introduced. A later change to a 40-hour week with a total 8¼-cent increase will complete the change-over to the new rates. Timing of the changes will be set so as not to exceed the transit system's budgeted surplus of $27,500 for 1950.

The unions, the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America, (A.F.L.) originally demanded a 40-hour week with no pay cut. Settlement followed a month of negotiation.

SIR BUCCANEER

Captain Henry Morgan, the 17th century buccaneer who at one time controlled a fleet of 39 ships, was knighted by Charles 11 and made deputy-governor of Jamaica.

Louise Brough And Mrs. Dupont In Tennis Finals

Wimbledon, England, July 6—(AP) — Defending titleholder Louise Brough of Beverley Hills, Calif., and Mrs. Margaret Dupont of Wilmington, Del., won their way into the women's singles finals of the All-England tennis championships today for the second straight year.

Mrs. Dupont, the American champion, defeated Mrs. Pat Todd of Lajolla, Calif., 8-6, 4-6, 8-6 in a rain-interrupted match after Miss Brough ousted Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

The final was scheduled for Saturday. Miss Brough is seeking her third consecutive title and Mrs. Dupont is after her second Wimbledon crown. She took the title in 1947.

Rain had forced a delay of one hour in the start of the play.

Miss Hart, a willowy blonde, got off to a great start with a 3-0 lead in the first set as she broke the Californian's service in the second game. But from then on, Doris was in trouble.

She lost three service games by over-hitting drives, and with them, the opening set.

Miss Brough broke her opponent's service to lead 3-0 in the second set, outdriving Doris and playing her right off the court with her volleys and smashes.

The Florida girl pulled up to 3-2 with a service break but that was her last gap. The defending champion broke through again for a 5-3 lead and held her own service for the match.

Mrs. Margaret Dupont and Mrs. Pat Todd, playing the other semi-final were forced from the court when heavy rain fell during the third set. Mrs. Dupont had won the first set 8-6 and Mrs. Todd squared it by taking the second 6-4 when the match was called.

With the score five-all in the final set, play was held up 10 minutes. Then Mrs. Dupont quickly finished off her opponent by breaking her service in the 13th game of the set. She then held her own serve.

The tall Californian missed her great chance in the opening set when she led 6-5 and needed just one point on her own service. But Mrs. Dupont came through with two fine passing shots and broke through to win the contest.

'Something' Colt Weighs 45 Pounds

Rochester, Mich., July 6 (AP) —What do you call the baby when its mama is a hinny and its papa a stallion?

The "something" colt was born of a riding stable romance between a palomino stallion and the hinny, says Arthur Thorne, the stable operator.

The hinny and the stallion mated. The result, said Thorne, is a little animal "about the size of a real small colt."

"It doesn't look much like a horse and nothing like a mule. It's just an active little 45-pound something," Thorne said.

A hinny, which is clearly not a mule, is a hybrid between a stallion and an ass.

Ramsay Paints Eke Out 5-4 Win Over Alemite

In a tight ball game until the ninth inning, when first one team and then the other broke loose, Ramsay Paints eked out a 5-4 win over Stewart-Warner last night at the Alemite Field.

The losers started off in fine style, fashioning one run in the first inning on a single by Carr and a double by Rowbotham, but Ramsays came back with two in their half on two singles and two errors. The Alemite men jumped into the lead again in the fourth, picking up two counters on two singles, a couple of stolen bases and an error. The game was tied by Ramsays in the bottom of the fifth as they pushed a run over on a single and Baldwin's triple.

From then on, the game was a stalemate until the top of the ninth. Then Stewart-Warner's hurler, Halloran, banged out a fluke triple and Carr followed with a double to push him across. That made it 4-3, and the fans were ready to go home.

Two Pinch Hitters

In the bottom of the ninth, Ramsays inserted two pinch hitters, Simmons batting for Cross and Young for Bellis, and the strategy paid off. First man up, Holland, went down pitcher to first, Simmons walked, went to second on Young's single. Next man up, Ramsay pitcher Reid got on through Carr's error, and the bases were loaded. Then third-sacker Peters, who had been having a tough night both afield and at the plate, crashed a double into centre field to break up the ball game.

In the top half of the inning, Peters had made a beautiful catch of Rowbotham's line drive for the second out.

Halloran, who hit a double and a triple in his own cause, struck out seven, and Reid claimed four on strikeouts. Each pitcher issued two walks. Stewart-Warners were hurt by four errors, while Ramsays Paints kicked in with only one.

Lineups:

Stewart-Warner: Carr, 3b; Ronsky, 2b; Rowbotham, c; Booth, 1b; Reid, rf; Moon, cf; Leforte, ss; Shaw, lf; Halloran, p.

Ramsays: Peters, 3b; Scanlon, 8b; Baldwin, rf; Wannamaker, cf; Empy, 1b; Holland, lf; Cross, ss; Bellis, c; J. Reid, p.

Batawa Bashes Picton 16-1 In COBL Game

Don Semark turned in a five-hitter, the Batawa bludgeons exploded with fourteen hits, the Picton defence fell apart and as a result the shoemen came home with a 16-1 victory and grabbed the top half of the dungeon spot in the Central Ontario Baseball League.

It was just another game in this more or less wacky set-up, where teams are as unpredictable as a mother-in-law. Picton could not do a thing the right way and the Shoemen held the same edge on matters that were wrong. They played errorless ball behind Semark's forkside flinging, backed him up with solid hitting throughout the eight-innings pastime.

They clustered their hits and runs scoring four in the second, three in the third, five in the fifth one in the sixth and topped off with three in the seventh. Picton scored its lone marker in the third when Fitzpatrick drove in Smith who had singled and went to third on infield outs.

Semark Held 'Em

Semark was in complete control of the situation throughout. The Picton bludgeons could do little or nothing with his shoots as he let them down with five hits, two of which were bunched in the third He struck out five and issued no free tickets to first.

Miller started for Picton and was there at the end of the pastime. He was nicked for fourteen clouts but the Picton infield kicked the ball around for seven bobbles and thereby hangs part of the tale of defeat.

Mac Carson sneaked a ground ball through second base that rolled halfway to Napanee before it was fielded and it went down in the records as a home run. The sorrel-top added a single for good measure. Rankin snared himself a couple of doubles with Spencer getting credit for three singles.

Semark and Bridgeman came up with two singles each and Art Wright hit a triple and a single to end the field day.

Fitzpatrick grabbed two of the Picton five hits with Hayden smacking out a double for the only extra base clout. Smith and Wardhaugh contributed the remaining pair.

The score:

Batawa	043 051 30x	16	16	0
Picton	001 000 00x	1	5	7

Semark and Aquino; Miller and Dean.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

SHOULD BE A BATTLE!

The Belleville Cubs are definitely "out" to hang the first defeat on the league-leading unbeaten nine from Group Captain Greene's No. 6 Repair Depot. The airmen squad, playing consistent baseball behind outstanding pitching have dominated the league since it started in May and have yet to say "uncle" to any team in the loop.

* * *

The Cubs, after a shaky start, have found their baseball legs. The team under Coach Speedy St. Louis, has been fashioned into a fairly strong organization. It has won seven of its nine games played and at the moment appears to be riding the crest of form. It has been given fine hurling by Bob Bunton, "Cuffer" Noakes, "Gabby" Moynes, and the veteran "Chuck" Barriage and with the rest of the team playing fine defensive and offensive baseball has rounded itself into a serious threat to the 6 R.D.'s chances for the league championship.

* * *

The infield of Peter Jones, "Elder" Neilson, Huck Reeves and Dave Lockyer have sparkled in the inner garden, while the outer pasture patrol of Jack Elliott, Galbraith and Garry Schreider have more than held their own. Defensively the Cubs have about the best team in the league and from their last three performances, one would say their offensive power has increased tremendously. Neilson, Russ. Soules, Lockyer, Pete Jones have fattened their batting averages considerably of late, with the rest of the squad also adding percentage points.

* * *

But the Sixardee crew has also been productive of outstanding baseball achievements. As was said before, the team has yet to taste the cup of defeat, and that fact makes next Wednesday's clash with the Cubs all the more interesting. It should be a classic in its own right and one that should be greeted with a full grandstand.

* * *

The Cubs, flushed with success, but not cocky to the point of over-confidence, feel that with the team performing as it is at present, it can take the measure of the air force nine. The Men o' Greene, feel that the Cubs will be swept aside, though not easily, as have been the rest of the clubs which have met them this season. That remains to be seen. Both teams are capable of playing the same calibre of baseball as some senior squads we have seen, and if they come up with the same brand of ball as has characterized their last few games, then baseball fandom should not miss it.

* * *

As far as that goes, the Cub management, and team is deserving of a lot better support than has been accorded it this season thus far. New baseballs do not hang in clusters on apple trees. Baseball bats have a price tag attached. We have not yet reached the stage where they are given away with a popular brand of peanuts or popcorn. Uniforms, strange as it may seem, are given away in exchange for the coin of the realm. Officials must be paid. Light tolls must be met.

* * *

That brave bevy of baseball "gladiators" the only ones it appeared to have the guts to do something about Belleville representation in baseball circles this year, have been doing and are doing a grand job, despite adverse circumstances. Frank Grandame, Bill Lockyer, Charlie Mott, Jack McNab, Fred Symons, and others, with the fine effort of Speedy St. Louis in a coaching capacity, have borne the brunt of financial and player setbacks. But they are still wearing grins on their collective faces, and feel that with ordinary public support they will pull through without mortgaging the family homes, jalopies, or cashing insurance policies.

* * *

They need and deserve public support. At the moment, this city is represented by one of the best teams in the Belleville District League but if attendance is any financial criterion, then if we had a squad that was in the cellar slot, the players would be paying the spectators to attend. It is more or less pitiful to see the mere handful of spectators that attend the Cub games. True they have won a number of their victories by somewhat one-sided scores, but that does not alter the fact they are not worthy of more box-office support. There are those that will say "Who wants to see a 16-0 ball game?" That is quite true. But who knows what the score will be, prior to the game?

* * *

In any event, the Cubs are riding close to the tail-assemblies of the rampaging Sixardee crew, and next Wednesday night should see a diamond battle that should rank with any played here this year, regardless. The Cubs are fully determined to break that "defeat egg" of the airmen while Group Captain Greene's lads are equally determined to stretch their string of victories at the expense of the city team.

* * *

THIS LOOKS GOOD!

Timothy Geohagen, the sensational, young Irish strong-man of the wrestling ring, will have a terrific test in the main mat event at the Memorial Arena tonight, when he bumps into the solid, snarly rock of a man known as Fred Atkins. In his previous matches here, the Samson-like Geohagen has beaten such outstanding wrestlers as Pat Flanagan, Kaye Bell and Bob "Strangler" Wagner. All big, powerful men, these opponents covered the wrestling gamut from the superb science of Flanagan to the rough, rugged punishment doled out by Wagner. Yet every one of these fell victim to Timothy's knock-out "Irish Sleeper" hold. In meeting Atkins, the burly, surly Australian champion, Geohagen will be up against a rock-ribbed wrestler who is expert at both scientific, orthodox grappling and the punishing, damaging, rough stuff that is so favored by the Aussie. If Tim can put Ferocious Fred away with that "Irish Sleeper", he will have accomplished something that many another topnotcher has tried and failed to do.

Rapid Ray Villmer, the zooming St. Louis speedster and hurtling Hercules, will go against Jack Moore, of Ohio, in the semi-final. Moore is a tough cookie. Toar Morgan and Pat Flanagan will meet in the opener, which promises a large order of stirring action.

Managers Shotton and Stengel Plagued With Woes Over Their Selections For All-Star Game

Chicago, July 7 (AP)—Hank Sauer of Chicago Cubs today was the man Shotton has forgotten as far as next Tuesday's major league all-star baseball game is concerned.

Burt Shotton's revelations of his all-star game choices, beyond the people's choices; has stirred up some of the good folks here and elsewhere.

Shotton, pilot of the National League's all-star assemblage, is not the only one having difficulty with his 25-player cast. Casey Stengel, the American League all star manager, must do without the services of Detroit's Art Houtteman.

Sauer, the Cubs' home-run clouting (16) leftfielder, was elected by the fans to a starting position in the National League's line-up. Yesterday, however, Shotton, the Brooklyn mentor, replaced Sauer with Duke Snider of his own club. Enos Slaughter, Ralph Kiner and Sauer led the ballotting among the outfielders.

Shotton said the fans had voted him two left fielders and a right fielder for his starting team but nary a centrefielder. So, with President Ford Frick's permission, Shotton got Snider and Sauer was forgotten.

Cub manager Frankie Frisch declared:

"I consider Mr. Shotton's statement a deep insult to a young fellow who has played hard and given his best efforts in all games played by the Chicago club....

"Shotton says he wants to win, huh! That Snider certainly looked wonderful in the world series last fall. He couldn't hit a ball past the pitcher. It is the first time Sauer has been on the all-star team. He was voted in by the fans. That ought to be enough."

Philadelphia Protests

The exclusion of shortstop Granville Hamner of the Phils from the nation's squad drew protests from Philadelphia. The people's choice for shortstop was the Cardinals' Marty Marion. Shotton's only other shortstop on his list is Pee Reese of the Dodgers. Hamner is one of baseball's great shortstops this season and he has been sounder of limb than either Marion or Reese.

A major problem was laid in Manager Stengel's lap last night by Manager Red Rolfe of Detroit Tigers who announced that he could not spare his ace right hander, Art Houtteman. Houtteman and Tom Gray, Detroit left hander, had been selected by Stengel. Third baseman George Kell and left fielder Hoot Evers already had been named to start for the American League by the fans.

"I have to have Houtteman for Sunday's double-header against Cleveland," said Rolfe, "and he certainly can't be expected to pitch with one day's rest."

Rolfe said that in the red hot American League pennant race he can't afford to juggle his slim pitching staff to save Houtteman for the all-star game.

Stengel was blasted by Hank Greenberg, general manager of Cleveland's rampaging Indians, for a snub to third baseman Al Rosen, currently the major league's leading home run hitter.

There was consternation, also, when Stengel named Tommy Henrich to his all-star cast when Henrich was reported too crippled to play daily with the Yanks.

But Stengel will be out there Tuesday regardless of how many hired hands show up to do battle for the American League's 13th triumph in 17 classics.

Trots Held Under Lights But No Betting Allowed

Toronto, July 7 — (CP) — Politically, the Conservatives and Liberals may be streets apart, but put them on a harness racing track and they make not-so-strange bed-fellows.

Last night Hon. Earl Rowe, Conservative member of parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe, rode wheel to wheel with Hugh Proudfoot, Liberal M.P. for Pontiac - Temiscamingue, around flood-lit Thorncliffe raceway before 4,000 persons who forgot their political prejudices and gave both a big hand.

It was a stunt but the crowd, largest since the raceway opened its 42-day meet last Monday — in the sunshine — appeared to like it. The M.P.'s were out there to show the city slickers just what the sulky drivers look like under the lights.

The tote board was lit up, the Queen's Own Rifle Band played popular tunes and the two sulky drivers paced their horses around the half-mile track just for the fun of it.

Promoters of the raceway wanted to prove a point: that the fans will go for night harness racing, despite a directive by the Ontario Racing Commission that no trots will be held on the big Ontario tracks after 7 p.m. EDT. There was no wagering.

After the 45-minute exhibition, Conservative Rowe and Liberal Proudfoot agreed that racing under the lights was needed to promote the breeding of standard-bred horses in Canada.

"I've raced under the lights in Quebec, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and I see no reason why it should not be allowed here," Proudfoot said.

Rowe, former Conservative leader in Ontario, said night trots "would do more to promote the breeding of standard-breeds than anything else."

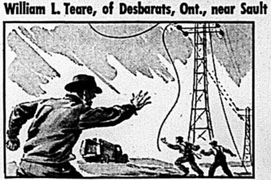
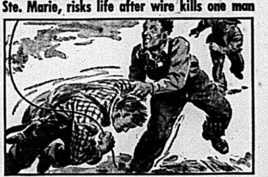
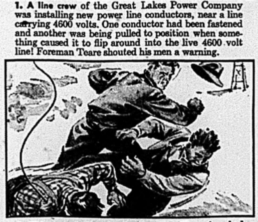
FOREMAN RISKS ELECTROCUTION TO SAVE POWER WORKER'S LIFE
William L. Teare, of Desbarats, Ont., near Sault Ste. Marie, risks life after wire kills one man



1. A line crew of the Great Lakes Power Company was installing new power line conductors, near a line carrying 4600 volts. One conductor had been fastened and another was being pulled to position when something caused it to flip around into the live 4600 volt line! Foreman Teare shouted his men a warning.



2. But one man had already grabbed the line and was instantly paralyzed. Another headed towards him, and Teare, farther away, frantically yelled at him to stop. But he had already grabbed the first victim by the arm — and received such a severe shock that he couldn't let go! When Teare arrived, the first man had become unconscious, horribly burned.



3. With a quick blow to the shoulder, Teare knocked the second man free. At the same time he grabbed a dry glove and pulled the first man clear. Although suffering from bad burns himself, he applied artificial respiration until he knew there was no hope. Thanks to the cool courage of William L. Teare, one life at least was saved. He is fully deserving of The Dow Award.

Casey Stengel Says Baseballs Should be Called 'Heliumballs'

By TED SMITS

New York, July 7 (AP)—Says Casey Stengel, manager of New York Yankees:

"I've got a new name for the game. Let's call it heliumball instead of baseball."

Something certainly has happened to the game. Home runs are being hit in the majors at a clip which if maintained will bring the season's total for each league to more than 1,000. The American League record is 883 in 1940; the National League mark is 936 in 1949.

Already hitting and scoring records have been set. Boston Red Sox ran up 29 runs in one game for a high and teamed with the Athletics in another to make 36, highest combined total in the American League.

Home runs records set this season are:

1. Most homers by both leagues one day, 16 games—40.
2. Most homers by both leagues one day, eight games—30.
3. Most homers by National League, one day—34.
4. Most home runs hit in one game, both teams (Detroit-New York)—11.

The president of the A. C. Spalding Company, maker of major league baseballs, says,

Just a Myth

"There has been altogether too much blame placed on the baseball during this home-run epidemic."

"In the old days when the hit-and-run and the sacrifice had so much to do with the result of many close games, and the pitchers had so many liberties, home runs were scarce. But now the players go up to the plate get a toe hold and swing.

"The so-called lively ball is a myth. . ."

Timely words? But the man who made these remarks was president of the Spalding all right, but years ago. He now is dead.

The home-run epidemic he is talking about was in 1925. The statement was made by Julian Curtiss.

This suggests that arguments over home runs and the lively baseball are nothing new.

How about settling the argument by making some tests?

Emil Bossard, Cleveland Indians groundskeeper, climbed to the roof of the Cleveland Stadium and dropped a 1949 and a 1950 baseball about 120 feet to the concrete runway. The 1949 baseball bounced a foot higher than the 1950 ball. Then he dropped another pair. This time the 1950 ball bounced a few inches higher.

Tests by Spalding show that the baseball of 1932 is just the same as the 1950 ball.

Summing it up: There is more long-range hitting now than formerly, but good pitching shows itself regularly and the day-by-day hitting appears no more violent now than 10, 20 or 30 years ago.

Ed Pellagrini Enjoying Best Year at Plate

By The Associated Press

Ed Pellagrini 31-year-old shortstop with Baltimore Orioles, is performing so well that it appears a cinch that he will be back in the major leagues come 1951.

Pellagrini, who at first debated whether to report to Baltimore after his sale to the Orioles by St. Louis Browns, is enjoying his best year at the plate, batting .324.

Pellagrini, always known as a slick fielder, helped the Orioles down the second-place Jersey City Giants 3-2 last night. He banged his ninth homer of the season in the third inning off Tony West in his only official trip to the plate.

Despite the loss, the Giants remained 2 1-2 games behind the pace-setting Rochester Red Wings, who dropped a 7-3 decision to the seventh-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

Scrappy Bobby Rhawn paced the Leafs to victory by driving in four runs on a pair of homers to tag Johnny Wittig with his first loss of the year, following five victories.

Jack Brittin scattered 11 Red Wing hits, including rookie first baseman Don Bollweg's fourth home run, to hand up his fifth victory.

Buffalo's tail-end Bisons upset the fourth-place Montreal Royals 7-4. The Bisons pounded five Montreal pitchers for 17 hits, Gene Markland and Marty Tabacheck leading the way with three blows each.

Syracuse Chiefs wrested fifth place from Springfield by outslugging the Cubs 14-12. The Chiefs piled up an early 10-3 lead, survived a six-run Springfield blast in the sixth, then clinched the game with four in the seventh. Frankie Drews drove home three runs and scored three on a homer and a single to lead the Syracuse attack.

Phillies Embark On 18-Day Road Trip

Philadelphia, July 7 — (AP)— National League cities note: Here come the Phillies!

Philadelphia Phillies embarked on an 18-day road trip today, their sights set on first place. Right now they're in second, a game back of the pace-setting St. Louis Cardinals.

The "whiz kids" piled up an enviable record during the last home stay, winning seven and losing two. A 10th game, with Brooklyn, ended in a tie and must be replayed.

The most heartening results of the current upsurge are: (1) Brilliant pitching, especially by ace reliefer Casmir (Jim) Konstanty; (2) a huge increase in gate receipts and (3) heavy hitting.

The attendance is surprising in this season of slumping box offices. The Phils' management reported that 520,128 persons have witnessed the clubs' first 38 home games. During the same stretch last year, the Phils drew only 384,573. That's a 37-per-cent increase.

U.S. Teams May Begin Raiding Canadian Clubs

(By The Canadian Press)

United States professional football teams may begin raiding Canadian clubs in retaliation for the wholesale import of U.S. players into Canada, Paul Brown, general manager and coach of Cleveland Browns of the National Professional League, said Thursday night.

In a telephone interview with Bob Moran, president of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four, Brown was reported to have said:

"We'll move into your country and offer tremendous salaries to your best players and take them away from you."

Brown mentioned as specific cases of "raiding," the signing by Ottawa Rough Riders of two former Villanova College players, tackle John Sandusky and full-back Tom Clavin.

"I was very surprsied at the feeling he put into his words, but I was more surprised that he should finally see fit to recognize Canadian football," Mr. Moran said.

Steve Karry's, speedy Toronto half back, is seeking his release from Ottawa Rough Riders in the Interprovincial Rugby Football League.

E. K. (Eddie) Emerson, president of the Rough Riders, said Karrys will go to Ottawa today to confer with the club executive. He has advised Emerson that his work will not permit him to leave Toronto this fall.

Nearly 250 track and field stars some of them potential members of future Canadian Olympic and British Empire Games teams, will show their stuff today and Saturday in the Canadian junior championships at Toronto. They are coming from nearly all parts of the country.

The teen-agers, from midgets to juniors, will sprint, hurdle, vault and jump over the east-end Pantry Park. Experts predict they'll crack at least 18 Canadian records.

Toronto Red Devils are the defending team champions. The Devils have the largest entry list —50—on the program.

Ontario athletes are from Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford, Oshawa, Belleville, Niagara Falls and South Porcupine. Most prominent athlete entered from Ontario is 18-year-old Rich Ferguson, sandy haired B.E. Games distance runner whose specialties are the mile and three miles.

Two Canadian archers topped international short round records last month in Canada's first entry in the annual international archery mail match run by the Sandviken Archery Club of Sandviken, Sweden, it was announced Thursday.

In the men's round, W. A. E. Frost of Hart House Archery Club, Toronto, scored 1,483, one point above the world record set by Hans Deutgen of Sweden at Paris in 1949.

Mrs. Helen Dickson of the Winnipeg Archery Club scored 1,210 to better by six points the women's world record set by Miss Waterhouse of England at Paris in 1949.

Top flight rowing crews from Ottawa, Lachine, St. Catharines and Toronto began arriving today to compete in the Eastern Rowing Association's 30th annual regatta Saturday on the Brockville Rowing Club's upper St. Lawrence River course.

Top attraction of this year's regatta is the entry of four crack St. Catharines crews in the events open to visiting clubs.

Interrupted by two national holidays—Dominion Day and Independence Day—and badgered by bad weather, the Philadelphia Phillies four-day baseball clinic held at Sarnia attracted a smaller class than originally estimated. Forty attended from various Ontario centres.

Only one young player was considered. He was sixteen-year-old Bill Slack of Sarnia, brother of London Major's hurler Stan Slack of the Intercounty League.

Chief scout Pat Colgan ruled Slack out because of his size.

From here the Phillie scouts swing on to Kirkland Lake where a four-day school will be conducted July 10 to 13, and to Belleville July 17 to 20 a school will be held in Toronto Aug. 15-18.

Phillies' Jim Konstanty Succeeds Joe Page as No. 1 Relief Artist in Major Loops

By JACK HAND

Jim Konstanty of the Phillies is the Joe Page of 1950.

Day after day, the righthander with the specs bails out Philadelphia starting pitchers. He's done its 34 times in 70 ball games.

Good control and a baffling sinker are Jim's main props. Once in a while he zips through a fast ball. In 65 innings he's walked only 17 men.

Eddie Sawyer brought Konstanty to the Phillies from Toronto in 1948, a couple of months after he moved up from the International League to become Phil manager.

Konstanty developed fast last season. Now Sawyer thinks he's the best relief pitcher in baseball.

When tahe going is roughest, Sawyer calls for Konstanty. Curt Simmons has nine victories but Konstanty finished four of them. Rookie Bob Miller has a brilliant 8-0 record but Jim saved [illegible] three times. Only Robin Roberts doesnt seem to need Konstanty. All of Robin's 10 victories have been complete games.

Jim himself has a 6-3 won-and-lost record.

Miller needed help from Konstanty again yesterday to preserve his eighth straight, a 9-6 edge over New York. The sensational freshman was knocked out in the sixth. In came Konstanty to save the day.

St. Louis protected its one-game lead in the National League by knocking out Ewell Blackwell in a 10-run first inning to crush Cincinnati 13-1. It was the Cards' seventh straight and their 12th in a row at Sportsman's Park.

Sixteen went to the plate in the big inning in which Bill Howerton doubled twice, driving in three runs. There wasn't a homer in the game today but Tommy Glaviano had four hits.

Brooklyn clouted 16 hits in an 8-3 decision over Boston. Homers by Eddie Kimsis and Gil Hodges, each with a man on, showed the way.

Jackie Robinson missed his first game since June 2, 1948, breaking a string of 340 consecutive games. Hobbled by a knee injury, Jackie was available for pinch-hitting duty but wasn't needed.

Chicago kicked up a fuss in the eighth to score three runs, knock out Bill Werle and whip Pittsburgh 4-2. The only previous Cub run was Hank Sauer's 16th homer.

Half the American League took the day off but both New York and Cleveland chipped away at idle Detroit's lead. The Yanks' 5-4 edge over Philadelphia left them only 3 1-2 games back of the Tigers.

Oshawa Defeats Staffords 7-1 To Head Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Versatile is hardly the word for Freddie Thomas, Windsor's gift to basketball, football, and now baseball.

Thomas, probably Canada's number one basketball player, made his Intercounty Senior League debut with Kitchener Legionnaires Thursday night. He smashed a triple and single in five trips to plate, batting in two runs in Kitchener's 14-2 trouncing of Waterloo Tigers.

In a Viaduct Senior League game in Toronto, the Oshawa Merchants backed by the three-hit pitching of Tony DeLaurientis defeated Toronto Staffords 7-1. The win gave Oshawa a one game edge on the League race.

It was the worst drubbing of the year for the league leading Tigers. Kitchener got 11 hits, and made them count, scoring two runs in the first inning, seven in the fourth, four in the sixth and another in the eighth.

Tigers used 17 players in an attempt to halt the Kitchener March. Starting pitcher Mike Kvasnak, the loser, failed to last past the fourth inning, and Pat Boehmer and Jack Giffen fared little better. Wally Beggs was the winner.

Despite the debacle, Waterloo's playing-manager Alex Kvasnak continued to hold his stranglehold on the league's batting championship. In games up to Monday night, Kvasnak had compiled a .402 average in 107 at bats.

Johnny Bain of Kitchener, a former batting champ, maintained his steady drive up the ladder to move into second spot behind Kvasnak with a .360 percentage. St. Thomas' Billy McCarthy slipped to third place with .344.

Tommy McGrattan of Brantford continued to lead in the heavy slugging departments. He has 25 runs batted in and six homers, but is closely followed by teammate Jim Burns with 241 RBI's and five circuit clouts.

Little Benny's Note Book

We had beef loaf for supper, being one of my least favorite things, and I thawt, Heck, I wonder how soon we're going to have beans and frankferters again?

Not actually asking ma about it on account of what's good enough for the rest of the family is suppose to be good enough for me, and I thawt, Maybe if I act as if my appetite was getting weak, maybe ma will promise to have beans and frankferters tomorrow without actually being asked.

And I started to eat little mouthfulls as slow as a funerel, and ma said, For land sakes, Benny, what's wrong with you?

Nuthing ma, G, why? I said, and she said, You're eating that nice beef loaf as if you expected to be poisoned with every next bite.

Gosh, ma, I never thawt of sutch a thing, I said, I know it's not actually poison, I said, and ma said, Well, it's very sweet of you to say so, sutch a remark. Now you eat that nice beef loaf with a little show of animation, she said.

Well jimminy roozlem, ma, I meen heck, I cant help it if I dont seem to feel hungry, I said, and she said, Feel fiddlesticks. If it happened to be beans and frankferters, I suppose you'd be devouring it like a pack of Russian wolves, she said.

Making me start to feel lucky, and I said, It wouldn't have to be beans and frankferters, ma. Maybe I'd feel healthier if it was even sowerkraut and frankferters, maybe, I said, and ma said, And maybe you'll leave the table without a single bite of dizzert if I hear another nonsensical werd on the subject.

The result being I finished my platefull and ate a 2nd helping

Britain's Policy Given Smashing Support in House

London, July 7 — (AP) — Britain's policy of aid to South Korea through the United Nations has won a smashing support in parliament.

The House of Commons roared its approval of Britain's quick action in sending ships to help American forces and Australian planes in the conflict area. There were only a few dissenters. Their remarks drew ironic laughter and cries of "shame."

Winston Churchill and other Conservative leaders ensured the Labor government victory on its policy motion by their unqualified support of the government action.

Prime Minister Attlee praised the speed with which the United States acted to meet what he said was "naked aggression" against South Korea.

Churchill reiterated in the Commons what he told the American Society in a fourth-of-July speech: If the communists get away with their invasion of South Korea, "a third world war would be forced upon us."

Suggests Secret Meeting

Churchill recalled that before the Second World War, parliament had held a secret session and heard about Hitler's potential strength. Churchill suggested having a similar secret meeting now to discuss Russia's situation. Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, however, argued that a secret session would be a serious departure from peacetime practice. It appeared that Churchill would not get his request.

Churchill's deputy, Anthony Eden, held out to the Commons a picture of hope that Russia's Prime Minister Stalin may be drawing in his horns.

Eden recalled that in 1941 Stalin told him that Hitler "is a very able man, but made one mistake — he did not know when to stop." He said Stalin told him that "if we are victorious, I shall know when to stop."

Eden went on: "Tonight I am wondering whether the time has not come when he might recall those words and he might consider the time has come when it would be wise to stop."

Two women showered members from the gallery with communist pamphlets calling for "hands off Korea." A Scots Labor member asked the House in vain to outlaw the British Communist Party on grounds it is a branch of the Russian army.

NEW OUTBREAK REPORTED

New York, July 7 — (AP) — A new outbreak of infantile paralysis was reported across the United States today.

Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for infantile paralysis, said Americans gave $30,783,000 — more than ever before — to the 1950 March-of-dimes drive, but added that the fund is being used at an "unprecedented rate" to combat a threatened new, severe epidemic.

The number of polio cases so far this year, he said, is slightly above the number in the same period last year, when the United States had an all-time high of 42,375 new polio patients.

Freak Accident Causes Death Of Nine Persons

Monica, Ill., July 7 — (AP) — Nine persons died and about 75 were injured yesterday as two high speed Santa Fe streamliners, zooming eastbound along parallel tracks, smashed into each other in a freak accident.

The tangled wreckage of the 70-mile-an-hour Kansas City Chief and the all-coach 90-mile-an-hour El Capitan had been cleared from one track by this morning.

The crash came at 4:40 a. m. The trains were bound for Chicago, 148 miles northeast of here. The Chief was on the regular westbound track under automatic train control.

This means that signal lights ordinarily seen on block signals on the right-of-way flash in the engineer's cab. A dispatcher in the train terminal sets the train course.

As the El Capitan speeded ahead of the Chief — a pullman-and-coach train — its mail car swayed, left the tracks and whipped into the first car and side of the Kansas City train's locomotive.

Eighteen of the gleaming stainless steel cars from both trains jumbled together, but none turned over.

R. J. Yost, railway division superintendent at Chillicothe, Ill., said that possibly a wheel truck of the El Capitan mail car came loose.

38 Taken to Hospital

Thirty-eight persons were taken to hospital in Peoria, 20 miles south of Monica, and to Galesburg 30 miles west. Some of the victims were in critical condition.

Less than 18 hours after the tragic pile-up yesterday, the El Capitan's sister westbound train also was delayed by a derailment.

But in the second mishap no one was injured. The passengers were not even shaken as three of the trains four diesel units dropped to the ground from a transfer track at nearby Galesburg.

The second derailment occurred as the California-bound train was being transferred from the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy tracks to the Santa Fe. Because of the wreck here, the Santa Fe had been running its trains over the other rails from Chicago to its own line at Galesburg.

As the train was slowly rounding a curve in the yards last night, the three diesel units climbed the rails and dropped to the ground.

After about a three-hour delay, another engine took the train on to Fort Madison, Iowa, and it was switched to Santa Fe tracks there.

Churchill Asks Airing of Speech Of War Minister

London, July 7 — (AP)—Winston Churchill yesterday demanded a full airing in Parliament of whether or not War Minister Strachey called the Schuman plan to pool Europe's coal and steel a "plot" against the people of Europe.

The disputed statement, in a speech last Saturday at Colchester, caused a furore in Paris where six western European countries are drafting details of the Schuman plan.

The British government turned down an invitation to the talks on the grounds it did not want to commit itself in advance.

The Conservative opposition leader hammered away today at Prime Minister Attlee, who tried in vain to persuade Churchill and his followers that Strachey's remarks were misunderstood and were aimed at Conservative tactics in Parliament rather than at the Schuman plan.

The government made tentative plans for a formal debate in the Commons Tuesday.

STIFF REGULATIONS

Cobourg, July 7 (CP)—Josia Ryks, just back from a visit to his native Holland, said Thursday that currency regulations present a stiff barrier to Dutch families desiring to come to Canada as settlers. He said they may bring only a small amount of money and no household effects.

FOSTER PICNIC HELD

Toronto, July 7 (CP)—Hundreds of children thronged Exhibition Park Thursday for the fourth annual Foster picnic. The outing was paid for out of income from $100,000 set aside under the $1,168,155 estate of Thomas Foster, three times mayor of Toronto, who died about five years ago.

Urges Australians Enlist in Forces In View of Crisis

Canberra, Australia, July 7—(CP) — Prime Minister Robert Menzies today called on Australians to enlist in the armed forces "here and now" in view of the Korean crisis.

Menzies moved that the House of Representatives approve the government's action of giving the United Nations aid in the Korean conflict.

Both houses unanimously endorsed the government's action supporting the security council.

Opposition leaders came out in support of Menzies motion.

Menzies told parliament all Australia's fighting services need recruits and warned of "preparation that comes too late."

"The forces of peace always need strengthening," he said. "We are for peace. We do not understand aggression, but we will resist it with all we have."

Joseph Chifley, former prime minister and now opposition leader, issued a statement on behalf of the labor party.

He said he agreed that United Nations intervention in Korea probably would do more than anything else to prevent a Third World War.

He expressed the hope that, apart from the success of the United Nations, one outcome of the Korean dispute would bring more peace in the form of self-government to the peoples of Asia where there was an upsurge of nationalism.

The deputy opposition leader, Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, urged high-level political negotiations to bring about an armistice in Korea.

Dr. Evatt former Australian foreign minister and former president of the United Nations general assembly, told the house that an absolute condition of any armistice agreement must be the withdrawal of North Korean forces to their own territory.

He added "this might not be possible but I believe the attempt should be made."

Dr. Evatt said the security council "while pursuing its military objectives should not lose sight of the fact that its supreme object is to prevent war, and, if war breaks out, to bring it to an end."

MINERS JOIN STRIKE

Llandudno, Wales, July 7 — (Reuters) — Six hundred Welsh miners joined the pay protest strike which now is costing 16,000 tons of coal daily in Scottish coalfields. The strike spread to 18 more collieries, but three other mines resumed work.

The strikers are protesting against the rejection by the National Coal Board — which runs this nationalized industry — of their claim for another 15 shillings ($2.30) a week for 400,000 low-paid men in the pits.

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

"Not at all. Shop where she works is around on Ocean Highway cross the alley from the Globe Garage, Three Wishes Gift Shop, it's called. Watch your step with Hagar Blair, though, she's balky as a mule and twice as smart."

"Thanks." Trotter shook hands as he left. "I'm at the inn, if you want to reach me."

There was a lengthy silence in the police chief's office as the two occupants mulled over the happenings of the last few hours.

Reddy brought out a small notebook, scribbled in it and returned it to his coat. The chief drummed his fat fingers on his desk: "Any opinions, Reddy?"

Reddy replied: "I've started a list of suspects; it starts with Stephanie Smith's name and the O'Neills. None of them sounds like a hot prospect to me, though.

"Me, either," the chief admitted. "Way I look at it Tom hasn't got the guts, and his wife would not give enough of a damn about anything, flesh, fish or foul, to kill it. And the Smith girl's unlikely, because Falter didn't fool around with young stuff."

Reddy folded his notebook. "How about going back up to Falter's right now, and taking another look around?"

Charlie Reddy swerved the car away from a day-dreaming cocker spaniel. "Even the dogs are asleep in this town," he said to Chief Peters. "Say! Did the coroner find what put Martin to sleep?"

"The good old stand-by, sleeping pills!" came the reply. "Same kind that knock people off all the time. Ought to be a stricter law on those things. Coroner Hughes said the pills alone probably would have done for Falter That's the one good clue we've got. The murderer must've been drinking wine with Falter — granting that the same person did the poisoning and the stabbing."

As the police car pulled up in front of Falter's, Reddy found a parking place after some difficulty and followed the chief through a swarm of people to the porch where Police Officer Abrams was keeping sightseerers away. They entered the studio and Reddy rammed his hands in his pockets and turned toward the bedroom.

"Think I'll take another look around in here."

The chief plodded after him: Fingerprints won't tell us anything Probably 100 different people running in and out of here within the last week. No clues no weapon, no—"

He broke off, noticing that Reddy was gazing at the bloodstained bed.

"Funny looking pillows. Man'd get a kink in his neck sleeping on those things." He ambled over and idly banged a huge fist on one end of the bolster. It sank a few inches and the chief worked to straighten it "look at that, now," he fussed, "man'd spend half the night standing on his head in this dratted bed." He gave the bolster a mighty tug and then took an astonished step backward.

The two men stared down silently into a rectangular hole between the edge of the mattress and the headboard. The chief reached down and explored a wood frame built in neatly on a level with the bottom of the mattress.

"Kept something here." Reddy chewed his underlip thoughtfully: "Box of some kind, probably."

Suddenly he made a dash for the other room.

"Chief!" he called. "This is it." He strode through the door carrying a narrow box of unpainted wood.

The two men saw at once that it fitted the hole perfectly.

Peters scratched his head: "Question is, what was in it? Murderer made off with whatever it was. Money, d'you think?"

"Maybe. But remember what Trotter said about blackmail? Seems to me we're faced with the problem of the Missing Papers."

Andrey Yakov, sitting comfortably in front of his hearth, stretched his stockinged feet toward the slow dancing flames. The firelight was absorbed by the dull red of his flannel lounging robe, but it was reflected vividly in the cobalt eyes of the Siamese cat sitting on the arm of his chair.

He stroked the cat's taffy-colored fur:

"When we return to Russia, Babushka, I will provide you with caviar. Occasionally. It is the only thing you will like about Russia."

Hands clasped behind him, he surveyed the canvas approvingly:

"Have you examined this, my friend? For one afternoon's work it is a remarkably good price. I show something here, a certain quality, which is the essence of the American—man or woman. A combination of qualities, perhaps: defiance, aggressiveness, determination. Look here at these eyes, Babushka: Dark and sharp and cunning like a fox! And even this unbeautiful hair, like steel wire, shows the character of the woman. And not the chin: Like a rock!

"It is what you see in this face, Babushka, that will change the tide of destiny. It is typical of what you may see in millions of faces in this country. In some more; in some less."

From the canvas on the easel, Hagar Blair glared at him challengingly.

Babushka, who had been strolling aimlessly around the room stiffened suddenly, her head alert Voices were approaching the front door.

Yakov knit his heavy dark eyebrows and glanced at his watch: So! They had come, even if not at the polite calling hour.

Babushka growled and leaped to a vantage point on the high back of a chair. Yakov opened the door.

Three men stood outside. One was an exceedingly large man, he had a bland moon face and wore a dark green uniform with a Sam brown belt, police badge and a holstered revolver. Of the other two men, Yakov looked first at the dapper, middle-aged one with sandy hair who held a fragrantly smoking briar pipe in one well-kept hand. The third man was young, handsome, well built, and had sharply intent gray eyes.

Yakov gave the trio a pleasant nod: "Yes gentlemen?"

Chief Peters was equally pleasant: "Mr. Andrey Yakov? I'm Peters police chief in Dolorosa. Mr. Trotter here, and Mr. Reddy are working with me. We have a few questions to ask you. Won't take long."

Peters selected the largest chair in Yakov's sitting room and sank into it with a sigh. Yakov remained standing, as did Reddy and Trotter.

"Mr. Yakov," Peters began, "you've probably heard of the murder committed here in Dolorosa night before last?"

"Yes. I was sorry."

Yakov's mustache curved over a mirthless smile, he glanced pointedly at the portrait of Hagar Blair: "You have talked to Miss Blair?"

Peters nodded. "Yes, we've talked to her. We asked for and got all the information she could give."

"So? Then you have learned that she, also, visited that night at the studio of our poor friend?"

Reddy gave a short laugh. "We have learned that she and you and also a whole darned parade passed through Falter's house that night. Why did you go?"

Yakov reached up to stroke Babushka who had arched to his shoulder from the mantelpiece:

"I do not like to mention this" he said regretfully, "as there is a lady involved. But, under the circumstances," he shrugged, "I cannot keep silence. I was acting as an emissary for Nellya —Mrs. O'Neill. She wished for me to try to recover a piece of her jewelry which she inadvisedly had given to Martin Falter.

"What kind of a piece of jewelry?" asked Peters.

"A valuable brooch. A cameo"

Reddy wagged his head triumphantly: "You went up there on this errand, Falter didn't answer your knock and you walked in and found him dead?"

Yakov nodded. "A terrible thing."

"Why didn't you report to us?" the chief snapped.

Yakov's face showed offended innocence. "I thought of course Miss Blair would do that. Did she not?"

The chief's small eyes had become slits. "She did not. You searched for this cameo, didn't you? Then you heard Hagar Blair's car drive up and you lammed out. Right? Through a window, maybe?" Receiving a nod from the Russian, the chief continued, "then you spied on Hagar Blair while she made her search. Did either of you find anything?"

"I cannot speak for Miss Blair. I, myself found nothing."

Reddy took the ball: "Not even a box of letters?"

"Letters?" Yakov looked puzzled.

Peters stood up and confronted Yakov: "There are several things which we believe were taken from Falter's studio the night of his murder. The premises of all suspects will be searched. If you don't mind, we'll go over your place while we're here."

Yakov frowned. "I agree to the search. But may I request that you allow me to spread out my painting equipment personally for your inspection? I have things arranged in a certain order."

Trotter spoke: "I'll take on the job of the art materials, if you'll get them out, Mr. Yakov."

The chief plodded out to the kitchen. Babushka, her tail bushy with suspicion, stalked after him.

Trotter squatted down to inspect the boxes of paints: "How long have you been in the United States, Mr. Yakov?"

"I think it nine years now. I could wish it to be three times that long."

"You're a citizen?"

"Oh, yes. That privilege was granted to me many years ago."

Trotter riffled the pages of a watercolor pad: "You give the impression, Mr. Yakov, that you are well pleased with your adopted country. What are your feelings toward Russia?"

Yakov shrugged. "Russia? Let us say, I am sympathetic to her efforts. But, let us say, that perhaps she is trying to do too much in too short a time. Let us say that she began a structure with a foundation designed to support a much lighter weight than she is now asking it to hold. I am sometimes afraid that one day the whole thing will crash down like a tree whose roots have been undermined. But," he shrugged again, "perhaps I am wrong."

A slow hour passed, containing only the soft noises of slow footsteps, the sound of opening and closing drawers and boxes, and an occasional brief question and answer.

Yakov apparently was dozing when chief Peters and Reddy approached his chair. He roused himself hastily.

"We'll call it a day, Mr. Yakov" Peters announced. "Everything's been left in order. Sorry to disturb you, but we've got to see no stone's left unturned in this case. Might have to call on you again before it's all over." He wagged his head significantly at Reddy and Trotter. "All set boys?"

They were escorted to the door by a genial Yakov and an imperious Babushka. The Russian bowed them out.

Six Killed in Car Accident Near Bradford

Auto Crashes Head-on Into Bus Hit by Transport

Crowbars Are Needed To Separate Bus and Car

Bradford, Ont., July 8 — (CP) — Six persons were killed early today when their automobile crashed into a bus near here.

The dead: Charles McClay, 36, of Toronto; his wife, 30, and their nine-year-old son, James; Marjory Davis, 21 of Norwood, Ont.; Robert Davis, 19, of Toronto, and Lyle Reddick, also of Toronto.

Marjory and Robert Davis were brother and sister of Mrs. McClay.

Police said the accident occurred when a truck driven by Ivan Babineau, 29, of Toronto, sideswiped an oncoming southbound bus. The bus lurched out of control, struck a soft shoulder and swung into the lefthand side of the road.

The passenger-filled sedan, travelling north, struck the bus head-on at full speed. The bus and car were so tightly jammed together. that crowbars were needed to separate them.

Five of the occupants of the car died in the wreckage. The sixth, the nine-year-old boy, was hurled through a window and struck a fence 10 feet away.

Police said the bus contained only one passenger, a man named Applegarth, who escaped with superficial cuts. Driver of the bus, Pat Patterson of Toronto, also suffered minor injuries.

The accident occurred shortly after 1 a. m. EDT at this winding portion of the main highway leading north from Toronto. Police had difficulty in identifying the bodies of the victims.

Teen-Aged Girl Killed in Car

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 8—(CP)—A teen-age Kkorah township girl, Margaret Warmington, was killed last night and five others were injured or shaken up when an old model car in which they were riding went out of control 20 miles north of here and plunged down a 19-foot embankment. The car was wrecked when it crashed into a tree.

Grace Thompson and Kathleen Jackson were rushed to hospital here in a truck. Their injuries were not immediately determined.

Harold Kozak, Walter Byron and John Villeneuve escaped injury.

4,000TH COUPLE HONORED

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 8 — (CP) — A young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bruce of Wichita, Kam., was the 4,000th couple to be presented with honeymoon certificates issued by the Greater Niagara Chamber of Commerce to newlyweds.

The chamber began issuing the certificates June 19, 1949, and since then they have been distributed among couples from the United States, Canada, Mexico and the British Isles.

ARMED ROBBERY CHARGES FOLLOW ARREST OF TWO

Toronto, July 8 — (CP)—Two men will appear in court today on armed - robbery charges in connection with yesterday's $21,000 holdup of the Acme Farmers Dairy in west-central Toronto.

Police announced their arrest early today — without revealing their names — and said they are questioning a third man and searching for a fourth.

At the same time, they continued their hunt for two gunmen who held up Harry Hertzman's haberdashery in the west-central area 90 minutes after the dairy robbery. The would - be robbers fled empty-handed from the store after slugging Hertzman over the head.

Charles Tavignot, 37, an Acme driver, was shot in the foot when he tried to overtake the thugs following the dairy holdup. About $6,000 of the loot was recovered on railway tracks just south of the dairy, where the thieves apparently dropped it during their flight.

Second in Week

The raid on the dairy was the second major holdup in the Toronto area this week. Two men held up the Dominion Bank branch at Dufferin Street and Glencairn Avenue in northwest Toronto Tuesday and escaped with $2,018.

Four young girl payroll clerks were in the dairy office when the two bandits entered. The holdup ment wore dark glasses and white handkerchief masks. The taller of the two carried a long-barrelled revolver.

While the tall bandit growled, "Okay, everybody, shut up and let's have it," the other scooped stacks of bills from a desk into a crocheted shopping bag.

Crystal Beach Case Enlarged for Week

Crystal Beach, July 8 (CP)—A case involving continued invasion of Crystal Beach by zoot suiters and noisy behavior that disturbed residents at night was adjourned yesterday for one week when Rodney J. Kearns, 23, of Buffalo pleaded not guilty.

Kearns was remanded until sufficient evidence is brought in by police regarding a cottage which Kearns allegedly leased for the summer.

Witnesses complained about gangs of men and women who gathered each weekend at a cottage rented for all night parties. It is alleged that they often journeyed to a nearby beach and returned in scant costumes.

DEEP SEA DIVERS BURNED

Rome, July 8 — (AP) — Two deep sea divers were burned to death in a decompression chamber at Bari, Italy, dispatches reported today.

An investigation was ordered to determine the cause of the fire.

'PEACE FEELER' MADE BY RUSSIA IS REPORTED

British Foreign Office Declines to Comment

London, July 8. (CP)—The Foreign Office declined to comment today on reports that Sir David Kelly, British ambassador in Moscow, has been asked for suggestions to bring about a settlement of the conflict in Korea.

The reports, published in several European countries, said a Russian "peace feeler" had been made to Sir David.

The reports added that the ambassador was awaiting instructions from London before resuming talks in Moscow on the Korean situation.

While the Foreign Office would not discuss the reports a spokesman said "no new instructions have been sent to Ambassador Kelly."

Britain considers that the blockade of Korea, declared by President Truman and denounced as illegal by the Soviet Union is justified both under the terms of the Security Council resolution and in international law, a foreign office spokesman added.

Woman Seeks Right to Change Name to Man's

Freehold, N.J., July 8 — (AP) — A 32-year-old Long Branch woman Friday sought to change her name to that of a man's prior to undergoing an operation to change her sex.

Miss Henrietta Marjorie Dangler said in a petition to the county clerk's office that her physical condition made it impossible to continue life as a woman.

In support of her contention she offered and affidavit from Dr. D. Randall MacCorroll of Philadelphia, which stated in part: "My opinion is that if the operation is pefcrmed, the patient definitely will be of the male sex."

Miss Dangler, of small build with the appearance of a young boy petitioned the court to change her name to "Henry M. Dangler."

She said in the petition she desired the name change before the operation so that she could obtain a promised position of factory foreman and earn enough to pay for the operation.

Foul Gas Drives Moline Citizens Scurrying From Beds to High Ground

Moline, Ill., July 8. (AP)—A foul-smelling gas routed citizens from their beds here early today and sent them scurrying in their night clothes to high ground and fresh air.

Police cars roamed the area trying to find the origin of the odor. Reports here said the smelly, invisible gas cloud spread through East Moline, Silvis, Rock Island, Ill., and Davenport, Ia.

Engineers for a gas and electric utility company could find no leaky lines.

Several cases of upset stomachs were reported.

Art Schinske, of the Moline dispatch, said:

"The police are being run ragged, calls are coming in from all over the town, and the squad cars are going all over the place.

"People are all heading for the high ground away from the river."

"There was no estimate on how many persons left their homes. Moline is a city of about 35,000, some 140 miles west of Chicago.

President Truman Orders Armed Services to Draft Men For Korean Fight Continuance

Washington, July 8 (AP) — President Truman today dangled the draft law over the heads of reservists and prospective recruits in an urgent effort to build up United States military manpower for the demands of the war in Korea.

The President gave the armed services power to draft men in a general order yesterday designed to lift economy limits imposed on the army, navy, marines and air force.

It was apparent that the defence department hoped to get by, at least initially, without using the draft authority.

No official would say how many men are wanted. However, a comparison of the limits fixed by law against the present strength of the armed forces indicates that the figure could run as high at 547,482.

The officials of the armed forces who made public the President's order said that as far as they know there has been no decision yet to call up the National Guard or Reservists.

Generally, reaction in congress to the President's decision was favorable.

The President's announcement said:

"To meet the situation in Korea ...the army and navy and air force have been authorized to exceed the over-all budget ceilings for military personnel. . .

"The use of selective service has been authorized. Voluntary enlistments also will be accepted."

First Step Taken

The general impression was that this "first step" was taken to spur the return to active duty of as many reservists as the services need—at the outset officers and technicians—and to boost recruiting.

The second step, if and when it is needed, would be to start draft calls.

A regular one-year extension of the draft act becomes effective Sunday. Under it, all males must register upon becoming 18. Those who have reached 19 and are not yet 26 may be drafted (with certain groups exempted.) They can be kept in service 21 months.

The army's present strength is about 596,000. Even before the outbreak of the Korean fighting, it was having difficulty keeping up its desired strength. Monthly new enlistments were running about 60 per cent of what the army hoped for. Re-enlistment rates were about the same.

The last report by the U.S. Defence Department showed that as of May 31 the total strength of the armed forces was 1,458,400.

The report gave these figures for the four services: Army 596,000; navy 379,900; marines [illegible],000, air force 408,000.

Tokyo, July 8 — (AP) — Cmdr. Harvey Lanham, veteran United States navy flier who led a carrier strike July 3-4 over North Korea, said today the communists must be conserving their air power for desperation use.

Lanham told a press conference that the northerners had many planes cleverly hidden in netted revetments which were discovered only by low-level strafing.

The reds have small dirt fields scattered all over North Korea, he said.

Geneva, July 8 — (Reuters) — The Canadian Red Cross has given $10,000 for medical and surgical supplies in response to an appeal by the Korean Red Cross to the League of Red Cross Societies, it was announced today.

MOTHER AND SON DROWNED AS BOAT UPSETS IN SQUALL

Husband, Brother and Another Son Rescued

Kapuskasing, July 8 — (CP) — Mrs. Roland Seguin, 30, and her three-year-old son, David, of Kapuskasing, were drowned yesterday when their small boat capsiged on Reme Lake, 17 miles northeast of here.

The woman's husband; another son, Paul, 5, and Mr. Seguin's brother, Fernand Seguin, were rescued.

Mr. Seguin said a thunderstorm and sudden wind squall filled the boat with water and sank it.

"We yelled for help and managed — my brother and I — to hold up Paul and keep ourselves floating," he said.

Two boats heard their cries for help and came to the rescue. Bodies of the wife and younger child were recovered but artificial respiration failed to revive them.

Find Man's Body In Lake Ontario

[illegible] July 8 [illegible] man's body, picked up in Lake Ontario yesterday, 17 miles southeast of Cobourg by the tanker Imperial Collingwood, is being held today by the Kingston detachment of the Provincial Police pending identification.

Dr. M. J. Morison, coroner, said identification would be difficulty because part of the man's face is missing. The body was clad only in a pair of blue overalls. In one of the pockets was 78 cents.

Officers from the RCAF air Station at Trenton examined the body to see whether it might be one of the airmen missing recently after an air accident. They were unable to identify the body.

Motion Pictures Taken at 40 Million Rate Per Second

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Three are shown, each a step in the explosion of a bit of fine gold wide when it vaporizes in a flash of intense heat.

In the first picture the wire is glowing. In the second the wire has swelled, but is still undistorted. In the third, the wire is three to four times its normal size, but still in perfect form. Later, incandescent rings form around the wire like barber-pole stripes.

United States Intends to See Korean Fight Through to Finish

Washington, July 8 (AP) — President Truman's decision to enlarge American armed forces furnishes the world new proof that the United States intends to see the Korean fight through to a finish.

While Russia is expected to assail the action as further evidence of American "aggression" there is growing confidence here that the Soviets do not plan to precipitate a world war.

Truman's announcement yesterday stressed that the decision to use the draft, if necessary, was made as a result of the Korean situation. In this respect, it was understood that two specific problems of related grand strategy were of primary concern:

1. The course of the fighting in Korea has indicated a need for greater troop strength in actual combat than was originally thought necessary. This strength has to be furnished without stripping home defences or those of other non-communist areas outside Korea.

2. From the start of the Korean incident two weeks ago the possibility has existed that it was a diversionary move by the Soviet-communist bloc, to be followed by an attack in some other sector of the East-West conflict. Such a development could require an additional commitment of American forces.

The state department is understood to have recommended the immediate replacement at home of any divisions deployed for action on the Korean front, so that American readiness for action would be maintained.

American Forces Rolled Back as Chonan Captured

Most of 40 Red Tanks Hit By Planes Knocked Out

Tokyo, July 8. (AP)—North Korean forces are massing along a line stretching some 60 miles across the western part of South Korea, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters reported today.

The concentration, observed by aerial reconnaissance, extends from Pyongtaek, about 45 miles south of Seoul, northeast to Wonju in the centre of the peninsula, said a communique issued at 11:45 p.m. Saturday (2:45 a.m. E.D.T. Saturday).

(A Reuters dispatch from the Korean front reported that North Korean forces captured Chonan, some 35 miles northwest of Taejon, the provisional southern capital, and rolled American forces back south along the highway leading to Taejon. Chonan is about 10 miles south of Pyongtaek.)

The MacArthur communique said between 40 and 50 North Korean tanks and heavy truck-drawn artillery were reported north of Pyongtaek in the main battle area near the west coast.

Between 40 and 60 enemy tanks supported by more than 1,000 troops were reported crossing the Ansong River, which flows westward in the Pyongtaek area, and heading southward towards Songhwan, midway between [illegible]

Trying To Cut Line

The communique said elements of two North Korean divisions are in the vicinity of Wonju, 20 miles north of Chungju. The latter point is a main highway intersection in the centre of the peninsula.

"The continued buildup of North Korean forces in this area indicates a distinct possibility of a wide envelopment attempt to cut the main north-south communication line, possibly in the Taejon area," it said.

The communique said "reports over the last three or four days indicate a steady build-up of enemy troops along the east coast.

"Troop and tank concentrations in this area which has been relatively quiet since the outbreak of the Korean war suggest the fact that preparations are under way for a drive in the direction of Pusan."

Pusan, on the southeast coast, is Korea's largest seaport and the main port of entry for American supplies and troops.

FREIGHTER FREED FROM SAND BAR

Point Edward, Ont., July 8—(CP)—The freighter T. W. Robinson of Rogers City, Mich., was freed from a sand bar near here yesterday after being stranded for more than 20 hours.

The 566-foot stone carrier went around Wednesday after she swerved to avoid hitting a stalled motorboat.

Part of a cargo of 1,300 tons of crushed stone aboard the freighter was taken off yesterday by a sister ship, the W. S.

DRIVER IS KILLED AS HEAVILY-LADEN TRUCKS COLLIDE

Morrisburg, Ont., July 8 — (CP) — James Godfrey, 29, transport driver of Ajax, Ont., was killed last night and two other men escaped injury when two heavily-loaded transport trucks collided six miles east of here.

Godfrey was driving an eastbound McCallum Transport Company car-transport loaded with three new trucks.

Uninjured were Romeo Proulx of Montreal, driver of a westbound Reliable Transport Company tractor-trailor loaded with 20 tons of steel, and his co-driver, Eugene Paquette, also of Montreal.

Police later questioned the driver of a third heavy transport travelling west-bound near the two wrecked vehicles at the time of the crash which occurred on a straight stretch of highway.

They said they picked up the driver, Ross Ellis of Toronto, handling a Z. Wagman and Son transport truck, after a 28-mile chase to Prescott, to the west of Morrisburg.

The cab of the rig Godfrey was driving burst into flames as it hit the ditch after the crash. The Morrisburg fire department was called out to prevent the blaze from sweeping through both vehicles.

It first was feared a second man might have been burned in the cab with Godfrey, but no trace of another man was found.

The car-transport was carrying two three-ton trucks and a half-ton panel truck. All three were scattered across the highway in wild confusion and were heavily damaged.

Morrisburg is approximately 50 miles southeast of Ottawa.

Senator Approves Power Project On St. Lawrence

Washington, July 8 — (AP) — Every month's delay in building the St. Lawrence power project is costing the people of New York $2,000,000 on their power bills, Senator Joseph Ives (Rep. N.Y.) said Friday.

He made public a letter to Hon. C. Wallgren, chairman of the federal power commission, urging early approval of the state's application for a power development licence. Congress for many years has considered proposals that the United States and Canada join in a St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Ives said since New York, in 1921, decided to undertake the power project, "great river developments have taken place in other parts of the country where the people received the benefits of cheap hydro-electric power."

He said the rapid increase in the cost of steam power generation has emphasized that no federal cost is involved. The project would be financed by state bonds.

Allan D. Harper Managing B of M Branch in London

Allan D. Harper, former resident of Belleville for many years and Bank of Montreal accountant, recently had his picture and a short biography published in the London, Eng., Recorder. Mr. Harper is now manager of the Bank of Montreal branch on Threadneedle St., in London.

The Recorder of June 3 reports that Mr. Harper, upon graduation from high school in Shediac, N.B., in 1910, he joined the B. of M. as a clerk, and has remained in its employ, with time out for war services, ever since. He worked in the Maritime Provinces and in Ontario before the war. In France he won the Military Cross, was invalided out in 1918, and returned to banking.

In 1945 the Harpers moved to England, and according to the Recorder, 'easily took root' there. They reportedly are very fond of the climate and the beauty of England. The Recorder says, in part: "He is a genial, quiet-spoken man, with a dry wit that owes something to his half-Scottish ancestry. He likes music (Beethoven, Mozart, Brahms), bad bridge, and not much better reading."

The Recorder was sent to Miss N. W. Milburn, of 216 Charles St.

Legion Show at Exhibition Park Draws Largest Crowd Seen in City in Years

Estimated by officials at 12,000 people, one of the largest crowds, if not the largest, to ever assemble at the Belleville Exhibition grounds took in the show offered by Branch 99, B.E.S.L., Canadian Legion.

Entertainment started off with a monster parade from Upper Bridge complete with cars, trucks and the ever-present clowns. The parade was headed by a Legion color party, and marched to the grounds with members of the RCAF trumpet and drum band of Trenton, the Kinsmen Boys Band of Belleville amalgamated with the Lions Club Band of Trenton with drum majorettes, and the Belleville Pipe Band.

At the grounds, the evening's festivities were divided into three portions. Under the chairmanship of Eugene Lang, the three above mentioned bands, plus the RCR band from Petawawa, took part in marches past in front of the packed grandstand. The RCAF trumpet band, which won the 'B' section Ontario championship at Guelph and the Dominion championship at Waterloo this year, made a big hit with the crowd, as did the Belleville Pipe Band.

Band Concert Given

Second part of the program was a band concert, with the bands playing individually and massed. Three of them, the Belleville Municipal Band, the RCR band, and the RCAF Central band from Ottawa, combined under Ted Robbins to open the program with 'O Canada.' The Belleville Municipal Band followed this with a medley from the works of Jerome Kern including such old favorites as "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "Who," "Why Do I Love You," and "All The Things You Are."

The RCAF Central band following in the theme of things, came up with a medley of Cole Porter tunes that had every foot in the park tapping. They included "I've Got You Under My Skin," "Rosalie," and other in medley. On the special request of Eugene Lang, the band came back with an encore and played "The Stars and Stripes Forever." The crowd went Third band in the concert was the RCR band, which featured the post horn playing of Lance-Corporal A. Lee in "Tally Ho." Lee made a big hit.

Then, in a previously unrehearsed effort, and again under the direction of Ted Robbins, the three bands combined for "The Standard of St. George." RCAF band came back with a medley of sea chanteys, the RCR band played the "Slavonic Rhapsody No. 2," encored with the "Anvil Chorus," and the three bands came together again to end the program with God Save the King.

Members Make Draws

Immediately following the concert, Mayor Jack Allin, Elmer Sandercock, MLA, and Frank Follwell, MP, were called to the stand to make the draws. Each spoke to the crowd before Jack Devine called off the winners of the draws as follows:

Radio, 3941A Gary Marriott, 83 Geddes; girl's bicycle, 3408A, B. E. Yanover, 310 Front; boy's bicycle, 10924, Mae Fulton, 231 William; golf clubs, 1322A, H. J. Buchanan, Point Anne; silver tray, Russell Pyear, Stirling; coffee table, Mrs. J. Sevigny, 166 Station; ladies' travelling bag, Loretta Collier, 31 Howard; men's travelling bag, Earl Kuntze, 194 Front

Tricycle, 3040A, S. Minhinnick, Delhi; fan, Wm. Cornell, 46 John St.; end table, Shirley Howard, 131 Bridge; blanket, D. P. Birt, 69 Delaney, Trenton; tennis racquet, 114A, no name; motor rug, Fred M. Lewis, 190 William; brief case, Laura Hutchinson, Corbyville.

H. N. Becker, chairman of the Parks Board, and one of the prime movers behind the movement, said that he considered that the crowd would approach 12,000. More conservative estimates placed it around 10,000.

Tommy Sculthorpe was presented with an ash stand by members of Branch 99 for all the work he put into selling tickets. Mr. Sculthorpe sold about 150 books.

Splendid Fireworks

Finale to the evening came with one of the finest displays of fireworks ever seen in this vicinity. Many were the "oohs" and "aahs" from the grandstand and the standees as huge rockets burst far above. Every color of the rainbow bloomed in the sky at one time or another during the show which lasted nearly an hour.

Exhibitors in the parade were Bateman Motors, J. B. Boyce and Sons, Ltd., Bonn Motor Sales, Burrows Car Sales, Bill Deline, Gourley Motors, Riggs Motor Sales, Truck and Farm Supply, Trudeau's, David's Electric Shop, and the Belleville Fire Department.

ACCUSED OF PLUNDERING

[illegible], July 8 — (AP)—East Germany's communists have accused American troops of plundering Thuringia during their 10-week occupation of that province in 1945. The Russian-licensed ADN news agency said the Americans took billions of marks worth of property.

CONSIDERABLY IMPROVED

Hollywood, July 8 — (AP) — Actress Dorothy Lamour is reported 'considerably better' in hospital where she was given a blood transfusion for what physicians described as abdominal fatigue.

Sweden Fighting Diplomatic Battle to Protect Vessels

Stockholm, July 8 (Reuters)—Sweden is fighting a diplomatic battle of the Baltic against Russia to protect her fishing vessels from what the Stockholm press calls "Red piracy."

Periodically, Swedish vessels are being intercepted by Russian control patrols in international waters and forced to put into Russian ports. There, their crews are held without being allowed to communicate with the Swedish authorities or their dependents at home.

A new incident has led Swedish newspapers and fishermen to describe Russia's foreign ministry officials as "downright liars." It is also causing Sweden to consult with Denmark, whose vessels are also being intercepted, on common action against Russia.

Two trawlers, the Marion and the Larex, were involved in this new incident. They were captured by two Russian coastal patrols 21 and 16½ miles from the Russian coast, respectively.

Describing this act as a "high handed flagrant breach of international law," Foreign Minister Oesten Unden told the Swedish parliament that the Swedish fishermen were forced to leave their tackle and catches in the water.

Subject to Questioning

"They were subject to an interrogation as if they were common criminals and held for two weeks," he added.

Replying to Sweden's protest over this incident — her ninth in two years concerning "Red piracy"—Russia said that the two vessels were intercepted 11 and 10½ miles from the coast, respectively.

Their captains, Russia added, confirmed these positions by signing a map.

Russia refused to pay compensation for the last tackle and catches and, while not denying that the crews had been held incommunicado for two weeks, declared that accusations that she "acted unjustly lack all foundation."

The skippers of the Marion and the Larex said that the "maps" they signed were Russian documents thrust into their hands by their prison guards who told them that they were certificates that they had not been maltreated.

Most bitterness of all has been caused by Russia's extension of her territorial waters from the customary three to 12 miles. Sweden has repeatedly asked her whether she considers that her waters in the Baltic extend beyond the customary three miles, but has never had a reply.

Tweed (Special) — The Tweed Kinsmen Club held a successful Dominion Day celebration on Monday, July 3 at Memorial Park with large crowds in attendance.

The afternoon performance was started off with a regatta on Stoco Lake with several boats from Madoc and Campbellford as well as from Tweed and district. Weather conditions for the races were excellent. David Jordan, 13-year-old local boating enthusiast stole the show when he finished first by a wide margin in both heats of the class A stock runabout event. Len A. Taylor of the Tweed branch of the Canadian Legion, assisted the Kinsmen Club by conducting the efficiently run races. Only mishap of the afternoon occurred when Merrill "Junior" Dales flipped his boat "Skippy" over in the second heat of the class C stock runabout race.

Winners in the various classes were as follows:

Class A stock runabout — David Jordan, first; Nick Thompson, second.

Class B Hydroplane—Bob McCoy, Madoc, first; Bill Derry, Madoc, second.

Class B runabout—Merrill Dales first; Bob Wood, second.

Class C runabout—M. McMillan, Campbellford, first; Grant Baker, second.

Class B hydroplane—Grant Baker, first; Merrill Dales, second.

New Park Opened

In the evening the Kinsmen new ball park was officially opened. Members of Parliament and Reeves joined in congratulations.

Frank Follwell, M.P. for South Hastings congratulated the Kinsmen on their efforts and said the ball park will be a great asset to the village. "I am glad to be here to take part in another forward step in this community. You have something here of which every citizen should be proud. Those responsible deserve a great deal of credit."

Roscoe Robson, M.P.P. for East Hastings, in adding his word of congratulation, declared that the Kinsmen Club have performed a real service to the village in raising funds to proceed with the construction of the diamond and flood lights.

"Only in the future will you realize what this park means to the community. I understand that this property was once a low lying pasture field and when we see the fine new park here tonight, we can realize the tremendous amount of work that was involved," Mr. Robson commented.

Tribute To Kinsmen

Reeve T. C. Graham said he joined with all citizens in paying a tribute to the Kinsmen for their work. "It must have taken a great deal of work and considerable money and we can tender our appreciation in the best way by attending the games in the future," the Reeve said. He remarked that Tweed is progressing and it is only efforts by active groups like the Kinsmen that will result in the community going further in all fields of endeavor.

Keith Cotton, president of the Kinsmen Club, paid tribute to the work of the committee in charge. "Every Kinsmen had an active part, however, and had it not been for the fine support of the people, of this village, this job would never have been finished," he said. "The job is not entirely done yet and we may be calling on all of you for further help and we hope that the response will be as good as it has been in the past."

Opening Ceremony

Mr. Cotton introduced the various members of the N.H.L. all-stars to the crowd. At this time Reeve T. C. Graham pulled the switch which turned on the floodlights and he officially declared the ball diamond open. Mr. Graham took a position in the pitcher's box. Mr. Robson behind the plate, with Mr. Follwell at bat, who hit the ball for a home run. The game that everybody had been looking forward to got under way.

"Turk" Broda's Toronto Maple Leaf All-Stars composed of National Hockey League players entertained a very large crowd, estimated at more than 600. The antics of "Cal" Gardner, Toronto Maple Leaf star, who played first base, kept the spectators in good humor throughout the game. Gardner's reputation as a funny man was not overrated. Other members of the All Stars are "Chick" Webster of New York Rangers, who played third base; Ed Harrison, Boston Bruins, right field; Fleming Mackell, Toronto Maple Leafs, shortstop; Gus Mortson, Maple Leafs, second base; Frank Morris, Cleveland, pitcher; Sid Smith, Maple Leafs, catcher; Bill Quackenbush, Boston Bruins, centre field; Al Densbury, Detroit Red Wings, left field. The pitching style of Frank Morris baffled the Tweedsters. He put that ball across the plate at a terrific rate. Doug Reid was the star of the evening for Tweed. He seemed to thrive on Morris' jet-propelled delivery, bringing in two runs and getting three hits in four trips to the plate.

The starting line-up for Tweed All Stars was as follows: John Orr, catcher; Jack Magee, right field; Bill Dickle, second base; "Toey" Meraw, third base; Don Richardson, first base; Bob Maynes shortstop; Doug Reid, centre field; Cliff Cotton, right field; "Stu" Lessard, pitcher.

A good many of the players on the four town teams were given a chance to play at various stages of the game. Don Sherry, Dick graham, "Spike" Meraw, Auldy Holmes, Don Manion, Jack Beare, "Tiny" Rivers, Cliff Fobert and Stan Finkle.

Score: Maple Leafs 16, Tweed 8.

The most interested spectator at the game was Clarke Brown. As everyone knows Clarke has been confined to his bed for the past sixteen years and in his younger days was one of Tweed's star ball players. The members of the NHL squad visited with Clarke before and after the game and he got a real thrill from talking with the big hockey boys.

Miniature Golf May be Organized For Playgrounds

The revival of a popular game of a few years back is contemplated on the city playgrounds according to Al Davis at the YMCA who is responsible for the organized program of recreation under a staff of supervisors. Miniature golf is a name suggestion which has come from James Musgrove, head supervisor. It is felt that interest in the ancient game can be developed among youngsters fitting them for more scientific play at an earlier age if they can get such an opportunity as is planned.

To fit into the plan it is hoped there are a few people in Belleville who have a discarded iron or two that they could donate. Putters and number 2 irons are the most desirable though mashie would be very acceptable. A wooden shaft would be as good as a steel. Any such clubs dropped in at the YMCA may make the game possible and start some young lad or lass to a lifetime of enjoyment of golf.

Cattle Rustling Reported in Madoc District

The current high price of beef has brought reports of cattle rustling in the Madoc district, according to provincial police who have been asked to investigate.

Early in July police from Madoc were asked to investigate the disappearance of a purebred Poll Angus cow which was apparently taken from the pasture field during the night. It is believed the cow was taken by means of a truck. The cow was one of a herd and no trace has been found of the animal.

Police are requesting the cooperation of all cattle owners asking that suspicious moves seen in the district be reported.

Guest Speaker For Banquet Already Secured

Although the date is still nearly six months away, a guest speaker for the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' annual dairy show to be held in Belleville next December has already been secured, according to J. L. Irwin, honorary president of the Association.

Guest speaker for the banquet which will conclude the British Empire Dairy Show will be Rt. Hon. Sir Francis Ford, Australian High Commissioner to Canada. Arrangements for having the Australian High Commissioner come to this city were made by Frank S. Follwell, M. P. for Hastings South.

It is expected that the cheese show this year will be held in the city hall market as approval of city council to hold the show there has been given.

Special Worship Service Will be Held at Camp

A special worship service to which the public is invited, will be held at the Moira Lake Y. M. C. A. Camp on Sunday July 9 at 7 p. m. to mark the opening of the new chapel, a project of the campers during the past week.

Another development in the camp has been the organization of an orchestra under the direction of Ken Mara, associate program director.

Additional boys will enter camp on Saturday when the second week gets under way. Registrations are now being accepted for the third and fourth weeks and it is anticipated that the few vacancies will fill up rapidly.

Registration for the girls' Camp which is three weeks away is so heavy as to make it likely that capacity will be reached in a few days. The fact that the period for the girls is one week shorter is explanation for the heavy registration at this early date.

Treasures of St. Paul's

There has been a church on the site of St. Paul's from early Saxon times, but little or nothing is known of the church itself before the Norman Conquest. The exhibition in the cathedral, and the history of St. Paul's through the centuries, starts with Old St. Paul's, the cathedral begun by William Rufus after 1088; and we see in the exhibition a whole series of paintings and drawings showing the church as a mixture of Norman and Early English architecture, a structure of round and pointed arches, under the shadow of a tall, tapering spire

This great, old church survived for nearly 500 years, but, in 1666, the Great Fire destroyed St. Paul's as it destroyed London itself, and there is a picture in the exhibition of Ludgate Hill and the cathedral in flames.

It was here that Sir Christopher Wren came into the picture. He was asked to design the new cathedral, and he submitted plan after plan for the new St. Paul's. There is one large-sized model (twenty feet by seventeen feet) made of oak, limewood, and plaster, which the architect himself favored. It shows a large central dome, with a smaller dome in front, and a portico in the classical Greek style. The details of this plan were rejected, and it needed nine years of discussion and compromise before everyone could agree on a design for the new St. Paul's. Work then began in earnest, and was completed in the relatively short time of thirty-five years.

The exhibition shows relics of the Wren period, such as a flowered waistcoat belonging to the architect himself, his penknife, and a strange stick used to chase away stray dogs that entered the cathedral.

Some 200 years went by, and no one questioned the solidity of the cathedral until 1913, when a Commission of Enquiry found that the foundations were not as reliable as they might have been. The dome and buttresses weigh something like 67,000 tons, and before 1913 they rested upon eight large piers, which, in turn, rested on hollow casings of Portland stone, filled with rubble.

The exhibition shows, by models and designs what survey work was done before the cathedral was temporarily evacuated in 1923. Work on the foundations started immediately, and the hollow casings were solidified by pumping cement into them. All went well, and in 1930 the cathedral was again opened for worship.

Also on view are the remains of the altar cross destroyed by a German bomb during the Second World War. And close by is a simple photograph — a photograph we all know — taken when the fire bombs destroyed almost every building round St. Paul's, but spared the cathedral.

In the library, close by, are some recently acquired manuscripts dating from the period of Queen Elizabeth, which throw considerable light on the library of the Reformation. This library, together with the exhibition, are to form a new centre for Londoners. More than ever, St. Paul's is to become 'the parish church of the British Empire'. —Valentine Selsey in "London Calling."

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

LUSTY APPETITES

Mrs. Jones, who thinks her job of feeding John aged 1 1-2 years and David aged 6 months very difficult, should be thankful that she is not obliged to keep a family of young wrens. Their parents have been known to make 116 trips to the nest, bringing food, in 7 hours. Foraging is hard for a parent white-crowned sparrow, because those young birds are fed tiny seeds, or for a downy woodpecker trying to satisfy its offspring with diminutive insects. A heron family may consume from 12 to 15 gophers in a day. Kingfisher parents must do a lot of fishing, for each of the 6 or 8 nestlings demolishes a whole fish at a gulp. This intensive feeding lasts only from ten days to three weeks, but young bald eagles remain at home from two to three months.

Food Necessary

As with human babies, food is necessary for growth. The nestlings of some species eat their own weight daily. This is true of red-winged blackbirds. Observers do not agree as to the order in which nestlings are fed. It seems evident that the strong ones eat most, and become still stronger and bigger, while the weak brother or sister gradually starves. The most persistent in opening its mouth is given the meal first. Some bird watchers say the parents simply feed the baby most easily reached, others are confident that there is a system. They say that the parents touch the back of he children's throats (perhaps a gland), thus forcing them to swallow.

At any rate, you may see for yourself that generally little birds seem somehow to know when the meal is on its way, and open their mouths in readiness. The meadowlark warns ahead by giving a food call when returning. If young birds are asleep when dinner comes, the parent stands looking bewildered, as though uncertain what to do with it. We wonder how gannets recognize their own children, because they nest in large colonies, the families squeezed together.

Must Be Done Differently

Some birds have bills that are too long to poke down a baby's throat without injuring it. Then the feeding must be done differently. If the baby hangs on tight to the parent's bill it must be hungry, and is fed by regurgitation. Mourning doves are fed in an odd manner. The little ones cling one on each side of the parent's mouth and suck out the food known as "pigeon milk." Mrs. Hummingbird inserts the tip of her tongue in the tiny throat and squirts in the meal.

Cubs, Scouts, Ladies Auxiliary Hold Last Summer Meeting

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the 8th Belleville Cubs and Scouts held their regular monthly meeting recently at Queen Mary School with eight being present.

Mrs. Cooke, the president, opened the meeting and informed the ladies that it will no longer be necessary for King Scouts to repass tests for any badges, with the exception of the Ambulance Badge.

A motion was put through that a donation of $5.00 be made to the Canadian Scout Brotherhood Fund in aid of the Manitoba Flood victims. This brought to a close the business part of the meeting.

Mrs. Enright read a selection from "Scouting for Boys" after which a number of contests and games were entered into and greatly enjoyed.

Best wishes for a happy holiday were extended to all the members by the president, Mrs. Cooke, this being the last meeting until September.

NYLONS FOR INJURIES

A new surgical dressing for minor industrial wounds, made from a derivative of nylon, is now being used with conspicuous success in Britain, says the Stratford Beacon-Herald. After a period of exhaustive tests it is claimed that wounds treated with it heal more quickly than do those with the waterproof dressings commonly used for industrial injuries; the new dressing stays in place better and, since it contains a transparent window, allows examination of the wound without redressing.

RICH FISHING GROUNDS

More than 450 species of fish have been caught in the waters off Cuba.

A CONTRAST

A short news item from England this week provides much room for thought. The item says that in Chevington, West Suffolk, the water is so full of iron that people turn orange when they have a bath. Linen, washed in the same water, turns yellow from the iron. Meanwhile, a government scheme to provide Chevington and other villages around with purer water is expected to take three or four years.

We wonder what would happen if such a situation arose in the United States. While the English are inclined to sit back in their cosy pubs and think how amusing it would be to see their compatriots turn orange, imagine what the Americans could do with news like that. With their characteristic abilities for promotion, advertising schemes urging people to take advantage of a new way to get a sun tan would cover the country.

Women would never have to use stockings — orange leg-paint would come with a bath. Orange hair would become an overnight rage, manufacturers of nail polish would meet stiffer competition, and Florida and California would jump into the fray to promote their oranges.

Even the American language would feel the brunt of promotion. Coinciding with campaigns to make the "orange centres" as prominent as the now-famous spas and hot springs, American teen-age talk would take a definite turn for the worse. "Drop dead," a phrase used in late years to express contempt, lately changed to "turn blue." The next step, obviously, is "turn orange, willya?"

Perhaps it is just as well the English are not too imaginative.

RATIO OF SAVINGS TO INCOME

In aggregate, last year's consumer expenditures equalled 91.8 per cent of disposable personal income after direct taxes, the Bank of Montreal comments in its Business Review. The remaining 8.2 per cent represented personal saving in various forms. While this proportion is substantially lower than during the war, the 1949 pattern still records a significantly higher rate of saving than in 1935-39, when customer spending absorbed 96.2 per cent of available income.

Analyzing changes in consumer expenditures over the past 10 years, the bank finds that the cost of services, such as household operation, transportation, communication, education and recreation, has risen less than half as much as retail commodity prices. Durable items, such as automobiles, furniture and household appliances, have tended to bulk larger in the consumer budget since the wartime shortages. However, food, clothing and other non-durable commodities have also exerted a heavier claim on the consumer dollar.

Against this background, the bank examines current trends in retail sales. the only monthly indication of personal expenditures as a whole. Official estimates indicate an increase of 5.9 per cent in dollar value of aggregate retail sales for the first quarter of the year, compared with the corresponding months of 1949. Advances were recorded all over the country, with little regional disparity.

"Looking further into the published data, however, it becomes apparent that the increase in retail sales in the first quarter of 1950 has been wholly attributable to additional purchases of automobiles, sales of new passenger cars having more than doubled in value," the review says.

"It is significant also that whereas new cars sold were higher in aggregate dollar value by 105 per cent in the quarterly comparison, the increase in the amount of new financing involved was 122 per cent."

FINS ON OCEAN LINER

The new P and O passenger liner "Chusan" of 24,000 tons gross, has been fitted with fins designed to promote stability in rough sea. She is by far the largest vessel to be so equipped. The appliance consists of two rectangular fins 12' by 6½', one on each side of the ship and projecting from the hull near the bilge. Each fin is mounted on a shaft so arranged that the fin is hydro-dynamically balanced. The forward velocity of the ship causes the water to exert an upward force on one fin and a downward force on the other. When not in use, the fins can be withdrawn into recesses within the hull line. First tests exceeded all expectations.

British scientists are looking forward to the day when ships will be driven by atomic power and are now even designing engines for this purpose. World scientists were recently shown at the British Atomic Energy Research Establishment at Harwell near Oxford, models and diagrams indicating the lines on which they are working for the commercial use of the mighty power which has so impressed the minds of the people of the whole world during the past five years. Director Sir John Cockcroft stated that it may be possible to drive ships by nuclear power within less than ten years.

THE BEGGAR

He said that he was hungry,
but since hunger doesn't show,
The truth of that assertion one can never surely know,
Beggars often say they're hungry when they're really after gin,
And once they get your money
some saloon they wander in.

"I want a cup of coffee," was the plea he made to me,
And I knew that in his pocket
more than coffee costs could be.

The policeman on the corner,
as I slipped the man the price,
Said: "You shouldn't give to beggars," and that may be good advice.

He said that he was hungry.
If the money I had kept
I'd have thought about him
later and that night I'd not have slept.
It could be that he was lying,
but since hunger's hard to see,
The gift that I was making was a good night's sleep to me.

"I thought you looked familiar, too — and you certainly are!"

TRUE SIMPLICITY

When one reads the New Testament, especially the teachings of Jesus and notes the utter simplicity of such teaching, he is amazed to see the dry and ponderous tomes that have been written to explain these simple teachings.

Christianity is indescribably simple, yet throughout the centuries theologians and scholars have been making it complex. We wonder what comment Jesus would make if he were here in flesh today and had the doubtful privilege of reading some of the books designed to explain his teachings. If present-day theologians and religious education experts has been present 2,000 years ago when Jesus spoke his parables many would have scorned this naive peasant who spoke about eternal verities using the simple language of a child.

The simplicity of Jesus arose from the fact that He understood perfectly those things about which he was speaking. The obscurity of the philosopher or the theologian or the educator often arises from the fact that he actually does not understand what he is talking about. If he could identify himself with the simplicity of Christ, he would understand.

The deeper we go into the teachings of Jesus, the simpler they become.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FACE THE LIGHT

Under the glass of my work desk is a line that I copied from somewhere. It reads: "When we face the light, the shadows fall behind." It seems to me that there is a philosophy of life hidden away in this simple statement.

If we look for the best, if we keep expecting it, and work toward it, the chances are all in our favor that we will gain our objective. There are two sides to every problem—the bright side and the dark side. People who look upon the dark side of things and who waste their good substance by worrying over what may not happen at all!

Face the light! "Our main business," once wrote Carlyle, "is not to see what lies dimly in the distance but to do what lies clearly at hand." It's the day's work, that upon which the light shines which should concern us most. From the Sanscrit I get these lines:

"Listen to the Exhortation of the Dawn!
Look to this Day!
For it is Life, the very Life of Life.
In its brief Course lie all the Varieties and Realities of your Existence."

The clear brain, the clean eye, and the high purpose, these are what thrive in the light. These are what give lift to the soul, and keep us away from darkness and despair. Travel in the light and the shadows will always be behind.

Each of us formulates his own way of life, and it is that way which gives substance to every act and period of growth that we experience. We are first a success within ourselves. The outward success follows as the night the day. There is no success however, that can compete with the inward satisfaction that we have done our best, kept our chin up, and gone forward!

RETURNS TO LINES

Tokyo, July 7 — (AP)—Peter Kalischer, United Press correspondent in Korea, returned safely to American headquarters in Korea today after being cut off from American forces 2 1-2 days.

The United Press in Tokyo said Kalischer declared he had not been captured. The red Pyongyang radio yesterday claimed that he had been taken prisoner.

First Aid for Heart Sufferers

New advances in anaesthesia and in surgery of the chest, are bringing new hope to suffers from heart disease, states a report from Great Britain.

Dr. R. C. Brock, of Guy's Hospital, who two years ago made medical history by demonstrating techniques for operation on heart conditions normally considered incurable, has now, with two colleagues, Dr. Charles Baker and Dr. Maurice Campbell, extended his work to an operation for the relief of mitral stenosis. This, in familiar language, is a blocking of the valve which connects the two left-hand chambers of the heart.

Ten Percent Fatal

Blocking of the valve often follows rheumatic fever, and the results can be very serious. Gradually the circulation of the blood, especially to the lungs, is so impaired that the slightest effort leaves the patient exhausted and breathless. Normal life becomes impossible and complete rest is essential. Even then, the condition generally proves fatal. About one-tenth of all cases of heart disease are due to stenosis.

The team of surgeons at Guy's Hospital are not alone in their efforts to relieve mitral stenosis by operation; others are at work elsewhere, especially in the United States. The outstanding success of the Guy's surgeons, measured by a comparatively low mortality for the operation, is due to two main factors. First, they have approached the valves by a surgical route different from that normally employed. Secondly, they have enlarged the flaps of the valves, once reached, by merely slitting them instead of by punching a small hole as others have recommended.

Finger Instrument.

A very interesting feature of this remarkable new operation is that, although elaborate equipment and instruments are required before the valves themselves can be reached for operation, the only instrument required for the final operation is the simplest of all, the finger of the surgeon. A special knife was developed for the purpose but it has, in fact, been used on only two occasions. The valves are distended simply by insertion of the surgeon's finger. This process takes altogether about ten minutes. thougn care is taken that the flow of blood is never interrupted for more than two or three heartbeats.

So far nine patients, very carefully selected after study of their medical histories, have been operated upon by the new technique. All but two have made excellent recoveries.

In the seven successful cases the results were spectacular. From being helpless invalids, unable to walk any distance, exhausted by the least exertion, unable even to sleep without being propped up in bed, they were transformed, almost overnight, into normal human beings able to take and enjoy their full share of life.

CATTLE CAR DEMOLISHED

Keep Eye Open For Poison Ivy

Your arm has begun to itch. You rub it again and again. Then a rash develops, followed by inflammation of the skin. When the inflamed area begins to spread and small watery blisters form, the itch becomes maddening. All these developments may have occurred within a few hours or they may have taken several days.... Poison ivy, the Borgia of the countryside, has made a contact, C. Hamilton Kenney writes in the C.I.L. Oval.

Found in all Canadian provinces poison ivy grows in greatest profusion in Ontario and Western Quebec. From Quebec City eastward it is found less frequently and from Winnipeg to the Pacific coast, it grows mainly at lake and woodland resorts.

Adaptable Plant

Poison ivy adapts itself to a variety of growing conditions—wet or dry, shady or sunny—and to almost any type of soil from pure sand or rocky ground to rich woodland loam. It is especialy prevalent on shores and in rocky situations. On farm land you will find it confined mostly to the undisturbed borders of fields.

As a rule, poison ivy grows as a trailing vine or an upright plant although sometimes it appears as a climber on posts, trees or telegraph poles. It may occur as a single plant or in patches of varying size and density.

Let's examine a piece of poison ivy. Note how the leaves are arranged alternately on the woody stems. Note how each leaf is composed of three similar leaflets—and these may vary in size, shape outline and even in color. You will find that the young leaves usually have a smooth, glossy surface. In early summer, you will observe sprays of small inconspicuous whitish flowers appearing in the axils of the leaves. Clusters of greenish yellow fruits about the size and hardness of peas succeed the flowers in some locations. When present, these fruits gradually turn white and remain on the stalks throughout the winter and even longer.

White Fruit

A point to remember is that poison ivy is the only native plant with three similar leaflets and plants such as strawberry, raspwhite fruit. Trifoliate-plants, berry and others do not bear white fruit. You will find three-parted leaves on young plants of the Manitoba Maple, particularly on regrowth, although five-parted leaves usually occur on more mature plants. Virginia creeper, a somewhat similar plant, has five-parted leaves and clusters of blue fruit on red stalks. Frequently, but mistakenly, poison ivy has been called poison oak because of variability in size and habit of growth, but true poison oak (Rhus diversiloba) occurs only on the west coast.

Did you ever hear of 'urushiol'? It is the toxic principle contained by poison ivy and is non-volatile sticky substance which on contact with a person's skin may produce a rash.

Poisoning most frequently occurs in early summer when the plant is young, but it may happen at any season of the year. Crushing, bruising, or breaking may release the active principle from the leaves, flowers, fruits, stems, or roots.

Stay For Months

In fact, this substance may persist for months on gloves, tools, shoes and picnic outfits; dogs, cats and other animals may transmit the poison. It is even claimed that particles of it are carried in the smoke from burning poison ivy.

Should you suspect that you have been in contact with poison ivy, wash immediately with laundry soap and warm water if at all possible. When avaiable, alcohol, kerosene or gasoline are useful alternatives. Give particular attention to areas where the poison may lodge, such as between the fingers, and under rings or wrist watches.

If you are sure that you have poison ivy dermatitis, there are a number of remedies you may safely use—some effective on certain individuals, ineffective on others Potassium permanganate solution and calamine lotion are two of the most widely recommended treatments. With the former you prepare the solution by disolving a five-grain tablet in one quart of water, apply freely to the affected part.

Calamine Lotion

Calamine lotion is of particular value for treating dermatitis of the face and skin as does the permanganate solution, while the addition of one percent of phenol helps to relieve intense itchiness. Do not use oily or greasy substances as they are likely to dissolve and spread the poison.

Poison ivy can be entirely eradicated either by mechanical means or by using chemicals like 2.4-D. The latter is recommended where removal by hand implements—grubhoe or spade—is not practical, and for lactions where large areas are covered by the plapts.

THE LAXATIVE HABIT IS A COMMON CAUSE OF PILES

In the intervals between "attacks" of piles or, as poor geeks and Yankee wiseacres might think, between "cures," there is generally a sensation of fulness and distension if not actual bloating. This uncomfortable feeling the victim is likely to ascribe to "constipation." Hence the poor geek or Yankee wiseacre resorts to the use of physic or enema, either or both of which will inevitably aggravate the congestion and distension of the veins involved in piles and thus make the trouble worse and worse.

But, being no "specialist" but just an "ordinary" doctor, without connection with any clinic racket, I know I can't tell the Yankee wiseacres anything about constipation. It is difficult enough to tell the poor geeks about piles, in language they will understand.

This sense of fulness or "bloating," in many cases of internal piles, especially when bleeding has not been excessive or noticed by the victim, is frequently misinterpreted as "intestinal indigestion," "colitis," "lumbago," "sciatica," "kidney trouble," "bladder trouble" and, in women, this or that "female" disorder.

Internal piles may seriously undermine health before the victim, or rather his or her physician discovers the cause of such complaints. In this sense it is unfortunate for the victim that internal piles may be painless until the advanced stage of prolapse—extrusion of the congested mass during defecation.

Symptoms of long neglected or maltreated piles in too many instances are careworn, apprehensive countenance, great anemia and steady emaciation. Inadequate and shameful reasons for long neglect in too many cases are false modesty, fear and sheer parsimony on the part of the victim; and sometimes incompetence on the part of the doctor, who strings the patient along with an indefinite diagnosis instead of making a proper examination with speculum. Only by such visual examination can a doctor determine whether lumbar, sciatic, thigh, bladder or pelvic pain or disturbance is due to internal piles.

Generally the bleeding from internal piles occurs in small quantity but so frequently or constantly that it produces severe anemia perhaps before the victim becomes aware that there is loss of blood. If the blood is retained for some time before it is expelled from the bowel it turns dark in color and is perhaps not recognized as blood.

In these talks I am purposely avoiding allusions to the most serious aspects of the question, because I'm not sure this is the place to discuss some pathological subjects. I mean that this is still a health column and the injunction Hippocrates gave physicians is what I try ot follow here: Do Good if You Can But Do No Harm.

Advises Eel Grass For Shipping Fish

Halifax, N.S.— (CP)—Fishermen received a setback recently when a shipment of live minnows sent from Halifax to Peterborough, Ont., in dead leaves arrived in poor condition. Only one survived.

But all is not lost. according to angler Hubert Burrill, of Yarmouth, N.S. He says that shipping the wriggly bait in dead, dry leaves is all wrong.

Though he admits he's not the originator of the idea, the Yarmouth angler says the proper way to transport live minnows is this:

Line the container with fresh eel-grass. Then lay the minnows in one at a time, taking care that they do not touch one another. First, one minnow, then one layer of eel-grass, and so on until the container (an ice-cream box is good) is filled. When ready to ship, saturate the grass with seawater.

The eel-grass gives off oxygen, says Burrill, and the salt water keeps the fish moist. He's used the method on lengthy fishing trips and it has worked fine.

After the failure of the first live shipment of bait, Halifax sportsmen tried a second time, carefully packing the minnows in dead leaves. Only three of 36 lived.

Jim Egan, who has run a sporting goods store for 50 years by the Halifax waterfront, says: "Don't pack them in moss. I tried it and it won't work." But he can't understand why the wriggly fellows won't live in dead leaves. He's been selling them to weekend fishermen that way for the last 30 years. He suggests that perhaps minnows don't like airplanes.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Nature is superbly patient. When human beings fail in some enterprise, they say — "Oh, well, some other time." When nature fails to make a tree grow into a crack in the rock, or when a forest gets smitten by lightning and is consumed by fire, nature smiles and says— "Oh, well, some other century."

Nature has lots of time. There is no hurry. She is bound to win in the end.

Man is almost savagely dissatisfied with al his designs and all his equipment. Nature is content with hers. The pine she has got will do. The moose, the chickadee are ample to her needs. If one weed won't grow here or there another one will. Nature just keeps on inciting life, life, life. She creates no new models. All her designs and equipment are as old as the hills. They'll do.

Man's only war is with nature. All our little fake wars, in which we beat one another up, are mere cat squalls on the back fence in the dark. The tireless and endless war is between man and nature.

In this war, man is frantic in his abandonment of old designs and equipment and his creation of new. With triumphant cries, he announces every once in a while, that he has found a way to make things grow out of the soil, or has come upon a drug that will cure another plague. But we still expect to live only to seventy.

Nature says seventy for us and fourteen for a dog. But we grope in our factories and our universities for newer and more olympian weapons with which to beat back the forests and conquer the tides, to rest and conserve the labors of man in his tragic struggle to stay alive, in a scheme of nature that consists just as much of dying as it does of living. Nature detests permanence. She scoffs at security. To the twentieth century, perhaps more to any other, nature just smiles and says — "Oh, well, some other century!"

News of Trenton

Mayor Proposes to Improve Appearances of Town Streets

Trenton (Special) — Mayor Couch promises to bring a suggestion before the next council meeting which he believes will do a great deal toward improving the appearance of Trenton streets.

The main thoroughfares in the downtown business section are beginning to take on a rather littered look these days as careless sidewalk strollers thoughtlessly throw papers, empty cigarette packages and sundry varieties of trash on the street.

In an interview Thursday afternoon, Mr. Couch said he is going to propose to council that metal containers be placed on every fourth parking meter standard in which passersby can deposit waste paper. Mr. Couch said he obtained this novel idea for keeping the streets free of rubbish from a conversation with Mr. J. H. Armstrong of 110 Queen street who has just recently returned from a Holy year visit to Rome and several other European countries.

According to Mr. Anderson, boxes are placed on the streets in Italy and it is a punishable offence to intentionally litter the streets with any form of garbage.

Mr. Couch agreed that this was a good idea and he is going to try and convince council at its next meeting that a similar by-law should be in force in Trenton.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

THE BIG SKY

Edmonton, Alta.—We drove today from Banff to Edmonton, our longest jump so far, out of the fingers of the Rockies into the palm of the praire, and I have some assorted notes on our impressions.

• • •

Both kids were sorry to leave behind the elk and deer that graze about the trailer camp in Banff. It took a bit of explaining to convince Judy that the game here is protected within the borders of the park. I could see that the idea of a sanctuary intrigued her.

She thought it over for awhile and then said, "Why don't they have a place like this for human beings?"

• • •

I know that they're a pest to the farmers, but, still, I've got a soft spot in my heart for gophers, a Walt Disney creation if I ever saw one.

The small, soft bodies of these rodents litter the highway from the foothills on up to Edmonton, tragic testimony to their insatiable curiosity and stupidity.

It's mighty unnerving to bear down at 40 to 50 miles an hour on a silly gopher standing right in your path, his "arms" folded across his chest and staring at you with a mildly curious, benign look until the sudden end.

• • •

This foothills country is truly beautiful. Some of its charm, I suppose, is that you are driving out of the mountains and the effect they have of cutting you down to size.

Myself, I could never live away from the ocean, but it's not hard to see why the dwellers of the plains hate to leave home. All that sky overhead, as Marjorie Wilkins Campbell put it recently in a story on Swift Current, gives you "room to breathe".

• • •

Brown Eyes and I drove this same route three years ago when we went to Alaska. Some of you may recall how we came upon a rock cairn on a lonely stretch of the road half-way between Banff and Calgary, erected to the memory of three Air Force lads (one of them an American) whose training plane crashed nearby. There were wild flowers at the base of the small monument then. There were today, too.

• • •

Had our first flat tire at Airdie, about 20 miles north of Calgary and—man!—was it hot! The thermometer on the garage said 92 degrees. Across the fields the warm wind sent the dust in tiny twisters and carried along the dandelion and cottonwood fluff like hot snow. Fellow at the garage who repaired our tire said, "It hasn't rained here, to speak of, in two years."

• • •

Edmontonians probably don't know it, but those of her visitors who arrive with their own homes behind them find just about the worse accommodation possible.

The trailer camp operated by the Alberta Motor Association on the city's south side is a disgrace. There are 30-odd trailers there, many of them permanently on blocks, and with sanitary facilities that can't have ever been look over by a city inspector.

We were quick to accept the invitation of a friend to park in his driveway.

• • •

Sign on the outskirt of the city shows a huge hand pointing to Heaven and the words, "Look up! The cleanest sky in the world is above you. Natural gas keep it that way!" At which some cynical Edmontonians mutter, "The cleanest sky and the dirtiest streets."

• • •

Why is it you hear the wind singing in the telephone wires on the prairie and never anywhere else?

• • •

The trek is still on to Alaska. In our brief stop at what my wife calls the Grapes of Wrath Auto Court we met a couple of families from Louisiana pausing here before tackling the big road to the north. One family of six lives in a battered trailer, the other—father, mother and nine children—somehow squeeze into a tent.

You don't know whether to think of them as fools or adventurers. Their standard of living seems deplorable to us, but they are the noisiest, happiest gang you ever saw—and the friendliest. We hope they strike it rich.

• • •

All homesick tonight. We phoned up the fellow who rented our waterfront place to see how he's getting along. The unkind fellow insisted on a full description of how he'd brought up some bark from the beach for a little fire, said there was a nice fresh breeze coming in off the Gulf, and he was getting along all right, thank you.

Breathing room is all right, I guess but life isn't as full as it ought to be without an ocean at your door.

FRANKFORD

First Boy Scout Troop Enjoys Happy Camping Time

Frankford — The First Frankford Boy Scout Troop held their annual camping trip at Gunter Lake. Despite a rather damp time (it rained about 60 per cent of the time) the boys report a good time.

Cars left Frankford on Friday, the advance party going early in the afternoon, and the rest leaving in the early evening. Through the kindness of three members of the Lions' Club, Gordon Benedict, Howard Duncan and Claude Moran, the boys had the best of transportation to the lake. The boys in Gordon Benedict's station wagon had a couple of exciting experiences. They had to stop on the Madoc-Bancroft Highway, as the cross traffic got a little heavy — a mother skunk and four little ones held up progress. On another occasion, they were forced off the road by a reckless driver.

Tents were set up in a small clearing a few hundred yards from the water. Trees on all sides protected the camp from any wind. Fireplaces, grease pit, and temporary cellars were dug, all a part of a Scout camp.

The first night wasn't exactly a calm and peaceful one, as could be expected. At 2.30 in the morning, Scouts from the Eagle Patrol were storming the Fox's tent with potatoes, and here and there, a scantily-clad Scout was chasing one of his buddies around the camp, trying to get even for a can of water that had been most unceremoniously deposited down the back of his neck. The whole camp was up before the sun on Saturday morning, to cook their first breakfast. Incidentally, if anyone is a bit tired of the regular diet of steaks, ask "Pete" Stickle for a few of his recipes. For example, Pete is the only person known who likes a sardine sandwich with jam on it.

Good-night Kiss

On Saturday morning the boys were still laughing at a little incident which befell Eldon "Juggler" Sine, of the Beaver Patrol. Eldon was to sleep next to the tent door Friday night. He just stuck his head out of the flap for a minute, and a neighbor's dog licked him in the face. In a split second, Juggler was in the back end of the tent, and all the other Scouts insist that he made it in one jump.

The balance of Saturday morning was spent in completing the camp.

On Saturday afternoon the Scouts went on an exploration hike. The course of their trip led to Horse Lake, some two miles or better to the northeast. Several good examples of beavers' work could be seen, and the boys brought back a few souvenirs. On their way, they saw the terrible destruction that had been wrought by the tornado two years before, down a large canyon. A tree badly clawed by a bear was examined. On returning to camp, a swim period was enjoyed. Later in the evening, a Council Fire was built, and an organized campfire meeting held.

On Sunday, rain suspended most activities in the morning. In the afternoon, a number of the Scouts attended Sunday school at the little Gunter church. Later on, four carloads of parents and friends drove in. Mr. and Mrs. Plumpton, Mr. and Mrs. Stickle, Mr. and Mrs. Sine, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lohnes, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Rogers and others, were among the visitors. Sunday evening, "Pete" Stickle suffered a cramp in his leg and had to leave for home. Outside of a few cut fingers and toes, there were no other casualties in the camp.

12-Mile Hike

On Monday, more visitors called. Mr. and Mrs. Kemp, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes were among these. Later in the day, the whole troop went on a 12-mile hike, visiting the Fire Ranger some miles northeast of Gunter Lake. All of the boys climbed to the top of the Fire Ranger's tower and had an excellent view of the surrounding country. From the tower, no less than 14 lakes can be seen. Supper was prepared on the way back. On their return to camp, a swim period was enjoyed. The daily campfire was prepared, and two hours of fun and stories were spent. Needless to say, there was little activity after lights out. In fact, only two of the Scouts were aware next morning, that during the night a violent thunder storm had come up. As a matter of fact, Saturday was the only day of the entire trip that it did not rain at some time during the day.

On Tuesday, the big feature of the day was a boat trip around Gunter Lake, and the portage over to Cashel Lake, better known to many as Little Salmon Lake. The boys stopped to examine a beaver dam, and to explore the island in Gunter Lake. Seven of the Scouts swam back from the island to the beach, some half mile. Then came the ever-present rain again, wiping out the campfire for Tuesday.

On Wednesday, swimming was enjoyed in the morning. The fore part of the afternoon was spent in cleaning up camp, and packing for the homeward trip. Three more members of the Lions' Club, Delbert Badgley, Floyd Ketcheson and R. D. McDonald provided transportation home.

The Boy Scouts are anxious to acknowledge the many kindnesses shown by all who made the trip possible .. to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gunter, of Gunter Lake, who loaned tables and benches, boats and other assistance rendered .. to the six drivers who supplied transportation .. to Howard Duncan for a carton of chocolate bars .. to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes for chocolate bars, potato chips and peanuts, and other services rendered, and a special thank you to Mr. A. J. Sprague, who gave financial assistance in the way of supplies.

Mrs. Kel Kincaid and Mrs. Newton Kincaid, of Madoc, attended the wedding. The bride is a niece of Mrs. Blanche Alexander of Madoc, and is well known here.

On Saturday, John Bravchuck, of Cleveland, Ohio, guest at Tipperary Hotel, while fishing with his party on Crowe Lake, captured a five and a half pound bass, and on Monday, Orlando Di Stanislao, of Alliquippa, also a guest at Tipperary, pulled in a six pound pickerel from Crowe Lake.

HENDERSON—LANDON

A quiet but pretty wedding was recently solemnized in Christ Church, Belleville, when Gloria Wilhelmina, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Landon, of Millbridge, became the bride of Charles Jr., only son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Henderson, of Millbridge. Rev. Grant Sparling officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely gowned in a street length dress of sky blue nylon sheer with white accessories and carried a nosegay of roses and sweetpeas. The bride's only attendant, Miss Eleanor Henderson, sister of the groom, wore a street length dress of pink nylon sheer with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Monty McCauley, of Belleville, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony lunch was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Andrews, Belleville. The groom's gift to his bride was a gold necklace; to the groomsman a lighter. The bride gave her attendant gold earrings.

The young couple left for a short trip to the United States and other points. On their return they will reside in Millbridge.

MARMORA

Mr., Mrs. T. E. Potts Quietly Celebrate 55th Anniversary

Marmora — On Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Potts celebrated their 55th. wedding anniversary at the residence of their daughter, Mrs. T. E. Pritchard, and Mr. Pritchard, in Peterborough. The event they were celebrating took place on July 3, 1895, at the home of Mrs. Pott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Walker, in Gilmour.

Rev. J. M. White, who was stationed at St. Ola, as Methodist minister at that time, performed the ceremony. Their attendants were Richard Hinchcliffe, still residing at Gilmour, and Tillie Danford, now residing in retirement at Madoc, following many years in the mission field of the Standard Church in China.

Mr. Potts was born at Harold, in Rawdon Township, his parents being William Potts, and Anne Barnum (who came to Canada from Aberdeen). He claims to be descended from two captains in the British army who came to Canada to take part in the American war, his paternal grandfather being Capt. Thomas Potts, and his maternal grandfather, Capt. Ephraim Barnum, after both of whom he was named.

Active and Varied Life

The life of Mr. Potts has been active and varied. He worked for the Pearce Company for 13 years; following which he was 6 years with the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, Limited, passing from that to a three years' management of their boarding house.

Until his retirement a few years ago, the rest of his life was divided between four hotels of which he was the proprietor:— St. James Hotel, Marmora, for nine years; Royal Hotel, Marmora, 9 years; Tipperary Hotel, Crowe Lake, 5 years; Huyck's Hotel, Tweed, six years. He served four years on Marmora Village Council and four years on the Public School Board and showed interest in Marmora having the Continuation School which preceded the present high school.

He is one of the senior members of St. Andrew's United Church, and the oldest member of L.O.L. 319, which he joined on July 1, 1896. He was Worshipful Master of the lodge in 1908 and later was District Master. Also for many years he has been an Oddfellow.

Mrs. Potts, as Ada Walker, came to Gilmour with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Walker, from Sheffield, England, in her girlhood days, and not only has proven her ability as a cook, but inherited her mother's genius at needlework, samples of which she has in her home.

Mrs. Potts has been a member of St. Andrew's Women's Association for many years. As the Glee Club was formed a few years ago she became a member. She was the first Worshipful Mistress of Harmony L.O.B.A., No. 600, and is a member of the Tweed Rebekah lodge.

Of seven children born to Mr. and Mrs. Potts, five are living, namely: Mrs. Wilbert Bedore (Mary), Marmora; Gerald, Cobourg; Mrs. Thomas E. Pritchard (Gertie), Peterborough; Clayton, Marmora, and Mrs. Thomas Dickson (Myrtle), of Picton.

There are also 14 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren. They quietly celebrated their 55th. anniversary with a three-day visit to their daughter in Peterborough.

Women's Activities

FOXBORO W.M.S.

Foxboro—The July meeting of the W.M.S. was held on Thursday at the Sunday school rooms. Mrs. J. W. Daniels conducted the meeting choosing 'prayer' as the theme and after reading some thoughts on 'prayer' Mrs. J. G. Sills read the 18th chapter of St. Luke. Silent prayers were then offered for Mrs. E. McCaughen who is a patient in the hospital.

A story, "A Little Boy's Prayer" was given by Mrs. W. Hodgen and an instrumental given by Carol Stewart. The fifth chapter of the study book was most interestingly given by Mrs. S. C. Gay, the topic of which was "On Christianizing the Social Order." She told of many worthy things being done to help others less fortunate. It was pointed out that Christ is the only solution.

Mrs. W. Scott conducted the business and Mrs. S. C. Gay told the story of "Mrs. Morgan's Quarter", showing how the smallest mite may do a great deal of good.

RAWDON

Rawdon — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stapley and children, Guelph visited Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hagerman and Harold over the holiday.

Miss Wilma Telford, Peterborough, spent the holiday with her sister, and family at Mount Pleasant.

The heavy electrical storm last week gave several Rawdon folk a real scare. One farmer was milking at the barn when he received a shock and some of his cows were stunned. At another home the stove lids were lifted of the stove. Fortunately, no one was seriously hurt.

Messrs. Carl Clancy, Lewis Pauley, Cecil Pauley, Blake Sharpe, B. Sharpe, Everett White, and Lorne White, members of L.O.L. No. 172, Wellmans, attended the Orange service at St. Paul's on Sunday morning.

Many Rawdon Orangemen were in attendance from Springbrook, Tanner and Stirling lodges and the church was filled to capacity. Rev. E. A. Baker gave the history of Protestantism with its loyalty and liberty.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.T.C.M., gave a splendid portrayal of orangism in her well chosen organ music entitled "Protestant Arise," "The Orange Parade" and "A Mighty Fortess." The special music, choir selections and juvenile duet, together with gorgeous summer flowers all made this service one long to be remembered by those privileged to attend.

Mrs. Mildred Wrightman is under the doctor's care with a week's rest in bed.

A baby daughter arrived on Wednesday June 28th and will make its home with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Campbell, nee Phyllis Bartlett.

Should you be looking for a fine man's gift or presentation piece, don't pass up the 1948 edition of Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations." A giant book of nearly 2,000 pages jampacked with witty sayings and the most memorable literature of all time, the man of the house will find it not only good leisure reading, but a grand reference bank from which to draw for an after-dinner speech or vote of thanks. Most men like to build up a little reference library much more than their sock and tie collections.

There has been a lot of talk about the fact that divorces are on the increase in this country. This is so, but it is quite satisfying to know that for every broken home we hear about, there are hundreds which are as sound and as stable as the maple tree...... Most recent records show that there with 7,683 divorces in one year with 134,088 marriages. The same year there were 3,042,000 families.

One place where the modern child is slipping, despite all the new psychological treatment at home and at school, is in the utter disregard of the shine on his shoes. Gone are the days it seems, when the male members of the family repaired regularly to the shoe box to brighten up the family's tooties....

Just this week we saw a group of Boy Scout Cubs neatly dressed except for their feet. Little boys can get the scruffiest, dustiest, looking shoes. In our Girl Guide days, the shine of the shoe was a mark of merit at inspection of the troop. Now, even the Scouts appear to be letting down on one of their best traditions.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Married, She Wants to Revive Old Romance

Dear Miss Fairfax:

At the age of 20, I was going with a fellow whom I liked very much, but for no reason at all I broke off with him and married a childhood friend. Now, even though I'm married and have two children I just can't get him out of my mind. I can't say I'm happily married, because my husband drinks a great deal and has no interest at all in the children.

I met my old friend on the street one day, and I gathered from my conversation with him that he is now engaged. He won't bother with me because I am married and living with my husband. Do you think I should tell him how I still feel about him, and find out if he still loves me before I tell my husband that I am thinking of leaving him?

A.

Dear A.:

I certainly do not think you should try to start your old romance up again. This would be a very wrong and foolish thing to do, and before long, I am quite certain you would find yourself in a great deal of trouble.

If this old friend is now engaged to someone else, it would be very mean, as well as most unwise, to make an attempt to break up his engagement. You had your chance with him and let him go; now you should have the decency to keep out of his affairs.

It is, I know, very hard to put up with a husband who drinks to excess. But I am sure you get a great deal of happiness out of your two children, and if your husband supports you, it is quite possible that you are better off as you are than if you left him.

If things get no better, it might be helpful to consult a social agency which deals with marital problems. Any time you care to do so, I will be glad to give you the name of one in your vicinity. But they certainly won't get any better, and are very likely to get much worse, if you try to cultivate a little romance on the side, whether with on old friend or a new one.

She's Engaged, but Keeps Praying for Another Chap

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A few years ago I met and fell in love with a boy, but later broke with him, and have never seen or heard of him since. Now I am going to be married this summer to a boy I have been going with for over a year.

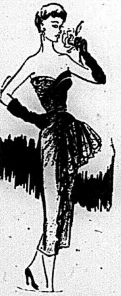
One thing that puzzles me, though, is that every night I find myself mentioning the first boy in my prayers. I have talked this over with the boy to whom I am engaged, and he doesn't think it is important enough to bother about. But I would like to know what you think.

"Chec"

I fully agree with your fiance. The boy whom you have neither seen nor heard of for several years is hardly more than a boy in a daydream, and not to be taken too seriously.

You probably began mentioning him in your prayers at the time you broke up with him, and have kept it up since then as a matter of habit. Do as you like about continuing, but don't consider it of any particular importance, and don't keep bringing it up in conversations with your young man. Just stop talking about it, go ahead with your plans, and I'm sure it will take care of itself.

Evening Attraction

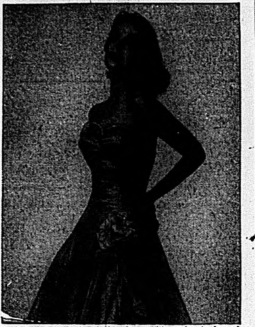


Strapless sheath frock

By VERA WINSTON

DEFINITELY on the dressy side is this frock designed for important late-afternoon into-evening occasions through the summer. Strapless, it is straight and slim as a reed except for the embroidered jabot peplum at one side. There is one-sided treatment of the net at the bodice also. Not shown is a tiny cover-up bolero of matching navy blue tissue crepe. This is a dress that is definitely good theatre.

Have a Slim Silhouette



Pretty Arlene Dahl of the movies knows it's easier to keep her figure slim than to lose weight. Right foundation helps, too.

By HELEN FOLLETT

YOUR silhouette is made from underneath out. That means your foundation garment must be precisely and exactly right. As you may be seeking a light one for warm weather wear take a look at the minimum weight models, made of sheer nets, supple batistes, shimmering satins or two-way stretch knits that are light and clinging, yet have a way of molding the figure. You'll see these counterposed with matched non-elastic fabrics, pulling lengthwise, crosswise, diagonally almost like a slim sheath of muscles.

The ideal effect is to make your frock appear to be a part of you, impart grace to your outlines. The accepted form now shows the high, rounded bust, flat torso, neat waistline, compact hips. Slender curves are the mode. If your curves are a bit too much of a good thing, an experienced corsetiere will find for you a garment that will put them in their place.

Daily Exercise

But you should endeavor to slenderize. Exercise every day, swinging your legs back and forth, pulling hard on the thighs and hips. Lie on your back on the floor, lift one leg, send it in the other directions, rolling the body as your toes touch the floor.

Don't buy a foundation over the counter without having it fitted. Figures vary so much that, although there may be dozens of models in your size, there will be need of alterations. Have necessary adjustments made, such as hose supporters moved, shortened or lengthened, shoulder straps adjusted. Get the best you can afford; it pays in the long run.

See that you select a garment that will give freedom of motion and that will, at the same time, mold you comfortably toward the fashionable ideal.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Fish detectives have come upon a new scent in the great salmon mystery.

The question of how salmon unerringly find their way back home after wandering around the ocean for four years has a new possible solution. The salmon may smell their way back.

At least that's a possibility according to Prof. Arthur D. Hasler and Warren Wisby of the University of Wisconsin, who have studied the olefactory abilities of fish and who have proved that fish have an extremely subtle sense of smell.

Salmon croquettes should always be fried just before serving. They may be rolled and breaded hours before dinner, but the final cooking should take place just before sitting down to the table. Unless salmon croquettes are made hot, they will most likely be soggy and flat tasting.

They should have a light golden color when removed from the frying basket. If the inside is creamy-moist, no sauce is necessary, although you can serve canned undiluted mushroom soup or undiluted tomato soup as a quick hot sauce if desired.

Deviled Salmon Croquettes.
Serves 6:

Melt 1-4 cup fat in a heavy saucepan. Remove from flame. Add 5 tablespoons flour, mixing well.

Pour off liquid from 1 16-ounce can of salmon. Add enough milk to make 1 cup. Heat liquid in a saucepan until bubbles appear around edge of pan. Gradually add hot liquid to the fat mixture. Cook over a low flame stirring constantly until thick. Remove from fire.

Add salmon, broken into small pieces. Add 1 medium size grated onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard and 1-2 teaspoon dry mustard. Mix well.

Place mixture in top part of a double boiler over simmering water for 1-2 hour, stirring frequently. This step is necessary to cook sauce and eliminate raw flour taste. Spread mixture in a shallow pan, about 7 x 11 inches. Chill until stiff, overnight if possible.

Divide mixture into 12 parts. Shape each part into a croquette or cake. Dip croquettes into 1 cup sifted bread crumbs. Dip in 1 beaten egg to which 2 tablespoons water have been added. Dip once more into crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat, 370 degrees, until brown, turning once.

Fashion Flashes

A NICE alternative to the Summer straw handbag is silk shantung. Natural silk shantung for a box bag with twin self-cord handles extending down the sides and the base of the bag which closes with a neat little gold turn lock in the lid.

A BOON to the traveller is a reversible beret, one side of navy faille ribbon, the other in bright red—both sides embroidered with a little heart emblem in gold thread. Beret is sectioned to make for easy folding.

A HINT of fur-fashions-to-come appeared in a recent fur fashion show at a society ball and entertainment. One spectacular fashion was a wide spiral stole that almost enveloped the model. Lined with black velvet, it was worn with black velvet gloves a bow muff to which was pinned a big cluster of violets and deep red roses.

BELLE OF THE BEACH is terry cloth. A nice after-swim job is a hip-length coat with batwing sleeves, one-button closing in front and elasticized waistline in back.

SEEN AROUND TOWN is the narrow black fox stole, often carried like a piece of twisted rope, and used to set off filmy white dresses. We saw one carried with a white linen evening suit. Looked good, too.

A CHANGE from the short topper is being registered by the short cape, or capelet. Soft wool, in pale beige, for a nice little capelet, fastened at the neckline with black braid frogs and with inverted pleats in front to suggest sleeves. Nice with navy or black or brown.

Widow Asks About Mourning Clothes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please, I would like your advice on mourning clothes. My husband died several weeks ago, and I've been wearing a black dress, a black veiled hat, and black accessories. I haven't a black coat, so I've been wearing a dark-blue one. These things I wear to church and downtown. But for every day around the house I do not have a black dress. Is that necessary? From the bottom of my heart I want to pay respect to my husband and his memory. So please give me a few pointers about this dress, how long I should wear mourning, and any other pointers.

E. S.

Today there are no strict rules about the wearing of mourning. Mourning is now largely a matter of individual choice, of personal feeling, and many people do not wear mourning at all, even for those nearest of kin. The important point is to feel as you so finely and honestly feel. . . that from your heart you wish to pay respect and honor to your husband's memory . . . and this is, fundamentally, a question of what you do, not what you wear. Please don't be one bit concerned about your clothes . . . the dark-blue coat is quite all right, since it is dark. And for your house dresses, remember that all-white is as deep mourning as all-black . . . and if white dresses are too much a concern as to cost or upkeep, wear whatever dark-color dresses you have, wearing only dark colors for the first six to twelve months.

A Married Woman's Signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Since my marriage a month ago I sign my name as Mary Smith Brown. My husband insists that I should keep my middle name, using it instead of my maiden surname. That is, sign Mary Elizabeth Brown, rather than Mary Smith Brown. However, everyone I know signs her name as I do, with the maiden surname. Which form is really right?

Recent Bride

Socially, either form is correct . . . but the form you use (first name, maiden surname, married surname) is the form usually used. (In legal signatures very often a woman is asked to sign both names.)

Engagement Gift Not Necessary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just received a formal announcement of the engagement of a man I know fairly well and a girl I know only slightly. Does this call for an engagement gift?

S. L.

No. It is not necessary, or even customary, to send an engagement gift . . . relatives and very intimate friends of the engaged girl may send gifts, but others feel, or at least should feel, no obligation to send a gift. And in your case I see no reason for your sending a gift, particularly since you received this type announcement, rather than the personal (and really correct) note from either the engaged girl or man.

The Summer Visitor and Her Tip

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This summer I have been invited for several visits to intimate friends of mine, all of whom have very simple households with one maid or a part-time maid. Of course I would like to give these maids something when I leave. Do you think this "something" should be a tip or should it be a present?

Frances T.

A tip is the best plan, I think. However, I suggest that for this type of friendly and simple service, it is very thoughtful and attractive to bring the maid some simple gift, such as a box of candy or one or two handkerchiefs, and with this enclose an envelope containing the tip.

TWO CONSTABLES INJURED

Windsor, July 7 (CP)—A wild fight at a Windsor lunch room last night resulted in injuries to two constables and to a third man, 37-year-old Stanley Wilson, who is being held by police for investigation.

Constable Clement Collins suffered a broken thumb, sprained wrist, and facial injuries. A second constable was struck in the face and Wilson suffered cuts and lacerations to his arm.

BEAUTY

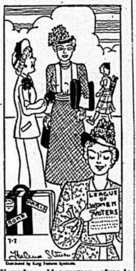
Grandmothers Stay Beautiful

During the war somebody said "If the grandmothers hold out, we'll win." Certainly the old girls of today are up and doing. Many of them belie their ages by ten or even fifteen years. When they recall their grandmothers, they visualize them with straight, severely arranged hair, black dresses, figures lost and a sit-by-the-fire attitude. Just waiting to die, some of them. They had no interests outside the home. And grandfather was the boss of the roost.

Nowadays our ancient-and-honorables refuse to wear the marks of the years in face, figure or clothes. Many of them are holding important executive jobs. Those who have wealth and could enjoy leisure lead exceedingly active lives, giving their time to various charitable projects. It keeps them young. They belong to the times. They have a useful place in the world.

The smart Grannie of 1950 has lived long enough to respect the laws of health, realizes how important they are. She knows that brisk steps, bright eyes and good complexion depend upon proper nourishment and normal circulation. She refuses to be a shut-in, gets out of doors every day, joins the sun worshippers—of which there are millions.

She is a diligent wrinkle-fighter. As the birthdays bank up the skin dries out, and underlying tissues are likely to go into a decline. To avoid such a deplorable state of affairs, she annoints her face every night of her life with a heavy emollient, tapping and patting it in. If the wrinkles win out and she finds she can't erase them, she tells herself that they are "character lines."



Nowadays older women refuse to wear the marks of years.

Her hair is her big problem. No matter what she does it is bound to get thinner as she gets older. Though she must economize in various ways, she never tries to save money as far as her silver halo is concerned. She has her permanent wave regularly, two or three times a year. She may choose short locks or an uppity hairdo, but, no matter what the arrangement, it must be as neat as a pin. Always it must be waved. Seldom is straight gray hair becoming when Time has touched the countenance. The older one grows the less one can stand stray whisps at the napeline or little shags around the ears.

Whether she is plump, thin or betwixt-and-between, she knows that the most important article of dress is the foundation garment. It isn't often that the youthful shape continues throughout life. Muscles weaken because of less exercise; there's that little shelf below the belt. It must be confined with a properly fitted corset. As the figure changes in outline, so must the corset conform, hence the need of new fittings every few years.

SUCCESS WITH DELPHINIUMS

The perennial garden without Delphiniums would scarcely be complete. Larkspur has been the more familiar name for many years but is now used for the annual kinds. The hybrid Delphiniums are among the most majestic of garden flowers. There are many outstanding strains and named varieties. They come in the azure blue of the sky to the deep turquoise tones of a mountain lake. There are dainty pink types, rich garnets, superb amethysts and magnificent whites. All are hardy and respond to a soil deeply cultivated and enriched. A generous application of leaf mould and sheep manure makes the ideal dressing. Lime to sweeten the soil should be added to the top dressing.

Winter protection of Delphiniums is simple—sift coal ashes over the crowns to discourage the hungry slugs of early spring, then cover with leaves, straw or manure.

Enemies can be controlled as noted below. A serious fungus disease of Delphiniums is crown rot. This causes the plant to topple over. Diseased plants should be removed entirely and the vacant soil treated with 1-2000 solution of corrosive sublimate. The culture is not difficult. They require a rich well drained soil and either full sun or partial shade. As the plants grow from 4 to 6 feet high they require the support of stakes. Water well during dry weather. While Delphiniums can be raised from seeds, it is best to get young plants from a nursery. They should be planted at the back of the border and set from 1½ to 2 feet apart.

New Home Nursing Manual 'Must' For Every Household

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 7 — (CP) —The Canadian Red Cross Society's new home nursing manual is a "must" for every household—particularly where there are children.

What to do in case of accidents —everything from treatment of frostbites to how to bathe baby is contained in this 200-page volume which the Red Cross says will have real meaning only if studied in conjunction with a course of instruction which consists largely of demonstration and practice.

The society's first reference book came out in 1923 at the time of the organization's plan to provide elementary instruction for homemakers in the care of the sick in the home.

Since then the book has been revised several times and in this latest revision it has been completely rewritten.

Flexible Program

Mention is made in the preface of the Red Cross nursing services deparment which has gradually evolved a flexible program of home nursing instruction designed to meet the needs of both urban and rural communities in Canada.

To further promote home care for the sick, equipment also has been made available to home nurses and other members of the public by the establishment of sickroom supply loan cupboards in Red Cross branches throughout the country.

While the value of expert care given by professionally trained workers cannot be over-estimated instruction of lay workers in home nursing develops volunteer service which greatly aids the professional worker, Helen G. McArthur, Director of Nursing sevices for the society, says in the preface to the book.

Voluntary Aid

Instruction of lay workers in home nursing also encourages the understanding and development of public health programs in the community. Thus many nurses, through Red Cross, voluntarily have given of their time and skill to teach Canadian women how to become more resourceful in caring for the sick, handicapped and aged in their own families.

Care of the sick and the aged is dealt with in this book which is made the more interesting through introduction of the activities of the hypothetical Harper family a the beginning of each chapter.

Four-year-old Linda Harper awakens during the night with the tummy-ache and her mother after checking Linda's temperature, calls the doctor.

Instructions continue from there: "The signs of an oncoming illness are not always readily nonoticable. It is unfair..to telephone the doctor for every little ache and pain, but it is also unfair to wait to call him until the illness has progressed far beyond its normal degree of severity."

Deals With Symptoms

This particular chapter deals with symptoms of illness and how to read a thermometer.

One of the brightest bits in the book is Mrs. Haper's special recipe for health:

"Take on individual any age.

Add daily: Three balanced meals; six to eight hours restful sleep.

Garnish with good measure of purposeful exercise; pleasurable recreation; wholesome thinking; fresh air and sunshine.

Flavor with soap, water and toothpaste.

Safeguard by: Regular medical examinations; immunization against preventable diseases; cooperation with the health department to provide healthful environment."

PASSENGER RATE INCREASE

Washington, July 7 — (AP) — The interstate commerce commission today aproved new increases in railroad passenger commutation fares for four eastern railroads.

The increases, averaging 21 to 25 percent, will apply to interstate commutation travel in six states.

Under the order, the rate boosts may be made effective July 15. They are estimated to involve $1,500,000 a year in increased fares in the area involved.

Weatherman Sticks Neck Out Each Time he Makes Prediction Says Meteorological Division

By CAMERON JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto — (CP — A belief persists among Canadians that weather forecasts aren't as accurate now as they used to be.

Officials of the Meteorological Division of the Department of Transport say they are aware of the feeling. And they add that there's a logical explanation for complaints about their forecasts.

The explanation is linked with the expansion in the public weather service since the Second World War. Before the war, forecasts were phrased in general terms and covered areas as large as half a province. Now they are more specific and sometimes cover areas no larger than a few square miles.

"The weatherman sticks his neck out every time he issues a forecast," says P. D. McTaggart-Cowan of Toronto, assistant controller of the meteorological division. "Today we forecast temperatures within a degree and predict rain for an area no larger than Toronto. There's nothing quite so wrong as the weather. When you call it close you're bound to be wrong occasionally."

Mr. McTaggart-Cowan says people are inclined to remember the mistakes and forget "the 80-per cent or more of the time we forecast correctly."

A lot of training and experience goes into making a weather forecast.

Four times a day, seven days a week, 52 weeks a year, men step out of more than 1,000 reporting stations which dot Canada's 3,500,000 square miles and record the state of the weather.

Fast Work

In a few minutes their findings are speeding over 21,000 miles of teletype lines to clatter a cryptic series of figures on teletype printers in public weather offices in Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, Halifax and Gander, Nfld. In some outlying posts, observations are telephoned or telegraphed to the nearest transmission point on the teletype hook-up. Reports are received from ships hundreds of miles off shore in the Atlantic or Pacific oceans.

As the reports appear on the teleprinter in each of the seven public weather offices, an observer seated before a blank map begins to plot the coded reports. At the end of an hour the map is covered with a mass of figures and symbols — the "shorthand" from which the forecast is finally made.

When the map is completed, the forecaster — usually a master of arts in physics — takes the map from the plotter. With deft pencil movements he traces in lines joining points of equal pressure. These curves which show the general pattern of high and low pressure are known as isobars.

Locates Fronts

From a study of these isobars he locates the fronts—the boundaries of various air masses on the map. Highs and lows are labelled, areas of rainfall shaded in and other notations made. About an hour after receiving the map the forecaster is about ready to forecast.

Before he begins, he must consult previous maps which tell him how fast and far the main pressure systems have moved during the last six, 12 or 24 hours. Is the air warmer or colder? Is it more, or less, moist? How is the air behaving at 20,000 feet?

His final move is to draw a prognostic chart — a map which indicates what the weather picture will look like at a given time in the future. Fronts are drawn in, so are isobars. Eventually a complete weather map begins to emerge — a map of the weather future of all North America.

Accuracy of this map depends largely on the skill of the weather forecaster and the period it covers. On short range forecasts he is right more than 90 per cent of the time; over longer periods his accuracy diminishes until at the end of a three-day period his forecast is little better than a scientifically-weighed guess.

GUIDED TO LANDING

London, July 7 (Reuters) — Planes reaching Britain from across the Atlantic after Aug. 1 will be guided to their destinations through defined air corridors in the interests of safety, parliament was told last night.

Bird Breeding Big Business For Hollander

By GEORGE FRANKS

Alphen-on-Rhine, The Netherlands, — (Reuters)—Some 4,000 birds of more than 400 varieties from 25 countries are the first feathered inhabitants of the new international bird park here.

The park, called Avifauna, which has grown from a private garden to one of the most remarkable spots in Europe, started with two white peacocks.

Gerard Van Den Brink, a successful Dutch businessman, wanted a few choice birds for his garden.

Although Holland breeds large numbers of birds, he quickly ran into difficulties. Looking for ways to overcome them, he saw both the limitations which hampered the average bird breeder and the almost unlimited possibilities awaiting anyone who tackled such a business with enterprise and far-sightedness.

He bought his two white peacocks —and began to work. He studied bird production figures, export statistics, and figures about the numbers of bird-lovers and fanciers in all parts of the world.

Out of this study, there emerged three vital facts:

1. Holland could greatly improve its already good business in breeding and selling birds;
2. Germany would shortly be making a keen bid to recapture her prewar trade in this activity; and
3. There were hundreds of thousands of waiting customers in Europe and almost millions elsewhere.

The bird park, in what Van Den Brink calls "its infancy," today represents an investment of about $180,000.

Architectural Gems

His bird houses are gems of architecture. Each has running water, flowering trees, gay blooms and even painted tropical and rural scenes. Some are traditional Dutch windmills or reproductions of famous Dutch buildings. Others are tiny bungalows with central heating and every modern convenience.

A waterfall flowing over colored lights pours 300 tons of water an hour through the five-acre park. A large pond stocked with 500,000 fish is already the permanent home of scores of pelicans, flamingoes, and dozens of varieties of ducks.

Smaller ponds edged with tiny buildings form series of bird-flats where pairs of swans, rare geese, penguins and myriads of water-fowl families each have their own private swimming pool, nesting grounds and nursery.

Ideal Surroundings

Love-birds, lyre birds, ostriches, emus, and a host of others live in ideal surroundings. For some of them, Van Den Brink paid as much as $800. Others he got by exchange, like the rare red-breasted Siberian geese which he obtained from Moscow in return for some monkeys.

But this bird-park, which is expected to be doubled in size during the coming year, is not merely an exhibition.

For some of his rarer varieties of birds, such as the red-breasted geese, Van Den Brink has already sold six months' anticipated breeding output in advance.

In the special canary house, 27 different colors of canaries are being bred, ranging from red through orange and salmon down to shell pink and cream.

About 500,000 visitors are expected at Avifauna this summer and it is already showing signs of becoming one of the most popular tourist attractions in Holland.

30 SUPERFORTS FLYING FROM U.S. TO KOREA

MAITLAND FLOOD WATERS

Strong winds have whipped up the floodwaters which cover hundreds of thousands of acres of valuable land near Maitland, Australia. It is feared this movement of water — caused by the wind — may result in extensive damage to homes. — (CP Photo.)

Australian Beef Flown to Coast To Avoid Drives

Sydney, Australia, — (CP) —Britain's urgent need of meat which does not involve dollars is awakening the Kimberley area of Western Australia with the drone of an airplane freighting beef to the coast.

The Kimberley division lies in the northwest corner of Australia. It is an extensive area, counting its human population in hundreds but with 500,000 cattle roaming its fertile valleys and tablelands.

Outlets to markets are the big problem. On the coast, almost 200 miles from the centre of the Kimberleys, is Wyndham, where there are meatworks and facilities for shipping beef to Britain.

Normally about 40,000 cattle are driven to Wyndham each killing season. They must be about five years old before they can face the arduous journey and on the way they lose about 100 pounds of dressed weight. It is a wasteful business.

Bold Experiment

The Commonwealth and Western Australian governments, in association with grazing interests, are trying a bold experiment.

At Glenroy, 195 miles southwest of Wyndham, they have built a small abattoir. All the buildings and equipment were flown in from the coast.

Cattle from 50 miles around are being slaughtered at the works, dressed and flown out—12,000 pounds at a time—by Bristol Freighter to Wyndham.

The Freighter will make three flights a day and the target is 60 head of cattle a day.

If the experiment is successful, another prefabricated abattoir will be built at Hall's Creek. Ultimate aim is a chain of small centres from where dressed meat will be flown to the coast.

TAKES TO LAND TRAVTL

Seattle, Wash., July 7 — (AP) — Next week the fastest thing on water will take to land travel and will be only as good as its name, which is "Slo-Mo-Shun."

The boat that set a world speed record of 160.3235 miles an hour will head for Detroit Monday to compete in the Gold Cup race July 22 and possibly in the Harmsworth Trophy race Sept. 1-2.

It will go by truck and take nearly a week to make the trip. Special permission had to be obtained in several states so the 11-foot, four-inch-wide craft could use the highways.

SWAPPED HUSBAND, NOW REGRETS IT

Declaring her "life of sin" is behind her, Mrs. Lynn Moore repents publicly at a tent revival meeting in Norwalk, Calif. She told a congregation of 200 how she swapped husbands with her next-door neighbor, Mrs. Frances Hardy. The two men secured their divorces together in Las Vegas, then married each other's mates. Mrs. Moore realized her mistake soon after making the shift. — Central Press Canadian

Corner Shots

A Weekly Peek At The Soccer Picture

BY ELDEE

Last Saturday's exhibition match against the Toronto Celtic was a very fine match. Unfortunately the visitors managed to get two quick goals before the All-Stars had settled down and the local boys could not make up the leeway. Although beaten by four goals to one the Quinte representatives were by no means disgraced. A return match in Toronto has been arranged for Labor Day Sept. 3rd. One pleasing thing about it was the fact that the Irishmen brought down about eighty supporters with them.

Flyers and Batawa are the finalists in the Belleville Merchants Charity Cup series. Last Monday evening Flyers ousted Belleville United in a very closely contested match at the Air Force station with a score of three goals to two. The final will be played on a date to be announced later by the Bay of Quinte F. A.

The final of the local play-offs for the Ontario Intermediate championship has been set for Monday 17th July at the Air Force ground. The winner of this match will enter the main provincial draw together with the winners of the play-offs in other localities. Last year this series was won by Toronto Riverside Imperials, with Kingston United being the other finalists.

Quite an upset was seen in the World Cup in Brazil last week. The mighty England was beaten one to nothing by the .S. team. This was contrary to all the form books and would be similar to an amateur baseball team beating a National League squad.

Today Belleville United travel to Peterborough to tussle with the local U.E.W. club in search of Eastern Ontario League points. In the other E.O.L. match scheduled for today Brockville entertain Ottawa Armed Services, and if this match is as good as the last one between these two teams it will certainly be well worth watching. In the local league 6 R.D . visit Flyers on Monday evening and on Thursday evening Flyers are away to Trenton Merchants.

Sports Roandup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 8 — (AP) — Boston Braves were heading home from what manager Billy Southworth called "an all-important swing" in which they faced all the other eastern clubs of the National League. And Billy obviously had his mind on pitching ......"I've got three pitchers," he said sadly, "three pitchers, Sain, Spahn and Bickford—Hogue on relief..That's not much when the doubleheaders come around."

Off The Arms

Once started, Billy couldn't seem to get away from pitching staffs...... "St. Louis has four good lefters, Brecheen, Brazle, Lanier and Pollet; Munger, Staley and Martin for right-handers," he pointed out.."And Ted Wilks is about ready again; He'll help them a lot on relief—and now they've got Al Papai....Besides, the Cardinals have the best reserve strength in the league.... I'd say Eddie Dyer's problem is who to send out"....The Phillies? ..."Well, they have those five good kids...."

See Billy's mouth water as he named them....How about Brooklyn't pitching? It hasn't looked too good lately.. "They've got numbers," said Southworth as he ticked them off on his fingers, "and they're good pitchers."

The Catch in It

Just to change the subject, you asked Southworth about his own catching staff. First it was Del Crandall who had been laid up with injuries, now Walker Cooper who isn't exactly young...... "Cooper's all right," said Billy firmly. "You can have Roy Campanella. He's a good catcher—but I'll take Cooper....And Crandall is coming around and will be a lot of help to Cooper....He's a good receiver, has a great arm and is getting his base hits. What more could you want?"....After an hour's listening, you could answer that for Billy—another pitcher or two.

Red Wings Rally In Ninth to Beat Toronto Leafs

(By Hhe Associated Press)

Don Bollweg, rookie first baseman with Rochester Red Wings, is handling a difficult assignment more than adequately.

Bollweg, up from Houston of the Texas League, opened the season at first base for Rochester but when husky Steve Bilko was returned by the parent St. Louis Cardinals, Bollweg was sidetracked.

When Bilko suffered a severe bruise on his left forearm recently, Bollweg was reinstated and he is making the most of his second opportunity.

Bollweg, flailing away at a .355 clip, has driven in 22 runs on 27 hits. He never hit as much as .300 in any of his previous five seasons in the Cardinal organization.

The strapping six-footer pounded out a homer, double and single and drove in three runs last night to help the pace - setting Wings down Toronto Maple Leafs 7-4.

Dick Cole also homered for the Wings and Bud Heslet and Billy Glynn for Toronto.

The Wings entered the ninth with the score tied 4-4. Del Wilber tripled to open the frame and Jocko Thompson relieved Buzz Bowers. Thompson fanned pinch-hitters Bilko and Larry Caiffone. He then walked Don Richmond. Hal Rice topped a slow bounder toward first in foul territory with catcher Vince Plumbo and Thompson after it. Suddenly the ball bounced and landed in Plumbo's glove in fair ground. Vilber scorced and Rice was safe as Glynn, who also ran in, left first base unprotected. Bollweg followed with his game-clinching double.

Outslug Giants

Baltimore Orioles outslugged Jersey City Giants 11-10 to take over second place in the International League from the Giants. The Orioles trail the Wings by three games.

Baltimore pulled the game out with a two-run rally in the 9th inning.

Ben Guintini smacked two homers for the Orioles and Chet Laabs and Stan Jok one each for the Giants.

Springfield Cubs broke a four-game losing streak by taking two games from Syracuse Chiefs, 4-3 and 13-1. The triumphs enabled the Cubs to regain fifth place from the Chiefs.

Springfield won the opener with a three-run rally in the sixth inning and breezed home in the nightcap. Ransom Jackson drove home five runs in the second game, four on a grand slam homer.

The last-place Buffalo Bisons edged the Montreal Royals 2-1 in an 11 - inning thriller. Al Stringer doubled home Hank Biatatti with two down to break up the game.

Sports Shorts From Britain

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 8 — (CP) — British sports scribes have tossed aside their crying towels to sing praises of a glamorous and efficient newcomer to the international tennis wars—19-year-old Susan Partridge of Birmingham.

In the midst of disappointment and dejected post-mortems following the 7-0 drubbing of Britain by the United States Wightman Cup squad, the unheralded Susan suddenly flashed across the stage to dispel the gloom.

With methodical skill and confidence, the young Birmingham Miss sidelined five seeded players in spectacular upsets to win the Lowther tournament, a pre-Wembledon tune-up event. This triumph normally would have placed her high among the candidates for the British Wightman Cup team, but its personnel had already been selected by the time she reached the limelight.

The experts agree that Susan may require a bit more seasoning. But they are hailing her as a heaven-sent prospect who may yet restore British tennis to the glories of the middle '30s when Dorothy Round, Bunny Austin and Fred Perry held sway.

Writing in the Daily Telegraph, tennis-specialist John Oliffe has this to say about the young star:

"I saw Miss Partridge play for the first time six months ago and was so startled by the perfection of her swing of the racket that I had to be persuaded to tone down my enthusiasm until she produced results.

"She now has proven herself to have that superb temperament which thrives on encouragement and sucecss. Therefore, I have no fear of spoiling her in suggesting she will be Wimbledon champion within five years."

Meanwhile, the so-called experts are seeking an answer to the query: How long will America's girl tennis stars continue to dominate the Wightman Cup scene?

In their post-mortems, British writers suggest that present methods of developing home talent should be changed. Coaching alone, they contend, is not enough. What is required is a regular diet of hard, competitive play.

Among the proposals, the most favored is a plan for the building up of a junior Wightman Cup team from the up-and-coming youngsters. Such a squad, it is suggested, should be entered in every major British tournament and even sent abroad for further experience.

Tomorrow Point Anne will play host to the Madoc Tennis Club in an exhibition series while on the same day the Quinte Tennis Club are holding another of their club round robin tournaments, so tennis should be well catered for this weekend.

A short time ago Perry and Donalda Everett were at the Seigniory Club in Montreal and won the championship run by the Mutual Life at their convention. They brought home a scroll to commemorate the event. Donalda has been invited to participate in the Ontario Ladies Open Doubles event in Toronto later in the month.

Finland Making Ambitious Plans For 1952 Games

Finland is asking amateur athletes of the whole world to compete in 1952 in Helsinki and despite war clouds is making ambibitious plans to stage the biggest of all Olympic Games.

"We have asked the International Olympic committee for the right to send invitations to all countries without discrimination and the committee has decided we have the right in principal," said Erick Von Frenckeel, president of the Finish' Olympic committee.

To participate athletes would need to meet the Olympic requirements. That means the amateur governing body for each sport in each country needs international recognition. In addition, each country's national Olympic committee must be recognized. Russia has membership in most of the international sports organizations but has no Olympic committee.

Von Frenckell, here today on an Olympic goodwill mission declined a direct answer to the question whether he thought Russia has membership in most of the international sports organizations but has no Olympic committee.

Von Frenckell, here today on an Olympic mission, declined a direct answer to the question whether he thought Russia would compete.

"The fact we are preparing to take care of 7,000 atheletes should be answer enough," he said.

The Jethroe-won't-make-it-society can adjourn. Sam, the former Montreal Royal, has arrived as a stand-out rookie of the year candidate.

Jethroe is a sure thing to dethrone another former Royals star, Jackie Robinson, as base-stealing champion in the National League. Already the lean Negro with the pipe-stem legs has stolen 21 bases. Closest to him is Brooklyn's Pee Wee Reese with seven. Robinson trails with five.

"He can steal 45 or 50," said Johnny Cooney, Boston Braves coach, "he's as fast as anybody around going from first to third a throw-back to the old days when base-stealing was important."

Canada's 1950 Bisley team Friday perfected arrangements for final shoots before the 12-day Commonwealth festival gets under way Monday at Bisley camp, Sussex.

Commanded by Maj. D. MacRae of Montreal, the 18-man squad has been on the ranges daily for the last two weeks, firing in all changes of the drizzly, windy and even chilly weather that has opened England's summer.

Individual and team workouts are planned for today, while Sunday a friendly match, the last of several which have enabled the Canadians to accustom themselves to Bisley conditions, will be held with the North London Rifle Club.

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League, came out with a blast recently against excessive salaries paid by certain teams in the Quebec Senior Hockey League, it was learned today.

Campbell, in an interview, also deplored deficits which most clubs incur annually, saying that a league that handles as much money as the Q.S.H.L. should at least come out even.

He said that certain teams in the league paid excessive salaries to certain players whose popularity overshadowed their real value.

Ottawa Rough Riders got the word that they won't have the services of two potential stars in the 1950 Big Four Football League season.

Alex Saunders and William (Buck) Rogers, both members of the R.C.A.F., have been posted to Summerside, P.E.I. and won't be around when the Riders start practises later this month.

Saunders had a good season with the Rough Riders last year pior to enlisting in the R.C.A.F. and was down to play again this year.

Rogers, who played for Riders in 1948 and with Regina in the western Conference last year, also was an Ottawa prospect for 1950.

Best Days for Fishing

BEST FISHING DAYS

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, author and creator of Solunar Tables)

Every now and again a request shows up in my mail box asking for the best days for fishing in a certin month. Usually these are for June, July or August — the vacation months.

I suppose that it is only natural for a man to want to play safe when he is selecting the all-important dates for that top time of the year, his summer vacation.

Naturally, I wish that I could tell him and know that my reply to his question will be correct. If a fellow has enough faith in me to ask a question like that, I hate to let him down.

The sad truth of the matter is that I can't. And neither can anybody else. I can tell him exactly when the best days should be. But I certainly can't, with a free conscience, give him a straightout unqualified reply.

Watch Periods For 26 Years

For more than twenty-six years I have been watching the Solunar Periods in operation. I carry a university degree, I'm reasonably intelligent, and I am well trained in observation.

I have read and studied everything I can find about weather and moon effects and I keep an open mind on the subject as a whole.

When someone shows me that weather and temperatures (and these automatically include water conditions) can be forecast accurately for as much as a month or two in advance, then, once I understand the system of prognostigation, I can tell a man when to expect the best that fishing has to offer for any month of the year.

At this writing I have yet to see any forecast of this sort that has even remote qualities of accuracy for a period of more than one month in advance.

Obviously, without this accurate information it is impossible to predict with any surety the best days for fishing. Entirely too many things can happen to upset the applecart.

Now don't misunderstand me. I'm not saying that no such method of forecasting exists. What I do say is that if it does indeed exist I have not had the good fortune to know of it.

Nowadays most fishermen know that changes in atmospheric pressure exert a great deal of influence on the behavior of fish. The barometer will tell them the story very quickly.

Fish are expert weather forecasters. I sometimes think that our meteorologists could learn a great deal from them. These latter all too often are wrong in their predictions. Fish never are. Nature has equipped them with an aneroid set that is better than anything we have yet devised.

While it is not generally known, I came up with what is now called "The Barometric Theory" back in 1928. That was in an after-dinner talk at the Anglers' Club of New York.

Findings Published

These findings were published some years later, three years before the theory was "discovered" by a gentleman in Chicago. Look it up if you wish—June issue of Outdoor Life, 1933.

Since then these same barometric effects have been discussed in several of my books and annually in the Solunar Tables since 1935.

For that matter, it does beat all how many people have "discovered" how to forecast the feeding times of fish since the Solunar Theory was first made public in 1934.

But to return to "the best fishing days"—this is about the best we can do for you on that score.

Careful observation and the collection of the vital statistics surrounding record catches of fish since 1926 indicate quite strongly that the probable best fishing days of any month are the three days of and immediately following the arrival of new moon—in other words, during the dark of the moon when there is no moon visible in the sky.

This is not always the case, however. Consider last May, for instance. Here in Pennsylvania those three days were cold, rainy and overcast. Adverse temperatures and shaky barometric conditions combined to make the fishing completely abominable.

Your best bet is to look up the apogee and perigee phases of the moon. When the moon is "in perigee," you are quite apt to have excellent fishing. "Perigee" is the point in the moon's orbit which is closest to the earth.

Here again, however, adverse conditions can and often do upset things completely.

Consult Your Almanac

You can consult your almanac, your horoscope or gaze into your crystal ball. Maybe you will come up with the right answer—maybe not. A falling barometer, approaching storms, unseasonable temperatures, abnormal water conditions—these and many other factors will frequently neutralize your best efforts.

However, the law of averages will see to it that you will be right fifty per cent of the time. Thus, if you put to good use the things that we do know, your batting average will be much better than .500.

This we can tell you with confidence. Regardless of the days you happen to select your Solunar Tables will tell you when to expect the best fishing that each particular day has to offer.

As I say—put to good use the things that we know. Keep track of the daily Solunar Periods. If you do, your days with rod or gun will be happier than if you are content simply to trust to luck.

Pitchers Simmons and Gray Producing for Phils, Tigers After Many Early Failures

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Remember when Curt Simmons was "the $65,000 bonus bust?" and Ted Gray was just Art Houtteman's roomie? Now they're the surprise pitchers of baseball.

Where would the Phillies be without Simmons' 10 wins? or Detroit with Gray's 10?

Simmons got his big chance when Manager Eddie Sawyer searched for another starter. He gave the young lefthander a turn. The bonus baby, only 21, still was wild but he made up for that with a whizzing strikeout pitch.

With Ken Heintzelman still groping for his second victory and Russ Meyer just beginning to hit his stride, the Phils would be bumping around in the second division of the National League if Simmons hadn't made good. Now, after Simmons' win over Brooklyn, they're tied for the lead with St. Louis.

Same story with Gray. For years the Tigers waited for the southpaw to take his wildness. He came up with Houtteman but Art zoomed ahead while Ted struggled for control.

Gray's role became all-important to Manager Red Rolfe when Virgil Trucks, his strikeout ace, came up with a sore arm in mid-May. A heavy burden fell on Gray and he responded like a champion. Four of his 10 wins were scored against the powerful Boston Red Sox.

Cleveland became his 10th victim last night when he let down the Indians with four hits, 5-2. It was an important victory in the opener of a big American League series with the onrushing Tribe.

Gray Whips Feller

A crowd of 55,145 saw Gray whip Bobby Feller to keep the Tigers 3½ games ahead of New York, which downed Boston, 5-2.

Gray made Manager Lou Boudreau, pinch hitting for Feller, hit into a double play with the bases loaded in the seventh. He struck out Al Rosen and forced Ike Boone to hit into a game-ending double play in the ninth.

Washington shelled Bob Hooper, who had beaten them three straight, for 16 hits en route to a 7-5 win over Philadelphia's A's.

Chicago and St. Louis split a twilight - night doubleheader. Dave Philley's two-run homer in the seventh gave the White Sox a 5-2 decision in the first game. Owen Friend's 10th-inning single won the 4-3 second game for St. Louis. The split moved the Browns into a seventh-place tie with the A's.

Knot Loop Race

With Simmons notching his 10th success, the Phils knotted the National League race. They whipped Brooklyn 7-2 and Pittsburgh snapped St. Louis' seven-game win streak, 9-1. As a result the Phils and Cardinals are tied for the lead.

Pittsburgh flattened Jerry Staley with a six-run blast in the first inning while 20-year-old Vernon Law went the route for his first big league victory. Ralph Kiner touched up reliefer Fred Martin for his 23rd homer with a man on in the second.

Johnny Sain, overlooked in the all-star picking, became the first big leaguer to hit the 12-win mark as Boston Braves subdued New York, 8-2.

Connie Ryan stole home on Johnny Vandermeer in the 11th inning for Cincinnati's 5-4 edge over Chicago. It was the only day game.

Seven Teams Enter Horseshoe Pitching League

A minimum of seven teams with expectation of others entering before the season opens, will complete in the Belleville and District Horseshoe Pitching Association this year it was revealed following a meeting Thursday evening of horseshoe pitching enthusiasts held at the new firehall.

Outcome of the meetings was the appointing of a schedule committee to draw up the schedule for the seven teams entered with play expected to get underway next week. Chairman of the schedule committee is Addison Lloyd. H. Rivest is president of the association with Frank Orr as vice president and W. J. Batchelor as secretary.

Teams entered so far are Northern Electric, Firemen and Police; Stewart Warner, Lingham St., team; Citizens' team, Corbys and the Corbin Lock.

The various teams will play a round robin series with playoffs arranged to determine the champion team of the association.

Military Draft Will Affect Many Players in Majors

New York, July 8 (AP)—How will the United States' military draft affect baseball?

Nobody knows for sure but the black headlines in the papers were the subject of discussion in most major league dugouts yesterday.

Approximately 25 per cent or about 100 of the 400 in the major league player pool are within the 19-through-25 age limit. Most however, are Second World War veterans, exempt from the draft by law.

The minors, of course, are a different poblem. Most of their players fit into the 19-through-25 pattern. Any extensive use of the draft could force a talent shortage.

Few of the "big names" in baseball come under the draft ages. Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox' $125,000 star, is 31. Joe DiMaggio, the Yankees' $100,000 ace, is 35. And both, of course, served in the last war.

The big guns of the National League, like Pittsburgh's Ralph Kiner, St. Louis' Stan Musial and Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson, all are over age. But many of Robinson's Brooklyn teammates are still young enough to go.

The Dodgers, Philadelphia Phils and Chicago Cubs could be hardest hit by the whole draft.

Detroit has several key men in the under-26 group and the Yankees have several right on the border line.

It's the Bat and Batters That Produce Home Runs Not the Lively Baseball

By TED SMITS

New York, July 8. (AP)—All right, so the 1950 baseball isn't any livelier than the 1940 or 1930 baseball.

Then what accounts for the outbreak of home runs, or triples and doubles?

Now about the bat?

Not that there is anything wrong with the bat. It is just being used differently—and more effectively. And it has gradually become smaller.

You can get a lot more distance on a hit by swinging a small bat fast than by swinging a big bat somewhat slower.

The rule governing bats says: "The bat shall be round, not over 2 3-4 inches in diameter at the thickest part, not more than 42 inches in length, and entirely of hard wood in one piece."

Most major leaguers now use a bat 35 inches long, 2 1-4 inches thick.

The big bat of 75 years ago was wonderful for punching out a single. Now what is wanted is a slender, light bat that can be whipped around at terrific speed—imparting, thereby, a tremendous velocity to a baseball.

Hillerich and Bradsby, the bat makers report that many major leaguers now are using bats slightly lighter than an ounce per inch where they used to be slightly more than an ounce per inch.

A. G. Spalding and brothers says the ball is just the same as it has been for years.

Then what accounts for the present outburst of homers? Here are some reasons:

1. Baseball pays off on homers. So everyone goes for distance, using light bats that permit fast swings.

2. An increasing number of shackles have been put on the pitchers. The spitters and the emery balls were outlawed. The instant a baseball gets scuffed in a big league game, out it goes—and with it goes the pitcher's chance to get a firmer grip.

3. Parks have become progressively smaller.

Dunlop Was Not Fooling, He Didn't Like the Idea So It Was Judged 'No Contest'

Insofar as wrestling is concerned there will be no international complications arising between Australia and Ireland, or Eire if you prefer it that way.

For last night after a more or less giddy whirl with the pride of County Leitrim, young Timmy Geohagen always having the edge, over snarling Fred Atkins, the not so easy-to-get-along-with Australian. Referee Bunny Dunlop who was not averse to taking a sock at Atkins, just to keep his "hand in", decided that the boys had fooled around long enough and after they decided to leave the ring for reasons unknown, let it go at that and called it "no contest."

The honorable Mr. Dunlop it seems, likes his wrestling where he can see it. After all, he did not purchase any reserved seats and as was his right as the third man in the ring, demanded that his wrestling fare be placed under his nose so to speak. It is apparently bad enough for him to see it at close hand, and he was in no mood to have to go looking for it. So when the handsome young Irishman and the snarling Aussie decided to mix matters outside the ring and sneer at Dunlop's invitation to get into the official focus, the venerable, or is he, Bunny, took matters into his own hand and waved the boys to the dressing room.

Sure, they argued. They barged around Bunny. They cajoled and coaxed, and even mixed matters a bit, but Dunlop was adamant. No pair of pachyderms were going to dictate to him. Even the famous Strangler Ed. Lewis, manager of the Geohagen, took exception to the official decision and leaped into the ring in protest. But even a former world's champion couldn't shake the official decision.

It was "no soap" as far as Dunlop was concerned, and if the boys wanted to go into an adjoining alley and settle their defferences, it was okay with him.

The up and coming young Irishman did not lose any prestige from the decision. In fact he upped a few notches in the popularity ladder, and the faithful howled its approval of his efforts, and its disapproval to the decision. Geohagen had a debote edge throughout the bout despite the fact he was slammed for a loss in the first fall.

He applied his famous "Irish Sleeper" hold in the second fall, and Mr. Atkins for the moment didn't know whether he was in Oshkosh, or Podunk Centre. He wandered around in a daze for fully a minute before some kind soul steered him in the general direction of the dessing room.

So it was even-stephen with the third fall coming up. Geohagen tossed Atkins out of the ring and followed through with a gazelle-like leap over the ropes. The side the ring mixing their points pair told each other bed-time stories outside the ring mixing their points with elbow smashes until referee Dunlop started to yawn and called the matter off.

Ray Villmer and Jim Moore staged a quick-fire thirty-minute semi-final that had plenty of action. Pat Flannigan took the measure of Toar Morgan.

Rich Ferguson Shines in Junior Track Meet

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, July 8 — (CP) —The experts who called Toronto's 19-year-old Rich Ferguson the outstanding junior distance runner in North America can come up with an "I-told-you-so" chant today. The kid is slightly terrific.

Just returned from an invasion of British and Continental tracks, the blonde youngster with the close - cropped hair stood out like a beacon in the opening program of the Canadian junior track and field championships Friday, shattering the Canadian native senior record for the two-mile event. His time of 9:31.6 made the old time of 9:49.2 set by Mervyn Gale of Montreal 19 years ago look like a walk.

His effort was just one of a long list of record - breaking performances as 250 athletes, from midgets to juniors, and from Halifax to Vancouver, kicked up dust at the opening of the two-day championships over Pantry Park in east end Toronto. At final reckoning, 13 records were set and one was tied. Officials predict that at least another 10 will fall before the meet ends tonight.

While Ferguson basked in the spotlight, three juniors from St. Lambert, Que., five 15-year-olds from Vancouver and tall Bob Bazos from the Toronto Red Devils track team nudged in for attention.

Clifford Howe from the Community Sports Association of St. Lambert came up with two firsts — a record - breaking nine feet, 9½-inch height to take the midget pole vault and a first in the midget high jump — giving his club a big boost in the point standings, 35, good for third spot.

Team-mates Colin Taylor and Dick Williams weren't far behind. Taylor took a third in the juvenile running broad jump and a fourth in the juvenile pole vault and Williams ran third in the juvenile 440-yard dash.

British Columbia depended on five Vancouver girls, all juniors, and they came up with three firsts — Alice Whitty of the Arctic Club in the running broad jump and Luella Law of the Pacific Athletic Club in the 60-metre hurdles and the team took the 440-yard relay. Seconds were posted by Anne Reid of the Lonsdale Track Club in the broad jump and Alice Folz of the Quadra Athletic Club in the hurdles.

Bazos collected three first places and posted two record - shattering marks doing it. He broke his own record of 129 feet, three inches in the junior boys discus with a heave of 134 feet, four inches, and clipped 1/10th second off the junior 120 - yard high hurdles with a 15.8 timing. His third victory was a throw of 170 feet nine inches in the junior javelin.

He contributed largely to Red Devils' point - total of 122, a clear 70 - point margin over the second - place Montreal Track Club which had two first - place winners — Jackie Carroll's record - breaking 50.4 seconds in the junior 440-yard dash and a first by Charlie Baillie in the midget eight-pound shot with a distance of 47 feet 11 7/8 inches.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Right about here Elva Tyme pops a good question at me. Suppose a player starts with the lead of a small card. Why not consider it from a short suit instead of a long suit, she wants to know.

With a choice between a long and a short suit, first lead from the long. Therefore, a small card lead is first assumed to be from a long suit; the fourth from highest in that suit.

Find out if it is not from a long suit. How? By subtracting the led card from 11. If more than that many higher are outside of the leader it is from a shortsuit; the highest in that suit.

When south is declarer at three no-trump the clubs in a deal are as shown here:

NORTH
♣A 8 4 2

WEST
♣6 5 3

EAST
♣K 10 7

SOUTH
♣Q J 9

The opening lead from west is club six. Before looking at any other cards, east does not know what the six lead means. It may be a fourth best of a long suit or highest of a short suit.

So, east subtracts six from 11 to see what he must look for. The answer is five. Only if he discovers more than five clubs higher than the six will east know that west led from a short suit.

East looks at the dummy and his own hand. Two higher are in the dummy hand. Three higher are in the east hand. Seeing five fourth best club.

If this is so, south can have no higher, west could have led a card in clubs higher than a six. So, if north plays small, east covers with the seven. South wins this with the nine and east has another think coming.

It is suddenly discovered that more than five clubs higher than the six are outside of leader. So, west must have led from a short.

This tells east that south has all the unseen clubs higher than the six. It warns him that west does not desire the return of a club.

Too many are scorning what partner is warning.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 8 (AP) — Today let's take a look at this week's Hollywood headlines.

The movie news may look a bit pale beside the other events of the day. But war or peace, boom or bust, Hollywood is always with us. So here is how the recent headlines look to this armchair analyst:

"Bette Davis returns from Mexican divorce, denies she'll marry soon."

That seems the right thing to do. Especially since her new romance, Gary Merrill, won't be free from his wife for a year. Mrs. Merrill got an old-fashioned California divorce, which takes all of 12 months to make final.

"Two thousand U.S. film theatres to close this year."

Oh, television, so there is thy sting.

"Lana Turner announces pregnancy early so co-workers won't think she's temperamental."

Miss Turner apparently feared other workers would take it to heart if she had to leave the sets without explanation. Ah, for the old days when a woman announced her motherhood merely because she wanted the whole wide world to know.

'Frank Sinatra and Ava Gardner have quiet dinner talk in London."

And press announcements are released with every course. The idea of Frank and Ava having a quiet dinner is about as likely as Hollywood tossing a Sub Rosa premiere.

AT THE BELLE — Franchot Tone is starred in "The Man on the Eiffel Tower" with every moment of high excitement filmed in color. Also starred in the melodrama are Charles Laughton, Burgess Meredith, Robert Hutton, the City of Paris, Jean Wallace, Patricia Roc and Belita.

AT THE McCARTHY — Two's company! Three's a riot! Rosalind Russell, Robert Cummings (top) and Gig Young in a scene from Columbia's "Tell It to the Judge" at the McCarthy Theatre today and Monday.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Satturday walk with pop, and a old man with long hair and a sad expression was making fierce noises on a violin to invite people to drop money in his hat, and I said, G, pop, if he wasn't sutch a bum player, people would probably give him more money.

Quite likely, but I am sure he would scorn to take money without giving something in retern, pop said. In other werds he has pride, and pride is a virtue that distinguishes man from the animals. That old gentleman would probably refuse to accept a penny from me if he thawt I needed it more than he does. Would you like me to prove it to you? he said, and I said Sure, pop, G.

All rite. I'll try it with this penny, pop said.

And he took one out of his pockit and went up to the old man, saying, Excuse me, sir, but as a lover of unusual sounds and honest endeavors, I would like to offer you a slite token of my appriciation. I am burdened with bills and taxes and I have a growing son who is a constant drain on me and a grown dawter who still expects expensive berthday presents, but you are welcome to this penny, he said.

And he held it out on him, and the old man said, Keep it, pardner, and here's one of mine to keep it company.

And he handed pop a penny and pop took it, saying, It'll come in handy, my proud frend, and while we're on the subject, I've got a cupple of dimes here that I'm afraid I mite lose. Will you keep them for me indefinitely? he said, and the old man said, Sure, pardner, I'll do that little things for you.

And he took the 2 dimes and winked at pop, winked back and we kept on going, and the old man started to make more skreeks on his violin.

TWEED

Tweed (Special) — Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc, are investigating the theft of a pure-bred Poll Angus cow one night last week from the farm of Fred Holmes of Queensboro. The cow was apparently stolen during the night and taken from the pasture where it was one of a herd by truck. No trace has been found of the cow or the person or persons responsible for stealing it.

Councillor Ken V. Burkett of Tweed, has been elected president of the Northern Electric Club, Belleville, Branch, for the year 1950-51. The club handles all social and athletic activities of the employees of the Northern Electric Company in Belleville. Mr. Burkett is secretary of the Tweed Memorial Parks Board.

The students from Tweed high school have left for camp Ipperwash, near Lake Huron, north of Sarnia, where they will be taking a special course in signalling for the next six weeks. The camp is operated for high school boys under the direction of the Canadian army. Ian Paul will be taking the senior course while Michael Moffat and Guy Thompson will be engaged in the junior course this year. The boys will be away at camp for the next six weeks.

Generous Response

W. N. Hurst, president of the Tweed Chamber of Commerce, has received a letter from H. W. Manning, general chairman of the Manitoba Relief Fund with headquarters in Winnipeg, expressing deep appreciation for the $1,005.74 sent to the fund by the local C. of C. The money was the proceeds of a drive made locally.

In his letter Mr. Manning says, "Will you please express to the people of Tweed, the sincere gratitude of the flood victims of Manitoba, for the sympathetic gererosity they have evidenced. Such response is truly heartening and we are most appreciative."

A special Dominion Day service was held at St. John's United Church, Tweed, on Sunday morning last. A male quartet composed of Harold Knapp, Gene Olberg, Glenn Connor and Douglas Connor, sang "Dear Land of Home". Gene Olberg of Chicago was guest soloist and rendered Malotte's "The Lord's Prayer", most effectively. The junior choir, under the direction of S. H. Connor sang "Green Pastures". Mrs. Fred Watson of Toronto, presided at the organ console.

THIS IS WHAT'S GOING ON IN RUSSIA

This radiophoto from Moscow, distributed through a Soviet news agency in the U.S., purports to show a foreman at the Ordjonikidze factory addressing fellow workers at a meeting called to protest American intervention in Korea. The Soviet press, meanwhile, has stepped up its campaign with the theme "the entire Soviet people decisively demands of the 'aggressors,' 'hands off Korea'." The editorials accompany news dispatches which show the South Korean army as in a state of disintegration. — Central Press Canadian.

Pert Pigeon Patrols Pavement Perambulates Past Pedestrians

A pigeon out for a mid day stroll on front street was not taking any chances on getting trampled by the noon hour crowds yesterday. Nor did friend pigeon expose himself to the hazard of dodging traffic on the busy street either.

Instead the safety wise bird wended its way underneath, around and in between the cars parked along the curb. The perky pigeon strutted steadily along, pausing now and then to slio across the sidewalk during a lull in the pedestrian traffic and do some window shopping.

Apparently the merchandise displayed in the shop windows failed to impress this patrician pigeon for after each inspection it would toss its head in haughty disdain and continue on its way.

The greyish purple head bobbed forward and back as this aristocratic dove strode resolutely down Front Street with a rolling gait similar to that of an old sailor who has been used to patrolling a heaving deck on the high seas.

No aimless stroller was this pigeon with a purpose as it circumvented various obstacles obstructing its path and on arriving at Campbell street, crossed to the other side, then stopped suddenly and made a left turn. Perhaps this dignified dove is delivering a message to the YMCA? However this could not have been the object of its search because after continuing up the sidewalk about 30 yards, it crossed to the opposite (side after making sure there were no cars coming) and returned to front.

When last seen, Mr. or maybe it was Miss or Mrs. Pigeon was standing at the corner of Campbell and Front looking down its bill at passing Bellevillians.

L. Brough Wins Women's Singles At Wimbledon

Wimbledon, July 8.— (AP) — Louise Brough of Beverley Hills, Calif., today won the women's singles of the all-England lawn tennis championships, defeating Mrs. Margaret Osborne du Pont of Wilmington, Del. The scores were 6-1, 3-6, 6-1.

The two American competitors split the first two sets.

Miss Brough shelled Mrs. du Pont off the famed centre court in 15 minutes to take the first, 6-1.

Mrs. du Pont came back to take the second 6-3, on some beautiful placements and Miss Brough's own errors. The defending champion was down, five matches to none, before she took her first game of the second set.

Miss Brough romped through the third and deciding set, losing only one match.

This is the third straight year that both the womens and men's singles titles have gone to the United States. Budge Patty of Los Angeles yesterday defeated Frank Sedgman of Australia.

It also is the third Wimbledon singles crown in a row for Miss Brough, who defeated Mrs. du Pont in last year's finale.

Thus the California girl is the first to win it three times running since Helen Wills Moody of the U.S. scored in 1927-28-29.

Queen Mary presented the championship trophy to the blonde, 27-year-old Californian following the match.

Weather Offices Provide Services of Broad Variety

By CAMERON JAMES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, July 8 (CP) — Calgary police phoned the forecast office there recently to find out if the weather was going to warm up.

"The prisoners are complaining about the cold and we want to know whether we should light a fire or not," the policeman explained.

Every day in the year forecast offices of the Dominion Transport Department's Meteorological Division are called upon to perform many such special services in addition to their main task of providing the routine public weather forecasts every six hours for use in the newspaper and over the radio.

Some of these services are of vital importance to many persons — others have a restricted usefulness.

Humidity Data Given

Montreal's Dorval weather office supplies humidity data to a manufacturer of shop-window mannequins who has found that high humidity adversely affects the retention of the liquid wax sprayed on the dummy frames.

A builder at Owen Sound, Ont., phoned the Toronto weather office last Winter and asked to be notified whenever the weatherman could assure a 36-hour period of above-freezing temperatures. He wanted to pour concrete.

Commercial gas producing concerns, chain groceterias, steel companies, shipbuilders, flour mills and bakeries, banks, travel agancies, dairies, hosiery mills and breakfast cereal producers ask and receive special forecasts and climatic data.

In addition to the short term, special and unscheduled requests —which are the categories into which all of the foregoing fall— some 450 marine and inland forecasts are issued each day by public weather offices in Canada.

Aid Fire Rangers

During the summer season, 70 fire-hazard forecasts are issued daily in connection with forest fire prevention. In Winter, transportation forecasts — both road and rail—replace the fire hazard forecasts.

Through telegraph companies a regular bulletin is provided to shippers of perishable commodities. These people are primarily interested in a 48-hour forecast —a request well within the scope of the weather service. They want to know the forecast temperatures for a large number of rail and road points in Canada and the United States. With the help of this information heating, icing or ventilation of cars can be ordered from the railway in advance.

Marine forecasts are issued each day on both coasts and on the Great Lakes. Essentially similar to inland forecasts, they give particular attention to winds and visibility.

Complex Business

The aviation weather service is a complex business. It includes routine aviation forecasts, operational forecasts, pilot briefing, dispatcher service, airway traffic control officers and other special forecasts. In addition Federal meteorologists are assigned to special duties with all three branches of the armed services.

Another climatological service makes use of weather records collected over a period of years to forecast future weather. For instance, would-be settlers in the northern areas are keenly interested in information on rainfall, duration of frost and so on, in order to tell them what crops to plant, when to plant them and what yields to expect.

Some of these records have been collected over a period of anywhere from 40 to 100 years. Data derived from these will tell what is "normal" weather to be expected during a specific length of time.

VALUABLE RING RECOVERED

Timmins, July 8 — (CP) —A ring valued at $5,000 slipped from the finger of Mrs J. McLaren of Brockville last night while Mrs. McLaren was watching a movie about a diamond thief. However, a search of the theatre turned up the ring a few hours later.

Mrs McLaren is here with her daughter, Judy, who is attending the summer skating school at nearby Schumacher.

WILL TAKE OFFICE

Montreal, July 8 — (CP) — Senator Rupert Davies, publisher of the Kingston (Ont.) Wig-Standard, sailed Friday aboard the Empress of France to make final arrangements in Britain to assume office early in 1951 as High Sheriff of Montgomeryshire.

Senator Davies sai dhis name had been on a list for the office for some time but he had been unable to make arrangements before now.

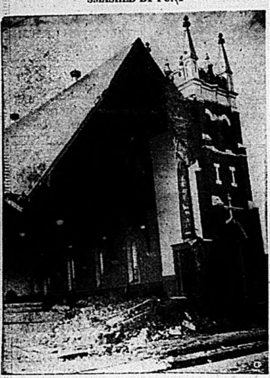
SMASHED BY PUNT



This is what happened when a punt broke loose from its moorings three miles up the flooded Mcleay River recently and was swept into the town of Kempsey, New South Wales. Before the vessel smashed against the Kempsey Methodist Church it extensively damaged a railway viaduct. This photo shows the damage to the church after flood waters receded. — (CP Photo.)

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

"And now," Yakov explained to the cat when they had gone, "we will take a more thorough look at the letters we found in Martin Falter's box."

Instead of the usual wooden frame, the portrait canvas was tacked to a playwood board. Yakov gently pried a dozen or so tacks loose and lifted the board Several letters were attached to the other side with strips of cellulose tape. He peeled them off and then took them back to the sitting room where he settled himself comfortably in the fireside chair.

"Here, first of all, Babushka, we have letters from the lovely Nellya to her friend, Martin. And here we have two very interesting communications from a young lady living in the state of Tennessee. Also of interest is this letter to our murdered friend from the onetime wardrobe mistress of an American ballet company. And this one, Babushka, it tells of Natasha, the talented sister of Nellya, and also of her child, a long lost child, who, of course, would be Nellya's niece." He scratched mechanicall at the cat's ear, "could we but locate that child, that young lady, she she would be of infinite help in our search for that which we have been ordered to find."

He threw a chunk of wood on the fire. "Orders. Always orders! Never is there a complete and happy divorcement from the orders." He stroked the cats' head "I am tied and therefore my conversation becomes dull and redundant. But all this is true. One must—as the Americans say — 'play the game,' or one courts sure disaster for those of one's family who have remained behind in the mother country."

He leaned back and extended his feet to the fire "so one dispatches, promising reports and continues the search. The daughter of Natasha would be invaluable at this time. But who is to say where the girl might be found?"

Slowly deliberate, he rested his elbows on his knees and pinched his lower lip between thumb and forefinger. His eyes were fiercely intent as he stared into the flames. His body stiffened, he snapped his fingers, then he sprang from his chair to pace the room.

The cat questioned him in her peculiar hoarse voice.

"It could be she!" Yakov exclaimed. "It could conceivably be she! The blue-eyed Miss Smith, the friend and assistant of Miss Hagar Blair!"

Stephanie, standing at the broad front windows of the Three Wishes Shop, looked at her watch and saw that it registered five o'clock. Hagar had promised to return by 4—she had gone to talk to Nell O'Neill about the cameo.

Hagar had, at first, been in favor of informing Nell that Stephanie was her niece and the rightful owner of the locket, then demanding that the cameo be returned to her. But Stephanie had argued that this would accomplish nothing. Nellya was sure to claim that the cameo had been given to her by Natasha, Stephanie's mother.

She recalled again, bitterly, the circumstances surrounding Nellya's theft of the locket. Her aunt had started operations by hammering at her sister that the locket should be sold to insure Stephanie's future. Natasha had held back a final decision but had permitted her sister to take the locket to an appraiser.

And that was the last they had seen of Nellya. Or of the locket.

Today, presumably, Hagar was finding out whether Nellya suspected the whereabouts of the cameo. Also, Hagar planned to let fall the information that she knew Nellya had no right to the piece. Backed by her authority as a well-known collector, Hagar would announce that she knew the entire story of the cameo, including the identity of its current legal owner.

A car slid to a stop in front of the shop. Stephanie drew a sharp deep breath as she recognized the driver. It was that young man again, Mr. Reddy, the police chief's assistant! He was here to ask more questions, she felt sure of it. And Hagar wasn't here to parry them this time!

The customer bell tinkled as he entered. Stephanie braced herself.

"Hello," he began pleasantly, "all alone today?"

She gave him a nervous smile and a slight nod. She watched him saunter here and there in the shop, looking at things, picking them up and putting them carefully down. He stood for a few seconds in front of the cameo cabinet, hands in the pockets of his gray flannel trousers.

He met her eyes: "Miss Blair out?"

"Yes." Stephanie heard the word come out as a soft squeak. She cleared her throat and tried again: "Yes. She had some business to—to attend to. Did you want to see her?"

"Not especially," he answered. "Much rather talk to you. Have you any new and bright ideas on the Cameo Case?"

Observing his grin, she relaxed a little. "The Cameo Case?"

His tone was casually friendly. "Better yet, we could call it the 'Case of the Carnelian Cameo.' It would help some if I knew what the think looked like. Everybody who's seen it gives me a different picture. You've seen it, haven't you? Why not give me your description?"

Stephanie felt fidgety. Her eyes probed the back of Reddy's head —he was again looking into the cameo cabinet.

"I suppose," he said, "it's a lot more impressive than any of these others."

"Oh yes!" She couldn't seem to curb her enthusiasm.

Stephanie made a little sketch of the cameo. Standing at her shoulder, Charlie Reddy let his eyes rest on the smooth shining wing of her hair which fell forward across her cheek.

"You see," she pointed with the pencil, "the carnelian itself is carved with the figure of a weeping woman. Around the stone is a narrow gold frame set with tiny diamonds. This frame has what you might call a superframe extending into little points like a crown, and on top of each point is a small pearl."

He was noticing how blue her eyes were. "Those diamonds — in the pin, I mean—are they what makes it valuable? Or the pearls maybe?"

"It's valuable because of what it is, because of what it represents. It has a history like something out of a story book. The locket was made for Isabella d'Este in the 15th century—"

"Did you say locket? I thought it was a pin."

Her eyes averted, she spoke slowly: "Hagar and I have reason to believe it is a locket."

"Either it is a locket or it isn't. If it is, it opens, and usually reveals family photographs or a lock of someone's hair."

"But it won't open. Not unless you know how. And we can't—that is, we haven't had a chance to find out how."

Reddy's gray eyes searched her face. "I understood that you and Miss Blair only saw the cameo twice."

"But we looked at it very close the day Arnold Pheiffer brought it here."

"Look, Stephanie Smith, how about breaking down and letting me be your friend—I have a hunch you could use one. I guarantee you can trust me with whatever's on your mind." He came toward her.

She backed away from him. He looked with surprise at the tears in her eyes.

"No," she said shakily, "no, I can't trust you! You're investigating this—this mess, aren't you? You're part of the police department, you're not interested in me except as a source of information." Her blue eyes flashed fire: "I'm not giving you any! I wouldn't even if I could."

He shrugged, sighing. "Believe it or not, but I am interested in you! And as a person, not as a principal in this case. And I think we could be good friends. But, until this thing is all cleared up we apparently haven't got a chance of establishing a personal rapport."

Her eyes locked with his. His grin returned and he released her: "Because you're one of the suspects," he said lightly, "it wouldn't be ethical for me to invite you out to dinner, so we'll just put that in the Happy Anticipation department. But nothing in the books says I can't drive you home. Isn't it about closing time?"

Stephanie gave him a relieved smile. "It is,' she agreed, "and I'd love a ride home." She moved around the shop turning out lights, adjusting blinds. "I can't imagine what's happened to Hagar. She said she'd be back around 4. Maybe she went directly to the house."

They locked the shop door behind them. Neither of them looked back. They did not see the black convertible which crept up in front of the shop and swung into the side driveway.

When they reached the house, Stephanie accepted Charlie's hand as she climbed from the car She turned a grave face toward the dark house:

"I'm worried. I wonder if Hagar could have had an accident. She drives that little car of hers at top speed all the time."

"Tell you what," Reddy said, "why don't I come in and wait with you a while. If she doesn't come back, we can drive around and hunt her up."

Stephanie nodded. "Come in then. I'll make a sandwich and some tea. Or, there's beer, if you'd like that."

He walked toward the kitchen. "Look, Stephanie Smith, this is after hours, let's use first names Mine's Charlie." He s'-ped in the doorway "what's so interesting out the back window?"

Without turning, she said: "There's a light on in Hagar's studio. I was trying to see if she is walking around in there."

She leaned closer to the window scrreen: "Hagar!" she called "Hagar, are you working?"

They listened. There was no sound except the rustle of the wind in the tall palm trees.

She unlocked the back door and switched on the outside light. They picked their way silently across the damp grass. They found the door to the studio standing slightly ajar. Stephanie pushed it open gingerly. He followed her in and they looked about them in the cluttered studio.

Stephanie shook her head in puzzled fashion: "She never leaves this door unlocked, or the light on. Most of her cameos are in that case over in the corner—they're quite valuable too. She's always so careful about protecting them. See those bars across the windows- And that big window has a burglar alarm on the sill."

SUGGESTS NEW METHODS

Stratford, July 8, (CP)—More than 250 cheese producers and dairy farmers, meeting here Friday night, suggested the Dominion government study some new methods of handling cheese and pay freight charges from Western ntario to the Montreal seaboard.

Chief proposal was that all milk be handled in a provincial pool regardless of its destination.

Alvin Fraser of St. Mary's proposed the pool handling of milk, he said it would assure fair allocation to cheese, butter, concentrated or fluid outlets.

HANDED OVER TO TENANTS

London, July 8 — (Reuters)—Lord Portman, 47, has handed over his Dorset estates of about five square miles to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue. In a letter to his tenants, Lord Portman said that high taxes payable on the death of his father in 1948 prevented his carrying on the estates as he wished.

ELIMINATE 'SONG OF RAILS'

Algiers, July 8 — (Reuters) — A Casablanca railway worker has taken a step towards removing the booble-de-bop from rail travel. Noel Cabrol patented a continuous rail with a semi-circular cross-section. He claims the absence of joints will eliminate the "Song of the Rails."

New Type Exams Is Advocated

Oral and written examinations testing memorization of facts are not a fair test of a student's worth and are based on wrong principles, Prof. Carlos Delgado de Carvailho, director of a forthcoming six-week UNESCO Geography Seminar at Macdonald College in Montreal, said.

In a press conference at Cercle Universitaire, Prof. Carvailho, who is a member of the teaching staff of the University of Brazil and author of 16 texts on geography, said that existing examination systems are conducted with pomp and circumstance frightening to students and deal with the candidate as a digit rather than as a human being.

"It is not a normal situation for a student to close his book and be required to produce facts in a room where there is nothing but ceiling above him and white paper before him," he said.

He advocates an examination system "which verifies the learning process in the student and reveals the results of his learning." In such an examination the student could take his text and note books and any other helpful material into the examination room and make full use of them. The examination would set forth a theme for the student to develop through the use—if necessary—of his books. In oral examinations the student might be asked to explain his notes taken in lectures during the school term, or to explain a passage in a book bearing on the subjects studied.

"It is impossible to know what an individual thinks about geography by asking him to memorize names of rivers and heights of mountains," he commented.

Prof. Carvailho has been advocating this new system of examination for three years, and it is now practised experimentally in history and geography in senior schools in the state of Minas Geraes in the Brazilian interior.

SECOND U.S. BATTALION CUT OFF BY REDS

Michigan Governor Caught in Uprising In State Prison

Daring Plot Thwarted By Fast Action of Guards

Marquette, Mich., July 10 — (AP) —A jail-break attempt with the governor of Michigan as hostage was foiled Saturday after a near riot.

The daring try, a plot by three hardened men held in Marquette State Prison, was thwarted after fast action by guards and police.

The governor, G. Mennen Williams, was caught in the middle of the uprising as he entered the kitchen to inspect food prepared for some 700 prisoners in the big dining room. He was unhurt

But the governor's bodyguard, George Kerr, was stabbed twice in the back and a prison guard suffered a broken arm.

Warden Emory Jacques said before the disturbance was quelled, more than 20 prisoners crowded around the kitchen door, threatening to start a major riot.

Warden Talks, Quiets men

"I kept talking and managed to quiet them down," he said.

The ring-leaders, who subsequently were placed in solitary confinement, were identified by prison authorities as Ralph Stearns, 50, of Detroit; John Halstead, 56, of Jackson, and "Crazy Jack" Hyatt, about 35, of Detroit.

Jacques gave this account:

Williams entered the dining hall just as the convicts were starting supper. With him were Kerr, the pilot of his plane and several other officials.

"We were standing at the back of the hall by a glass door which goes into the kitchen," Jacques said.

"Suddenly Hyatt who was in the kitchen, opened the door and came out swinging a mop handle. Then Stearns grabbed the governor by the arms and dragged him into the kitchen."

Jacques, Kerr and James Nancarrow, chief kitchen steward, stayed with the governor.

The warden said Stearns menaced Williams with a big kitchen knife Kerr went to the governor's aid, and Halstead turned on him with a smaller knife, wounding him twice in the back.

Warden Jacques shouted: 'Shoot to kill!"

Fires at Attacker

Sergeant Kerr whipped out his gun and fired at his attacker as guards pulled Stearns away fom Governor Williams and grabbed Hyatt.

In the scuffle Nancarrow was cut on the forearm with a potato masher in the hands of another pirsoner.

Kerr was the only member of the governor's party who was armed. All the time, Warden Jacques related, Stearns kept muttering: "I've served 22 years—I've served 22 years."

Another Youth Arrested in $21,000 Holdup

Toronto, July 10 — (CP) — Police arrested a 21-year-old Toronto youth Sunday at Bracebridge, 100 miles north of here and recovered all but $3,000 of the $21,000 stolen in a payroll robbery at the Acme Farmers Dairy here Friday.

Provincial police arrested Pat Italiano with a girl companion and took him to Toronto, where he led police to a cache where $4,500 was hidden.

Two other youths, Kenneth Grimley, 19, and Pat Marino, 23, were arrested Saturday and charged, together with Italiano, with armed robbery, shooting with intent to maim and automobile theft.

A fourth man, John Cowel, was held as a material witness. Police said Italiano's girl companion was picked up on a nominal charge of vagrancy "to ensure the recovery of the money."

Marino and Grimley appeared in court Saturday and were remanded to July 14. Italiano will appear in court today and is also expected to receive a remand.

Union Requires Non-Communist Pledge From Men

Detroit, July 10 — (AP)—The General Council of the big Ford Rouge Local 600, United Auto Workers (C. I. O.), voted Sunday to require non-communist pledges from all local officers and representatives.

The council is the policy-making body of the 60,000 - member local. It voted for the pledge 75 to 63. A majority backing local President Carl Stellato beat down stormy opposition. Stellato said 600 is the first UAW local to require a non-communist pledge.

"This will be called witch-hunting," Stellato said, "but how can that charge be justified when American soldiers are being killed in Korea? Now is the time for labor, especially the UAW and especially local 600, to take a stand strongly supporting President Truman."

The pledge will affect about 550 elected and appointed representatives, including members of the general council.

Gas Main Fire Is Believed To be Incendiary

Hamilton, July 10 — (CP) — Fire, believed incendiary in origin at a six-inch gas main which carries natural gas supply from one of the Grimsby Natural Gas Company's wells to the town of Grimsby, was under investigation today by Ontario Provincial Police.

At the point where the fire occurred the main goes through bush on the side of the Niagara escarpment, part way up the Grimsby Mountain Road. When discovby Mountain Road. When discoshooting in the air.

The blaze had been set at a point where workmen had been repairing a leak in the main, police said.

INVESTIGATE REPORT

Kingston, July 10 — (CP) — Provincial police are investigating a report that the body of the unknown man found floating in Lake Ontario southeast of Cobourg last Friday and brought here may be Lloyd Henderson, 37, of Cobourg. Henderson has been missing since June 4.

JUST GOES FISHING

Seattle, July 10 — (AP) —A frightened housewife telephoned police just before dawn yesterday to report that there were prowlers outside her home.

Officers reported:

"They made it, too."

One Major Rail Walkout Ended But U.S. Faces Possibility of Another

Chicago, July 10 — (AP) — With one major rail walkout ended, the United States faced possibility of another today.

Last Thursday, A.F.L. switchmen cancelled a walkout against four roads after President Truman said the strike was stopping the flow of grains and cattle, and threatened national defence. The strike remained in effect against the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad because, the union said, parallel rail services were available.

A federal court last Saturday night sent the last 1,500 striking switchmen back to work on the Rock Island.

Today, three other rail unions met in Chicago to decide whether their 250,000 members will strike to back up their demands for a shorter week and higher pay. They are the trainmen, conductors and yardmasters.

A cooling off period under the Railway Labor Act ends Saturday leaving these unions free to strike at any time after that.

With the government gravely concerned over military operations of U.S. forces participating in the United Nations intervention in Korea, President Truman has announced he is determined to keep transport arteries open. This firmness has been applied to the switchmen.

INTERIM RATE INCREASE GIVEN BELL TELEPHONE

Over-All Rise Will be 16 P.C.

Ottawa, July 10 (CP)—The Bell Telephone Company has been granted authority to increase its rates in Ontario and Quebec but just what this will mean in the monthly telephone bill is not yet clear.

In a decision made public last night, the Board of Transport Commissioners granted the company authority to make certain increases on an interim basis until a final decision is given on its application for an over-all revenue increase of 20.6 per cent.

In general, the board permitted increases of varying amounts for such services as long distance, private line extensions, service connections, moves and miscellaneous, as sought by the company.

But on the exchange-rates phase of its operations—the rates applying to local service for residences and business telephones—the commissioners granted only 50 per cent of the increase sought and only after a regrouping of exchanges.

On an annual basis, the rates and charges allowed by the board are expected to yield an over-all increase in revenues of about 16 per cent instead of the 20.6 per cent sought.

In Effect July 23

The new rates are expected to go into effect about July 23 and will remain in effect until the board hands down a final decision on the company's application for a 20.6-per-cent over-all increase in revenues, a case that was before the board for many weeks.

In Montreal last night Bell officials indicated that it would take some time to work out the new scale of rates.

In a statement the company said the interim increase would ameliorate the company's position in some measure but it felt it was entitled to the full 20.6-per-cent revenue increase it sought and looked forward "confidently to obtaining the balance of the increase applied for in the board's final judgment at an early date."

Coach Bus Driver Faces Charges

Toronto, July 10 (CP)— Pat Patterson, 38-year-old driver of a Gray Coach bus which collided Friday with an automobile near Bradford, killing six persons was, charged with manslaughter and dangerous driving.

Patterson, suffering a broken wrist, is expected to be released from hospital next week.

The crash occurred when the southbound bus was sideswiped by a truck on the crest of a hill, causing the bus to go out of control. It collided with a northbound car, carrying three men, two women and a boy, headed for a weekend in the country. All in the car were killed.

Carrier 'Magnificent', Two Destroyers Will Make Cruise In August to European Waters

Ottawa, July 10 — (CP) — Naval headquarters said today the Canadian aircraft carrier Magnificent and the destroyers Huron and Micmac will make a late - August cruise to European waters. Plans "are subject to alteration or cancellation should circumstances demand."

The Pacific-based destroyers Cayuga, Athabasca and Sioux, originally also scheduled to make the cruise, now are en route to Pearl Harbor. They probably will proceed later to Korean waters as Canada's contribution to United Nations anti-communist intervention forces there.

The Magnificent, Micmac and Huron are due to leave Halifax in late August for Londonderry, Northern Ireland. Arrangements have been made for the Canadian ships and carrier-borne aircraft to carry out two weeks of intensive anti-submarine training at the joint anti-submarine training school operated at Londonderry by the Royal Navy and Royal Air Force.

Later the Canadian naval units will visit Norway, Sweden, Denmark, The Netherlands, Belgium, France and Portugal as well as ports in the United Kingdom.

Gibraltar is listed as the last European stop on the way home.

SOUTH KOREANS NOW OUTFIGHTING NORTH BROTHERS

American headquarters in Korea, July 10 — (AP) — Curiously, American reverses in early small-scale combat with North Korean troops have boosted the morale of the South Korean army, United States military sources said today

The South Koreans now are outfighting their northern brothers in every clash of infantry against infantry. Since practically all of the North Korean armor is committed against the American forces, this means that the South Koreans are holding their own and even gaining ground.

The matter of morale rests on the facts that the North Korean armor defeated the Americans too. The South Koreans have regained face, an important factor in the far east.

The northern invaders have an unknown number of men along the extensive front from the east coast close to the 37th parallel to where the American forces are lined up near the west coast.

Hurt By Casualties

Without disclosing military information it can be said that the North Korean army strength was practically equalled, numerically, by the republic of Korea army at the outset—each reported to have about 100,000 men. Since then, however, the South Koreans have been disorganized and hurt by casualties.

The northern strength now is placed at 15 divisions containing about 6,000 combat troops in each division, plus an unknown number of service and supporting troops.

123 ARE KILLED BY EARTHQUAKES IN COLOMBIA

Bogota, Colombia, July 10 (AP) — At least 123 persons perished in weekend earthquakes which rocked North Central Colombia, destroying towns and crippling communications. Reports from the stricken area said the death toll may reach 200.

There was no estimate of the number injured in the four quakes, which struck North Santander province late Saturday and early Sunday, but the figure was expected to run high.

The Colombian government has rushed doctors, nurses and medicines in by plane. Food and supplies for the homeless, including tents are being flown in.

Official sources said telegraph and telephone lines were down while highways and roads were split by deep cleavages.

The provincial governor reported Arboledas and Cucutilla as "almost destroyed" and said many houses were damaged in other towns.

Unofficial reports reaching Cali said the towns of Salazar, Durania and Toledo had been destroyed.

A dispatch to the Bogota newspaper El Tiempo said several shocks had been reported at Cucúta, the provincial capital, which was destroyed by an earthquake 65 years ago. No serious damage was reported, however.

75 WALK OFF JOB

1,500 LONDON TRUCK DRIVERS SUPPORT STRIKE

Attlee Calls Meeting To Discuss Issue

London, July 10 — (Reuters) — More than 1,500 London truck drivers went on strike today in response to a call for an unofficial stoppage in support of the strike of meat drivers at Smithfield—central London meat market—now in its 16th day.

The nationalized road haulage executive announced that though 80 per cent of its drivers in the London area were working as usual, 1,415 men had not reported for duty today.

About 100 drivers bringing fish to the central London market at Billingsgate also stopped work at mid-day. Leaders of the strike, condemned by union officials as communist-inspired, said the main fruit, vegetable and produce market would be closed tomorrow.

They said drivers were holding hundreds of meetings tonight to discuss joining the strike.

Calls Meeting

Prime Minister Atlee called Transport Minster Alfred Barnes and Food Minister Maurice Webb to a cabinet meeting which was devoted almost entirely to a discussion of the transport strike.

Two thousand troops moved into London during the weekend ready to run essential goods transport services if the strike should spread. Another 2,000 troops stood ready to join them.

Meanwhile 3,000 soldiers and airmen, with a fleet of 700 trucks continued distributing London's the Smithfield market area, meat and grocery rations from where 1,400 meat transport drivers stopped work June 24 in protest against delays over their claim for a wage increase of 19 shillings ($2.95) a week.

Miners Return to Work

Edinburgh, — More than 2,000 striking Scottish coal miners returned to work today.

But most of the 13,000 men involved in the week-old stoppage waited the outcome of today's emergency meeting of union delegates here called to consider lower-paid workers' wage claims.

The dispute, which began last Monday when the National coal board rejected the claim, has affected 46 collieries. About 100,000 tons of coal have been lost.

Husband Kills Wife at Cottage State Police

Brewster, N.Y., July 10 — (AP) —Police said Mrs. Andrea Gehr, 30, of New York City, was shot and killed by her husband when she tracked him to a cottage near here this morning.

The husband, who claimed he fired "at prowlers," was arrested less than two hours later at Armonk, N.Y.

Police said he was accompanied by Mrs. Dorothea Matthews, 30-year-old brunette who has been locked in a bitter divorce battle for two years with her wealthy husband, Mark Matthews.

The dead woman's husband, Herbert Gehr, 39, is a New York photographer.

Two of five witnesses who accompanied Mrs. Gehr were slightly wounded.

Invaders Prepare For All-Out Drive On New Capital

Seven American Soldiers Found Dead With Hands Tied

Tokyo, July 11 — (Tuesday) — (CP) — North Korean forces have battled their way southward to within 20 air-line miles of Taejon, provisional South Korean capital a headquarters communique issued at midnight Monday night said.

The invading forces appear to be preparing for an all-out attack on Taejon, said a Reuters dispatch.

In other developments in the fast-moving fighting, communist forces cut off a second battalion of United States troops and seven American soldiers were found dead, killed by bullet wounds in the face.

Gen MacArthur's communique issued at 12.02 a.m. Tuesday (10:02 a.m. EDT Monday) told of the new North Korean push. He said it was made by the attacking 1st division, which had hemmed in an unidentified "lost" U.S. battalion in the Chonan area, 35 miles northwest of Taejon, for two days.

That battalion, which fought its way to safety, is not to be confused with the one reported cut off in Monday's dispatches. The second isolated detachment, said Reuters, is reported to be equipped with tanks.

(So far, communiques have not confirmed that U.S. armor has been thrown into the fighting.)

The midnight communique said the North Korean 1st division has pushed eastward from Chonan to Chongan, about 207 miles distant.

Another northern force, probably the 3rd division, was in contact with United States forces at Chochiwon, 15 miles southeast of Chonan.

Attacks Lose Momentum

Enemy attacks launched the night of July 7, which led to the capture of Chonan by the invaders, "temporarily lost momentum" between Chonan and Chochiwon, about 20 miles north of Taejon, said the communique. Taejon has been identified as advanced American field headquarters.

The communique however, added that enemy reconnaissance elements were active and enemy reinforcements were streaming toward the battle area, with "all indications pointing to a renewal of large-scale attacks."

At Chinchon, about 15 miles east of Chonan, the 2nd North Korean division engaged elements of a South Korean corps on a front just south of the city, it continued.

MacArthur said enemy pressure gained some ground in the Umsong-Chungju area, some 70 miles northeast of Chonan. Units of the 15th North Korean Division there forced back Southern Republican troops to high ground northwest of Umsong, he said.

Just south of Chunjo, major city in the Umsong fighting area, an enemy battalion with other forces opposed South Korean troops.

The United Nations commander said increased activities on the east coast still indicated pressure with opposition from friendly forces (probably allied naval and air units).

Moral Slipping Claim

MacArthur said there was evidence the morale of the North Korean communists is slipping under the heavy pressure applied by U.S. and Australian planes which Monday began around-the-clock attacks on them.

Some 46 enemy tanks, trapped on a highway near Chonan, were knocked out by the low flying planes Monday, front line dispatches said.

Earlier the news was more heartening for the south. Lt. Gen George E. Stratmeyer, commander of the United States Far East Air forces, said the combined efforts of ground naval and air forces have "stopped" the communist drive that has ground southward relentlessly for two weeks.

A headquarters communique issued Monday, reported a "distinct lull" in the ground fighting

The picture then, momentarily at least, was brighter.

By O. H. P. KING

Advanced American Headquarters in Korea, July 10 (AP) —The bodies of seven American soldiers, their hands tied behind them, were found today by the roadside in territory recaptured from the communist north Koreans.

Each had been killed by a bullet in the face. A spokesman said the Americans had been assigned to move ammunition forward.

He said Americans and north Korean troops still were fighting over possession of the area where the atrocities occurred at the time he left to make his report to nearby American headquarters.

The bodies were found by Lieut. D. C. Gates after four of his men went to a front-line area this morning. The area was subsequently lost and regained.

"They turned a corner and ran into two tanks," Gates said.

One jeep turned around and made a dash for it, he said. The driver was killed but his companion escaped.

"An observation post saw two in each of two other jeeps surrender," Gates said. "When I arrived on the spot I found my four men and three mortar men their hands tied behind them and a bullet fired in each face."

Warning by MacArthur

General MacArthur, United Nations commander in Korea warned last week that atrocity perpetrators would be punished if caught. He promised humane treatment to Red troops captured.

(Hours before the murder of the Americans was discovered Tokyo headquarters reported American planes had dropped leaflets informing north Korean troops they could expect decent treatment if captured. The leaflets also said General MacArthur "will expect similar treatment for American Nationals and members of the armed forces of the United States" as well as of all other persons who might fall into north Korean hands.)

Leaders of 160,000,000 Christians Study Work Done for 'Mass Society'

Toronto, July 10 — (CP) — Leaders of 160,000,000 Christians in 44 countries will take a critical new look this week at the job the church is doing for the modern "mass society."

One basis for discussion at a meeting of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches is a report prepared under direction of Bishop Stephen C. Neill, former assistant to the Anglican Archbishop of Canterbury. He now is Associate General Secretary of the World Council.

The report, concerned with the churches' so-called failure to attract industrial workers, says there has been virtual ignorance of "the radical change in the social structure of (church) environment."

The church had isolated itself in a "spiritual ghetto," holding on to "antiquated social concepts" and preaching "in a language without contemporary meaning and to carry on unimaginative and frequently irrevelant parish activities."

The church meetings lasts all week.

Summer Heat Brings Out Shorts, Halters, T-Shirts

The long and short of this tale, on a day like this is mostly short. Summer heat, when the thermometer registers 85, brings out the shorts and the halters and T-shirts.

The old swimming hole, where the birthday suit was the order of the day, isn't a very far call from main street these days. The younger generation has started a "bare skin" movement that you saw only in burlesque 20 years ago.

If the younger generation would keep the movement, things might not look too bad. But it remains for the matrons and the holidaying businessmen to make the worst of a cool thing. Probably men are the worst offenders, with knobby, hairy knees sticking out below their khaki shorts. Possibly one reason so many people are wearing sun glasses is not because of old Sol, but because they can't stand to look at the pipestems and bowlegs some men usually cover up with long pants.

Hopefuls who look for the day when the bare movement is gone had better reconsider. It comes with the summer, it's cool, if nothing else and it's a seasonal disease.

Parachutist Narrowly Misses Wires and Cars

While the large crowd gasped, and shouted directions, Charlie Murphy, dare-devil parachutist of this city, floating earthward in an upside down position, narrowly missed hydro wires and automobiles to effect a safe landing at Crystal Beach, near Madoc on Sunday.

Murphy, who was blindfolded, emerged with badly bruised shoulder, in what he said was the "toughest jump" of his parachutist career.

Leaping from the aircraft from a height of 3,000 feet, Murphy plummeted downward until he reached a height of 1,000, then jerked the ripcord.

He spun into an upside-down position and the strong wind blowing carried him over land. He had intended landing in the water. Underneath his blindfold he heard the cries of the excited crowd shouting instructions to him. He missed hydro wires by a mere three feet and dropped to earth ten feet away from a line of parked automobiles. He landed heavily on a shoulder.

The blindfold was securely tapped and Murphy was unable to remove it. A Mr. Smith of the College Street Stores was the first to reach him and remove the bandage. Murphy will jump again on Sunday July 23.

Driver's Courtesy Is Appreciated By Buffalo Family

Whatever Mrs. Edna Robinson, of Buffalo, New York, thought of Canadians prior to the Robinson family visit to Belleville recently, doesn't matter. Right now she thinks they are tops if the actions of a milk-wagon driver can be judged a criterion.

The driver, recorded as "No. 2 Reid's Dairy" gave a fine object in roadside courtesy and good neighborliness.

It appears the Robinsons, on their way back to Buffalo, had one of those motorists' bugbears, a flat tire.

Mr. Robinson, who was not in the best of health struggled with the pesky thing. Mrs. Robinson went to his aid.

A milk wagon rumbled up the street, and stopped. A pleasant voice broke on Mrs. Robinson's ear: "Just don't break your arm, lady, wait till I put my horse in the shade," it said.

He finished the job and replaced tools and other equipment. He refused any emolument with the remark: "It is my good deed for the day".

Mrs. Robinson, reporting the incident by letter to this newspaper expressed the family appreciation of the driver's courteous action.

"If I ever have a son," she wrote, "I want him to be like No. 2."

Cars in Collision On Foxboro Road

Herbert B. Hector of Hamilton and his wife and small daughter had their holidays abruptly interrupted Saturday evening when their car was in collision with another vehicle on the Foxboro highway just north of the city, doing considerable damage to both vehicles.

Mrs. Hector bumped her head on the windshield but otherwise there were no injuries.

The Hector vehicle was proceeding south when a northbound vehicle operated by Otho R. Denyes, Foxboro Road, attempted to make a left-hand turn, the two vehicles colliding. The left front of the Hector car was crumpled, as was the right front of the Denyes vehicle.

POLICE BLOTTER

Acting on the complaint of a South Front Street resident who stated that two men had tried to sell him a revolver on Firemen's Park, city police apprehended two Kingston men Sunday evening and are holding them for questioning. Vagrancy holding charges were laid against the men, who gave their names as Albert Millard and Thos. O'Brien.

When police answered the complaint they were unable to find the men on the park but a search located a revolver hidden at the base of a tree near the entrance to Victoria Park. The two men were later apprehended on Front Street.

Police were asked to investigate the disappearance of a cash box containing $20., together with several ball point pens, from the clean Rite Cleaners. The cash box was owned by the Lloyd Cleaners.

Fred W. Smith, 8 Franklin St., reported his house had been entered with a $500 cheque, together with money in bills having been taken from beneath a dresser scarf. The cheque was said to have been later located on the lawn.

A Mimico woman reported her car had been broken into with a briefcase and shoes missing. A camera and other articles left in the car had been left untouched.

The little girl was watching her brother, Douglas, aged nine, patch an inner tube, which they intended taking with them to Oak Lake Sunday evening. The boy had spread liquid cement on the tube and thinking it would hurry up the drying process touched it with a lighted match.

The cement exploded as the boy threw the flaming tube from him it struck his sister who was dressed in but a sun suit. Her sunsuit ablaze, the little girl dashed out of the workshop where her grandfather, Marshall Scrimshaw, caught her and smothered the flames.

The boy suffered burns to his arms and neck but the burns were not stated to be serious, and he was not admitted to hospital. The little girl was attended by Dr. J. H. Bateman.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 10 (CP)—Western oil stocks pushed higher in comparatively dull trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Base metals were also in good demand but most of the buying power appeared in early trading. Buying dried up in mid-session and leaders had difficulty holding their advances. Volume for the first three hours was 862,000 shares.

Piccadilly, a penny oil issue, was the most active stock for a strong gain following news of an offering of bonds and Bell Telephone jumped 1 3-8 to 41 3-8 in brisk trading in industrials following announcement of granting of an interim rate increase in Quebec and Ontario.

In western oils, Atlantic Oil added 20 cents at $2.40 and Pacific Petroleum and Federated Petroleum were in good demand.

Industrials were strong in early trading but slipped into the minus column as the session progressed.

Anacon Lead, a recent heavy loser, bounced ahead 25 cents to $1.95 to pace the base metal group.

A handful of junior gold producers showed gains ranging up to 10 cents.

Three Drowned In Lake Ramsay Near Sudbury

Sudbury, Ont., July 10 (CP)—Lake Ramsay, on the outskirts of Sudbury, claimed three lives in separate drowing mishaps this weekend.

Aime Laberge, 34, of Sudbury, was drowned Sunday when the canoe in which he and Albert Dault, also of Sudbury, were travelling, capsized. Dault escaped.

Alex Boyko, 19, of Alvena, Sask., was drowned Saturday while swimming 25 yards from shore. Police are still dragging for the body of a third victim, unidentified, who was drowned Saturday when a canoe turned over.

UK Govt. in Clear If it Survives Ticklish Debates

London, July 10 (Reuters) — If Labor's slim majority government comes through some ticklish parliamentary debates in the next few days, it is likely to be in the clear for nearly four months.

After this week, there are few issues on which the opposition will challenge the government's existence before Parliament shuts down at the end of July for the long summer recess. Labor holds a five-seat edge in commons.

But today the government must get its finance bill through third reading. And tomorrow the opposition will challenge War Minister John Strachey's plot against socialism speech—held by critics to be an attack on the Schuman plan.

If angered, Winston Churchill's opposition may press its threatened motion of censure against the government.

Parliament will not reassemble until October —unless the Korean war or other international developments demand an emergency session.

Expectations of a general election in the autumn have receded in recent weeks.

East German Refugees Win New Election

Kiel, Germany, July 10 — (AP) —East German refugees have made a strong showing in a British new election in their bid for control of the Schleswig-Holstein parliament.

Complete returns from Saturday's balloting in this state, which borders on Denmark, showed that the new refugee party had polled about 25 per cent of the total vote. That is enough to make it a definite power in the 69-member state parliament, and might even win a spot on a coalition government.

The election was watched throughout the country to see whether West Germany's 10,000,000 discontented refugees would become a political group to be reckoned with.

The new group cut deeply into the strength of the established political parties. The left-wing social democratic party, which has governed Schleswig-Holstein for several years, lost its parliamentary majority. It received less than one-third of the vote.

A right-wing bloc—the Christian democrats, free democrats and the German party—won first place by pooling their strength behind the same candidates in each of the 46 electoral districts.

The combine is similar to the right-wing coalition federal government at Bonn, and opposes the state's present socialist-planned economy.

Final official tabulation gave this division of the legislative seats: Right-wing bloc, 31; socialist democrats, 18, refugees, 16; South Schleswig-Holstein voters union, four.

There are some 1,000,000 refugees from East Germany crowded into Schleswig-Holstein.

Many members of the refugee party are homeless and jobless. They based their campaign on complaints that the state and federal governments have not done enough to help the refugees.

The total of 1,341,754 votes cast represented 78.2 per cent of those eligible to ballot.

Three Injured In Electric Blast Die in Hospital

London, Ont., July 10 (CP)—Three men who suffered serious burns in an electrical explosion in downtown London yesterday died in hospital today.

John Hemingway, 23, died early this morning, Robert Gilbert, 56 shortly after 10 a.m. and Jack Storey, 31, early in the afternoon.

The three men were with a public utilities commission crew replacing transformers in the vault.

E. V. Buchanan, P.U.C. general manager, said that a defect in the high voltage switch of the new transformer probably caused the explosion.

UNITED NATIONS AND SECURITY COUNCIL

Wherever one looks in the news now, the United Nations is mentioned. Much of the history of the formation and workings of U.N. has been forgotten, and possibly the basic outline of its functions has faded from public view.

In that event, perhaps a brief diagram of United Nations, its duties, aims and component parts might make the position of the peace-dedicated body better understood. The basis of the organization sprang from the Atlantic Charter of August 14, 1941, when Roosevelt and Churchill met "at sea" and announced eight principles to which their countries were dedicated. These included a ban on territorial aggrandizement, freedom of people to choose their own type of government, equal access to world raw materials, improved living standards, freedom on the seas, and abandonment of the use of force.

On January 1, 1942, 26 nations signed the United Nations Declaration, and a world body for peace was born. There followed the Casablanca and Quebec conferences, Cairo, Teheran, (at which the might of Britain, the U.S., and Russia was formally welded into a common force to defeat Hitler), Bretton Woods, Quebec again, Yalta, and finally San Francisco.

It was at San Francisco that delegates gathered from all over the world in April, 1945, to create the six divisions of the world body. First of the divisions is the General Assembly, at which each nation seats at least one representative, and can seat as many as five. This body is a "recommendation" forum, wherein all sorts of questions may be debated. General Assembly actions consist of recommendations passed with a two-thirds majority to the Security Council, and election of six delegates to that Council.

The Security Council is the powerhouse of U.N. Eleven nations sit on it, with five permanent seats belonging to Britain, the United States, the U.S.S.R., China and France. Each or all of these may exercise what is known as a "veto" on any proposed action. A seven-elevenths vote is required in the Council, providing one of the Big Five does not veto.

Third body is the Economic and Social Council, consisting of 18 elected nations, designed to study any peacetime trends that might lead to war. Fourth is the Trusteeship Council, which has supervisory powers over governments ruling people in mandated territories. The International Court of Justice, the fifth division, replaces the World Court of the Hague. Last in line is the Secretariat, which overseas the organization.

The Security Council may use what methods it may deem necessary to subdue threats to peace, to the final extreme of calling on member nations to provide armies, navies and air forces to stop aggressors.

That is the United Nations, a body by its own words committed to "maintain international peace and security," and "to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war."

If the United Nations can match its illustrious history with actions to keep the peace it will surely continue and thrive.

FLYING SAUCERS

Week after week, someone new sees a flying saucer. Since the first man spotted a rotating disc in the sky, interesting and sometimes fantastic tales have come from all over North America about silver plates flashing in the sun, whistling spheriods zipping through the atmosphere.

Several magazines have taken up the battle, on both sides. One claims to have absolute top-secret information that the saucers are part and parcel of United States weapon research. Others scoff, say the discs are imagination running riot. The jeers have been softened lately by seemingly authentic pictures of discs taken by ordinary camera artists.

Classic example of camera artistry was the picture taken by an unimpressed farmer in the States a few weeks ago. He caught the disc with an ordinary box camera, and told reporters that if the experts said there just wasn't any such animal as a flying saucer, then he certainly couldn't have taken a picture of one. Yet it showed up plainly on his negative. But, he said, if the non-existent saucer ever comes back again, he'll take the picture again.

If these saucers are the result of mass hullucinations, we think it is time the nonsense stopped. If, on the other hand, they are results of scientific research, then it should be admitted. At present, never having seen one, and therefore not convinced that they do exist, we remain unimpressed.

Gracefulness has been defined as the outward expression of the inward harmony of the soul. — Hazlitt.

THEY CAME TO CHEER

There should be schools to teach the way
To visit with the ill;
To give instructions what to say,
And better, when keep still.
I know with good intentions all
The visitors are moved to call,
But after visits many a nurse
Has found her patient's fever worse.

When something vicious laid me low,
A friendly chap dropped in.
He wished my cause of pain to know.
I told him with a grin.
"That's bad!" said he, and twirled his hat.
"I had an old aunt die from that!"
And not until he disappeared
Was I aware that I'd been cheered.

One caller told me (and I'm glad
I can't recall his name):
His father once my illness had
And never was the same.
His doctor went from place to place
To lecture on his father's case.
"It's in the book he wrote," said he,
Which didn't greatly comfort me.

Now I can laugh that off, but some
I'm sure more ill-at-ease become.

Strength for the Day

PLACE OF RELIGION IN LIFE

There are millions of people who go through life paying no attention to God, church, Bible or prayer. Sometimes a severe jolt makes them realize their mistake. But there are many more who go from the cradle to the grave never giving the least attention to these things. The church is all right for marrying and burying. The Bible, they say, is probably a good-enough book for people who have the patience to read it and the credulity to believe it. But for these "superior" persons, life can be very well lived without God.

Someone has said that until we kneel before God we are never really able to stand up to anything Disappointment is the lot of every human soul. We make mistakes every day of our lives. The batting average of most of us is never too high. How do some people meet issues of life when they have no inner resources to support them in a day of need?

Religion will work for us if we let it work. It is while we are on our knees that we begin to learn what this tangled skein of circumstances is all about. Religious faith puts something into the heart which enables us to face the issues of life unafraid and with a deepening understanding of their meaning.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON HANDLING FRIENDS

One reason why some people have so few friends is that they have not learned the art of handling them! A writer recently ran a series of articles about Westbrook Pegler. He could hardly say a good word for him. One nice thing he did say, and that was that he treated his wife as though she were a costly piece of china, meaning that he gave her every kindly consideration. With me that would be quite enough to establish such a one as my friend!

You can't get very close to a friend by saying mean things about him. You can overlook so much if he is kindly and considerate. Look for the fine things in a friend, overlook the others and you will have him for a long time.

The tastes, habits, thinking and background of another, are different and varied in every human being. There is no greater art than that of friendship, but people take too little time in which to perfect it. It is an investment, however, that one can carry throughout life, and receive continual dividends from—daily, and not merely quarterly or annually.

We should handle others as we would like them to handle us—in other words, set up the Golden Rule as a guide. You can't lose by it. Play up, honestly, to your friend. It won't hurt you, and it will give him a life. Even a deserved moment of flattery won't harm him, and may please him. We all like to have pleasant and deserved things said about us—in our presence. Even a race horse runs better after a pat on the nose!

There is one outstanding thing that contributes more than almost anything else to the handling and holding of a friend, and that is sincerity. Be genuine in your praise of that friend, and you will be worthy of every returning appreciation. Be ready to sacrifice your time or strength, or kind offices, that you may be of some help to your friend, when most in need.

We all can lose in material things, yet remain rich and happy if we have but a few selected friends to whom we can tie, trust and turn. Handle them well in prosperity and they will not desert you if misfortune walks your way.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

THOSE MULLIGANS

Bon Accord, Alta.—We dropped in on the Mulligans today and they're as fabulous as advertised.

You've probably read about the Mulligans. Paw and Maw and their eleven kids woke one day on their decrepit farm to find they were sitting over a sea of oil. They've already cashed in to the extent of $40,000 and probably are set for life.

In dusty little Bon Accord, 18 miles north of Edmonton, where we stopped to ask directions, they told us Bill Mulligan's place was the one with the spruce trees two miles up the road. Which was true enough. But there were two more positive landmarks—a big, new oil storage tank and a seven passenger Chrysler with white-wall tires.

The farm is about as beat-up and ancient as a building can get without falling down. The winds of 50 years have swept the dirt up the leaning sides of the old shack and, outwardly it looks like a picture of despair.

But the Mulligans, in a cock-eyed kind of way, are indomitable.

The two twins, Lloyd George and Floyd George, 10 years old, wild-haired and gap-toothed welcomed us with shouts and led us in to meet the old man.

He was sitting on a battered chesterfield that sagged springless almost to the plank floor. The room was in near darkness at midday, cluttered to the walls with weathered furniture and, among it, a brand new walnut dining room suite.

Bill Mulligan is 62, a leathery-faced men who looks as if he's going to bust out laughing at any minute. Two reedy, teen-age daughters were draped about him, shoe-less, and nine-year-old Ruth lay across his lap, pulling at his socks. The old man gave her a cuff across the head and she ran off among the furniture, giggling. It was quite a scene.

Staying Put

"Money ain't gonna make no difference to us," Bill laughed. "Why, say folks around here thought I'd be goin' around wearin' a tuxedo, hat and all, but 'bout all it means to me is gettin' more cow manure."

Little Ruthie poked her head out from under what appeared to be a picnic table and shouted, "That's right, Paw, by Cripes," and ducked out of sight again. The other girls snuggled closer to the old man. Floyd George ran through the room hotly pursued by Lloyd George.

At this confusing point Florence Mulligan came into the room, a little, erect darting-eyed woman in a faded house dress. "Maw's lookin' after everything, ain't that right, Maw?" Paw said.

"I got it all in books," Maw said in a strident voice. "We gone through quite a bit what with the tractors and trucks we bought the older boys an' my car, but we still got some in the bank. We're goin' to build a house out back."

"Ain't gonna have no upstairs," Paw said. "Maw's gettin' too old to go traipsin' up and down stairs. We ain't havin' no archy-teck, either. My boy, Harry is our archy-teck."

At this Maw produced a corn flake box on which a crude floor plan had been drawn in pencil by Harry, one of the four older boys who, were off somewhere running their new tractors.

'Plenty o' pantries, that's what I wanted," Maw said proudly. "An' it's gonna be stucco, too, with inside toilet and 'lectric light. Nothin' wrong with this house, but it's gettin' small for us."

"She's the damndest woman," Paw said with an admiring glance at his wife. "Never even bought herself a new hat."

To the Barn

The Mulligans appear uncertain and unconcerned about their current financial status. As owners of their farm's mineral rights, they're said to have made between $40,000 and $50,000 by selling "points" of their 12 1-2 percent interest in Metro-Excelsior No. 1, the bonanza on their property. Another hole drilled on the 320 acres was dry, but they'll probably get around $100 a week on a percentage basis.

"We ain't goin' away, that's sure," Paw said. "Our kids was born and raised here an' we like it. Drove all down through Montana and Wyoming when Maw got the car an' there's nothing the likes of Bon Accord."

"Say!" Maw interjected. "I got to go out and see the sick cow!" She made for the back door and rest of us followed her out into the littered yard.

The ramshackle barn was about 50 yards away, but Maw slipped in behind the wheel of the big car. The children piled in front with her. They all waved as the long black sedan bounced across the field. Maw was driving with her elbow professionally out the window.

Old Bill chuckled delightedly. "That woman can handle machinery like nobody I ever seen," he said. "That woman can run any dam' thing on the farm 'ceptin' that oil rig." And the old man looked across his dusty fields at the head of the well a stone's throw from the shack.

"By gosh, it's a funny world, ain't it?" he said.

Russian Strategy Used in Berlin Seen in Korea

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

One of the most important aims of Russian strategy in furthering its world revolution is to bleed the democracies economically with the hope of rendering them vulnerable to red attack.

This crafty line of thought long has permeated Bolshevist operations. The same thing happened in Berlin. That forced the United States and Britain to maintain a long and tremendously costly airlift to provide the city with necessities. Russia carried out this coup without expending much strength herself.

Now we have the Korean show, which is more or less a piece off the same cloth. Russia has two main objectives in backing communist North Korea's invasion of non-communist South Korea.

These objectives are (1) to gain control of the entire Korean peninsula because of its strategic values in possible future operations, and (2) to compel the western allies to spread themselves and to expend economic strength in defending the South Korean Republic.

Again we note that while Russia has trained the North Korean armies, and has provided many sinews of war, Russia itself hasn't become directly involved. As usual she in using one of her satellites to do the heavy work for her — under expert Russian military guidance, of course.

And Korea isn't by any means the only theatre involved in this red strategy.

Assign Naval Units

In China the Chinese communist regime has served notice on the United Nations that it is determined to capture the big island of Formosa "despite any military steps of obstruction taken by the United States government." The United States has assigned naval units to protect Formosa, which is the seat of Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist government and his last stronghold.

What is the significance of this?" It means that Moscow is pushing another of its satellites into the foreground to challenge the United States. It is an effort to make the United States weaken itself by widening its operations.

As this column has pointed out before, Russia is in the position of pouring an endless stream of Manchurian and Chinese communist troops down through the North Korean funnel into South Korea. As long as this can continue there always will be new red troops to take the place of those knocked out.

The U. S. will have to bring a lot of military strength into play before the situation can be overcome — and that will take time.

Canadian Breakfast

Hamilton Spectator: — The trouble with breakfast in this country is that, like most of our culinary operations, there is no imagination about it. In some parts of the Dominion habits of our forefathers and unlimited natural resources have rather solved the problem by chance. In the Maritimes many servicemen from "Upper Canada" were frankly jolted in the war by the bluenose habit of having fish cakes and baked beans (perhaps some cake on the side) for breakfast —or gaspereaux if there were any around. Manitoba always keeps the wonderful goldeye in the cupboard as a delicacy and British Columbia has all kinds of things like the Oolican or candlefish. Elsewhere it is a grim reliance on bacon and eggs, or apparently the sinker.

DEGENERATION AWAITS US ALL IF WE LIVE

A veteran of the Spanish-American war is 85 years of age and wants to live long enough to see how World War III will come out. So he wants advice on some health questions, his physician says. For instance, how many eggs should he eat?—he has heard that cholesterol in egg yolk is bad for the arteries. May he eat sweetbreads?

The veteran realizes that his organs are all slowing down or giving out with age, but he does not like the connotation of the word degenerative or degenration.

Webster's says: Degeneration noun. Med. Deterioration of a tissue or an organ in which its vitality is diminished; a substitution of a lower for a higher form of structure, either by chemical change of the tissue (true degeneration) or by the deposit of abnormal matter in the tissues (infiltration.)

Webster's definition is pretty good, but Stedman's medical dictionary gives a better definition, I think: A retrogressive pathological change in cells and tissues in consequence of which the functioning power is lost and the living substance becomes converted into an inert mass.

This may seem pretty depressing to middle aged readers. Young folks won't worry much about it until they approach thirty-five or fourty. Then for fifteen years they may feel blue or sad whenever they dwell on the idea of degeneration, that is, slow death, which is the way we all go, barring accidents. Not till fifty-five or sixty do most people sit back and think it over and finally realize that they are pretty well along with their dying already, and after that they generally worry about it no more than is good for them. I mean it is good for anyone to worry just enough about his or her health to realize it is time to seek proper medical advice or care before the trouble that makes one worry advances beyond help.

Because of this common misapprehension the veteran's physician believes that even if pathologists persist in the use of such terms as "fatty degeneration" of the heart, for example, clinicians, particularly family doctors, might find a more agreeable term to use in conversation with the patient or members of the patient's family. A more appropriate term, the physician suggests, would be retrogression or deterioration or impairment. Even decrepitude, failing or infirmity would be less embarrassing than degeneration.

The veteran's physician sums up his kindly observations with the conclusion that the term retrogression may be misleading in that it sounds so encouraging compared to degeneration. However, he sends along his thoughts in the hope that they may induce someone to come up with a term which will be more satisfactory.

I'm afraid a good many people would not understand what retrogression means. Deterioration seems nearly as equivocal as degeneration.

The least objectionable and at the same time precise term I have been able to find is physical degeneration. No one can take offence at this. Barring accidents it is the way we die if we live long enough. Natural death.

As I keep telling you, to no apparent purpose, at some point between 35 and 55 (a liberal estimate) every one reaches his or her peak, full growth and development. At that instant he or she begins to decline, deteriorate degenerate or die. The rate or speed of decline depends on vite Vite is a word you will not find in Webster. It is defined in the booklet The 7 Keys to Vite, for which send stamped self-addressed envelope and twenty-five cents.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Wheat to Eat

How can a person who eats all his meals in restaurants obtain real whole wheat bread to get an adequate supply of vitamin B complex? Does the bread called "whole wheat" and the cereal preparation......? (M.P.)

Answer — Only way I know is to buy wheat from a farmer, market or mill and grind it daily in your own hand or power mill or have it ground in small quantities by such a mill. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet Wheat To Eat. Small hand and power mills for grinding your own wheat are marketed by various manufacturers.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

According to UN figures, 70,000 babies are born into the world every day. That makes 25,000,000 souls added each year to the present world population of 2,200 millions.

At this rate of increase, we will double the world's population in a little less than two generations. Pretty soon there will be no distinction in being a human being. We will be as common as mice.

But who among us is going to do anything about it? If one of us happens, today, to be welcoming one of this day's 70,000, are we downhearted? Far from it. It is the occasion of sending flowers, handing around cigars, despatching telegrams and rushing down to the newspaper offices to insert announcements. No thought of the other 69,999 so much as enters a man's mind as he stalks proudly amid his fellow workers, bracing his back to receive hearty slaps on it. As for the new mother, you might better try to interest her in how far the moon is from the earth as to tell her that 69,999 other women have shared and are sharing this day's job with her. She simply would not believe you. A new baby is, in those concerned with it, unique.

This attitude is not characteristic with us alone. Hindus, Chinese, Eskimo, African mothers and fathers all share this proud feeling of individual performance. And when they bend over the little creature, in something close to adoration, they experience a feeling of private and personal benediction. It would ruin the whole illusion to reflect that this feeble morsel is merely one of 70,000 almost identical atoms, liberated into our already confused midst this day.

Nothing much can stay or suspend this terrific tide of humanity advancing, lava-like, over the face of the world. Scientists have lately attempted to reasure themselves rather than us, by asserting that the unexplored jungles of Brazil, as well as the wide expanses of the arctic, offer ample room for the calculated increase of two generations. But where on earth will the cows and sheep go, to say nothing of the mice?

Cars Collide At Intersection, No One Injured

Trenton, (Special.)—By making a quick dash and throwing himself on the sidewalk, W. G. Ault, 66 Catherine Street, saved himself from what could have been serious injury Saturday, when two cars collided at the intersection of King and Dufferin Streets.

Mr. Ault was walking along King Street, and as he was crossing Dufferin, ha saw that a north bound car was not going to stop for the stop sign at King and Dufferin. At the same time he noticed that a taxi coming down King Street was going to collide with the approaching auto, Mr. Ault made a dive for the opposite side and just made it as the two cars collided.

Richard Groves, 23, of Madoc, admitted to police that he failed to stop at the intersection of King and Dufferin and his car collided with a taxi driven by Charles G. Patrick, Trenton. Patrick skidded 42 feet before the impact in an effort to avoid the collision and his car continued for 43 feet after the crash. Extensive damage was done to both the cars.

Constable R. L. Jensen investigated.

American Headquarters in Korea, July 10 — (AP) — One slender thread links the world with the Korean scene where history is being written.

That thread is the single telephone circuit from here to Tokyo.

All the front-line news of the crucial conflict is channelled through that one line.

It is shared by the military, the United Nations Commission and correspondents. There are 40 correspondents already on the scene and a score of others en route — and the press comes third in priority on the telephone.

Only another newspaper man can fully appreciate the mental anguish the correspondents suffer from the inevitable delays in getting out their hottest stories, but perhaps this explanation of the system will give the newspaper reader some idea:

There is no censorship. But there is a code of voluntary cooperation for military security (which various correspondents interpret in various ways). Every correspondent must file with a signal corps officer what he wishes to telephone. The officer puts a number on it in the order received. The correspondent must wait until all copy ahead of his is cleared before he gets a crack at the telephone.

Fourteen Deaths Mar Weekend In Province

(By The Canadian Press)

Fourteen deaths marred the Ontario weekend.

The most serious accident was a bus-car collision near Bradford, in which six persons were killed early Saturday.

There were three drownings in the Sudbury area. Harold Wise, of Findlay, was feared drowned when his empty boat was found after he had gone fishing. Drowned in Ramsay Lake were Alex Boyko, 19, of Alvina, Sask., and Aime Laberge, 32. Other drownings were Garret Emmons, 16, Dunnville, in Lake Scugog, and James A. Froats, a 34-year-old Dickinson's Landing carpenter in the Cornwall canal near his home.

Hugh M. Piper, 82, a former vice-president of the Fort William, Ont., Times-Journal died in hospital Sunday from injuries suffered when he was hit by a car Saturday. Marie Warmington, 18, was killed when a car went out of control near Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and plunged down an embankment.

Dowsley Kingston of Prescott, died of burns suffered in an explosion and fire at a lighthouse off Point Pelee on Lake Erie.

Boat Explodes, One Man Blown Into L. Ontario

Port Weller, July 10 — (CP)— A 38-year-old man was blown into the water of Lake Ontario Sunday night when a 65-foot work boat exploded. Two companions rescued him and rowed ashore in a dinghy.

The men were J. G. MacNicol, 38; C. G. Irwin, 54, and Charles Minor, 50, all of Port Colborne.

Mr. MacNicol said he was blown into the water by the blast but was not injured. He did not know what caused the explosion.

A United States Coast Guard cutter sped to the scene from Youngstown, N. Y., to join Canadian police and pleasure craft in a search of the wreckage-strewn water. After searching for several hours it was learned that the occupants of the boat had rowed into Port Dalhousie, four miles west of here.

Port Weller is at the northern entrance to the Welland Canal.

The boat, the Anna Mildred, was en route from Cornwall to Port Colborne after carrying out salvage operations. The three-man crew planned to make for Port Dalhousie after engine trouble developed.

Mr. MacNicol said the Anna Mildred burst into flames after the explosion.

Students Excavate At Verulamium Near St. Albans

Verulamium is near St. Albans, and it is a very good site at which to learn, because it has been destroyed and rebuilt at least three times. It started off as a pre-Roman capital, with an important mint. Then the Romans made it a high-ranking provincial city which Queen Boadicea destroyed in A.D. 61. Later on, the Romans rebuilt it, twice, with massive fortifications, which you can still see. Then when St. Alban's Abbey was built, several centuries later, many of the Roman temples and villas were destroyed and their materials re-used; the older parts of the abbey are built entirely of Roman bricks and tiles.

Professor Mortimer Wheeler is conducting a training school for about forty students, of various nationalities, and he has chosen this site, which he started excavating before the war, as an ideal spot to give students practical experience.

We started by having lectures on surveying and photography as applied to archaeology, and pottery, drawing and lantern lectures which showed us how to choose and lay out a site and, finally, how to work it.

The student generally has a rough plan to go on, probably taken from aerial photographs which show up buried buildings very clearly. Then he starts off with a strategic point such as, say, a corner, and marks out a ten-foot square.

You see, if you do this, you can extend your squares in any direction, later on; and in this way you keep a pattern, and can fit your information together more easily. You have to keep the site tidy, of course. If you throw earth about, the chances are that, later on you will want to dig another pit just underneath the dump.

Another thing to remember: you do not just dig to see what there is: you dig to find the answer to a specific problem —such as 'What was the extend of the earliest city, was it ever occupied by a Roman garrison, and, if so, which one?'

The aim is for us students to leave a site as we find it; the turf must be cut and rolled up carefully, and the top layers of unstratified earth must be removed.

Then you dig until you find your first stratified, or undisturbed, layer. Sometimes it is rather difficult to see just where one layer ends and a new one begins, so you start off with a trial pit, about two feet wide, running right across the square, and you keep this as a sort of master pit, always one layer ahead of the main square. In this way, you can see where you are going, and whether you have to dig extra carefully because of finds of pottery and other things. A bronze coin or, say, a brooch, that has been buried for 2,000 years, is often little more than a green pattern in the earth. If you can see it in time, and lift out the lump of soil complete for the laboratory to deal with, something may be made of it. But try scratching away yourself ,and you are just left with a tantalizing handful of bright-green crumbs.

Of course, all excavation is destruction in a sense, because you have to destroy the later layers to get to the earlier ones, so it is essential to record every single thing as you come across it. You have to label and number each layer, and mark all your small finds.

For instance, I found a large piece of well-decorated Samian ware in the layer as I dug, and from that the site supervisor was able to date the layer to within a few years in the second century. That did give us something to go on, for both layers.

Colored plaster and thick flint walls, small coins and pottery, and a very thick layer of burnt corn gave us a clear picture of a third-century Roman villa with a domestic granary, which had apparently caught fire and gone up in flames. All this was pieced together by studying the stratifications, the relationship of walls and floors, and the various small finds.

U.S. Starts Dipping Into Mobile Force

Washington, July 10 —(AP) — The United States army has started dipping into the small, five-division mobile force stationed in the United States to hasten help for American forces rocked by an onrushing North Korean army.

The decision to order the 2nd Infantry division and an unspecified number of smaller units from other organizations to the far east came less than two weeks after the United States had stepped in to assist South Korea in repelling the invaders from the North.

It intensified the manpower problems confronting the military, sharpening questions about the current volunteer effort, whether the draft would have to be used, whether the National Guard eventually would be moved into the picture.

The so-called "mobile striking force" was created for deployment to any area where an emergency occurs. Pared down from original plans, it consists of the five divisions, plus the units needed to enable the combat divisions to fight.

Military chiefs had nothing to say about how much help Gen. MacArthur may have requested or how much the strategy-making joint chiefs of staff here believe he should get. MacArthur started out the Korean campaign with elements of one division. That and whatever he has committed to battle since is drawn from the four divisions of his far east command.

NO MAIL IN TWO WEEKS

Hong Kong, July 10 — (AP) — No mail has been received here from Shanghai for two weeks. The tie-up is believed to be due to floods and landslides along the one railway link to the north, and to a transportation jam caused by movement of communist Gen. Lin Piao's fourth field army to the north over the same line.

Prime Minister To Open Calgary's Annual Stampede

Calgary, July 10 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent today opens the west's roughest, rowdiest spectacle—the Calgary Stampede.

Mr. St. Laurent, sporting a spanking new 10-gallon hat, will officiate at the opening of the week-long jamboree, termed by Calgarians "The greatest annual spectacle of its kind in the world."

Tens of thousands of persons—promoters' estimates run to 100,000—are expected for the occasion which this year also celebrates the city's 75th anniversary.

The Prime Minister will ride in a horse-drawn wagon at the head of the parade which snakes through downtown streets and completely takes over this humming foothills centre.

For the Prime Minister it is the end of a far-from-usual trip. Saturday at Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., the Plains Indians presented him with another type of bonnet—the feathered headdress of an Indian chief. They made him Chief O-tee Ensiewooneka-Niew ("Wise Leader" for short) and drew him into a tribal dance to the beat of native drums.

Leaflets Dropped

While he addressed a huge picnic and sports day crowd an aircraft dropped leaflets written by Nelson Clarke, Saskatchewan labor-progressive party leader, asking him to "tell the truth" about Korea.

Mr. St. Laurent against the unaccustomed background of wigwams, didn't seem to know what to do with the ceremonial pipe of the chiefs, and his beat was off in the braves' dance, but he shuffled around the little wooden platform in his flowing headdress. Around him his new brethren yelped and yipped and the squaws smiled.

He promised the Indians that he will honor the treaty made in 1874 with "the great White Mother"— Queen Victoria — and joined the pipe ritual which the Indians call "the symbol of the Great Spirit's covenant with the redmen."

CENTRE

Women's Assoc. Entertains Six Neighboring W.A.'s

Centre,—The Woman's Association of Centre recently entertained six of the neighboring societies in Centre United Church at which about 100 ladies attended.

Mrs. Clarence Vanclief, president, was in charge. The program for the afternoon opened with quiet music, followed by the theme song, "Let the Beauty of Jesus be seen in Me" and the reading Psalm 138, after which Mrs. Herbert Pulver welcomed all present. The program consisted of a piano solo, by Mrs. Cole, Albury; solo, by Mrs. Howes of Massassaga; reading, Mrs. Clinton Sager, Ameliasburg; piano duet, Mrs. Mackay, Mrs. Rorabeck, Rednersville; reading, Mrs. Douglas Harnes, Burrs, and a piano solo, Mrs. Faulkner, Victoria.

Mrs. Vanclief then introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Kingerley, of Consecon, who thanked the ladies for the invitation to speak to them on theis occasion. Mrs. Kingerley chose as her text, Matthew 13: (Parable of the Sower): first mystery, second, tares among the wheat, third, mustard seed; fourth, leaven.

Three great churches united 25 years ago and union has surprised its critics in surviving for 25 years. In the past quarter century depression has affected everything, together with that drought and the Second World War. It is a great achievement and has sustained growth; what would the world be like today without the church? If it were not for Christianity you, your son or daughter would not be safe. Our children will reap what we sow. Righteous lives in the world leavens the soul."

Woman's Task

Women have their place in the church and a permanent place all through the scriptures. There are mothers and fathers with broken hearts. If your sons, and daughters are interested in the church thank Gor for it. If lives are a possessed with evil they put it to work. Don't stop once to seek the lost. The leaven of righteousness and of good, will work, too.

Enterprise of the Christian Church belongs to God, and belongs to you, too. Enterprise as sisters wishing the highest and best for mankind. You and I must spend that leaven to spread a morsel of the sweet spiritual food.

There are hundreds of people who never come in contact with Christian men and women. There are prayers to say, letters to write. We don't reach out for enough. We should be strengthening our stakes, lengthening our cords. We do not realize what a letter to some people would do. It isn't what they are it, is what they are going to be. If we did that we would be "Growing With the Years".

Brotherhood is what God honors, tender and gentle and kind to each other. What if some lamb is left outside the fold, we have the tools, Christ will give us the strength. If we have a little leaven or one talent. God will increase it, use it lest he come quickly and take it from us, because we have been slothful servants.

She closed her address with Woman's Association Creed:
